Peron Dies at 78

Night Club Dancer Argentina's Ruler

BUENOS AIRES (A) — The Argentine people began a two-day farewell today to President Juan Peron, their leader for 30 years in power or in exile. Peron died Monday of a heart attack, leaving the presidency to his widow and vice-president, Isabel.

Draped in the national colors of blue and white, the coffin of the 78-year-old general was to be carried on a gun carriage today to the National Cathedral for mass. Then it was to lie in for 10 day.

Side while the people filed past. A state funeral will be held Wednesday.

National mourning was ordered for today and Wednesday, and flags will fly at half staff for 30 days.

Peron's 43-year-old widow, Isabel, the first woman chief executive in Latin America, has no assurance that she will remain in office for the five years and four months remaining in his term.

Meanwhile, the Peronist movement is badly split between Conservative and radical leftists and the labor unions and business interests are fighting "the government's attempts to check inflation by a wage and price freeze.

For the time being, however, no attempt is expected to unseat the new president and the country is expected to remain calm. Mrs. Peron, in a broadcast announcing her husband's death, appealed to "friends and adversaries" to calm their "personal passions in favor of a free, just and sovereign country."

The armed forces, which overthrew Peron in 1955, ruled the country for 18 years, promised to uphold the constitutional succession, and all political factions have expressed support for Mrs. Peron's mandate.

The labor unions declared a general mourning strike until midnight Wednesday but said essential services would be maintained. The Buenos Aires stock exchange was closed, sending officers and riot wagons through Buenos Aires.

Peron, one of the most loved and hated figures in the Latin-American history, was one of a group of army officers who overthrew in 1943. His mistress, the actress Eva Duarte, organized the country's women's — the descamisados, or "shirtless ones"—behind him. In 1946 he was elected president by a 55 per cent majority and married Eva. His first wife had died earlier.

Evita, as she was generally known, was in effect Peron's co-president but died in 1951 of leukemia at the age of 52. Two years later, the military ousted Peron, and he began 18 years of exile, eventually settling in Spain.

On the way he met his third wife in Panama, the real name of is Maria Estela Martinez, but she used the name Isabel as a night club dancer and had kept it. She followed Peron into Europe as his secretary, and they were married in 1999.

Peron's last years reportedly resulted from his last great romance before the penalties of old age. He had threatened to quit if Isabel, 20 years his junior, was not given official support. But his declining years were filled with bitterness and disappointments as things turned which prevailed before his return hours, begging him to stay. Then he stood as an open ballony in the winter chill.

Many Obstacles Remain -- Nixon

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon told the Soviet people tonight that he will meet with Leonid Brezhnev again, next year to continue the search for "a lasting peace" and a better life for them and for the American people.

The United States leader acknowledged that he and the Soviet Communist party leader "have many difficulties, yet to the severance in achieving full control over strategic nuclear arms."

But he said in a prepared speech they made progress in those areas and "we must persist and are steadily building a new relationship that over time will reduce the causes of conflict."

Nixon gave no hint of any specific results from his six-day talks with Brezhnev in the Kremlin feuds, the briefly mentioned new schools, hospitals and housing and said: "They will give the people of both of our countries a positive stake in peace."

Nixon's speech was on the eve of the winding of his third Summit with Brezhnev and followed a new round of talks with him.

"We have been able to meet this year, as we will meet again next year, not in an atmosphere of crisis, but rather in an atmosphere of confidence—confidence that the work we have embarked on is going forward."

Nixon said:

"In fact, it might be said that the most remarkable thing about this summit meeting is that it is taking place so readily in Pandaiyn—as part of a continuing pattern that would have seemed inconceivable just a few years ago.

Nixon did not say where the fourth summit would take place and he made no mention of an invitation offered to the United States Congress that if successful can remove him from office by 1975.

Yet, while U.S. Republicans would say that U.S. leadership in the accord have been alternating as both.

"Peace is not only a condition," the president said while the Soviet Union is in a normal round. "If it is to last, it must also be a continuing process."

Nixon said the summit sessions first began in 1972. Nixon said, "we will give the people of both of our countries a positive stake in peace."

Of Course There's Patronage

Munro Defends Choice Of Friends for Posts

HAMILTON (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro, responding to published reports linking his riding organization with political patronage to some of the Liberal party faithful, said Monday he had no apologies to make on the subject.

"No one can tell me that errors do not creep into the system. I totally aware that political parties of all persuasions tend to support supporters" and he said at a news conference.

Such lassitude are a fact of political life, he said.

"Of course there's patronage and you know it and everyone knows it. Is it wrong to favor a political supporter (over) someone else if the two have equal ability?"

"Of course, it isn't," he added.

Mr. Munro called the news conference at the outset of the campaign for the Oct. 30 election in Toronto - Globe and Mail which said that 32 of 48 recent Liberal appointments in the Hamilton area were to people who had worked for him or assisted openly in his campaign.

The Star's appointments and donors were among confidential documents released to the news media by a disgruntled former association with an RCMP investigation into the Hamilton Parole Commission.

Mr. Munro denied a GGoBe and Mail statement quoting him as saying he might resign over the issue.

The newspaper quoted him as saying:

I don't think I would resign and become a hypocrite over a thing; I am freshest.

However, Mr. Munro told reporters Monday he said that he was reacting out of "total frustration" and that his "resignation" quote is as a statement of real intent at all."

He said his exasperation arose when he learned that the newspaper planned to run an article based on documents released by him Friday night.

Our was a list of federal appointments filed by Hamilton-area residents over the last few years. He said the list was marked "confidential," was a list of donors to his 1972 re-election campaign in Hamilton East.

Mr. Munro said in an interview Sunday that the news media "have a right to demand lists out of context and compared them."

He said they are totally unrelated to context or in time," he said that.

He said Monday that to relate the names on the donor's list to the list of federal appointments is unfair.

Commenting on The Globe and Mail story, he said:

"I don't know what is shocking about that. It can only serve to contradict the charge that either in a most disturbing way. They assumed at The Globe and Mail that the appointments and the reporter was violated and assumed that the appointments were political, which were not, the contrary.

He said he refused to get federal appointments for Hamilton Liberals who had worked for the Liberal organization.

"I have worked hard on that and I made no apologies for it," he said.

They are very able Hamiltonians. I think the standard of building that he has tried to leverage the city's representation in the federal house and cabinet.

Barichnikov Seeks Immigrant Status

Andras Gives Soviet Dancer Permit

TORONTO (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said today he has issued a special ministerial permit to allow Soviet ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov to remain in Canada while he seeks landed immigrant status.

In a telephone interview from Thunder Bay, Ont., Mr. Andras said application officials in Toronto were to interview the 26-year-old leading dancer of London's Royal Ballet this morning as a start to his formal request for landed immigrant status.

"There was informal contact over the weekend with immigration officials in Toronto by a Toronto lawyer acting on behalf of Mr. Baryshnikov, who wishes to remain in Canada," Mr. Andras said.

"More formal contacts were made this morning and arrangements are under way to interview Mr. Baryshnikov later this morning."

Mr. Andras said he spoke about the Soviet dancer's case because he has asked to see the dancer, who apparently defected Saturday night after a Toronto performance of the Bolshoi ballet at the O'Keefe Centre in Toronto.

The Canadian citizens has always been sympathetic in these situations — consistent with a long-standing policy of humanitarianism in immigration matters.

He said he made the decision to issue the ministerial permit in response to a request from Mr. Baryshnikov's lawyer acting on behalf of

The Campaigners

Burgess Campaign Is Low Key

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Mainstreeting, glad-handing and rallies are integral parts of many political campaigns — cost money and manpower, both of which are in short supply for Prince Edward-Hastings "Independent" candidate Bryan Burgess.

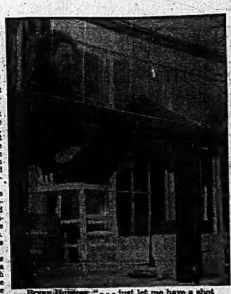
Mr. Burgess, sporting shoulder length hair and denim jeans, says his campaign is more like applying for a job.

"Just give me a chance to get in front of all the people once ... that's all I ask," he says.

He told a public meeting in Brighton, "all these men on the platform are applying for a job and you people just have to pick the one you want."

Apart from working a small garden on the lush, 85-acre Colborne farm he purchased with an inheritance, Mr. Burgess is unemployed. Most of his working days here were spent behind the curtains working as a theatre company stage hand. He believes now he'd like to try writing for a living.

Apart from media and public meeting invitations, Mr. Burgess is almost anonymous and says he is not going to get into the cost of putting up signs. "If a friend wants to put my name on a sign, fine."



Consuming most of his time is the renovation of the farm house, working a garden and sitting on his back verandah, which looks out over Lake Ontario.

"I just can't afford to get into a lot of heavy campaigning," he said.

"If I can" get to meet all the people each, I'll have had a shot at it," he says. Mr. Burgess says the best opportunity for this will be the free air time he has been given on cable television with the program to be aired shortly before the July 8 election.

His doesn't comment on his chances of winning in the predominantly Tory riding and when asked why he is running, he says "There's no one doing the things I want done. There's no one, I can vote for."

With the exception of the odd candidates' meeting, a campaign day is pretty much like any other day for the Independent, who sums up the whole election exercise as a "see-saw job application."

Bryan Burgess: "- - - just let me have a shot at it."

$264,000 Contracts For Trenton Company

The Ministry of Government Services has announced the award of a contract to J. D. Coad Construction Co. Ltd. of Trenton for renovations to the sub-shower room at the fingerprinting gain building at the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville. The Coad tender for $57,700 was the lowest of five bids, the highest being $74,500.

The contract calls for remodelling and upgrading of the existing facilities as well as installation of vanities and new interior finishes on walls and ceiling.

The Coad Company of Trenton also has received a contract from the same Ministry for construction of a new registry office at Picton.

The amount of the contract is $121,000. The highest of seven bids received by the ministry was $207,000.

The one-storey building in the former of an addition to the Picton court house, will provide 2,460 square feet of space, divided into registry and registrar's offices, public area, general office space, filing and storage areas and washrooms. The addition will replace the existing office rented from Picton.

The Show Must Go On

Despite the drizzle, the VIP gallery stayed firm till the end as Air Transport Command aircraft went through their paces at CFB Trenton's Canadian Armed Forces Day Saturday. Headliners of the show, Canada's crack precision flying team, the Snowbirds, went on regardless of rain which squashed the show last year.

Drizzly Weather Again Damps Forces Display

TRENTON — For the third consecutive year, poor weather hung over Canadian Armed Forces Day at CFB Trenton, keeping crowds small.

Despite an optimistic weather forecast the previous day, Saturday began with rain showers and continued with overcast skies, curtailing the early morning air show performance and abbreviating the actual performance.

While banks of cloud rolled across the airfield, show organizers jockeyed the flight schedule in an attempt to mobilize aircraft during clear intervals.

Lt.-Col. Allan Tegart, show co-ordinator, insisted on opening the show's finale, the Snowbirds, gave the precision jet crew the green light even as a drizzle began falling.

Generally the threat of rain is enough to ground the team.

A crowd of about 3,000 lined the show fence, a the airfield perimeter to watch the show before dashing to shelter as the planes landed and the downpour began.

Base protocol officer Captain Rob Burke, addressing the crowd prior to the show, joked "next year we'll have the show on a Wednesday. It never rains on Wednesdays."

For those who came out to the open house, it was an interesting day of finding out what makes the big planes fly and seeing the machinery of the Canadian Armed Forces.

All facets of the base operation were displayed with people processed to explain all individual questions.

Crowds were invited through a Boeing 707 — one of the most popular tours of the show — and got a chance to see Canada's jet aircraft at close range.

Throughout the day's drizzle, the CFB Pipe Band strutted about the hangar line while a brass band and the Sing Out group entertained in hangars.

Base spokesman say he day went off smoothly, though crowds didn't meet the anticipated 10,000.

Marmora Man Crash Victim

A Marmora man was killed Sunday in a single car accident on County Road 37 near Campbellford.

The car driven by Eric Dunkley, 60, of Marmora, flew through the air for 100 feet and rolled several times before coming to rest in a field.

A passenger was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital.

'Party' Expensive As Owner Away

Belleville police are investigating what they term to be an "extremely serious" case of vandalism at a home at 202 Bridge Street East.

Some time between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 10:45 p.m. Monday, owners were a "party" in the Bridge Street home while the owner was away for the long weekend.

Police Constable Douglas Crosbie said today that the Bridge Street homeowner returned to find his house had been "completely ransacked" by vandals.

The light bulbs in the kitchen were smashed against the walls and ceiling, mustard and ketchup were smeared across the walls and floor. In the living room, light bulbs were smashed, lamps broken, end tables scratched, and the thermostat was pulled off the house.

The den was ransacked, and papers were strewn about the house.

Two chandeliers, in the front hall and the living room, damaged and china was broken.

An undetermined sum of foreign currency was stolen.

Police say the damage to the house "far exceeded any loss from theft" and were unable to place an estimate on either.

Chief Crosbie said that "it looks as if someone who knew the owner was away had thrown a party".

Entry was gained to the building by breaking a glass pane in the back door.

Rear-ender Cost $1,050

Officers from the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were called on to investigate a two-car accident that resulted in approximately $1,050 damage in Sidney Sunday.

Police report that a car driven by Chester Curran, of Toronto, collided with a car driven by Dale Hatton of Peterborough, at the intersection of North St. and Front St. Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

The Curran car was travelling south on North Street and had stopped at the intersection when the Hatton vehicle ran into its rear, police said.

No one was injured in the accident.

Coins Stolen

Belleville police are investigating a break-in that occurred during the weekend at a home at 39 Chatham Street.

Police say thieves entered the home by dashing a screen on the porch and forcing open the kitchen door.

An estimated $25 worth of quarters was stole from the home.

Holiday Holocaust

Front Street Blaze Guts Store Building

Large crowds gathered on Front Street Saturday afternoon to watch Belleville fire fighters extinguish the fire that gutted the building that housed Shana Family Boutique at 203 Front Street. The fire broke out in the mid-rear portion of the second storey of the building and quickly spread to the third floor. Firefighters were used four sets of hose and an extension ladder to get at the blaze. Walker Department Store, on the north side of the building, sustained extensive smoke damage.

Fire, completely destroyed the shop, empty brick building that housed the Diana Family Boutique at 205 Front Street Monday afternoon.

The building was destroyed after fire of an undetermined origin broke out in the rear portion of the second and third floors at 3:21 p.m.

When firemen arrived at the scene, dark clouds of smoke were billowing from the windows of the top floors.

The alarm was turned in by a self-confessed pyromaniac who was eating lunch in a restaurant across the street. The man, a Belleville man who was on foot patrol on Front Street, was the one who was in the building at the time of the fire and was the first to spot the flames.

Damage estimates are not yet available but Fire Chief Leo Colhane said the building was a complete loss.

Walker's Department store, on the north side of the burned building sustained extensive smoke damage as a result of the fire, while S. S. Kresge Co. Ltd., on the south side, received water damage in the basement.

Chief Colhane said he believed the fire started in the mid-rear section of the second storey of the building and quickly spread through the ceiling to the third storey.

A large crowd of curious onlookers, including groups of small boys with fishing poles, gathered on the east side of Front Street to watch the Shana Family Boutique occupied the ground floor of the building while the top two floors were vacant.

Tony Wolanski, owner of the boutique was out of town at the time of the fire and was not available for comment on the damage done to his store.

The building was owned by Bert Bench, of Belleville.

Belleville inspectors Fred Sigsworth and Reg Christopher and representatives of the Ontario Fire Marshall's office toured the burned building early today in an effort to determine the cause of the fire.

Not For Canadians

Far from blacking out coverage of his party's platform, we take note of Communist party leader William Kashian's statement that since Canadians are not ready for it, split will not be calling for abolition of private capitalism.

Presumably Mr. Kashian cherishes some illusion that Canadians ultimately will change for the gratifying lenets of the far left: an end to free enterprise, freedom of speech, worship and all the rest of it.

No, this is not for Canadians, now or at any time. Yet it is something we must continue to guard against, for there are times when some of the philosophy of Communism — call it an atmosphere of "contact" — or when some aspect of Government policy seems to favor leftist interests abroad over proper needs at home, impinge on the political scene here. The price of liberty is eternal vigilance.

We have heard that some candidates in this election were undecided as to what their party affiliation should be until the last moment. Could it be that they see in the established parties an opportunity to further other political concepts that are not in the best interests of this country or of our democratic way of life?

Infiltration is one of the ways in which the Communists gain control, and while there is no proof or evidence that this is in fact happening on this occasion, it is still within the bounds of possibility. Activities such as this are not conducted overtly, but rather under cover or in some other guise. And it is one reason why there is no place for apathy or unconcern on the part of voters.

A City's Troubles

This is a tale of three cities — or rather a city (Galt) and two smaller communities (Preston and Hespeler) which were amalgamated to become the new city of Cambridge.

Cambridge has been having its troubles, arising from the flooding of the Grand River on May 17.

On June 18 The Cambridge Daily Reporter noted that claims had been filed in respect of 151 residential and 34 businesses totalling $748,463, with more expected. A number of other surrounding municipalities were also affected.

In the same issue The Reporter pointed out that the public inquiry into the floods was postponed since it is even being put off a third time. It gave as the reason a warning by insurers that people who testified might jeopardize their insurance policies unless evidence was given under oath.

This development aroused the wrath, among others, of Mayor Claudette Millar, and City Council subsequently resolved to tell that the inquiry be resumed under the Public Inquiries Act.

The Mayor blamed the provincial government for the delay and she criticized the police association, the Canadian Armed Forces and the school board for their actions during the flood while praising the relief efforts by various organizations.

The municipal board came in for criticism for letting the children out of school early, thus adding to problems in the downtown core, which in turn helped to bring many customers through the response from Ottawa that they were busy in Egypt and there would have to be a real emergency to bring them here.

Mayor Millar also had an incredible story of personal attempts to obtain a rescue helicopter for a Mr. Taylor who was "practically dying of cancer in a tree." She said that about midnight she was informed by Canadian Armed Forces that the Emergency Measures Organization was the only official route to get a helicopter over the city.

"In desperation," according to The Reporter, "Mayor Millar contacted the United States consulate for help." Finally, a Niagara Falls sightseeing company arranged for a $ 4 an rescue even though it was not licenced to fly in the flood area.

One bright spot in all this was the Call Cambridge Day one weekend when everyone from the local political candidates to ethnic groups pitched in to collect funds for flood victims. At the same time the aftermath of these floods raises many questions as to the role of municipalities, government, emergency measures and armed forces in combating such a situation. In Cambridge it has been far from smooth sailing.

Our thoughts about Canada give place today to those in a small but strong book. In less than 30 simple, telling pages of blank verse—and original, historic drawings, it reminds us again who we are.

The Boy Who Came With Cartier is allegedly a children's story-book but its message for adults is there just the same. Chip Young, its imaginative and expressive Oklahoma-born author, has found the essence of things Canadian in the tale of a stowaway in Jacques Cartier's ship on its way to Canada, a stripling boy who becomes immortal and lives through Canada's history.

In the end, a very old man, he encounters the author himself leaving with him sentiments learned while Canada we have forgotten or ignore in our worry about "other things."

Chip Young's technique is one of forever new coats we have these days in the media to bring us back to our past, closer to the still-hard, yet compelling land which surrounds us still in spite of our affluence.

In the end, you re-tail the story of Canada's past where so many of us have been burdened at the start by a dry bones role of events and people from blazed teachers who taught us more about the British than ourselves!

Well, you can take the high road of the television documentary, like the recent Pierre Berton series which unravelled the recent history and drama of the Diefenbaker-Pearson years in power.

Or you can go the populist route, read about Louis Riel in the new folk hero role from a spate of new books supporting him as the supreme victim of the same gang of entrepreneurs, politicians and military leaders who rammed the CPR across the West, and with it destroyed an emerging, half-breed Prairie society.

Or you can abandon causes issues and hard television reportage if our past is seen the lower and compelling route of Young and his immortal boy pioneer formed old man.

Chip Young tells us a good deal about ourselves through his self-created immortality of The Boy Who Came With Cartier and who lives forever, Shangri-La style, to see it all.

The stowaway boy in Cartier's ship of exploration is bound for the New World, "displaced by dreams" and stays

Land Speculation Tax Has a Positive Side

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The land speculation tax is a positive step in the law.

It hasn't got that in the controversy which has surrounded the bill, and which it appears is likely to continue for some time, this may become objectional or even somewhat unjustified.

Even legislation is bitterly opposed, as the socialists have been, it can appear to the public as a question of black and white.

The legislation can be all good or all bad, either to be praised or condemned outright.

With the open fact there was a lot to be criticized in the act, and particularly in the preparatory work leading up to it.

Both the bill and its attendants may have been, and still be, unfair, the principle is good.

Premier Davis is probably right in his statement that he says that the measure is the first concrete step against inflation by any government in Canada.

But there is no question that the intent of the tax is good, and that if it fails we are even worked out of it there could be a considerable impact against inflation. And also, of course, social merit in that it would hold down land prices.

The government contends that even on the limited experience to date has shown the tax is effective.

It says that perhaps the most immediate speculation of all, the practice of buying up houses, apartments and land for development, and holding them for a few weeks to turn over a fast buck has been pretty well eliminated.

This would seem to be true. In the metropolitan area at least, the form of speculation has pretty well disappeared.

Other claims don't stand up as strongly.

The government says that profiteering in residential housing has been curbed.

There has been a great drop in house sales, and with this in mind, But how much has been curtailed from high mortgage rates and how much from the tax act is a matter of question. And how much of the high house rates have been a major factor.

However there is also no question but that the tax has had an impact on prices and inflation, and the government could have been more effective in designing the legislation in this regard if good and eventually should work.

Fears of Recession Grow in United Kingdom

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Britain is suffering from financial and political jitters, uncertain about the Labor government's nationalization plans and beset by general anxiety about the economy.

Dire predictions about a continued deterioration in Britain's balance of foreign trade also add to the alarm.

Other forecasters are even more concerned about the possibility that the British economy is in March by Denis Healey, Chancellor of the exchequer, may precipitate a recession.

Healey, however, says he can satisfy will take quick action to avoid a serious recession if evidence shows this to be necessary.

Commentators have concluded that recent months of production before late July of a Labor government will give the economy a fillip before the expected election.

Reflation should then give the country a new period of prosperity leading to newspaper predictions.

But the electorally-divorced Prime Minister Harold Wilson is likely to go slow on any extensive reflationary measures.

With an election apparently likely this autumn, he cannot afford to risk a new round of spending and borrowing by the government's economic managers that could mean trouble for politicians.

Wilson has by no means confined to the Labor party. A controversy appears to be developing within the Liberal party over the views by one top personality that the party's entry into a coalition if the next election fails to produce a majority government.

Tories only now are emerging from a period of grave doubt about the leadership qualities of former prime minister Edward Heath, who was defeated by the Labor administration in th Feb. 28 election.

Finally, there is the ever-unpredictable influence of Tiny Rowland, controversial South African financier who controls a wide variety of income—not the least of which is the Observer, Britain's counterpart to the European Common Market.

Veteran Newsman James Minifie Passes On

The Canadian Press
The Montreal Gazette
Canada was twice a land of adoption for James M. Minifie, first when he came to Saskatchewan as a boy from Britain with his family, going overseas as an impressably young age as a soldier by the last World War, and secondly in the latter part of his life when he looked back to Canada as an antidote to the arrogance of power in the country of which he had become a citizen, the United States.

The independence of mind and the humanity of James Minifie, who was known by the shortened form to millions of readers of Canada, is contained in the tribute by Douglas Fisher in the opposite page to this one. Firm Hand of John MacBeth

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — What's a 53-year-old Toronto lawyer with no background in industrial relations doing as Ontario minister of labor.

When Premier Davis first announced that John MacBeth would succeed Fernand Guindon as labor minister it was a question widely asked.

MacBeth had the respect of the house, particularly for his direction of last year's select committee on Hydro, which he chaired.

Though he has been a provincial member only since 1972, he had a long record of public and area local politics before that and was considered one of the city's leading politicians.

But he quickly and freely admitted he had practically no experience with labor relations and surely this would be a handicap in the portfolio.

Actually, of course, the premier knew quite well what he was doing when he made the appointment.

The labor ministry is a tough portfolio.

Its main job is to try to "keep the peace" and as there is almost constant pressure to get strikes and lockouts settled and to keep tes to the demands of labor and management alike.

The characteristic most needed here is a cool head and patience. Labor relations knowledge can be picked up on the job.

And he would have been patient and moderate that old Davison MacBeth, For he had shown he could keep his cool.

And to the relatively short time he has been in office to date he would seem to have shown the premier to be right.

He has had only a couple of a number of quite tough labor disputes throughout the province. MacBeth has not been rattled.

He has had his officials hard at work and has escaped any from trouble in the house where a minister of labor's misfortunes can be given a hard time.

He has taken a crash course on his difficult portfolio and he probably doesn't know it all yet he is usually able to come up with frank and intelligent replies to questions. And what he doesn't know something he says so.

Further, he has given an indication that though he professes to be a political neophyte he has an open mind.

All in all, enough to suspect he will do a good job of keeping the peace.

Honeymoon For Silver Over

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Editor
Thomson News Service

Silver has been the best rolling on the cost-tails of gold—but the ride may be coming to an end.

For the past year's boom in gold prices has been matched by a boom in silver. Understandably, the speculative fever seems to have spread.

One reason is the economic downturn in the United States. Over the past year, investors in that country expects a decline in the value of the dollar and last year's industrial purchases of silver.

The biggest single area of silver consumption is in photography. Over the past year, however your favorite old movie camera has not been replaced. It's probably because all the prints were developed on silver content). By 1975, synthetic photopolymers could start replacing silver film.

The high cost of the precious metal has also curbed its use in the manufacture of electrical control devices, once a important market for silver refiners.

Finally, the U.S. Treasury and United States, and consumption should increase by 20 million ounces last year, to a record 197 million ounces.

Furthermore, last year's output of the world's silver mines is estimated to have been as much as 200 million ounces short of world demand. The shortfall was covered through recovery of secondary metal from scrap, coinage and through inventory reduction.

And while the weight of the evidence points to a setback in industrial demand for silver, the figures on first-quarter 1974 U.S. consumption show that demand was continuing to rise at a healthy clip during that period.

Of course, people buy silver for other reasons than industrial demand.

In the gold, it is cherished as a store of value and a hedge against an inflationary spiral which has been running at astronaut.

In until recently, both purchases metals have more or less fulfilled the function of an antiinflationary hedge. Fluctuations in their price fluctuations have been so wide that those who bought at the top are still waiting to break even.

Now the inflation running at an annual rate of, say, 12 per cent, the rate you get depends upon the hardstick used), silver is considered a better bet than gold because the latter pays the same percentage if it is to continue to offset inflation—and the appreciation potential is doubtful now.

Investors seeking an anti-inflationary hedge have a broad choice. They can, for instance, buy fixed-interest securities yielding 12 per cent or more (mortgages, for example), or lower-yielding stocks that pay dividends that increase periodically when tax credits are taken into account.

Finally, U.S. citizens may soon be allowed to own gold for the first time in 40 years. That will almost certainly reduce the speculative demand for gold which has been free of such restrictions.

More Views on Election

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am a woman in my 80th year, who has seen much of life and has much time on my hands.

I enjoyed Dave Dent's letter in The Intelligencer. We need more letters like his. They are a real education. I like to give expression to their views on Canadian politics in a sane, thoughtful manner.

I have read Mr. Hockey's letters; I watch our Parliament Buildings at night, but a recent letter of his seems to have disturbed Ron Leger, Gladstone and John Defenbaker were raised very poor. I have no fat for a fat mouth that time.

Mr. Hockey, I don't speak French anyway; it is a matter of choice. I don't speak Spanish either, but I can appreciate those who do.

Who is going to pay for all these vast projects we are making? Already he and the late Mr. Diefenbaker were throwing the taxpayer's money around like little boys throwing pennies at a carnival.

Pierre Trudeau is a fortune-teller, and I must believe he leads us into Civil war.

Lori O'Neil, Judy Smith, Race for Finish Line in Trent Inner-tube Race During Canada Day Events

Tube Race Triumph for CFB Girl

TRENTON — It was a tube-and-tube finish here at Centennial Park during the first inner tube race held in conjunction with Canada Day festivities Monday.

Tow second separated the winner, Debbie Nowell, and runner-up Carol Grice over the ¾-mile course on the Trent River.

Miss Nowell, a member of the race-sponsoring CFB Trenton Flying Frogmen Scuba Club, bested 19 others to register a winning, record time of 18 minutes.

Did she think she would win?

"No way!" she said, dripping wet at the finish line. "I thought all three big men would win."

She was one of four women who entered the race. One woman didn't get off the starting line at the Front St. fire hall.

Miss Nowell pulled into a quick lead a quarter way through the race, only to be overtaken by Grice at the halfway mark.

Race organizer, Flying Frogmen president Earl LeMaire, was satisfied with its outcome, though regretted only 11 competitors entered.

"This is only our first time out," he said. "Like everything it takes a while to get it rolling."

Next year, he hopes to have more time to advertise the race and thereby draw more competitors. Approval for this year's event was received early last week.

Doctor Fishes Biggest Bass

WELLINGTON — Dr. James Bain of Trenton will be enjoying some fine boating this summer as a result of a fishing derby here over the Dominion Day Weekend.

He caught the largest bass, weighing in at 4 lb., 8.5 ozs. in the Lions Club fishing derby, to win an electric outboard motor.

Darryle Boyce, club president, said in spite of poor weather participation was good. Coinciding with the official opening of the bass season, the derby ran the full three days of the holiday.

Second place went to Janet Jones Picton, with a bass 3 lb. 13 oz., and third place went to Earl Kemerer, Wheatley, West Virginia, with six fish totalling 14 lb. 7oz. Draw prize went to George Bean, Trenton.

The derby raised $150 for the villages arena building fund.

Boat Owners Charged

PICTON — A total of seven charges in this area were laid this weekend for infraction of small craft regulations. Most of these were in regard to lack of proper equipment in the boat.

A provincial police spokesman attributed the offences to carelessness and ignorance of regulations regarding small craft.

Small-vessel regulations say craft not over 18 feet must carry an approved life jacket for each passenger on board or manual pump, two oars or paddles, and if equipped with an inboard motor or cooking appliance, the boat must contain a fire extinguisher.

Annual Celebration

Trenton's Canada Day Lights Up the Town

TRENTON — Fireworks lit up the sky over Centennial Park here Monday night to close this year's Canada Day celebrations.

During the day-long event, several firsts were marked by the organizers.

Jerry Goldberg, Rotary Club coordinator, said Monday it was the first year CFB Trenton and its residential subdivision Middleton Park were invited to participate.

As a result attendance was estimated at more than 10,000.

No problems were encountered during the day, said Mr. Goldberg; "It's the type of thing that once it gets going, you have no problems at all."

Even scattered light showers put no damper on the day's activities.

Colors aplenty brightened the day for thousands of youngsters that swarmed over the park. A six-member clown corp handed out suckers; six CFB Trenton parajumpers with red and white chutes set youngsters scurrying.

An approximate 20 teenagers with the town's recreation and parks department manned the penny arcades by the ball diamond in use nearly all day by beaver baseball players and men's teams.

Traffic On Trent Down

TRENTON — Summer marine traffic on the Trent waterway is down 25 per cent this year due to high water which caused a three-week closing of the system in May.

Until Monday the count of all categories of watercraft passing through No. 1 lock stood at 220, down 80 from the number recorded during the same period in 1973.

A redeeming factor, however, appears to be an observation by veteran lockmaster Jim Howard, who will have completed 21 years of service on the inland canal route at the end of the season.

"Maybe it's just my imagination but the river seems to be getting cleaner in these latter years," he said, commenting on the waterway's condition this year.

Mrs. Martha Luther King Sr. Slain While at Church Organ

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr., 69, a quiet, devout woman who kept out of the limelight during the years her ex preached non-violence from the pulpit of the Ebenezer Baptist Church.

Sunday, she was seated at the organ of the church when the intonation of The Lord's Prayer by the choir was interrupted by shots.

Two of her nine grandchildren were among the congregation as a young black man opened fire. Mrs. King fell a stabbed member of the congregation were killed and another woman was wounded.

She was shot in the same simple, red-brick church in which many gathered to mourn the death of her son, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who was assassinated April 4, 1968.

Mrs. King, 69, the former Alberta Christine Williams, never gave interviews during the years when her son preached his non-violent doctrine and led Negro civil rights marches.

A shy, reserved person, she simply bowed her head and nodded when Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, spoke to her after he had placed a wreath on her son's tomb in 1969.

A victim of violence, she was no stranger to tragedy. Less than 16 months after Dr. King Jr. was slain, her second and last son, A. D. King was drowned in the backyard swimming pool of his home here.

Her two sons left nine fatherless grandchildren and she and "Daddy King" devoted themselves to them. Dr. King Sr., who often preaches at Ebenezer, did not deliver the sermon Sunday. He was coming into the church when his wife was shot.

Mrs. King was the daughter of a Baptist minister, the late Rev. A. D. Williams.

She married Dr. King Sr., the son of a sharecropper, in Atlanta nearly 50 years ago and their three children were born in a simple, white frame house a few blocks from Ebenezer Baptist church.

She had only one living child, Christine, who is married to Isaac Farris of Atlanta. Mrs. Farris is an assistant professor of education at Spelman College.

More than 1,000 persons gathered in Atlanta in December, 1970, to honor the older King in a testimonial dinner marking Dr. King's 70th birthday.

Throughout the evening "Mama King" dabbed her eyes while her robust husband vacillated between outbursts of laughter and quiet moments of humility while friends and celebrities from across the United States filed across the podium to pay them tribute.

Shortly after the gunman who shot his wife was taken into custody, the elder King confronted him.

A family spokesman described the account of the meeting: "Dr. King said the man said him he came here to get his enemies. Dr. King said he asked the man why he shot his wife and that the man answered, 'Because she was a Christian and all Christians are my enemies.'"

Former Cabaret Dancer Now Ruler of Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — After a few days' pracice as president of Argentina, Isabel Person has begun to build her own reputation as one adept in statecraft.

Sill, many Argentines have trouble imagining the slender chestnut brunette as their chief executive.

She was sworn in as acting president Saturday to fill in for her 78-year-old husband, who died Monday.

Maria Estela Martinez has been "Isabel" since Juan Person met her in Panama where she was dancing in a cabaret and he was living in exile. She stayed with him, first as secretary and later as wife.

At 43, she is learning politics with a passion.

She is the first woman in any South American country to serve as president, and joins the ranks of such female government leaders as Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, Prince Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka, and Golda Meir, former premier of Israel.

Queen Mother Returns Home

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth ended her ninth Canadian visit Monday with Dominion Day celebrations at the Ontario legislature grounds and a warm farewell from her troops, the Toronto Scottish at Toronto International Airport.

The Canadian Armed Forces Boeing 707 carrying the 73-year-old Queen Mother, her lady-in-waiting and about 30 servicemen and their families on the 6½-hour direct flight to London taxied from the tarmac at 11:21 a.m. EDT, six minutes behind schedule.

Crowds that grew in size and enthusiasm throughout the seven-day visit to this city and Montreal waved and cheered as the royal motorcade made its way from Queen's Park to the airport, where several hundred more waited.

Bagpipers played the refrain Will Ye No Come Back Again as the Queen Mother turned, smiled and gave a final wave to Canada before entering the aircraft.

On hand for the royal departure were Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada, representing Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger who is recovering from a stroke, and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

At the legislature grounds the Queen Mother recalled her first visit to Canada in 1939 with King George VI.

"How comedian we both were at this golden link of the Crown and the Dominion Day celebrations," she said.

King placed upon the fact that he, personally, had given assent to Canadian legislation. . . ."

This seven-day private visit, organized by the Ontario Jockey Club, the Toronto Scottish and the Black-Watch Royal Highland Regiment of Montreal, to honor the Queen Mother as their colonel-in-chief, was without much of the state formality that accompanied that first royal visit of a reigning monarch to this country.

But it was not without military pomp and a warm reception from onlookers who lined streets to glimpse the royal visitor wherever she went in downtown Toronto.

The Queen Mother appeared ever relaxed and cheerful despite a full itinerary that took her to shake hands, especially of the very young and the very old who waited sometimes for hours along her route.

Among them Monday were a dozen of Ontario's most senior citizens, all more than 100 years old, who met Her Majesty at the Dominion Day celebrations.

She also presented Duke of Edinburgh's awards for excellence in social service and physical fitness to 13 youths.

Greeted by Ontario Premier William Davis and Lieut.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon, the Queen Mother was given a brooch in the form emblem of the province, a trillium, and a painting depicting the landing of Scottish settlers in Nova Scotia.

Highlight of the week-long visit was her appearance at the 113th running of the Queen's Plate Saturday where the Queen Mother presented the traditional 50 guineas to Jack Stafford, owner of Amber Richard, winner of the Plate, North America's oldest continually-run stakes race.

By coincidence, Stafford's Royal Chocolate was the winner last year when Queen Elizabeth, her daughter, presented the velvet purse with the 50 guineas inside.

Steel Mills Increase Their Price for Scrap

TORONTO (CP) — Major Canadian steel mills have announced increases in their buying price for No. 1 steel scrap.

Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., and Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., said they are increasing their buying price by $19 to $150 a ton, the record domestic level of April and May.

No. 1 steel scrap includes material recovered as clippings from new steel used in manufacturing and processing. It is called clean scrap.

Stelco, Canada's largest primary steel producer and major domestic buyer of steel scrap, said its posted price for No. 2 scrap will remain unchanged at $70 a ton.

A Stelco spokesman said that company's buying price for No. 3 scrap, also will be unchanged.

Quinte Cuisine

Devilled Crab is a favorite in the Fonwood Gardens home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Vaughan. Lois Vaughan, who says she has "four kids and two dogs", is especially fond of this seafood entree. Besides gourmet cooking, Lois enjoys community work as a member of the board of directors of United Community Services and membership in an investment club. She's also past president of the Medical Wives' Association.

Devilled Crab

¾ cup medium white sauce
two eggs yolks, beaten two cups crabmeat
one tsp. prepared mustard ½ tsp. worcestershire
two tbsp. sherry
½ tsp. lemon juice
pinch cayenne pepper
one 15 oz. can mushrooms
two-thirds cup fine dry bread crumbs two tbsp. melted butter
two tsp. minced parsley six lemon wedges.

Add hot white sauce to beaten egg yolks gradually, stirring constantly.

Add crab meat and heat thoroughly. Add mustard, lemon juice, worcestershire, sherry, cayenne and mushrooms. Blend well. Turn mixture into six greased shells or individual ramekins. Combine crumbs and butter and sprinkle over crab mixture. Place in 450 degree oven for five minutes. Sprinkle parsley on each and garnish with lemon wedge.

People and Events

Mrs. Sam Dafoe was the hostess for the June meeting of the Tweed-Chatsworth Women's Institute meeting.

Isabel Martin, and Irene Brough displayed a quilt which they had made for the World Craft Exhibition at the Ontario Science Centre.

Mabel Foster, convener, took charge of the program on "citizenship". The program was opened with a solo by Helen Robert, accompanied by Mrs. Hilda Kemp.

Hazel Jones read "The Blunder" — a story from "The Best of Gregory Clark". All members joined in singing "The Women's Institute Call".

Mrs. Foster said that today, even with opportunities for education and travel there are many unhappy youths and citizens of all ages. Canadians could be known for their kindness in reaching out to the needs of their fellowmen.

Stella Woods read a humorous story entitled "Aunt Jane and Madam Queen".

The next meeting (following the summer recess) will be in September at the home of Gladys McNeil, Tweed.

Representatives of various 4-H Homemaking and Agriculture Clubs in Hastings County met recently marking the first time the separate 4-H programs came together.

The purpose of this 4-H Council is to plan, organize and conduct activities and programs that will fulfill the needs of the rural youth in Hastings County. By initiating such projects the 4-H Council hopes to strengthen the relationship between 4-H and the community.

The Council suggested and then gave consideration to many possible activities that they would like to carry out in the forthcoming year. Some of the ideas proposed for 4-H included a country picnic, dance, church service, raffle, camping expedition and car wash.

The first event planned in conjunction with the Hastings County Club Leaders' Association is a county-wide picnic scheduled for early August.

Ketchup Freak Spoils Cooking

Dear Ann Landers: The problem I am writing about isn't really mine, it's my mother's. But she would never write to you about it, so I will.

Mom loves to cook, and she is a lot of time in the kitchen fixing delicious suppers.

Just before she sits down, he goes to the refrigerator and takes out a bottle of ketchup. My father's never tasted anything before he drowns it in the red stuff. It makes no difference what it is—fried chicken, pork chops, roast or fish. I can see the hurt look in Mom's eyes when he does this. She never says a word but I know how she must feel.

I'm afraid one of these days Mom will say the heck with it and stop cooking delicious meals for us. Do you have any suggestions?

Ketchup Freak

Dear Is: Your dad is a ketchup freak. These types are usually harmless. It's a pity to waste time preparing delicious meals for ketchup heads because all they want is the taste of ketchup.

If the other members of the family continue to compliment him on the way he cooks, it will make up for your dad, but it might even get him to try something without ketchup. Why don't you see what the others are raving about.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago you published a letter from a sour apple who didn't like my rant of the human race. He said 99 per cent of the people he knew were phonies, that they really didn't give a hoot about anyone except themselves. Then he went on to cite as an example the canned phrases and empty greetings such as, "How are you" He claimed nobody cares how you are and added, "They don't even stop long enough to wait for an answer."

We all know some clinkers, but I contend he wouldn't peg the figure at 99 per cent. One of the problems is that people do have a tendency to give trite answers to trite questions. For example, when someone asks, "How are you," most people automatically reply, "Just fine." I say, "I'm thankful. How about you" That always stops them dead in their tracks. They ask, "Thankful For what"

Then I say, "I'm thankful that at 74, I can still see, hear, walk, enjoy good friends, good food, a good night's sleep, and maybe fly a kind deed here and there."

Best wishes to you, Ann. I hope you continue for the duration for many years to come.—Mrs. L.D.M., Rolla, Mo.

Dear Rolla: Anyone who writes off the whole human race because of a few sour apples may have a pretty rancid outlook on life. Thanks for an upbeat letter. You sound like a girl worth knowing.

Dear Ann: Every time I meet a guy I like, I get sick. I throw up. It's awful to be having a good time and then to become suddenly nauseated and have to excuse myself. It's nothing that I eat or drink because I made it a point on my last two dates not to eat or drink anything.

I am 15 and afraid this problem is not going to solve itself. I need some help. I know it's nerves, but what can I do about it.—Nervous Nellie

Dear Nell: First go to your family doctor for a complete physical checkup. Then tell him exactly what you told me and ask to recommend a good psychiatrist. Your problem is probably emotional and you need to talk to someone on a continuing basis to learn why boys upset you.

Successful Living

Why Do Farm Wives Leave?

Dear Doris: — This is a belated "thank you" for the list of pen pal societies, which proved to be most helpful. You may remember passing my name on to the lonesome gentleman a thousand pen friends, last February. Well, he did answer eventually, a very nice long letter about his farm, etc. However, it seems his wife left him two years ago because she couldn't stand the farm life any more.

It so happens that I was once in the same position, and I also left my husband for the same reason. Naturally that didn't go over too well with the gentleman and he hasn't written again. I do hope he has as much success with his pen friends as I am having with mine! — Felicity.

Dear Felicity: I dunno. Seems to me the rejection of farm life had something more behind it. If the gentleman were kindred spirits, each would be more likely to seek ways of bringing satisfactions into the life of the other, be they in city or country.

Now face it: was your dislike of farm life your only reason for walking out on your then husband?

Confidential to Peter: A child of six can't easily decline in a fit of temper that she hates her parents, and five minutes later forget she ever made such an extravagant statement.

If the rebellion went deeper than that, the grandparents could indeed have a job of being an anchor and a steadying influence for the younger. Grandparents are handy to turn to — they are close enough to the child to care about him, but not so close as to have blind spots!

Don't just muddle along, Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Alice Tries It Alone

CALGARY (CP) — For the first time in her life, Alice is living alone in an apartment—if you don't include her cat, two birds and four goldfish.

She is helping to destroy the myth that mentally handicapped adults are illiterate, untrainable and totally dependent people. Her success is enabling others to receive the education and guidance necessary to make their problems, even while members of the community.

An articulate 33-year-old, Alice (a name used to preserve her anonymity) is working in a toy factory for what she considers "good wages."

A member of mentally handicapped adults now are working in Calgary's stores, factories, wages and living independently. Instead of being protected in an institution, they are allowed to make their own decisions and their own mistakes.

Alice lived almost three years in an institution in Red Deer, after spending most of her adolescence in hospital.

She had a serious behavior problem but it only existed "mentally handicapped. She decided to enter the course at the Vocational Research and Rehabilitation Institute (VRRI) in Calgary because "I thought I needed the chance to make a person of myself."

The VRRI gives retarded adults an opportunity to learn general work skills and residential living. When a trainee masters one skill, he is introduced to another until he is capable of finding a job in the community and living by himself or in a group home.

Alice went through several of the VRRI's training programs during her 3½ years' enrolment. Three months ago she was offered the job with the toy company.

She lived in the VRRI residence but then decided to try living by herself. She is ready to cut her ties with the VRRI which has a follow-up program for each trainee.

"It's hard to get used to freedom and decision-making but they've made a good chance for me and I wish more people would take the opportunity," she said.

Margaret Trudeau Campaigns For Friend

ABERCORN, Que. (CP) — Politics, Margaret Trudeau said on Tuesday, is not a glamorous life or one that allows many personal pleasures.

But it is a good life, she told a gathering of 45 persons in this tiny community near the Vermont border, because it gives her and her husband a chance to do "something for the people we love—Canadians."

Mrs. Trudeau made the comments at one of five communities in Brome-Missisquoi riding in eastern Quebec. She had slipped away from the crowds of her husband's national campaign to help a friend, lawyer Peter Turner, 32, in his first bid for federal office.

At each stop she made six cars, gentle appeals—in English and at times in faltering French—for support for Liberals in the July 8 general election.

Sit spoke publicly four times. Her groups ranged in size from 45 to 150, and spent the rest of the time chatting with people, admiring babies and, at one point, telling a local astronomer the birthdate of her family.

Farnham was the first stop in her short helicopter trip from St. Hyacinthe to this tiny rolling hill in the last Parliament by Progressive Conservative Howard Crafter.

She told about 150 in the town hall that her husband "had a vision" in 1968 that "enflamed all Canadians."

But in this election, the prime minister was "not wanted anymore firmly on the ground."

It was now a husband and father of two boys.

People say that Mr. Trudeau's image has changed," she added, tongue in cheek. "Well, I'd like to take all the credit for it."

She said that it was a "terrible time for an election" because it interfered with vacation plans, but told voters to use advance polls July 1 if they were unable to vote election day.

Later, in Abercorn after a stock supper at a ski resort nearby, Mrs. Trudeau leaned up against a table at the front of the town hall and commented on the life of a political family.

It involved, she said "long hard hours of being alone."

Yet it was a good life, and she and her husband "very pleased to do it."

She added that she felt the prime minister was "very competent."

"But I'm biased—I love the guy."

Mrs. Trudeau said she felt she had three lives in life, that of a mother, that of a wife, and that of a person with her own part to play as a Canadian.

Later, at Sutton, she urged women in a group gathered outside to "stand up strong and straight with their husbands" in the various walks of life.

In politics, women were important because they helped bring the province "back down to earth."

As well, 52 per cent of the country's voters were women.

Finally, outside a house in Bay Brome, she said:

"My husband said he didn't want me to take part (in the election campaign). He said I'd get discouraged. You're too sensitive. It's a hard grind out there and there are many disputes."

But she said she felt she had a duty as a Canadian and a person to join him.

Now, after spending a few weeks studying party policies and "doing what I was told," she said she was ready to participate.

Her philosophy, she added, was based on a feeling that "liberalism and liberalism—was the kind of thing Canadians are into."

"It means sharing and caring for one another in a country which is free."

Margaret Trudeau

Sturdy North Pleases PM

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau toured this northern mining community Saturday and in a speech praised the independence and hardiness of northerners.

People here do not ask for a blank cheque from government in order to survive, he told a crowd of 1,000 in chilly 45-degree temperatures outside a shopping centre.

"No country and no government and no society gives its people a blank cheque," he said.

"That's the way countries go bankrupt."

Canadians had to work to build their own futures because if they didn't other countries would come in and build the country's future for it.

"The human factor in Canada is the most important factor," said Mr. Trudeau.

The prime minister opened his northern visit, a routine attack on the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic parties.

"The NDP," he said, "has disappeared over the horizon like a flock of wild geese—honking away, honking away."

And the Conservative party's wage and price freeze proposals were "simply melting away."

Mr. Trudeau arrived in this city of 20,000 late Friday night starting an intensive day of campaigning in Ontario.

PCs Get Message Of Hope

PROGRESSIVE Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield brought what he called a "note of hope" to July 1 holiday crowds at Victoria Park here Monday after many days of attacks on Prime Minister Trudeau's election campaign methods.

The Conservative leader said a day that new bits more from breakfast at a Monticello Inland Indian reserve in Ontario to the civic cradle of Confederation with a vision for economic growth, prices and incomes policy he described as "taking the cost of living."

The Conservative leader said their policy offers hope that "something can be done," he said. The party expected Canadians to accept that challenge.

"We have faith in the Canadian people. We feel entitled to ask the Canadian people to have faith in us."

Mr. Stanfield told the sticky-shirted crowd of 1,000 that the prime minister is following an "hit-and-hide" approach to election campaigning.

"He'll talk anywhere but give questions."

Mr. Trudeau was evading news conferences and other opportunities of a policy that "buys the responsibility of high office," he said.

Earlier, the Conservative leader struck at what he said was the prime government's dishonest attack on the Conservative prices-and-incomes policy.

An executive crowd of about 200 at the town square of Alma, Que., heard Mr. Stanfield say that, contrary to government charges, the rising costs, the prime minister "promised before he took office, can be done about it."

But it was dishonest of the prime minister to say the propound-become plan could not succeed as a [illegible] government already had a similar policy in force. Mr. Trudeau could be brought forward some time after the election by a Liberal government but Mr. Trudeau lacked the courage to discuss it in the course of the campaign.

Mr. Trudeau said the government had considered an anti-[illegible] plan, including prices-and-income guidelines, but that the government had decided not to implement it.

The Conservative leader began the day with a flight from Ottawa to the Indian settlement of Wikwemikong on Manitoulin Island for a pancakes breakfast with about 75 residents.

He was supporting Conservative candidate Ronald Bird, a retired Imperial Oil vice-president who is trying to unseat Liberal Maurice Foster who represented Algoma riding in the last House.

Mr. Stanfield received a [illegible] a miniature teepee and a headdress and told the group that his meal with the Indians reminded him of Canada and his visit to Charlottetown would make this a memorable July 1, 1974 for him. The Fathers of Confederation held one of their key meetings in Charlottetown in 1864.

The conservative leader returned to Toronto late Monday night. He visits Winnipeg today.

Federal Aid Pledged To Train Veterinarians

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The federal government will contribute 50 per cent of the cost of expanding facilities for training veterinarians, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Sunday.

Mr. Whelan signed an agreement with Ontario officials under which the federal government will provide half the cost of expansion of the Ontario Veterinary College here.

Similar agreements are being signed at Canada's other two veterinary colleges at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, and the University of Montreal's [illegible] College.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association following the signing, Mr. Whelan said establishment of a fourth veterinary college "in the eastern part of our country" is being considered.

The expansion program at the three veterinary colleges now in existence will enable each of them to increase their enrolment by 50 students.

The federal government will provide the colleges of Guelph and Saskatoon with a maximum of $3.88 million each and the college at Montreal with up to $2.5 million, matching provincial spending for expansion at each institution.

Lewis Says Mortgage Firms Could Profit at 6 Per Cent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lending institutions, including chartered banks, could give mortgages at six per cent and still make a profit, David Lewis said Monday.

"Not very much, but they could make a little," the New Democratic Party leader said in a regional CBC interview as he headed into the final week of the July 8 election campaign.

Mortgage interest rates now are running at about 12 per cent on average.

Mr. Lewis said chartered banks pay an average interest rate of only 6½ per cent on deposits, and no account at all on [illegible] deposits they handle. This gave them a continuing pool of capital to work with, Mr. Lewis said, an obligation to the community to make part of it available at low rates.

Cabinet Offers Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Leader David Lewis said Monday night he has had some pretty good cabinet offers, but he did not say who made them.

In an interview on CBC television, he was asked whether a coalition involving his party with a minority Liberal or Conservative government is out of the question.

"At this time, yes," he replied.

"You might become minister of finance," he said Robert McKenzie, who was sharing the interviewing role with broadcaster Patrick Watson.

"I've been made better offers than that," Mr. Lewis said, adding that the offers were not made by Prime Minister Trudeau.

He said the NDP has had more influence on economic policy and the financial security of Canadians as an opposition party than he could hope to have as a cabinet minister.

The NDP leader, known as a [illegible] opponent of "corporate welfare bums," told Mr. Trudeau he is himself a corporate shareholder.

He did not specify in what companies he holds shares, but said during discussions of his financial affairs towards [illegible] seen that he and his wife, Michelle, had bought with their savings put aside while he was in his practice.

Earlier Monday night, Mr. Lewis would not comment on the possibility of a coalition with a minority Liberal government following next Monday's federal election, but the question was couched in more specific terms than those used in the television interview.

Mr. Lewis was evasive on CBC's As It Happens radio broadcast when he was asked about a "scenario" in which the Liberals wind up with marginally fewer seats than the Conservatives in another minority Parliament.

Walter Stewart of Maclean's magazine asked if the NDP would form a coalition with the Liberals in such a situation, shutting the Conservatives out of power.

"You're not going to get any response," Mr. Lewis said. "I'm not writing any scenarios."

Cabouette Thinks PM Wants PC Victory

MONTREAL (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit party leader, said Monday night that Prime Minister Trudeau wants the Progressive Conservative party to win the July 8 federal election.

"He refuses to talk to journalists, to take part in open-line radio talk shows and really meet the people. The party leader said in a French-language television broadcast.

The Liberal party wants the Conservatives to inherit its economic situation, Mr. Caouette said, adding this is a Liberal "political gimmick."

Mr. Caouette also chided Liberal Maurice Cardin Bourassa, over Conservative candidate Claude Wagner.

The Social Credit supporters not to vote for the man, because, he said, he has reason to believe they are responsible for some "shady business" in their respective ridings.

The party leader also reiterated his party's willingness to accept former Montreal Mayor Leonard Jones into its ranks.

Noting that Mr. Jones has spoken out in favor of bilingual education at the elementary school level, Mr. Caouette said Mr. Jones is not pro-French.

Mr. Caouette said he is confident his party will hold the balance of power in the next Parliament.

Earlier in the day, the party chief urged Parti Quebecois supporters in the province to vote for his party.

Speaking at an open-line radio program here, Mr. Caouette said Parti PQ supporters should ignore a call by their party executive to abstain from voting or to annul their ballots.

Pause in Busy Schedule

Inflation Ousts Unemployment As Major Issue for Election

OTTAWA (CP) — Remember the great unemployment debate during the last election campaign? In the current campaign attention has shifted to inflation but there is a connection between the two issues.

There are similarities between the approach to interlocking employment taken by the Trudeau government elected in 1968 and the attack on inflation by the Liberals after being returned in 1972.

The Liberal government has maintained that inflation is largely an imported problem, blaming such factors as sharp increases in the price for Middle East oil.

A brokerage house economist says policies based on a deal with the unemployment problem now are costing home to roost.

"The inflation which we now are experiencing is largely the result of an expansive set of policies adopted around the world in 1970," A. G. Grant, vice-president and chief economist for Wood Gundy Ltd., said in a study of government monetary and fiscal policies.

"Appalled at the high unemployment which resulted from the 1969-70 credit crunch of 1969-70, politicians and central bankers vowed to return to full employment as soon as possible. Interest rates were quickly reduced and fiscal policies became expansive."

Bank of Canada reports show the rate of growth in money in circulation tripled in two years and a graph of changes in interest rates since the crash looked like the profile of the Rocky Mountains.

From unemployment levels of less than four per cent in the mid-1960s, jobless rate had gone to almost six per cent by 1970.

In September, 1972, the rate hit 6.9 per cent.

The latest unemployment report showed a seasonally adjusted rate of 5.5 per cent for May, up from 5.3 per cent for April. Economists generally expect the rate to move towards six per cent again later this year.

As the Liberals approached the end of their five-year mandate from the 1968 election they appeared to be a rapid rethinking of the urgentness of the unemployment problem.

In May, 1971, Prime Minister Trudeau told a Liberal party fund-raising dinner in Vancouver he believed government should stop worrying at the temple of gross national product and pursue "net social benefit."

The cult of technology and the lure of material gain led to commercial processes "which we do not always understand, which may lead to disastrous consequences, and which may have cumulative effects."

Part of the response of the Bank of Canada to the slowing down in the economy as reflected in the jobless rate was to increase supply of money.

The rate of increase during 1969—comparing the average for the fourth quarter of 1969 with the comparable period of 1968—was six per cent. The next year went to nine per cent in 1970 and 18 per cent in 1971.

The central bank interest rate was moved from 4.5 per cent in the summer of 1967 in a series of increases to eight per cent in July, 1970. This is the rate the bank charges for loans to chartered banks and it is a key policy tool in affecting other rates.

Unemployment worsened during the winter of 1969-70 and in spring the bank reversed direction. In seven steps the rate was cut from eight per cent in May, 1970, to 4.75 per cent in October, 1971. That rate stayed in effect until April of last year and since then it has been bumped up seven times to a record 8.75 per cent.

Federal policy-makers were, of course, operating in a world where other countries were taking similar actions.

However, the swings in Canadian interest rates generally have been broader than those in the United States and unemployment rates higher. The U.S. interest rate comparable to the Canada bank rate was at a low of four per cent in 1967, a high of six per cent in 1969, a low of 4.5 per cent in 1972 and, on the current quarterly, a high since last eight per cent.

It was in the May, 1972, budget—nearly six months before the election—that Finance Minister John Turner announced a dramatic cut in the top corporation tax rate, to 40 per cent from 49, for manufacturers and processors.

The measures will provide our manufacturers and processors with incentive to expand employment, production and capital investment," he said in the 1972 budget speech.

In recent weeks the Bank of Canada has moved rapidly to tighten credit conditions.

Gerald Bouey, governor of the bank, said in the statement announcing the increase to a record 8.75-per-cent bank rate that "the pace of monetary expansion and bank credit expansion in Canada has been much more rapid than needed to sustain the continued expansion of the economy."

Mr. Turner has contended that inflation is largely a problem of shortages in supply, particularly in such vital areas as food and industrial raw materials.

In his May 6 budget—the legislation on which the government was defeated—he said it was essential to maintain lower tax rates for manufacturing and processing industries.

He listed ways the government intended to fight inflation and at the top of this list was this:

"First, we have to keep this economy rolling ahead and produce out the goods and services our people need."

Economists Agree Worst Of Inflation Over Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — A survey of economists shows agreement in predictions that the worst of the current round of inflation will have occurred by the end of the summer.

While inflation is a key issue in the current election campaign, the next government would be a beneficiary of an economic climate not seen as already under way.

Most predictions for the gain in the consumer price index during 1974 are in a solid 10 per cent. The lowest prediction was nine per cent and the highest 11 per cent. It said it "wouldn't quarrel with anybody saying 11 or 12."

Based on an expected gain of 10 per cent, there has been an increase of about 5.5 percentage points in the first five months of the year. If the economists' predictions are right, more than half of 1974 consumer price rises had taken place by May.

The survey included economists from business, research foundations and universities and most had access to confidential studies of the government. Organizations included the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Wood Gundy Ltd., The Conference Board in Canada, C. D. Howe Research Institute and the University of Toronto.

Here are some of the key factors affecting price developments:

—The majority of large increases in food prices are believed to have taken place. Only modestly price increases things as food grains—have gone through sharp price rises and appear to have peaked. The success of high-protein-content crops will affect predictions in this area.

—World prices of oil prices have more than tripled since last October but now appear relatively stable. Domestic prices have been held below world prices but there have been increases. The latest Ottawa price increases went into effect in May.

—Housing prices have slowed but recent evidence indicates a levelling-off is occurring. Governments now seem intent on dampening speculative buying, part of the cause, and there is political pressure to moderate interest costs.

—Price controls in the United States ended April 30 and there would be some spillover into Canada. There would be limitations on the dollar purchases of U.S. goods and services at controlled prices. Some Canadian prices were held down because of the U.S. controls. A notable example was car prices as manufacturers were under political pressure not to widen the price differential.

Another potentially significant factor which might encourage lessening of price rises into effect sooner is the year in the future that a temporary price freeze is part of the Progressive Conservative campaign program.

"I wonder right now what's happening in Washington with the possibility that the Conservatives will form the next government and with the very real probability that they will have to make good on their promises," one economist said.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has said he would make price controls retroactive if there were a breathe-freeze move on price levels. But it might be difficult to police price changes already made on relatively low-cost consumer items.

The Liberals have conceded that inflation is largely an imported problem, blaming such factors as price rises in foreign oil, and commodities.

Their argument, which has been carried by Finance Minister John Turner, has been that the basic problem is one of demand exceeding supply. Part of the solution they offer is to increase the capacity of the economy.

Among components of the consumer price index, the food index has had the greatest gain during the last 12 months. The index weighting is based on the assumption that one-quarter of consumer spending is on food.

Of every $5 spent on food and beverages during March, 1973, roughly $4 was for food produced in Canada.

The latest consumer price index report showed the "food" index was up 19.3 per cent between May, 1973, and this May. The all-items index was up 10.3 per cent.

Among major components, the transportation index had the second highest May-over-May gain at 19 per cent, clothing was third at 16 per cent and housing fourth at eight per cent. Higher gasoline and fuel oil costs were major factors affecting transportation and housing cost levels.

The Liberals' main criticism of wage and price controls is simply to point to the experiences of the U.S. and Britain, where controls were tried.

In Britain, opposition of labor to wage restraints led to strikes and slowdowns delayed the controls program and severely impeded economic progress. The common judgment by economists about U.S. controls is that they did not work.

The consumer price index is a narrower measure of inflation. Consumer spending last year accounted for 61 per cent of domestic spending by individuals, governments and businesses.

The broader measure of inflation covers spending in all segments of the economy. Position members in the closing weeks of the last Parliament unsuccessfully badgered the finance minister to give the government's projection for this figure.

The Liberal government's projection for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1975, probably is between 7% and 8% per cent because projections by non-government economists fall in this range.

During 1974, the survey of economists showed, the inflation factor in the economy is expected to be in the seven-per-cent to eight-per-cent range. During 1975, the predictions are for a rate in the areas of six or 6½ per cent.

Longer range projections focus, as broader economic measures and performances of components of the over-all inflation index will vary from year to year.

However, expectations for a lower rate of inflation in the economy in 1975 suggest a reduction in relief for consumer prices as well.

Globe and Mail Backs Stanfield

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail, in an unsigned editorial Monday, calls for the election of the Progressive Conservatives in the July 8 federal election. The newspaper supported Prime Minister Trudeau in the 1972 election.

"It is a clear choice Canada faces; the Liberals who have promised much and delivered little; the Conservatives whose proclaimed intentions give hope but whose strength is unknown," said the newspaper, which describes itself as an independent.

"In The Globe and Mail's view, the Liberals have had their chances and flunked it. It is time to send in a new team; the Conservatives, and develop as much faith as possible that change will be for the better."

The editorial does not mention the New Democratic Party or the Social Credit party.

The Liberals have had since 1968 "to show what they can do," the editorial says.

"They started with a large majority, a strong mandate. . . . Inflation has grown with season. Unemployment persisted. Generous amendments to the unemployment insurance plan made unemployment attractive to many who had not been in the work force, but responded to it. Job it for a few weeks to gain benefits."

The editorial says that Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield "has done a somewhat better job of looking inflation-the country's root problem—in the eye."

"His proposes a temporary income and price freeze, followed by periods as much as two years of price and wage controls, the controls to be negotiated with the provinces, labor and business. Such controls have seldom worked well, even in wartime when they were powered by patriotism.

"But Mr. Stanfield has also promised a balanced budget. That—or better, a surplus budget—is essential if inflation is to be tampered. The government must set an example of living within its means if it hopes to persuade Canadians to do the same."

The newspaper says a proposed Stanfield shake-up of the top civil servants would be a good thing.

"They may have been valuable civil servants in the circumstances of early times; but times have changed, new outlooks are needed."

Cyanide Bullets Found In Patty Hearst's Flat

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A box containing 25 cyanide-filled bullets was discovered in the flat of Patricia Hearst the day after she was allegedly kidnapped, but kept a closely guarded secret by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Chicago Tribune reports.

The newspaper says it did not say whether the nine-millimetre bullets were found Feb. 5, hidden under a book shelf in the apartment Miss Hearst shared with her fiance, Stephen Weed.

A 9-mm. gun and similar bullets were used to murder Oakland, Calif., school superintendent Marcus Foster last November. Two members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, to which Miss Hearst now says she belongs, are in custody charged with that crime.

Queen Mother Presents Edinburgh Awards

TORONTO (CP) — Thirteen youths, recipients of the Duke of Edinburgh's award, were among those greeted by Queen Mother Elizabeth at Dominion Day celebrations at Queen's Park Monday.

The award, presented to young people aged 14 to 21 who have achieved excellence in community service, expeditions and physical fitness, was introduced to Canada in 1963.

"I offer my warmest congratulations on your dedication and perseverance in meeting the challenge which the award scheme offers," the Queen Mother told them and a crowd police estimated at 4,000.

The Queen Mother was also introduced to 10 Ontario citizens earlier awarded the Ontario Medal for their contribution to the province.

U.S. Beef Imports

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Acting Agriculture Secretary Phil Campbell told reporters Monday that total 1974 meat imports, mostly beef, now are estimated at 1.21 billion pounds.

This is 305 million pounds or 23 per cent, less than forecast earlier this year and about 130 million pounds below 1973 imports.

Tired of it All Friend? Then Try Summer Hockey

So you didn't know how you were going to put in the summer, it, indeed, we ever get one.

Tired of having your ball game rained out?

Had enough of soccer at the thunder storms and mud?

Can't beat the storm clouds to the clubhouse?

Finding it hard to play tennis while ducking around the court in a raincoat?

Is that what's bothering you?

Take heart.

You may have the opportunity of getting your exercise, shape, and prepare for the 1974-75 hockey season at the same time.

What's up?

Summer hockey. That's what.

Sure, it seems like yesterday you were saying: "Man, am I glad the hockey's over for awhile."

But you miss it already. Right?

Well, it may be back to pucks, pads, skates and (ugh) ice for those of you who are interested.

While we've been looking for beach-going weather, folks like Gene Poirier, Arnie Powell and Major Matheson have had ice-making on their minds.

Employees of Trenton Parks and Recreation, these fellows are only too aware of the fact that ice must be in and ready for use at Trenton Community Gardens by July 21. That's the date the Tam O'Shanter Hockey School, with headquarters at Albert College in Belleville, swings into action for another session.

Floyd Crawford, captain of those great Belleville Mc. Farland Hockey clubs when senior hockey was booming, is involved.

An instructor at the hockey school last year, Floyd is trying to help make sure that 90 hours of ice time is made use of.

For whatever reason, ice time with be available Monday through Friday from 8-11 p.m.

Interested?

Give Floyd a call at 962-5778.

But don't take advantage of the guy's willingness to get involved. Make sure you call at a decent hour. Between the hours of 6-9 p.m. will be fine.

"We want to see how the idea of summer hockey would go over," says Floyd.

"It doesn't need to be an informal league, nothing too serious.

"We've already had response from some interested parties.

"It would be an ideal way for junior and older players to prepare for the new hockey season, without the necessity of getting too serious about it."

The idea available in Trenton is great. (9-11 p.m. five nights a week).

So there you have it.

There are no rained out hockey games.

But what about fog? That's another question.

Of course, if the players are moving at a fast clip, no doubt that problem will be blown away. Time will tell.

SLICES — Ron McFall, a 22-year-old product of the Trenton Minor Hockey Association, has been signed by the Kingston Canadians Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks.

Ron, who played last year for Trenton Golden Hawks enjoys a few seasons back. Ron is currently with a shot at right wing with the Hawks.

Last season, the St. Mary's University of New Brunswick Huskies, he played defence.

Rain washed out a number of weekend sports activities, including the Lions Club ball baseball tournament at Coborg.

Independants Whip Quinte Leaders 10-2

The Quinte Hotel Leaders suffered their third loss of the season Monday night in the Industrial Softball League, dropping a 10-2 decision to the Independents in a game at Prince Charles Park.

Ken Colton picked up the win for the Independents, allowing only three hits in the heavy-hitting Quinte team. He struck out four and walked one.

Terry Murphy started for the Leaders, going five innings before giving way to Mark Stevens. Murphy struck up eight of the Independents runs, on 10 hits and six walks. He fanned seven.

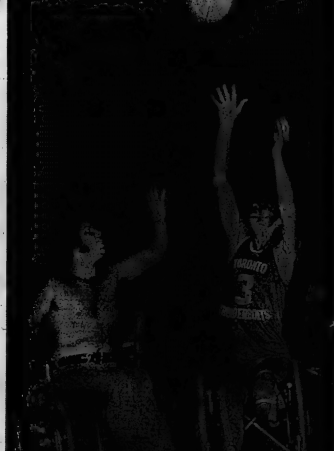
Stevenson was touched for only one hit in his two inning stint, walking two and leaving four batters at the plate.

George Prins paced the win at the plate with a four bagger, while Ron Fuller had two doubles, with Gary Sero and Colton one each. Doug Bonnower and Ken Bestrand each had two singles, with Trad Trumpour and Bob Casselman each adding one.

In a game played at Sir Mackenzie Park Monday, the Dilks ace made six errors, but still managed to beat Intelligencer 15-2. They pounded out 14 hits in the game, the win, their fifth of the season.

Jerry Smith had a double and two singles to lead the attack, with Jay Miller adding a two bagger and single.

Manley Sly had three singles, while Bob Hall and Wilson Bulpit two each. Dave Brown, and Jack Barville, each added one apiece with a base hit each.



The Intelligencer could muster only four hits, all singles. They were by Fred Stickle, Tony Goncalves, Glynn Reynolds, and Ron Collick.

Wilson Bulpit picked up the win for the Dilkies, striking out six Intel batters and walking only one.

Jerry Edwards was touched for 14 hits in taking the loss, issuing out three and issuing one walk.

Juniors Hand Rollins First Loss of Season

It was the upset of the year in the Quinte Fastball League last night as Rollins Construction fell to the Elks Juniors, 9-1, in one of two league games. In the other contest, Howard and Robert Printing dumped Augur Men's, 16-7 6-2.

Although they were outhit 6-4, the Juniors met the Constructionmen down to their first loss in 13 games this season. It was the sixth win for the Juniors, putting them in sole possession of third place with 13 points in the six team loop.

The Printers got runs in the second and fourth innings, centered by one in the sixth rolling to the second with a base hit, followed by Ken Vos, who got on with a fielder's choice that erased Tod Wade on the throw. Steve Campbell drove in Vos with a double with two out.

In the fourth, Richardson worked losing pitcher Ted Wade for the only walk he gave up during the course of the game, scoring on Vos' double.

Rollins scored in the sixth after back to back hits by designated hitter Ken Deville and Carl Bonnower, centre fielder's single moved Deville to third with the scheduled scoring on a fly ball by Paul Goodfellow.

The Juniors also got top-notch fielding from Dave Hollend in right field, including a play in which he tagged out a runner at first base. Speeding in from his fielding position, he took a throw from centre field to tag out Wayne McTaggart, who did not think anyone was covering the bag.

John Spradzett picked up the win, fning third strikes past three batters, while allowing only one free pass.

Wade took his first loss against four wins, touched for four Elks hits. He struck out six and walked only Richardson.

Von had a double and single for the winners, with Richardson and Campbell the other hitters.

For the losers, it was Dale Duvall with a double, the only extra base hit for them, while Carl Bonnbower, Wayne McTaggert, Glen Carlton, Deville and Ralph Bonnower all stroked singles.

In the first game of the twinbill, Bob "Stud" Elsher threw his third shutout in a row, and the second three hitter, in the 3-0 win over Augurs. The other was a perfect game last Thursday night.

The sturdy Milander continued his pitching mastery of the league with a 6-0 win over Trenton Augur Moss Way, with his teammates backing him up with 13 hits.

The Printers scored four runs in the bottom of the second to wrap up the win, adding two more insurance markers in their half of the sixth.

Elsher opposed the four-run outburst with a walk, followed by a single, by Rusty Garvin, a triple by Bob Farmer, and another single by Dwight Rathwell. Ken Generaux added a sacrifice bord to drive in the fourth run.

In the sixth, the Printers came up with five of their 13 hits, although managing only the two runs. Wayne Woods, Elsher, Garvin, and Farmer all connected off losing hurler Bob Richardson, before a man was out, with Generaux adding another with one out.

The best Augur's could do was leave four men stranded on the base paths.

Elsher fanned five and walked two in his shutout bid, striking up his fourth victory of the season against one loss.

Richardson whiffed five and walked one in taking his forth loss for Augur's.

Each member of Howard and Robert Insurance had at least one hit, with four of them contributing. Farmer had a triple and single, with Generaux, Larry Potter, and Rusty Garvin each striking two singles.

Pitching Summary

One hit each went to Dave Skelton, Terry Pope, Wayne Woods, Elsher, and Rathwell.

For the losers, it was Jim Whyte producing two thirds of the hits, with a pair of singles, and Al Ferguson with the other.

In tonight's games, Rollins Construction goes right back at it with a game with Bayside Supplies, while Augur's meets Devoin Motors, in a crucial game for both teams. Each has 10 points, tied for the fourth and final playoff spot. The doubleheader at the Alcmte starts at 7 p.m.

Formie Canadian record holder in Class 3 Discus, Tony Bagnato, of Toronto, grimaces as he makes his throw. Bagnato came in second in the event with a mark of $58' 9". Chris Stoddart of Toronto (left) and Larry Holmes, of Hamilton, brace the chair to avoid a possible spill.

Harvest of Records In Wheelchair Trials

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Provincial records fell like the weekend rain at the Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials held at OSD.

All in all, 15 new marks were established as the 69 participants tried for positions on the Ontario team.

Chris Stoddart, a member of the Toronto Trojan Wheelchair Club, was the centre of attraction throughout the two-day games.

Stoddart finished first in 14 events, second in two and third in one to capture honors as the top male athlete of the games.

"This whole weekend was great," commented Stoddart. "I've been involved in quite a few provincial trials and this has been the best yet."

Along his victorious path Stoddart set six new provincial records.

"I've been practising a long time," he said, "I really wanted to knock over records and establish myself in the province."

"Now it's on to the nationals," he added.

Top female athlete of the games was Shirley Naughton. She finished first in six events and third in one. Naughton is a member of the Toronto Eastern Wheelchair Club.

Locally, Larry Van Norman came through with some surprising results. In his first wheelchair competition ever, he finished second five times and had four thirds.

"How it's on to the nationals," he added.

Top female athlete of the games was Shirley Naughton. She finished first in six events and third in one. Naughton is a member of the Toronto Eastern Wheelchair Club.

Locally, Larry Van Norman came through with some surprising results. In his first wheelchair competition ever, he finished second five times and had four thirds.

"This was great," said Van Norman. "It gives you something to do with yourself. It gives you incentive and makes you realize how much you have going for you now."

"After all," he added, "I figure four wheels are better than two legs any day."

Van Norman could have done much better to the competition if he hadn't been competing against Stoddart in all his events.

Stoddart and Stoddart were registered in class 3 events. All athletes competed in three categories according to their specific handicap.

Class 1 A and B are quadraplegics according to the severity of their handicap.

Class 1 are high lesion paraplegics, class 2 low lesion paraplegics and class 3 all other wheelchair handicaps — amputees, cerebral palsy, polio, M.S.

Each of the classes competed individually. Each had a point system for their class. Points were given to decide the top athlete — five for a first place finish, three for a second place finish and one for third.

Dr. Bob Jackson, former Olympic chef de mission of Canada and co-ordinator of the 1976 Canadian Olympians, was on hand to present medals to Stoddart and Naughton.

Dick Loiselle, head coach of wheelchair sports in Canada, presented medallions to the top athletes in class 1 competition, Bill Brouse of Toronto and Naughton.

Stoddart was presented with

SHIRLEY NAUGHTON

CHRIS STODDART

the top athlete medal in class 3 competition by Dave Jack, of the Canadian Wheelchair Sports Association.

Bruce Bean, sponsor of the Quinte Easy Rollers Wheelchair Club and sponsor of the Ontario games, presented Ron Thibideau with the top athlete medallion in Class 1A competition.

Alderman Jean Smith presented the medals to the top recreational athletes; Mary Ryan of Hamilton, Russ Avery of St. Catharines-Welland and Doug Angus of Kitchener.

Top class 3 honors were captured by Floris Aubrona of Toronto.

Official Impressed

Dr. Bob Jackson, coordinator of the 1976 Canadian Wheelchair Olympics, felt this year's provincial sports trials were the best organized of any he's seen in many years.

"Wheelchair sports are on the upswing," said Jackson, "the participation at these games proves it."

Jackson added that there were many drawbacks in producing a good rehabilitation program for the handicapped.

"The biggest problem is educating the public. People seem to think that an affair such as this is merely a day of a freak show. They don't realize that the handicapped are just as able to live a normal life as the next person," he said.

Jackson commented that he was working with the federal government to produce a good wheelchair. Canada is in "it."

"With the assistance of the federal government," he said, "we should be much more ready to accept the handicapped under normal circumstances."

Dignitaries Open Games

At the opening ceremonies of the games a very impressive group was in attendance together to welcome the athletes.

Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings-Frontenac, George Hees, MP for Broadview-Greenwood, Mayor Robin Jaffery, Belleville, Mayor Robert Patrick, Trenton, John Gordon, President of the Alderman Jean Smith, Belleville, Dr. Dennis, Dean of Medicine at Queen's and Dr. Deed, Belleville.

Each of the guests made a short speech in welcoming the athletes to the games and all commented on the degree of determination which characterized the visitors.

As George Hees said, "I feel like a dinosaur to be up here to show guts and all of you have a lot of guts for what you're doing."

Also welcoming the athletes was Mayor Robert Patrick and Gibson's Band, under the direction of Ed Soldier.

6 Records For Chris

Chris Stoddart of Toronto, top male athlete of the games, set six records in the Ontario records. His records came in varied events.

He won the 60 metre Class 2 race in a time of 2:41.7. He broke the Class 3 discus 36'7" and the Class 3 shotputt 25'6". He threw the javelin 50 meter (1 mile) in 6:01 and the 100 meter in 22.5 seconds and threw the Class 3 javelin 56' 8".

Other new records were set by Brian Halliday, Shirley Naughton, Mary Ryan and Bob Low, Magella Belanger and Bill Brouse.

Halliday had three records. He threw in the Class 1 A javelin 4' and the 25 discus 24'9". His third came in the 100 meter wheelchair Olympics, with a mark of 26"7".

Shirley Naughton set a pair of Ontario records in the women's 25 meter, with 1:01 and the javelin with 21' 7".

Mary Ryan set a mark in the class 3 javelin with 28'. Bob Low in the 100 meter and the javelin with 21' 7".

Magella Belanger set a mark in the class 3 javelin with 28'. Bill Brouse in the 100 meter, class 1B race with a time of 1:34.5. Belanger's in the class 3 shotput with a throw of 21'6" — possibly the best ever by a female in Canada. Her class 3 discus with a throw of 24'11".

Fillies Show Their Stuff

Another leg of the Ontario Horse Shakes featured the main card at the Quinte Exhibition oval, Monday.

The two-division, one mile race for three-year-old fillies helped attract 838 harness racing fans to the raceway for the Holiday Monday special presentation.

In the fifth race of the 10 event card, Murray Waples brought Camel home in front in 2:16.4 and in the second division, Race 8, it was Maisie's Acre, driven by Ron Webb in the blue, finishing first in 2:11.1. Waples had to settle for second place with Richard Lee.

The purse in each of these races was $5,000.

A's Spoil Homecoming For Dick William's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Williams returned to baseball Monday night as manager of the Angels but his old team, the world champion Oakland A's, spoiled it by dumping the Angels 5-3.

For seven innings, things looked fine for Williams. The Angels were leading 3-2 and Nolan Ryan was working smoothly. Then, after singles, doubles by Sal Bando and Angel Mangual, Ryan lost a three-run Oakland rally.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and 3-2, Boston Red Sox downed Baltimore Orioles 6-4, Chicago Royals shut out Chicago White Sox 9-0, Detroit Tigers edged New York Yankees 4-3, and Texas Rangers defeated Minnesota Twins 6-2.

In Saturday games, Boston defeated Cleveland 12-2, Chicago edged Minnesota 4-3, Milwaukee blanked Detroit 9-0, Baltimore shut out New York 2-0, Kansas City dropped Oakland 2-0 and California beat Texas 8-2.

In Sunday's action, Cleveland routed Boston 9-2, Milwaukee won the opener 4-1 against Detroit and lost the second game 3-2, Baltimore blanked New York 3-0, Kansas City defeated Oakland 5-7, Texas defeated California 9-2 and Chicago won the first game 8-3 against Minnesota and lost the second 6-5.

In the only National League games Monday, Houston Astros shut out Atlanta Braves 3-0 and Montreal Expos whipped Chicago 10-4.

In NL games Sunday, Pittsburgh swept a twin bill from Philadelphia 11-8 and 3-2, St. Louis beat New York 5-3 and Chicago defeated Montreal 7-3, Los Angeles topped San Francisco 3-2, and Houston won the first game 3-1, against San Diego and lost the second 6-5.

On Saturday, New York defeated St. Louis 4-0, Los Angeles beat San Francisco 6-4, Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 8-3, Cincinnati edged Atlanta 2-1, Chicago defeated Montreal 7-1, and Houston blanked San Diego 3-0.

"It seemed like I had never been gone," said Williams after the game. "Naturally, you'd like to win the first one. It's a shame to lose it. I think we might have been intimidated by their speed. We gave them the game."

Bert Campbaneris started Oakland's winning rally with a one-out single in the eighth. He moved to second on a passed ball and scored on Bando's double.

A wild pitch while Ryan was trying to walk Reggie Jackson intentionally advanced Bando to third and the Rollie Fingers reliefly delivered the tie-breaking run. Then Ryan walked Gene Tenace and Mangual's double produced an insurance run.

Cleveland used the leg ball to sweep a doubleheader from Milwaukee and move into second place in the American League East, only two behind Boston.

George Hendrick homered in each game and John Lowenstein hit three-run homer and drove in five runs in the nightcap.

Hendrick drove in five runs with a tie-breaking two-run homer in the second game, a three-run shot in the second game.

Texas remained in a virtual dead-heat in the West Division City in the American League West, defeating Minnesota.

The Rangers left Minnesota in the ninth on a pair of solo home runs by rookie Lee Stanberg and veteran Toby Harrah.

Then Gaylord Perry recorded a two-run single and Minnesota catcher Glen Borgman's error allowed Texas to score another as Texas wrapped it up.

Jim Hutchings broke an eighth-inning tie with a two-out single that scored Bill Sudakis for the game, as the Tigers defeated the Yankees.

Ed Kirkpatrick and pinch-hitter Gates Brown also connected for the Tigers.

Cookie Rojas delivered four consecutive hits including a two-run homer and Fred Patek and Hal McRae also homered powering the Royals over the White Sox. Veteran Bruce Dal Canton rode for the win over his first major league shutout.

Boston bunched five runs in the first inning, two of them on Carl Cooper's homer, and then held on to defeat Baltimore.

Don Wilson pitched a five-hitter and drove in three runs with a double, as the Astros shut out slumping Atlanta.

The Astros tagged Phil Niekro for seven hits in the first three innings without scoring. But four-inning doubles by Tommy Helms and Wilson, and a pair of singles by Cesar Cedeno produced four runs in the first inning, two of them on Cedeno's homer, and then held on to defeat Niekro.

Ron Hunt – Veteran Produces

Mauch's Faith Is Rewarded

MONTREAL (CP) — When first baseman Ron Hunt was in a batting slump early in June, Montreal manager Gene Mauch predicted confidently that the veteran infielder would come out of it on average.

Hunt's average has improved to .286 from .214 June 1.

He had four hits in four tries Monday night and scored three runs as the Expos slammed Chicago Cubs 10-4 to gain a split of their six-game series. During the series Hunt had 14 hits in 29 at bats for a .482 average.

"I came to the conclusion that I was doing something wrong," Hunt said. "I was just trying to hit the ball, to put the ball into play and hope it finds a hole."

Hunt's single in the first inning and raced home on a triple by Willie Davis. Davis then came in on a single by Ken Singleton, the first of two runs batted in for the Montreal right fielder.

After Jose Cruz opened the game in he top of the second, Hunt got a two-out single—the

Tourney Champ Wants Time Off

CANDIAC, Que. (CP) — Carole Jo Skala, 25, mother of three and a part-time pro on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, fired a 69 Sunday to win La Canadienne golf tournament.

She earned the 6,300-yard Candiac Golf Club course with a 54-hole total of 208—11 strokes below par—and added the $4,000 cash prize to her growing total.

While most of the LPGA golfers moved south to Atlanta for the next tour event, Mrs. Skala of Shingle Springs, Calif., flew here to join them.

"I'm going to take two weeks off—I'm also going to take off the whole month of August," she said.

It was her second win in a year of professional career and brought $12,000 and a crystal replica of the La Canadienne Trophy.

"I'll probably play in 11 more tournaments this year," she said. "My two here won't change my attitude toward the tournaments—my husband and baby are more important."

The best previous performance for Mrs. Skala this season was at "Las Vegas when she scored 212.909 as runner-up to Jocelyne Carrier of Lake Worth, Fla.

But the roles were reversed here and Mrs. Carrier finished with an eight-under-par 208, worth $2,500.

Mrs. Carrier's second-place finish here pushed her earnings for the year to $5,456, second only to Kathy Ferraro of Miami. Miss Prentice won only $697 for her one-over-par 221.

Mrs. Carrier agreed with most of the leaders that a steady rain throughout the final 18-hole round made the course play longer and will affect the place-mounts were tough.

Sandra Palmer of Dallen and Dona Caponi Young of Woodland Hills, Calif., finished two strokes behind Mrs. Carrier each won $3,800 for their fourth-place finishes.

Marlie Breer of Nashville, Tenn. and Shelley, Hamlin of Fresno, Calif., received $1,750 each as they tied at 218 behind the Palmer-Young duo.

The only hole-in-one of the tournament, by Judy Cullen of Yuba a, Ohia., was worth $1,000. She did it with a four wood on the part-three 190-yard fourth hole.

Miss Cullen and Kathy Mc e M a l l e e — the first-round leader — each earned $1,750 with two-under-par 217 totals.

Mud-spattered Colt Queen's Plate Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Gil Rowentree had pre-conceived visions of Queen's Plate grandeur hours before the big race when Amber Hered took an unscheduled mudbath at Woodbine.

"I knew then for sure he was a number," Rowentree said at a news gathering Saturday following Amber Herod's victory in the 116th running of the Plate, North America's oldest, continuously run stakes event.

"But all I could think about all the time was three hours of grooming gone to waste," added the trainer.

The mud-spattered bay colt was hardly recognizable after streaking along the rail and out of the pack at the head of the stretch while gaining a 1½-length win over Native Aid.

Rowentree's victory was another head farther back in the field for Sam Boyle, who piloted three-year olds with the favored Police Car in fourth, a half length behind Native Aid, and Police Car for a record purse of $148,625—richest ever horse race in Canada.

Jack Stafford's red-and-white silks appeared chocolate-coated as jockey Pierre Platis emerged to the winner's circle to be welcomed by Stafford and Queen Elizabeth, who presented him the Queen's Plate trophy and $8 guineas to the owner.

It marked the second straight year Stafford had shared the winner's circle with royalty. Last year, when his Royal Chocolate romped home in front, the Queen did the honors.

The victory in front of 47,000 spectators, well under the expected 60,000 because of rain, did little to dampen the early part of the day, was worth $96,541 to Stafford.

Native Aid, owned by George E. Hendrickson and ridden by Bill Hawley, took home second place money of $29,705. Third place Rushton's Corsair, owned by A. Rushton and trained by Gren Green up, took home $14,862.50.

Police Car, the 7-to-5 favorite with Lloyd Duffy aboard for B. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm, had fourth-place money of $7,425.25.

Amber Herod, moderately backed at 9 to 1 leaving the starting gate, paid $20, $8.20 and $5.60. Native Aid had a pay of $5.20 and $4.40 and Rushton's Corsair paid $5.20 to show.

Following the leaders, in order: Robert Butterham, Lincoln Fields, Lovely Sunrise, Muddy York, Rash Move, Changeabout, Naigo, Noble Answer, Conversation and Doctor Mickey.

TIME SLOW

The time of two minutes 9 1-5 seconds was the slowest Queen's Plate running since Flowerful posted a 2:11 in winning the 1947 Plate.

"When he laid down in the mud, I figured he must like it," Ivor Windfields Farm, the owner's silks had posted successive victories in the Queen's Plate.

Despite inclement weather, the muttiel handle at Woodbine Saturday topped the Canadian record $2,328,875, surpassing the $2,108,668 handled at last year's Queen's Plate.

Princes One-two

DUBLIN (AP) — English Prince and Imperial Prince made it a successful Saturday for the Williams family at Leopardstown racecourse here as they running 1-2 in the $250,000 Irish Sweeps Derby.

Col. Hue Williams might be a little disappointed that his 11-to-8 favorite Imperial Prince finished second, but he had to be happy for his stable companion and his wife Vera.

Then Englishman Prince romped into the lead on the final straight and held off Imperial Prince to win in the time of 2:31.4 after Pyrabia had set much of the pace. Pyrabia faded early, by 1½ lengths over Imperial Prince.

Scott Lewis, on Imperial Prince, tried desperately to get his mount to the rail in the stretch but had to go outside when Prince began to falter and couldn't catch English Prince who was ridden by French jockey Yves Saint-Martin.

Mississippian, a 5-to-1 shot owned by Texans Nelson Bunker Hunt and ridden by Steve Cauthen, finished third, a length back of Imperial Prince in the field of 11.

The favorites ruled that Mississippian had interfered with Imperial Prince, but the Mississippian was placed fourth and Prince Regent third.

Rain Delays Tournament

THOBOLD, Ont. (CP) — Teams representing Sarnia, Woodstock and Hamilton remain unbeaten Monday after the first round-robin play of the Thobold junior baseball tournament, delayed Saturday and Sunday by rain.

Sarnia and Woodstock won three contests apiece Monday with Kitchener winning one of its games.

Three other teams, including defending champion Windsor Mickleys, have yet to play. The others are Windsor AKO and Peterborough.

Eight teams were eliminated and Kingston withdrew, leaving 16 teams still in the running for the championship.

The remaining games will be played Saturday and Sunday.

Borg Bows Out

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg, who once played young girls to sweep all over Europe this year, became Monday the first of the top seeded players to be knocked out of competition at Wimbledon.

Ismael el Shafei of Egypt trounced the Swedish ace in straight tab 4-2, 6-2, 9-1 in a match which was over when the fifth-seeded Borg double faulted through the second set.

By the third set, Borg was purposely belting balls into the stands trying to relieve the obviously wearing the effects of a long year of campaigning which included victories in the French and the World Championship of Tennis crown on the slow clay of the French Opens.

Borg, a native of Big Canoe, Ga., beat eighth-seeded compatriot Arthur Ashe 7-5, 6-3, 9-8 in the first round and then lost the day and advanced against Australia's Ken Rosewall in the third.

In other matches today, John Newcombe played Eric Van Dillen, Stan Smith met Patrice Dominguez, Ilie Nastase met Manel Orantes, Tom Gorman met Jan Kodes, Adrew Pitts played Jimmy Connors, Alex Metreveli faced Tom Okker and Dick Stockton met Ilie Nastase.

Asked why he made no attempt to intercept Borg, Shafei in the third set, Borg, Shafei said: "I was down and down 1-5 in the third, what difference does it make?"

Last year's triple crown winner, Billie Jean King, defending Wimbledon champion, won her doubles titles, defeated Francoise Durr and Betty Stove 7-5, 7-6 and 9-7.

Newcombe of Australia, Nastase of Rumania, Connors of Berkeley, Calif., but won 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Newcombe finished off Nikki

Baker Is Tops

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Gerry Baker of Bellingham, Wash., won the motorcycle Grand Prix of Canada on a Yamaha 500 Sunday.

Baker, also won the unlimited class and the 125 c.c. class.

However, in the big one, a 20-lap event, for 500 c.c. bikes, he had to start first to finish and averaged 89.987 miles an hour.

Brian Goodgame of Duval, Que., on a Yamaha was second and William Hornbower of Wyoming, on a Kawasaki was third.

In the unlimited class, Baker again rode his Yamaha 500 and defeated British champion Peter Williams of England, who was riding a Norton 750. Henderson was third on a Yamaha 700.

Ruling Costs Roos

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Bill Brack of Toronto won a challenge of a stewards' ruling to post his second straight win over Sweden's Bertil Roos in a challenge series for Formula Atlantic car drivers.

Stewards nailed the Gothenburg driver with a 30-second penalty for passing on a caution flag after he overtook Brack to win the Players Open here at Mosport Park.

Brack's STP Crosty finished behind Roos' Chevron B27, but it marked the second straight race in which the Swede has been dropped in the standings for not paying attention to the caution flags.

A similar offence at Edmonton on June 9 cost Roos dropped from first to fourth in the final standings.

Ties No Good for Brazil and Poland

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Television tape and the trainer's table look over today as key elements in soccer's 1974 World Cup.

The video tape will help Holland's manager, Rinus Michels, plot his strategy for Wednesday's match against Brazil.

The trainer will be in action in the Polish camp at Marburg, working on the top players in the hope they will be fit for the match against West Germany.

Brazil and Poland must win to get to the World Cup final at Munich Sunday. Ties would be enough to put Holland and West Germany through.

Michels, who has committed between Germany and Spain to help put his club, Barcelona, in the Brazilian team in action.

He has, however, a complete dossier on the Brazilians, compiled by Cor Van Der Hart, one of the backroom brains of the Dutch camp. In addition, he has had full video tapes prepared on every Brazilian match to date, some which he plans to study before naming a team Wednesday.

Johnny Cryuff of Holland reported that his cold, caught in a downpour during the 2-0 victory over East Germany, was much better.

Poland's injury worries centre on captain Kazimierz Deyna and striker Andrzej Szarmach, the tournament's No. 2 scorer with five goals in five matches. Deyna has a pulled calf muscle and Szarmach has a badly bruised right thigh.

Dr. Janusz Garlicki, team physician, said he hoped both men would be fit for the match against West Germany in Frankfurt.

Brazil's only worry is a possible bruised rib suffered by midfielder Francisco Marinho. However, Marinho, who apparently was hurt in a tackle during Brazil's 3-1 victory over Argentina, was expected to be fit to play.

West Germany's manager, Helmut Schoen, reported no injuries on his team. But, "Sunday's match (a 4-1 victory over Sweden) cost us a lot of nervous energy and strength."

Other games match Argentina and East Germany, Sweden and Yugoslavia. Although none can reach the final four, Argentina decided to play despite the death of President Juan Peron.

Atlantic Open to Molina

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Dan Halderson said he was scared, but hedged to win the $11,000 Atlantic Open after distinguishing performances in the Ontario and Quebec opens.

The 23-year-old from Brandon, Man., fell short of the goal Sunday but achieved another and schuss well on his way to a third.

Florencio Molina of Buenos Aires, Argentina, won the Atlantic Open with an eight-under-par 64-hole score of 180. He earned $2,100 and a diamond ring.

Bob Parasiuk of Windsor, Ont., and Jay Dolan of Leicester, Mass., finished one stroke behind with 200s. They earned $1,312.50 each.

Halderson and Ed Ryman of Denver, Colo., tied for fourth with 202s and picked up $735.

Halderson, who played out of San Diego, Calif., last winter, said in an interview he was unable to practice much between mid-May and the Ontario and Quebec opens in June.

"When I entered the first two, I was there to win. But after missing 18 and 20th, I was scared when I came here and decided that whatever happened."

What he did achieve was to gain a berth in the $200,000 Canadian Open in Mississauga, Ont., July 25-28 as the low Canadian professional in the Atlantic Open.

Parasiuk already had qualified for the Canadian Open by virtue of being last year's Canadian Professional Golf Association (CPGA) champ.

Halderson also was hoping to perform well enough to be invited to the $35,000 CPGA tournament in Calgary the week before the Canadian Open.

A CPGA official said he was one of the top young pros on the Canadian tour and would be recommended to the association's executive for an invitation.

Wannamaker Leads Tony's to the Title

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP) — In a playoff final between the Tony's and Glebals, Oshawa third baseman Jim Rowden hit a double in the third inning and got to third base on a sacrifice bunt. He stole home after wintning pitcher Paul Wannamaker hit a long fly into centre field.

Pete Landers of the Glebals won the Bill Durnan trophy as outstanding player of the tournament. Landers pitched 47 innings, giving up three runs and 39 hits. He struck out 67 batters and pitched five shutouts.

Oshawa will represent Ontario in the Canadian championships at Victoria, B.C., Labor Day weekend.

Whitecaps In Split

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Whitecaps split a pair of weekend North American Soccer League games but remained in last place in the Western Division.

The Whitecaps took a 2-0 win over New York Cosmos on goals by Chris Bennett and George McLean in a game Sunday. Saturday in Washington, the Whitecaps lost 2-1 to the Diplomats.

Vancouver now has 45 points, five behind San Jose Earthquakes who lost 3-2 Sunday to Seattle Sounders in an overtime Na-Seahawker.

Los Angeles Aztecs lead the Western Division with 74 points, followed by Seattle with 57.

In other games Sunday, Boston Minutemen defeated New York 3-0; Philadelphia Atoms edged Los Angeles 2-1; Toronto Dynamos topped St. Louis Stars 3-2; and Seattle took a 1-0 win over Dallas Tornado in a game decided by penalty kicks.

Wings Take Second

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Philadelphia Wings claimed second place in the National Lacrosse League Monday night, defeating Toronto Tomahawks 30-18 before 7,477 fans.

Philadelphia is one point behind first-place Rochester Griffins.

John Grant led the Philadelphia attack with six goals, giving him 36 for the season. Jim Wasson and Terry Lloyd each scored four goals. Single markers were provided by Karen Collins, Brian Spencer, Terry Rowland, Jim Wilnelf, Bob Goulding and Mike Collins.

Bobby Hess connected five times for Toronto. Brian Thompson added three goals with Stan Cox, Brian Wilson, Chuck Li and Brian Wilfong scoring two goals apiece. Digger Mundal and Charley Marinow got one goal each.

Saints Sign Two from NHL

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association announced Monday the signing of two National Hockey League players, centre Gary Gambucci of Minnesota North Stars and defenceman Rob Stanniuk, who played parts of the last two seasons with Buffalo Sabres.

Gambucci, 27, scored one goal and had seven assists in rookie in limited action with the North Stars last season.

Stanniuk, 22, played college hockey at the University of Minnesota at Duluth. He was drafted by Montreal Canadiens in 1970 and was a first-team American Hockey League all-star last year with Cincinnati Swords.

Bart Crashley To Islanders

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The National Hockey League's New York Islanders announced Monday the signing of Bart Crashley.

Crashley, who played two seasons with the World Hockey Association's Los Angeles Sharks, was the first player selected by the Islanders in the 1970 NHL expansion draft.

One of seven Islanders drafted who immediately jumped to the new WHA, Crashley had played part of four NHL seasons with Detroit Red Wings.

Crashley, 28, set a WHA record for goals by a defenceman when he scored 38 in the Sharks' first season. He had only four goals in 78 games last season.

BOAT RACES KILLED

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Speedboat racer Greg Roth of Norman, Okla., was killed Sunday during the third of eight scheduled races in the Lake Waco summer regatta, a charity event. Witnesses said Roth's speedboat was in a sharp turn when he was thrown out and hit by a trailing boat.

SKIER KILLED

VERBIER, Switzerland (Reuter) — Former Olympic gold medal skier Roger Staub of Switzerland was killed off-piste Sunday, the eve of his 30th birthday. Staub was killed when his delta-wing apparatus stalled yards from landing after a soaring flight from a mountain slope. Staub was giant slalom champion at the 1960 Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Big Ships Problem At Sault

DETROIT (AP) — The feasibility of allowing 1,100-foot freighters through the 1,200-foot Poe Lock at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., is to be the subject this week at a meeting of the Great Lakes Carriers Association and the United States Army Corps of Engineers.

The shippers want the new vessels but corps' officials say although the Poe Lock can handle them, five bends in the St. Mary's River can pose problems.

The rivery with the Sault Locks at its upper end, connects Lake Superior and Lake Huron. The Poe Lock, the largest of four in the Sault complex, is the only lock capable of handling the big freighters.

C. A. Aune, the corps' engineer at Sault Ste. Marie, said the two largest ships now plying the lakes, the 1,000-foot Stewart Cort and the Presque Isle, are having difficulties in the river turns.

Aune said while three of the five turns are being widened to ease the problems, they would have to be widened even more to accommodate the 1,100-footers.

Officials said the larger superfreighters would also face possible safety problems even in the Poe Lock, the only lock at the Sault complex capable of handling the large ships.

Sister Lucky

TORONTO (CP) — Helen Williams thought her sister's name sounded luckier than her own so she put it on one of two $5 Irish Sweepstake tickets she bought.

Her hunch was right as her sister, Edna Barth of Warren, Mich., won a $119,000 first prize Saturday.

"I think my sister's good fortune is just marvellous," said Mrs. Williams, 48, of Toronto. "I'm not envious at all. We often buy things for each other."

Mrs. Barth, 55, left Toronto in 1927 for Michigan where her husband is employed as a toolmaker at an automotive machinery plant.

Mrs. Barth said she and her husband decided three to consider what to do with the money, but her sister will be getting a "substantial" amount, she says.

Cattle Burned

TORONTO (CP) — A fire that appeared to have been set at the Ontario stock yards killed 63 head of cattle Saturday but others were so badly burned they had to be shot.

An Ontario fire marshal's official said a nonsmoker and "match to the straw" in the 12,-000-square-foot enclosure, covered by a roof but open at the sides.

The cattle, in transit by CP Rail, had been placed in the pen for feeding.

U.S. Family Grocery Basket Is Cheaper

CHICAGO (AP — Shoppers in the United States got a break in June as the family grocery bill declined, although an Associated Press market-basket survey shows. Most of the drop was because of sales on beef late in the month. Prices of 15 ago increase of 15 per cent.

Four Canadians Hold Tickets on Top Horse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ronald Small of Vancouver, one of four Canadians who won $119,000 on the Irish Sweepstakes Saturday, is actually worth $400,000 richer today.

Mr. Small, 39, a bansomist with the Vancouver Symphony, sold 50 per cent of his ticket for $10,000 before the race.

Other first-prize winners with tickets on English Prince, who won the Irish Derby Derby at the Curragh, Ireland, were Edna Barth of Warren, Mich., Mrs. Williams, 48, of Toronto. The fourth winner is all. We often buy things for each other."

Mrs. Barth, 55, left Toronto in 1927 for Michigan where her husband is employed as a toolmaker at an automotive machinery plant.

Mrs. Barth said she and her husband decided three to consider what to do with the money, but her sister will be getting a "substantial" amount, she says.

"I won't really believe it until we get the money."

Lancashire and his wife, Mary, 38, have three daughters, one married. He is regional assistant commissioner of engineering services with the Ontario ministry of transportation and communication and she is a bank secretary.

Three Canadians with tickets on second-place Imperial Prince were about $47,000 each and three Canadians won $25,000 with tickets on third-place Sir Pendre.

The best holders on Imperial Prince were Ted Schroeder of Winnipeg, Linda Shaver of Surrey, B.C., and Pete Marwitz of Ottawa.

However, Miss Sharon recomes they were a lot of people home from college," said the worker. Joe Parsons of Stanhope, Que., in recording the fatal fire at Gulliver's Restaurant, Oct., and Alan Waggot of Victoria.

The biggest prize of all, the first ticket out of the drum, went Wednesday to Steve Kish of Young, Sask. His prize was $400,000.

The sweeps are part of international lotteries held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland. The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated because some bought sweepstake tickets in Ireland.

Wins Prize

TOKYO (Reuter) — Rene Simard, a 17-year-old Quebec singer, was awarded the Grand Prix at the third Tokyo music festival international contest Sunday. The boy received the biggest ovation when he sang Midori no Yasa (A Green Heart), written, composed and arranged by the Japanese. He also won the Fuji Shisei Prize. The contest attracted 301 entries with 13 of them going to the final.

Fire Kills 24

PORT CHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — "In the beginning, there was no panic, but then the place filled up with smoke and every one became disoriented," said a worker at a discotheque where 24 young people died in an early morning fire Sunday here.

"The place was packed because there was a lot of people

Three Children Perish in Blaze

TORONTO (CP) — Five toddlers, the lives of three of the seven children of a Toronto doctor Saturday in their home equipped with fire-detecting equipment and staffed by two servants.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Unger left their children in the care of nursemaid Josephine Kuzmin who helped rescue four boys from the burning home in the Borough of North York.

Three girls died in the fire—Nicole, 7, Mary-Ellen, 5 and Amanda, 18 months, and Robin, 6, Alex, 2, Russell, one week old, survived the blaze.

The parents, who had gone to dinner to celebrate the birth of their seventh child, had equipped their home with fire detectors and double-glazed windows to prevent the children from falling out.

Firemen said, however, that the fire detectors in the house were located in the basement instead of near the ceiling where they would be more effective.

The fireman who rescued infant Russell had to remove a breathing mask and tank to squeeze through a small window, a spokesman said.

Nursemaid Mary Sobeyan, 34, and a babysitter — Marlene MacLean, 21, said they were driven back by heavy smoke when they attempted to reach the second-floor area of the fire.

Neighbors joined in the rescue attempts.

One neighbor, Marvin C. Gord, said he waited for what seemed to be an eternity for about three minutes—trying to phone an emergency number for firemen. He said an operator told him all the lines were busy.

But a police spokesman said that by the time Mr. Gord called, "the board was jammed with calls from other neighbors," and fire trucks were on their way.

A fireman said safety mainly is suspected as the cause of the fire, which resulted in damage of about $50,000.

112 Fires

TORONTO (CP) — The ministry of natural resources reported Monday that 112 forest fires were burning in Ontario, 56 of them in the northwest.

Forty-six of the fires in the northwest were not under control.

The most serious fire covered 25,000 acres about 38 miles southwest of Dryden. It was formed when three smaller fires merged Sunday and driven by winds of up to 50 miles an hour, covered eight miles in three hours that night.

This fire, the ministry said, caused the evacuation of three work camps of the Reed Paper Co. and one tourist camp. Three other tourist camps on Eagle Lake were scheduled to be evacuated also.

Holdup Loot Lost As Paper Bag Breaks

TORONTO (CP) — A soggy paper bag broke and thousands of dollars obtained in the holdup of a trust company blew around in the rain Saturday as the robber fled on foot along a Toronto street.

Police, a man armed with a handgun held up an Ontario Trust Co. branch in the week-end after being refused a loan twice that day.

The robber fled with $5,100 stuffed into the paper bag, but it became soaked and split. Passers-by chased after the money, and police say they believe it was all recovered.

William Orey Smith, 30, of Toronto, was charged with charged with armed robbery.

Good Citizens Honored By Medal Presentations

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Parnell McCarthy, who delivered mail for 36 years in rural northeastern Ontario by horse and sleigh, horse and wagon and finally by car, was one of 15 recipients Sunday of the Ontario Medal for Good Citizenship.

Mrs. McCarthy, 83, who delivered the mail along RR 1, Chalk River and RR 2, Deep River, made her last rounds

Miss Canada Is Selected

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Sandy Campbell, 21, a model from Leamington, was chosen Monday as the new Miss Dominion of Canada.

Miss Campbell will represent Canada in the Miss World contest in England. She will also be national contest to Tokyo, the Queen of the Universe contestion in Melbourne, Australia, and the Miss Universe pageant in the Philippines.

She competed against 18 other contestants from across Canada.

Five runner-up was Arlene Copeland, 20, an employee of an agency for handicapped children in Hanover. Second runner-up was Shirley McGuire, 21, of Woodstock, Ont., an employee of the province's tourism department.

Miss Campbell receives no prize money or guarantee but will represent Canada in more than 200,000 miles in the next year.

"I'm sure it's going to be very exciting," Miss Campbell said. "I'm looking forward to the year ahead of me."

Mine Worker Given Three Life Terms

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Albert Pass, once a top lieutenant in the toppled United Mine Workers (UMW) regime of W. A. (Tony) Boyle, was sentenced Monday by Judge Edward Carney to three consecutive life prison terms for the Yablonski murders.

Pass, 51, of Middlesboro, Ky., also once a member of the U M W policy-setting international executive board, was convicted last June on three counts of first-degree murder in the 1969 slayings of UMW insurgent Joseph Yablonski and Yablonski's wife and daughter.

Boyle has been convicted of three counts of murder in connection with the slayings and is awaiting sentencing.

Ballet Guild Elects Officers

The Belleville branch of the National Ballet Guild elected new officers at its annual meeting June 24 at the home of Dorothy McKinnon.

The executive comprises: president, Helen Kelly; first vice-president, Evelyn Lowers; second vice-president, Kay Payne; corresponding secretary, Nellie Redcliffe; recording secretary, Mary Atkinson; treasurer, Cecil Becker Quinte Arts Council representative, Kay Manderville; publicity, Jane McNicol.

Evelyn Lowers and Helen Kelly are co-chairmen of the Quinte Dance Centre committee. They will also serve as registrar and treasurer. Other members of the dance centre committee are: sales, Mary Patterson; music coordinator, Lucy Vanderwater; school programs, Kay Pape; mothers' committee, Sybil Hennebury; scholarships, Kay Manderville and property manager, Don McKinnon.

Past president Shiela Krasowski, in her report for 1973-74, said the branch now has 42 members.

The dance centre had about 96 students enrolled for each of the three terms last year and will hold a two-week summer school course this month. Senior dancers gave several performances at school and for other organization during the spring.

The fund-raising event of next year will be two appearances of Les Feux Follets at Centennial Secondary School Oct. 3.

Director Gets Help

One of the oldest hands at the theatre game in Belleville, Jim Alexander, is both starting his director's chores early this season and taking the cream of the Belleville Theatre Guild's actor's crop to help him.

In what he calls an experiment, Mr. Alexander will have both Diane Coyne and Steve Forrester acting as assistant director in the production of Brian Friel's Lovers.

The play, essentially two one-act plays based on a common theme, is scheduled to open for an eight-night run October 9.

Since Mr. Alexander insists on the piece be done in the dialect of Ireland, he has called auditions for next week. Wednesday, July 3 at 8 p.m. at the recreation centre on Pinnacle St.

Quite early start, with some work during the summer, will allow for the perfection of the Irish brogue, he feels.

Eight actors, ages 18 to 60, are required.

The eight will come under the tutelage of Mrs. Coyne and Mr. Forrester, four actors to each.

Both himself and his two directors should gain experience from each other, Mr. Alexander felt.

Top Money Goes to Guelph

Rene Woods of Guelph was winner of the $10,000 first prize in the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund draw for June.

Ald. David J. Travers of Kingston made the draw, assisted by fund treasurer Robert Turcotte. Mr. Travers is on CKWS radio and TV, drew two tickets held by Kingston residents.

Second prize winner of $5,000 was Rose Miller of Kingston and fourth prize winner of $3,000 was M. O'Connor, also of Kingston. Third prize winner of $4,000 was Don Moyer of Stoney Creek and fifth prize winner of $2,500 was D. A. Emery of Belleville.

Sellers of the five tickets, each of whom won $1,000 were Joe Elig, Linda Spooner, Peter Wachnik, W.J. Kiernan and Pat Palmer.

The next draw will be held July 31 at 8 p.m. when $20,000 will be shared. Tickets are now on sale at $1 each.

Auto Dealers Offer Deals

Family Fare At Cinema I

Where the Lilies Bloom has all the magic touches a family movie needs; it's based on an award-winning novel by William and Vera Cleaver, its script was written by the same author Earl Hamner, Jr. and its features, as the producers say "a lot of heart."

The story is of four free-willed mountain children making it on their own after their mother's father dies with the added interest of star-crossed lovers, harsh fate and family feuding.

Star of the film is a "non-professional" southern U.S. girl, Julie Gordon. After her father dies, she takes over the family, hiding his death from others and preventing her eldest, meeker sister, played by Jan Smithers, from marrying the villain love interest, Hardy Dean Stanton.

The other mountain children are played by Matthew Burrill and Helen Hanson.

The film, a United Artists release, was directed by William Graham and produced by Robert Radnitz.

It is currently playing at Cinema I in the Quinte Mall.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Wednesday, July 3

Aries (March 21-April 19) The competition is going to be stiff—than you counted on when it comes to satisfying your personal ambitions over the next few days.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20) Don't try to impose your philosophy or ideas on subordinates, here's no market for what you're selling.

Genial (May 21-June 20) Do be best you can to keep current on obligation that now are due. At least acknowledge them with token payments, if possible.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) someone is going to be very ugry with you if you break our word to her regarding anything you promised to do.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't ni responsibilities off, thinking ou'll get around to them later. ou won't—they just pile up.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Fo he next few days avoid any type of risky or speculative ven ure. Someone else could profit, but not you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're subjec at this time to overly responsive to pres sures from others. Think for yourself, Run your own show.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't lock yourself into a corner by sticking to cust s, plans and ideas that aren't fea sible for your present needs.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The next few days will require prudent management in all your material dealings. If borrowing, selling or trading, be as sharp as possible.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will not be free to move about as independently as you'd like until after Friday, when others lessen their demands on your time.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Situations over which you'll have little control will have the upper hand for a few days. Be patient. Wait things out.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be better off in the long run if you lay aside for the present your pursuit of mere pleasurable interests and get down to business.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Remember the story about the man giving directions who finally said, "You can't get there from here."

South may well have had that story in mind when he played in the second trick because he made sure that he would get from dummy to his own hand when it became necessary.

He won the first trick with the ace of diamonds. After playing the trump ace of the hand, he proceeded to ruff a diamond with one of trumps. He then returned to his hand by ruffing a club and ruffed his last diamond with the king of trumps. Then he led dummy's nine of trumps. East had to win, South overtook with the 10 in order to lead a second trump.

East won and led a diamond. South ruffed, drew East's last trump with his own last trump and went after hearts. When the suit broke nicely he cleaned the balance.

North had overtied a trifle and South had needed good breath, but he also needed good play. If he had ruffed a diamond with dummy's nine of trumps he would have been stuck in dummy at the wrong time and unable both to pull trumps and run hearts.

Clothing Try-ons Can Spread Lice

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Thank you for your article on crab lice. Last spring I called the board of health regarding the obnoxious practice of allowing the trying-on and returning of intimate apparel. Strangely enough, the specialized stores and stores are the worst offenders.

Earrings for pierced ears are not returnable or exchangeable but underwear, pantyhose, slacks, etc, are.

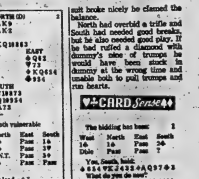
The board of health could find no ruling to cover such situation, but surely there must be some way to stop this filthy practice. Perhaps you can shed something about this. I am getting too old to play Cruelty to Rabbit. The stores I have contacted have as much as told me to mind my own business. Guess they feel one person is no threat to GE.

With the tremendous increase in lice—all kinds, head lice, crab lice, body lice—your point is well taken.

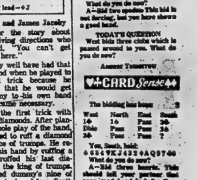
Regulations for fitting and trying on clothing vary from place to place, and stores in some, and only in certain areas, not yours, I think you'll find that restrictions are much more rigid.

Because of this variation, I don't see that it is any use for me to try to campaign for changes in all the states and provinces in which this custom is prevalent, but I do think it worthwhile to point out the dangers of lice that has not yet reached your area.

Five years ago I almost never saw a case of head lice. Today I get a steady procession of such letters. Medical statistics say that epidemics are breaking out. Sale of anti-lices remedies (both good and bad) confirm it.

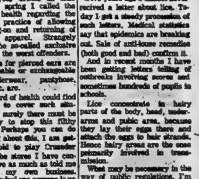


And in recent months I have been getting letters telling of outbreaks involving scores and sometimes hundreds of pupils in schools.



Lice concentrate in hairy parts of the body, head, underarms and public area, because they lay their eggs there and attach the eggs to hair strands. Hence hairy areas are the most intensely involved in transmission.

What may be necessary is the way of public regulation. I'm not prepared to say, except that if these epidemics continue to spread, public outcry will force such action. It's always a question of how much pain will be heard for before they get tough!



I will make this suggestion so far as clothing try-ons are concerned. I think it will apply mostly to women. Wear protective garments, such as panties, hose, slacks or socks, when trying on clothes. It will at least give you some protection—and in case (horrors!) you happen to be the proud possessor of a colony of lice, it will make it that much less likely you can pass them on to someone else.

IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Anderson, who passed away July 2, 1970.
Sweet memories are treasures, Time's hand cannot destroy, For memories of the happy days, Treasured ever and always every evening.
Sadly missed by daughter Ruth.
ANDERSON — In loving memory of my dear wife, Ethel, who passed away on this day of yesterday.
Memory we shall always keep, Memory we cannot take away, Memory makes our sadness deep.
Sadly missed by daughter Rhea and family.
COULTER — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Coulter, who passed away July 2, 1970.
Sweet memories are treasures, Time's hand cannot destroy, For memories of the happy days, Treasured ever and always.
Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Rhea and family.

Sweet memories are treasures, Time's hand cannot destroy, For memories of the happy days, Treasured ever and always.
Always loved and remembered by daughter Rhea and family. Trenton and Belleville.
FOLSOM — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Ernest Folsom, who passed away July 2, 1970.
He carefully was spoken, Tenderly his name was said, But now he lies in silence, Where no voice can wake the dead.
Our hearts were sad and lonely, When we saw you pass away, But God thought best to take you, We could only kneel and pray.
Sadly missed by wife Lena, daughter Lorna and family.
"Loved and true to the end of his days."
We take you in memory, Which no one can remove, Just to walk with you once more, Is the dream of my love.
Sadly missed by wife Myrtle and family.

Ups and Downs

This Norwegian freighter docked at Windsor, N.S., on the Minas Basin illustrates the range between low and high tides on the Bay of Fundy, Minas Basin, a large inlet deep inside the Bay of Fundy has tides the highest then 40 feet, the largest in the world. (CP Photo)

Highest Tides in World Occur in Minas Basin

WINDSOR, N.S. (CP) — Having the highest tides in the world has been a dubious honor for the Minas Basin.

Tides in the funnel-shaped basin deep inside the Bay of Fundy go higher than 40 feet.

For most of the day the water is so far back that all that can be seen for miles is a vast tidal flat of red, slimy mud.

But when the tide comes in, Cape Sheridan at more than 30 knots it takes only a few hours to transform the basin into a great, muddy salt water lake.

Since about 1900 engineers have dreamed of damming the basin at Cape Blomidon, the bottleneck to harness the tides for hydroelectric power. But the plans have always been too expensive and impractical.

Meanwhile, the tides are an economic liability in strong that it has made the sea unintelligible for most basin communities. The tides make shipping and commercial fishing inconvenient, dangerous and unproductive.

Silting from rivers has compounded the problem.

Truro, at the tip of the basin, theoretically would be an ideally located port but it has not harbored a ship in years. Great Village and Maitland, famous shipbuilding towns in the 19th century, are farm villages today that deserve nothing from the sea.

But the tides are a tourist attraction, especially at Windsor and Truro, where visitors can watch the phenomenon of the tidal bore.

"The bore occurs twice each day. When the tide starts to rise it creates a wave along the channel and upstream in the rivers leading into the basin.

The tidal bore in Truro is advertised as the town's top tourist attraction. But the intensity of tides varies from day to day. You can be disappointed if you arrive on a day of little action. More than one tourist has waited away mumbling that the tidal bore was aptly named.

Swimming and sport fishing within the basin itself are almost unheard of, although nearby estuaries such as the Shubenacadie River are popular angling spots.

Since 1960 engineers have made the basin one of the best-charted areas in Nova Scotia, particularly around the village of Economy. Glass digures can walk far out on the seabed at low tide, but must be careful to return to shore quickly when the tide starts to turn. More than one clam enthusiast has been drowned because he did not know how incredibly fast the basin can fill itself.

Ships call regularly at a few ports along the basin such as Walton, where they load gypsum mined nearby.

Docking a ship here requires masterful piloting. One man has brought in only at high tide. As the tide goes out the ships end up resting on mud and dry on the sand at the wharf, waiting for the next high tide to bring the sea back to them.

Vessels must follow a carefully prescribed course. When the pilot has brought the ship opposite the desired port, he drops anchor and waits for high water. As the time approaches he inches shoreward with the advancing tide, by the time he reaches the wharf and ties the ship with extra lines, the tide has already started to ebb.

Why are the tides so high in the basin and so low only a few hundred miles away?

The phenomenon is common in less extreme forms all over the world because the size of tides varies with the shape and depth of the body of water. In some areas of the South Pacific the daily tides rise and fall less than one foot, and the canals of Venice respond fatefully to the tides of the Adriatic by only one or two feet a day. The tides are almost negligible at the Atlantic end of the Panama Canal but less than 40 miles away at its Pacific outlet they reach up to 16 feet.

Oceanographers have divided the oceans into a number of distinct tidal areas.

The Bay of Fundy lies in a region centred in the Gulf of Maine off Massachusetts. At Nantucket, R.I., near the centre, tides rarely exceed three feet, but they grow progressively higher as one moves northward. At Gloucester, Mass., they reach 13 feet; at Bar Harbor, Me., 18 feet; at St. Andrews, N.B., near the mouth of the Bay of Fundy, 27 feet and in the Minas Basin more than 40 feet.

The cause lies largely in the funnel shape of the bay and the basin. As tidal flow rushes in it is squeezed by the progressively narrower basin and piles higher and higher. The height is further amplified by the time the water reaches Minas Basin by the flow rebounding from the shore and falling ear to the next succeeding wave.

Grandparents Replace Glamor Youths in Ads

VANCOUVER (CP) — Are models grandparents replacing freckle-faced youths and country maidens in television commercials?

Alex McCallum, an agent for models and actors, said the trend in advertising is to more realistic personalities, with less emphasis on youth.

"Good performers in the 40-to-50 range have a better chance of getting work than do young people," said Mr. McCallum. His clients include Alicia Ammon, 58, of North Vancouver who has filmed three commercials in four months.

Ramona Beauchamp said her agency has lined up more than 100 mature models, five times more than a year ago.

"But it's strictly part-time work," she said. "While a model might make a pile of money with several commercials in a row, her income will slip from $3,000 a month to $30 for the next few months."

Mrs. Ammon, who has been in theatre since childhood, earns about $127 a day for principal roles in beer, airline, telephone and fast-oil commercials but she has a few complaints:

"They still make me up to look like a elderly lady for some commercials. "And we didn't even get a beer when we filmed a commercial for a beer company.

Mrs. Ammon said she was booked for few commercials until two years ago but more calls now are coming. She earned $1,700 last year, from television work.

Her son Jack, eligible for old-age pension his year, does television commercials as well as roles in feature films and live theatre.

His advice to aspiring models is to get into theatre work, even backstage. Ride-theatre groups are the best place to start.

"I think a lot of middle-aged people could find acted a good retirement occupation. There's nothing routine about it and it keeps your interest alive."

Mr. Ammon said any actor needs an innate ability and a determination to succeed.

"A good actor is the solar centre of his own universe. They're all ego and the ego is part of their talent.

"It takes aggressiveness, advertising and the use of every artifice to get ahead and it's all quite legitimate."

Other performers feel it takes minimal talent to succeed in television advertising.

A. J. Nicholson, a middle-aged plumbing salesman who started to work as a part-time model five years ago, said:

"The business of making commercials requires little or no talent.

Mr. Nicholson said he earns about $2,000 a year doing commercials. He does no fashion shows.

"It's feel pretty conspicuous walking onto the catwalk. I find it easier to be photographed."

Mr. McCallum said many mature men are embarrassed about starting a career in modelling or acting.

"They have many hangups about it because they've been programmed from childhood to think it's a sissy thing to do. He playing with girls. They think male models are effeminate.

"Sure, that programming is haywire, but it's hard for men over 40 to break away from the old hard masculine concept and take the first step to get into the profession.

"There are not many women over age 40 who want to take that first step either."

Actor Switches To New Career

TORONTO (CP) — A veteran Canadian actor has quit trying to scratch out a living by performing in favor of the security of a job as property manager at an apartment development.

E. R. Macgilvre says he remembers the moment he decided to pull down the curtain on his acting career—which included more than 200 Canadian television productions and some in the United States.

It came on a Wayne and Shuster television special. He had two week-ends in his with no lines.

"If this is all I'm doing as an actor," he recalled thinking "he's it high time I switched to something else!"

He approached an acquaintance and received a two-month trial as the property management job. Now he has a permanent position which involves renting, approving repairs and security.

He said he had no trouble switching careers at 53. Acting had little to offer.

Electricity Drives Electric Co. Vans

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The three new vans in Allen-against a combustion engine the City Electric Co.'s fleet cost and they're going to be used twice as much as usual but the like utility hopes to make up the difference in fuel economy.

The six vans run on electricity, not gas, and a company spokesman says it costs only $1 to "fill up" a vehicle's batteries for a day's driving.

The vans are not suited for long distances, since their range is only 50 miles if driven at 35 miles an hour, or less if driven faster. It takes eight hours to recharge a van's two 1½-volt batteries.

But that is no problem for A.C.E., which simply plugs the vehicles into a wall socket at night when they are idle.

"There are more than 600 cars and trucks in the company's fleet and more than half are limited mileage vehicles that are primarily used for short trips or in-town driving," said Herb Adams, manager for general services.

John T. Feehan, company president, described the experimental vans as "the solution to pollution," since their engines are quiet and emit no fumes.

The utility plans to use two vans within Atlantic City and the third to ferry employees to Pleasantville, five miles away.

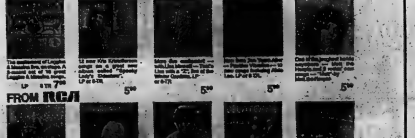
The vans are among 187 made by the Electric Vehicle Council; a group of utilities seeking to encourage the development of electric transportation.

Feehan said it expects few mechanical problems.

"Ten retired 4 under three times before you get rid of a gas-powered van," said Fred Miller, an A.C.E. mechanic. "The electric jobs can go almost indefinitely without major mechanical problems.

"We're not going to show them any favoritism and keep them out of the rain or see them sparingly. We bought them to work."

Job Blows Day



HALIFAX (CP) — Alderman Lou Hoir says the city should have school crossing guards and 33 a day—four times the present rate—if it wants to avoid a shortage of "crossing guards" other parents, Mr. Hoir says, adding that the city must set up a wage scale to compensate for the disruptions of the day.

Aid to IRA Alleged

Mounties Seize Arms in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — An RCMP spokesman said Tuesday that several illegal shipments of weapons have been seized in four southern Ontario centres and seven men have been arrested.

RCMP said they believe the shipments were destined for the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, which is waging a guerrilla war against the British in Northern Ireland.

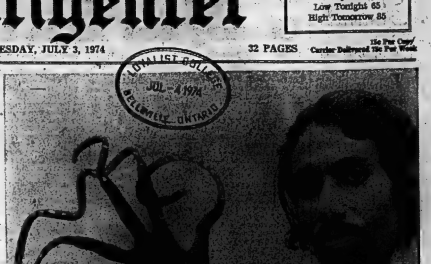
Insp. George Scott said a machine gun, semi-automatic rifles, hand grenades, Sten guns and parts were seized in recent raids in St. Catharines, Tavistock and Toronto and at the United States border at Windsor.

Literature seized in the raids indicated that the weapons were to be shipped to the IRA in Ireland, Scott said.

Six of the seven arrested were born in the Northern Ireland city of Belfast, police said. All have been charged with conspiracy to export arms.

Joseph Myles, 51, of Garden City, Mich., was arrested Monday on the Ambassador Bridge as he was attempting to leave Canada.

Fifteen high-power rifles of the type issued to NATO forces and manufactured by the Fabrique National (FN) in Belgium were confiscated, an RCMP spokesman in Windsor said.



Myles's arrest led to further seizures and arrests, Insp. Scott said.

Also charged were Patrick Clarke, 40, of St. Catharines, Phillip Anthony Kast, 31, of Tavistock and four Toronto men—William Gilroy, 29, Robert Gray, 31, John Gerard Heaney, 30 and Daniel McNamara, 54.

All except Gilroy and McNamara have also been charged with attempting to export arms contrary to the Export and Import Permits Act.

Bail for Myles was set at $5,000 and the others were released on their own recognizance. All were ordered to appear in court here next Thursday.

The RCMP said further charges are pending and the investigation is continuing in cooperation with U.S. customs officials and British security authorities.

Exception for Salmon Asked

Canada Would Accept 200-mile Offshore Zone

CARACAS (CP) — Canada indicated today its willingness to accept in large measure a consensus developing at the international law of the sea conference defining the offshore rights and duties of coastal states.

Environment Minister Jack Davis said the idea of giving coastal countries rights over a 200-mile offshore economic zone would stand much good for conserving and enlarging fish stocks.

But in a major speech to the 2,000 delegates here from nearly every country, Davis declared that coastal countries must have complete jurisdiction over oil and other minerals throughout their entire continental shelves, even when these extend beyond 200 miles.

In his speech, the minister made a strong plea for the extension of the highly-prized salmon from the general rule being devised to govern fishing and other marine matters.

Canada has previously taken the position that coastal states should have jurisdiction over all activities for at least 200 miles beyond their shores or to the outer edge of the continental shelf, whichever is the greater distance.

But in an interview the minister, who returns to Canada late tonight, said only five or 10 per cent of the Canadian continental shelf off the East Coast extends beyond 200 miles. If the continental economic zone concept is accepted, this area, too, would fall naturally under Canadian jurisdiction.

Canada already claims full rights to the minerals and oil over its entire continental shelf and there is no thought of compromise in this regard, the minister said.

In his speech, Davis emphasized the unique position of salmon which spawns in fresh water rivers, then swims thousands of miles into the oceans before its eventual return.

"To ensure adequate protection and proper management of stocks such as salmon, fishing for these stocks must be confined to the coastal economic zone. The primary interest of the state in whose rivers these species are spawned must be recognized if they are to reach the limits of the migratory range."

On the question of pollution, he said the burden of controlling shore-based sources, the major cause of ocean pollution, must rest with coastal states.

Accused Had Long Death List

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Authorities say the names of soul music singer Aretha Franklin, Rep. Andrew Young, Rep. Barbara Jordan and other prominent blacks were on two "death lists" compiled by Morrison Wade Chenault, the man charged with killing Mrs. King Sr.

Sgt. Herbie Compton of the Atlanta police department said one of the lists had 19 names and was found in Chenault's apartment at Columbus, Ohio, where he formerly attended the State University. The other list was compiled from police interviews, Compton said.

Compton said other names on the lists included Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; civil rights leader Jesse Jackson; and Rev. Ika Eikenkoetter, an evangelist.

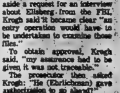
Chenault, 23, a black man from Dayton, Ohio, is in jail here charged with killing Mrs. King and a church deacon and wounding another woman in the shooting spree Sunday at Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

A lawyer for Chenault said Tuesday that his client has denied belonging to any organized group.

Sometimes a Policeman Faces Real Problems

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — What does a RCMP constable do when he's ordered to keep people off the tarmac and a planeload of passengers pull up and start playing with frisbees?

He scowls in and tells them soon after.



And when they continue, he tries to catch the gadget.

Then he spots one of the players, who quickly identifies himself as Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

So he backs off, watches the game and finally decides to approach the RCMP security officers accompanying the prime minister.

But as he approaches Insp. Harry Shaw, he realizes the inspector is helping the prime minister snag the frisbee—one of three circulating through the air at the same time.

Day Nurseries Act Cutting Standards

TORONTO (CP) — New provincial legislation providing $13 million for day-care centres came under attack Tuesday at a public hearing of day-care proponents.

More than 500 social workers and parents attended the first meeting of the Group for Day Child.

She said he proposed changes in the Day Nurseries Act, announced June 4, convey "a total lack of concern for the need of children and indicate there is seemingly single-minded concern for cutting costs.

Douglas Wright, deputy provincial secretary, told the meeting that the province is trying to expand the availability of day care centres and one method of doing so would be to spread out the staff available across the province.

"There is a terrible dilemma between quantity and quality," Mr. Wright said. "But you have to be concerned for the other 95 per cent of the population who don't have day-care facilities."

Care Reform at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

Marie-Lise Wu of the York University Co-operative Day-Care Centre held up examples of the contract, said the rules demonstrate that the legislation reduces the number of staff in the centres to the detriment of the child.

One-parent Families Overlooked

TORONTO (CP) — Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury said Tuesday that he doesn't think "the government or any political party has concentrated enough on the trend to one-parent families."

Mr. Stanbury was speaking to about 30 members of the One Parent Families Association of Canada, holding its first annual convention here this week.

The minister, speaking informally and fielding questions from the audience, said the government has concentrated on improving the status of women, "and in doing that it has probably helped some single-parent families."

He also said that child care expenses incurred during working hours are now allowed as a tax deduction, and the federal government, through the Local Initiatives Program, has contributed more than $8 million towards day care centres, even though they are a provincial responsibility.

He urged the newly-formed association to research problems faced by single parents and to propose solutions.

Dynamite Factory Explodes

BILBAO, Spain (Reuter) — The death toll in an explosion which ripped through a dynamite factory near here rose to 18 today when three more workers died from their injuries.

Informed sources said at least 100 persons were injured, some seriously.

The explosion occurred Tuesday night in a section of the Union Expresivos Rio Tinto factory at Galdacano, five miles from here.

The blast shattered windows for several miles around, and most of the injured were cut by flying glass.

The Europa press news agency, quoting informed sources, said it was unlikely that sabotage was involved.

Ehrlichman Okayed Burglary

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman's only caution to approving a break-in into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was to make sure the operation would not be traced to the White House, says Ehrlichman's trial testimony.

Former Ehrlichman aides David Young and Egil (Bud) Krogh agreed Monday that the possible illegality of the break-in at Dr. Lewis Fielding's Beverly Hills, Calif., office was never raised beforehand.

In addition to the charge of conspiracy to violate Fielding's rights, Ehrlichman, once President Nixon's principal domestic affairs adviser, also is charged on four counts of lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury.

Three other defendants in the case are Gordon Liddy and Misnister Howard Barker and Eugenio Martinez.

Krogh told of being given the special assignment of tracking down and plugging the leaks to the press for a rash of national security leaks to the press in 1970 and 1971 and said he and Young organized the special White House investigative unit known as the plumbers.

Krogh quoted Ehrlichman as saying the president was deeply worried because "very serious national security issues were at stake."

The most immediate problem in reacting to the leak of the Pentagon papers was "how we were going to determine the mental state of the person who had released those documents," Krogh said.

After Dr. Fielding fumed about the leaks for an interview about Ellsberg from the FBI, Krogh said it became clear "an operation would have to be put in to undertaken to examine those files."

To obtain approval, Krogh said, "my assurance had to be given it was not traceable."

The prosecutor then asked Krogh: "Is (Ehrlichman) given authorization to go ahead?"

Krogh: "Yes."

Tweed-area Boy Killed On Bicycle

TWEED — An 11-year-old boy was killed Tuesday while bicycling on Highway 7 about three miles east of Actinolite.

He was John Cecil Vezina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Vezina, RR 1 Tweed.

Provincial police said the boy had been bicycling on the shoulder of the highway about 5:15 p.m. He came into collision with a car driven by Dorothy Sarah Elizabeth Turnbull.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by coroner Dr. R. G. Berry of Madoc.

Scene of the mishap was near the Land O'Lakes restaurant less than three miles west of the Hastings County boundary.

$12,000 Fire In Picton Mobile Home

PICTON — Fire in the engine of a motor home parked on Main St. near the Globe Hotel Tuesday night caused an estimated $12,000 damage to the vehicle.

The fire was spotted by passing motorist Larry Calnan, of Picton, and firefighters were called to the scene. Cause of the blaze is undetermined, a spokesman for Picton fire department said today.

The vehicle was owned by Robert Parsons, a former Picton resident now of New York.

Housing For Elderly

MADOC — Construction of senior citizens housing units here is expected to get underway soon.

The project will be built for the Ontario Housing Corporation by Maurice H. Rollins Construction, of Belleville.

Cordova Road Designated For Development

TORONTO — Part of the boundary road between Marmora — Lake Richmond and Methuen townships from Cordova Mines to the entrance of Cordova Lake has been designated for construction as a development road by the provincial government.

Work will be carried out by township authorities, an announcement from the office of Charles Rollins, MPP Hastings, said Wednesday.

Mr. Rollins said he had been informed of the move by Transportation and Communications Minister John R. Rhodes.

Port Hope 401 Crash Kills Girl

PORT HOPE — A 16-year-old Markham girl, Judith Lynn Haskett, was killed Tuesday night when the car in which she was a passenger turned over on Highway 401 just west of the intersection with Highway 2.

Officers from the Cobourg detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police report that the Hesfield girl was killed when a car driven by Peter Donald Hilvert, 19, also of Markham, spun out of control in the west bound lanes and rolled in the median.

Two other passengers in the car were treated for minor injuries and shock and released from Port Hope Hospital.

John Warr: Testing for Business

Ready For Business -- But First, a Survey

TRENTON — A sister and brother living on the Wooler Road (RR 1, Trenton) north of here aim to operate their own antique business in the next year or so.

Meanwhile Jennifer, 25, and John, 19, Warr believe success depends on a survey they're conducting at the present time.

The idea of the antiques undertaking was conceived in a family talk. Their father proposed to provide the land and help them in other ways in building a retail outlet. They're also selling the odd piece of a collection they've accumulated together and display on tables outdoors.

Although they had collected antiques, unusual and rare items, John and Jennifer decided they would first learn if there was sufficient interest enough to warrant the capital expense that would be involved.

"What we're actually doing is polling public opinion from motorists who stop for our signs in front of the place where we intend to set up shop," explained Jennifer.

John who is the signwriter feels he's already gained considerable knowledge of one phase of the business having recently completed a furniture refinishers and refinishing course along with his mother.

He's a regular attendant at auction sales in the area and finds the activity an "experience that will put him in good stead for the future.

Weaving: Ancient Art Is Making a Comeback

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — A world-wide interest in hand weaving is increasing in zeros every year.

Local weaver Harvey, Nurcombe, of Cherry Valley, at a special weaving demonstration in the County Museum, Picton, told interested observers that hand weaving, once a dying craft, has made a comeback.

One reason for the increase in popularity, says Mr. Nurcombe, is reaction against automation.

"There is an element of satisfaction in making or owning a product which has been hand-made," said Mr. Nurcombe. "We also find ourselves with more leisure time and many are taking up weaving as a hobby."

His interest goes back 15 years to a spinning demonstration at Toronto's Black Creek Pioneer Village. At his wife's request, Mr. Nurcombe built a spinning wheel. While his wife spun, he decided to take up weaving. Completely engrossed in the craft, Nurcombe decided on early retirement and went into the pastime on a year-round basis.

Now, 15 years later, they are agents for weaving looms and work fulltime at weaving to meet the never-ending demand for hand-woven products.

The Nurcombes do not sell their manufactured items through stores or salesmen, but dispose of their products themselves. By word of mouth, their hand-woven products have become known and ordered from around the world, including Australia, New Zealand, Switzerland, Ireland, Germany and England.

In earlier years, in the days of large looms, women always ran the spinning wheels and the men did the weaving. With the advent of modern looms, women took more of an interest in weaving. But Mr. Nurcombe observes that the trend is changing again with men taking a renewed interest in the art.

"The man always appear fascinated by the operation of a modern loom, and it isn't very long before they're hooked," he said.

The Nurcombe's studio in Cherry Valley, which also offers demonstrations of handweaving and woodworking, is open every day and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Official Reports on Highway 37 Survey

Road, Traffic Problems Not Serious

The accident rate on Highway 37 between Belleville and Tweed is little different from that of similar Ontario highways, indicates a provincial government engineering report.

There are no "significant" deficiencies not already covered by proposed improvements. The highway is good for 60 miles-an-hour travel — as posted — except for some curves, says the report, based on "E" survey recently requested by Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

Mr. Rollins recently asked provincial police and highways officials to study road and traffic conditions following two fatal accidents on the highway this year.

There have been 42 motor vehicle mishaps along the 27-mile stretch linking Belleville and Tweed from Jan. 1 to June 21, Belleville provincial police reported. Aside from the two fatalities, there were 16 people injured.

Accident investigations included four charges of impaired driving and seven careless driving counts. Some 35 of the fatal crashes involved only one car.

• P.D. Billings, eastern region director, transportation and communications ministry, said statistics are "very impressive."

But the records indicate the accident rate "is about the same as other highways of its type."

Mr. Billings noted six improvement projects have been contracted for or are marked for work in the next few years.

Having examined the highway he found no "significant" deficiencies that have not been covered by proposed improvements.

There are five "slightly deficient" crest curves below standards for 80 mile-an-hour driving.

His officials will further investigate the situation to determine if there are clustered areas of Highway 37 requiring more attention.

One of the fatal accidents involved a school student at the intersection of Thurlow township's 5th concession. Mr. Billings said an official from his office had discussed the intersection with school authorities and recommended a school crossing to protect children crossing the highway. Officials will determine if additional turning lanes should be considered for the intersection.

Traffic volumes during 1973 on the highway— which is also a connecting link from Highway 401 to the Highway 7 Ottawa route — varied between 1,600 and 4,900 vehicles a day.

Rash Breaks Out in County

Thieving Never Takes a Holiday

PICTON — Ontario Provincial police are investigating a rash of thefts reported Tuesday in Prince Edward County.

Police said today that an outboard motor was reported stolen from a cottage at Delta's Island Tuesday afternoon. The 55 horsepower was owned by Gordon Arthur of Scarborough.

Meantime flags flying at the transportation and communication ministry yards near Bloomfield also were reported to have disappeared.

A camera owned by a vacationer at West Lake also was reported missing. The man accidentally left the camera, valued at $700 at the roadside at West Lake but could not find it later. Anyone finding it is asked to contact he Picton detachment of the OPP.

At Oxtail provincial park, police are investigating reports of thefts of two sleeping bags, five fishing rods and reels, a flashlight and a pair of cowboy boots from various campsites.

Perchance To Dream

Buy a lottery ticket, as many Canadians are doing these days, and it is a recognition of the instinct in all of us that a fortune, be it small or large, is the key to many things now far out of reach.

Travel . . . a new home, . . . a higher education for the children. Everyone has his own dream of gold at the end of the rainbow.

There is this increasing trend also toward altered working hours, the four-day week — that sort of thing — and a belief generally that work is not the ultimate end in life.

Dissatisfaction with working conditions, suggested Ronald Anderson in a recent article in The Globe and Mail, "is a social ailment often thought to be limited to the lower levels of blue collar and white collar workers. . ."

But in recent years, he says, the malaise has spread to middle management. He cites the resignation of an advertising agency president, giving as his reason the fact that preoccupation with work was interfering with his family life.

Among employees in the lower echelons, Anderson goes on, the desire for leisure is competing with higher earnings in the scale of values. And he speaks of a growing recognition that "a successful career is not quite the same as a successful life."

The same theme incidentally was discussed recently by columnist Scott Young in a review of Max Braithwaite's new novel, 'A Privilege and a Pleasure. This is a story of a middletown businessman — in this case an auto dealer — caught up in the familiar cycle of work, service club, the country club — and when there is time, family life; and all the while wondering if this is all there is to this mortal coil.

It is part of the fabric of our time — that is clear. For all but the most adaptable and adventurous it is ingrained, habitual. If the treadmill is safe but not exactly exciting, then we can always be a Walter Mitty!

Challenge Lacking

In the above context we note the findings of the Canadian Mental Health Foundation that there is still unemployment among employees in places where management has installed wall-to-wall carpeting, Muzak and green plants.

It is scarcely surprising really. Fancy carpeting, soft music and green plants are not going to fire the imagination of people whose jobs offer no challenge or anything for the mind other than punching a pen or being much more than a cipher.

Nurses Want More

Health Minister Frank Millar may, sensing a little sympathy, be nurses seeking more money when he says he understands their frustration, but there is a "ritual" to the negotiation process.

He is as much as saying "don't push too hard girls . . . these things take time."

The old ritual dance caper.

It is all so familiar, but we suppose that eventually something will be worked out. The pity is that the nurses, caught in the cost-of-living squeeze like everyone else, must go through the tiresome negotiation maze of offers and counter offers.

Meanwhile the signs carried by nurses of one hospital in this part of Ontario proclaiming that "time for justice is wrong." And "if we don't get more dough we'll be out of bread."

Signs of our times indeed.

Progress

Belleville's growing importance as an industrial centre is reflected in the pages of "The Intelligencer's newly-released Industrial Edition.

And it has received fresh impact in recent days with the cornerstone ceremonies for the S. A. Armstrong Cushings Division plant.

It is clear the Belleville site for production of castings for cemiptegal pumps and heat exchangers has gained the approval of the Toronto-based firm.

This is another step forward for Belleville, one of the many it has achieved in the industrial sphere within the last few years.

Prime Minister Changes 1970 Tune with Regard To FLQ

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The prime minister's bo-hum response to the reappearance of two of the 1970 FLQ kidnappers and their families, first in Paris and later in Algiers, may be the way to handle the movements of these terrorist minorities.

Yet one cannot forget the determined, almost fierce speech Mr. Trudeau delivered over national television in October, 1970, at the time of the crisis, and the "overkill" which took place in Quebec in police searches for their supporters and other FLQ members.

The press then saw Mr. Trudeau in his "Dear Ivan" and Canada close to the brink of-the same kind of urban, terrorism which had begun to plague other democratic countries far to the south, and still does.

Later several strong books appeared during 1971 severely criticizing both the prime minister and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau for using the crisis to round up so-called "enemies" of the Liberals in Québec, even of the prime minister personally.

It was rather vicious stuff, but stood as tough a response as the prime minister's had been in putting the FLQers out of the country and into Castro's Cuba as a political-haven.

There must be the suspicion however, that Mr. Trudeau says he doesn't care what happens to them and that they won't be extradited because there is a large separatist element in what will still be the Liberal party's vote-in October, July 8, namely the province of Quebec.

If the pundits assure us, as Mr. Trudeau's campaign experts are surely advising him, that Quebec will be just as solidly Liberal as it was in 1968 or after the near-disastrous election of 1972 for the prime minister. And yet there is the nagging fact from the recent Quebec provincial election that 30 per cent of the vote was separatist.

The Parti Quebecois is not directly involved in the federal election. But it is printing anti-federalist literature for its members to use to disrupt the federal election campaign in the province.

So, even in the Quebec Liberal fortress, Mr. Trudeau could be afraid of losing a few seats in an election result which at this time shows all the signs of a near-repeat of the last one.

The other aspect of the FLQ terrorists' departure from Cuba is that agreement which was made at the time, even a suspicion of a verbal agreement, if it does exist in the archives of the external affairs department, should be made public.

It is on the basis of what this agreement said that the FLQers, now out of their Cuban exile, are being ignored by the government and on the basis of which the prime minister said categorically Ottawa will not try and bring them back.

Quebec in 1974 looks totally placid where terrorist outbreaks are concerned compared with 1970 or the 1960s when FLQ bombers were exploded in mailboxes, supermarkets and railway stations. Only in Latin America has the terrorist tactic the lethal escalated to what many were afraid would also happen in Europe.

So far it has not. But this doesn't mean terrorism has been put on a shelf for the future. The political pundits do well at the police took a careful look in Montreal on June Bugsies-Day, June 24, to see if there might be street disorders.

Neither were disappointed this year.

Business Booming

Kingston Whig Standard:
Along with Robertson Davies has been, incensed "talk" recently about how bad things are generally, economically speaking.

And things are bad for individual citizens who are being pinched and hurt by the cost of living generally, but Statistics Canada has just issued another of its periodical business-barometer reports which reflects with something like stunning impact that things are not at all bad for business.

After-tax profits of Canadian industrial corporations in the first quarter of 1974 were up 45.7 per cent over last year. Gross sales were up 24 per cent in the year, this representing a big swing upwards in profit margins for non-financial corporations.

The percentage figures are unbelievable: the 1974 first-quarter profit level of $2.16 billion was no less than 79 per cent higher than it was two years before. In the last year, 45 per cent above the first quarter of 1973, following a small decrease in 1970. The economy recovered, however, and the "growth" since then is clear from these fantastic figures.

According to Statistics Canada, sales for these corporations rose by $7.1 billion to $41.8 billion in the first quarter. Also, assets were up by 14.5 per cent from last year. On the other hand, cash dividends declared increased by only 5.5 per cent. This seems to show that corporations in this country have been plowing back their investment.

As everybody knows, the manufacturing segment has been favoured by federal Government tax concessions. It recorded an increase in after-tax profits of 61.6 per cent in the year up to the first quarter-$1.3 billion — while profits in sales rose by only 22.5 per cent in the first quarter. Figures released on May 31 per cent profit increases for food and beverage industries in the first quarter for petroleum and coal products.

So in spite of inflation and taxes, times are not really so bad for some participants in the national economic scramble.

But how strange it is that the individual consumer thinks everything is going come out so hellfreezing!

Citizens Coalition And Government Spending Issue

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Political poise . . . federal

A Globe and Mail report said that members here were anxious to wind up the session so they could get out on the hustings.

Nonsense.

With a few exceptions there has been no great urge on the part of provincial members to get into the federal campaign.

A lot of attention would have been given here to the Citizens Coalition of London, sponsored by Tamboryn salesman Colin Brown.

The coalition, as you may or may not have noticed, has been running full page ads in newspapers across Canada, socialising independence but criticizing big business, big government, and, incidentally, parliament itself for being spendthrift and wasteful.

The coalition and its ads drew attention for two reasons:

One of these because Mr. Brown is unquestionably right.

The biggest absurdity in our political life today is the rate at which government (and this includes the province) has been stepping up expenditures—despite inflation.

But then Mr. Brown has an odd relationship with provincial politics. He had a long association with Conservatives.

He was one of the main organizers of John Roberts' campaign for the PC leadership in 1961.

He was promoted in Mr. Roberts' subsequent campaigns in London.

Since then he has been close to the government insurance business.

Among other things he was the agent in the Tory civil service plan for social benefits.

But still his campaign in this election rang right.

And he is no fool.

The Financial Times quoted another insurance salesman as calling him "an American-style right-wing nut."

American-style is his meat-cake.

But he has shown that as an independent citizen he can push increases for food and beverage industries in the first quarter for petroleum and coal products.

So in spite of inflation and taxes, times are not really so bad for some participants in the national economic scramble.

But how strange it is that the individual consumer thinks everything is going come out so hellfreezing!

A Look At The Question Of Ethics in Politics Today

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Because of the serious economic problems facing this country and the rest of the world, these problems are being looked and rehashed by the politicians of all colors in an attempt as we begin to lose sight of THE problem which unfortunately has bothered us most. The problem is Ethics in politics.

Chancellor Brandt was forced to resign because his best friend turned out to be a communist spy. Watergate, which has barely escaped the taint of real conflict of interest, Lockheed-under Agnew resigned to avoid indictments as a result of Presidential Nixon bangs on with the skin of his teeth to ward off impeachment for high crimes and misdemeanors. Ottawa government is periodically rocked by scandals — the Munsinger affair.

The pattern of events is always the same: public accusations followed by indignant denials, threats, exposures, investigation, whitewash, cover-up, or cover-up. So it goes: monotonous repetitions of unacceptable conduct motivated by greed and folly. How, with these events all around us, can we trust those politicians now courting us vote for them? Can we trust that power will not corrupt, that those temptations will not lead them to feast on the fruits of their positions? How can we, the voters, ascertain politicians are not in the game to enrich themselves? We seem morally incompatible with the high task of serving the common good.

If we only knew the future and can only guess at political future behaviour. Yet we can make the guess an educated one.

In view of the frequent scandals of the day, those who vote for office, are under the moral obligation to make available to public scrutiny their financial holdings, past and present. This done, the politicians' past will give the voters a glimpse of the politicians' future.

Let us, once there, demand, now that there is time to do so, that our politicians submit their holdings to public scrutiny, all financial interest and real-estate holdings. Let us cast aside those who refuse to comply. They are not worth our vote.

Council Action on Film Being Made in Belleville

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

As a matter of courtesy the young film producers before council to tell them what he thought of their proposal. He ended up with a promise to contact Mr. Bateman for the Worship Mayor Robin Jeffrey and an assurance that his office would call and "leave" the city by any unfavorable content.

What arrant nonsense. What thunderation was these people have. Who do they think they are? Prestige now, it seems, is to ask Council permission to do.

Currently Face is involved with another organization in getting rid of colour slides on pollution and the Belleville slum area.

Movie scenes have already been shot and many others are to follow. Some of the pollution scenes will be enlarged and shown at the Pollution Exhibition. When the movie has been completed it will be shown to groups in the province who are interested in such things as slum landlords, pollution etc.

At no time was the Belleville city council consulted in this matter, nor are there any plans to consult them in the near future. City council will, however, be assured of the premiere showing.

Readers Express Views on The Election Campaign

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We have, in common with other countries, many hardworking people who are doing their working life pull their weight. They make things as they pay their taxes and save a little for their declining years.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I still contend that Mr. Stanfield is the best all round politician. I take this statement upon his past performances. Particularly when he is the leader of the opposition (who are divided among themselves about Stanfield's leadership qualities), naturally he must oppose the government on most issues. However, I can't recall him being in any feasible alternative solutions to problems in this country. If Mr. Stanfield is to be elected as Prime Minister he must have some alternative solutions to the problems of inflation, unemployment, foreign ownership, etc. Stanfield's statement that he would control prices and price controls a poorly educated guess to end inflation. Obviously, Stanfield hasn't looked into the track record of price controls. They brought Great Britain into a state of turmoil, and the United States created food shortages. Since the Canadian economy is dependent on the U.S. and Britain, I cannot see how they will work here. There is no "overnight" solution to inflation. Having consulted with knowledgeable authorities on the subject I feel safe in my assumption.

Furthermore, I think God for the decisive Liberal victory in 1968 averted the crisis. Stanfield opposed the use of Martial Law which kept the whole crisis under control. He had been in power the separatists probably would have done much more harm than they did.

I just thought that I would clarify my opinion about Mr. Stanfield and his "solution" to inflation.

Plane Spotted Drifting Family, Then Sharks Hit

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — After 13 hours adrift in the Gulf of Mexico, Edward Horne, his wife and five children were related to see a rescue plane. Then the sharks hit.

"We didn't know the sharks were around until the very last," Horne said Tuesday of an attack that fatally wounded Billy, 18. Another son, Edward Jr., 3, also died, apparently of exposure or drowning.

"The shark hit the boy as soon as the plane spotted us," Horne said from a hospital bed at Tyndall Air Force Base in Panama City, where the family was taken after being rescued.

"Why he hit our son and not us, I'll never know," he said of one shark that mangled Billy's arms and legs. "We were strictly in the hands of God."

Horne, 41, his wife, Diane, 34, and children Billy, Edward Jr., Diana Jo, 14, Gerald Paul, 11 and Melissa, 7, were on a vacation cruise from their home in Houston, Tex., to the Bahia's when tragedy struck. Four other children did not make the trip.

The surviving members were admitted to the Tyndall hospital for observation, spokesmen said.

Horne said the family left the Florida Panhandle city of Carrabelle late Monday aboard their 43-foot boat, the Princess Ann. They were headed for Tarpon Springs, north of St. Petersburg, when they ran into trouble.

"Two hours out, we hit the fiercest storm we ever saw," Horne, clad in life jackets and clinging to a single life ring.

They were kicking, thrashing the water, and there was a number of sharks surrounding them," Arney said. He said there were eight in a dozen sharks in the water. "15 feet away, just lying there with their noses pointed towards the family."

A nearby pleasure boat, the 42 Marel III, captained by Clyde Snyder of Tampa, was guided to the family by Arney's plane and picked up the seven. Helicopters brought the two dying youngsters to shore and the rest of the family followed after being transferred to a coast guard cutter.

Architects' Board Can Decide Case

TORONTO (CP) — The division court has ruled that the Ontario Association of Architects' registration board may continue a hearing to decide whether two Toronto architects have been guilty of alleged professional misconduct.

The association action involves the construction of three high-rise student co-operative housing projects—two in Toronto and one in Ottawa—and the architects for the buildings, Elmer Trampoli and J. Malcolm Wells.

The hearing was adjourned last week when counsel for Mr. Trampoli and Mr. Wells questioned the registration board's jurisdiction to hear the charges.

filed under the Ontario Architects Act and the Ontario Statutory Powers Procedure Act.

The division court, after spending two days last week hearing arguments, ruled the registration board, the association's disciplinary body, has that jurisdiction.

The charges against the two architects allege that "while practising their profession as architects and rendering professional services" as such, they were engaged in acts, maintained relationships and financial and personal interests which conflicted with their professional duties to their clients . . .

"They accepted remuneration in connection with the work and duties entrusted to them other than the professional fees payable to them by their clients . . .

"They wilfully made a false certificate with respect to work done and with respect to the cost, value or condition of a work done and with respect to the cost, value or condition of a work or building . . .

"They issued a false change order and certificate with respect to work done and with respect to the cost, value or condition of a work or building . . .

"They permitted contractors to perform part of their services for them without paying therefore a reasonable sum . . .

"The residences mentioned in the action are the Neill-Wycik and Tartu colleges in Toronto and Pestalozzi Colleges in Ottawa.

Hull Anxious To Stay French

HULL, Que. (CP) — The Quebec government is expected to table a plan in the national assembly this week, seeking to protect the cultural and linguistic character of this city of 63,000, across the Ottawa River from the capital.

The move is a result of a recent motion adopted by city council that only provincially-French federal government departments be allowed to establish on the Quebec side of the national capital region.

That, which is more than 90 per cent French-speaking, claims the federal presence being established here under the national capital region concept is diluting the French character of the city.

Fear Poison

KITCHENER (CP) — The city parks department is investigating a complaint that potentially dangerous chemicals are being used in city parks.

Adrienne Whetstead told council Tuesday that ropes associated with toxic herbicide are being used to control the growth of grass around the base of trees in city parks.

The ropes are tied around the base of trees within the reach of children, Mr. Whetstead said, despite a manufacturer's warning that they should be kept out of the reach of children.

Fred Graham, parks and recreation commissioner, said he would investigate.

Lutherans Hold Meeting

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Lutheran Church in America begins its seventh biennial national convention here today to elect a new slate of officers, adopt a budget and approve a series of wide-ranging policy resolutions.

The 879 delegates from the United States, Canada and the Caribbean will meet through July 16.

Dr. Robert Marshall of New York City, president of the 3.1 million-member denomination, still yet to a second four-year term. Dr. Wallace Fisher will oppose Marshall in the election, scheduled for the opening day of the convention.

Catalytic Converters Best Bet

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd., Oshawa, believes catalytic converters, although expensive, are the quickest and best route toward improved fuel-economy while still meeting emission-control standards, David C. Collier, company president, said Tuesday.

Mr. Collier said in an interview that although current testing is still incomplete, it now appears that converter use on 1975 models will improve gasoline mileage by at least 16 per cent over that of 1974-model cars.

Provide Power

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The state power authority said Tuesday it has approved allocations of 14,850 kilowatts of hydroelectric power to two Niagara Falls, N.Y., industries.

The authority said the additional power would create 260 jobs in the city—302 by Hooker Chemicals and Plastics Corp. and 80 by Airco Alloys Division of Airco Inc.

James FitzPatrick, power authority chairman, said the power would come from a nuclear plant under construction at Scriba, west of Oswego, N.Y.

The allocations of the power are subject to approval by agreement on contract terms, a public hearing and by the governor.

Russian Interviews Cut Off

NEW YORK (AP) — American television reporters were abruptly cut off Tuesday as they tried to send by satellite from Moscow filmed interviews with Soviet dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov.

Both NBC's John Dancy and ABC's Harry Reasoner were interrupted in midsentence as their telecasts were being received via satellite in network newsrooms here shortly after 5:30 p.m.

The networks apparently had filmed interviews with Sakharov, who is on a hunger strike on behalf of political prisoners.

CBS was twice interrupted, its Moscow bureau chief, Murray Fromson, was cut off as he was broadcasting outside a building where a scientists' seminar was to have been held, before Soviet scientists were taken into custody.

CBS's Marvin Kalb was permitted to talk about negotiations on missiles, but as he began to talk about the Soviets pulling the plug on the Sakharov interview, he was blacked out.

Ann Landers

Nudist Housewife 'Must Be Made Up'

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago there was a big discussion in our office about the woman who did her housework in the nude and then enjoyed a little skinny-dipping in her own privat, pool. It seems she was infatuated with her daughter's 17-year-old boyfriend and one day he showed up beside the pool and surprised her. She was embarrassed to death and he wanted to put her at ease, so he took off his clothes and swam with her. The girls in our office talked about that letter all day.

In the first place, what kind of nut does her housework in the nude? In the second place, what sort of woman in her 30s would have a yen for a kid 17? In the third place, there were a few of us (myself included) who decided that the situation was so far out that you probably made up the letter on a day when the mail was dull.

How about answering these questions in the press, ma'ame?—Inquisitive in Illinois

Dear Ink: In the first place, thousands of women do their housework in the nude. Scarcely! But when I printed a letter from a woman who got caught naked in a redhib while doing her laundry in the basement, she was surprised by the outer-reaches. That woman's nuts. She explained she was tired of ripping her pockets on doorknobs and described how gloriously free she felt as she whipped through the housework unencumbered by clothing.

In the second place, Ink, not uncommon for a woman of any age to flip over a much younger man. I've received stacks of letters from non-age girls who view their mothers as serious competition. Moreover, some girls have stated frankly that their mothers are extremely aggressive and "up to plenty."

In the third place, there's no such thing as a dull day in my office. The notion that I have to fabricate letters in order to put together a lively column is absurd. A person would have to be psychotic to make up those letters. Eighteen years of this work has taught me that nothing is as far out, or bizarre, that somebody, somewhere, won't do it.

HOW TO COMPLAIN

When writing a company about unsatisfactory merchandise or service be sure to include all relevant facts, particularly dates, advises consumer's association of Canada. Be concise and state clearly what you would consider a fair settlement. Avoid sounding apologetic or overly emotional. And remember — a cranky typed letter is more likely to achieve positive results. Successful Living

Dance Not Necessity After Wedding Dinner

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Have you any ideas for entertainment after the wedding reception in place of a dance?

I presume there would be more refreshments required later on in the evening. Could this take the form of sandwiches and coffee? The reception will be a sit-down full course meal, at 7 p.m. — Wondering and Stewing.

Dear Wondering: — A dance after the reception is not always the thing to do — sometimes the bride and groom have to get away or catch a train or plane.

The guests, or some of them, may move on to the home of the bride's or groom's parents for some delightfully informal chat and snack in the late evening.

Even this is not essential. You've done your big job when you put on the reception. Relax, and if you do anything, make it informal and comfortable. People can be just as comfortable over sandwiches and coffee as over an extravagant spread.

Dear Doris: — We have been married three years, and I thought my husband had forgotten the girl he went with before he met me.

But the other day I was looking through some papers and I came across her picture. He laughed it off, but he took it back and put it away again. Do you think he is still secretly in love with her?

Please let me know if I'm being Foolishly Jealous.

Dear Jealous: — Yes, you are. He married you, not her. Yet one can understand that a person does not want to lose all memories of someone once a good friend. We are sentimental beings.

If your husband shows every sign of having accepted you for life, and you enjoy a happy relationship, can talk things over, can enjoy each other in many ways, and a single picture of some previous girl friend is your only evidence of any other-time interest, forget it and enjoy him.

Confidential to Worried Over Rivals: Read everything! There is a lot of inspiration and behavior here and you need to do some serious thinking.

For one thing, you are only 18; you have been seeing this man for but four months — long enough to find him attractive, but not long enough to be sure you could adjust yourself to those bursts of temper — even when he is justified!

For another thing, he belongs to another race, an obstacle in itself in the eyes of your friends. Take time — and perspective — to discover whether you two are friends as well as romancers enthralled by the male-female attraction. If you are, you will break all past romantic ties, letting the other girl and man know that they are no longer part of the scene.

(Are you to decide about the proper etiquette to use for your spotlight specialist? — Ask Doris. In care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Garden Vegetables Make Varied Menu

If you're lucky enough to have a garden, from this point on you'll have fresh vegetables for supper. Cooked or raw, fresh vegetables provide you with one of the easiest ways to satisfy appetites nutritiously.

There are so many interesting ways to prepare vegetables — don't fall into the old "boiled peas again" trap. Let your imagination roam, and try different herbs and sauces for flavoring, as well as serving the vegetables themselves in new ways.

BOILED RADISHES

If you're like most gardeners, you planted too many at once, and suddenly you're overrun with hot red radishes.

The solution is simple. Pick the largest radishes. Cut off the green tops and reserve the best-looking, least blemished leaves. Wash them thoroughly.

Scrape the radishes' red skin off as you clean them under a running tap.

Place the skinned radishes in a little boiling, slightly-salted water. Boil for five minutes or longer, until tender.

Drain, and pat with a little butter.

At the same time, the green radish tops should be sautéed in a shallow frypan, in a little butter and the occasional sizzle of water. They'll take five or 10 minutes to become tender and will, of course, shrink a great deal.

Serve the radishes and the greens together, made even tastier with sour cream or yogurt ladled over them on the plate.

This makes a novel and delicious meal in itself, and is also good served with meat or fish.

SPINACH SUPPER

Wash your spinach carefully — it's the grittiest of greens — and crunch it down in a pot of already - boiling water (about an inch of water in a 10-inch-deep pot). Sprinkle a little salt, and turn the spinach over and over so that the top leaves eventually get to the bottom. When the whole amount of spinach starts to look "cooked", put the lid on and boil for one minute.

Drain, and serve with a cheddar cheese sauce and a poached egg on top. This makes a pretty meal, and is an excellent source of vitamins, iron and protein.

One note for adventurous vegetable lovers: Don't throw out that lovely green spinach water! Heat it up, strain it, and serve in a cup dotted with butter and sprinkled with salt and pepper to taste. It makes a nice accompaniment to the meal, or can be refrigerated and reheated later.

GREEN PEAS

Fresh green peas are as sweet as honey. They're good alone, or in combination with fresh baby carrots, mushrooms, or sliced green onions.

Another fancier preparation is to serve them with lettuce the following way.

Wash and remove the heart from a head of lettuce.

Fill the hollow left in the lettuce with one cup (or more) of green peas seasoned with salt, pepper and a little sugar. Tie up the leaves over the peas, and place the lettuce head in a small quantity of boiling water in a deep pot.

Steam, covered, for about 30 minutes.

Serve with melted butter, cheese or sour cream — the choice is yours.

GREEN BEANS

Place the beans in a small amount of boiling water, and cook for as short a time as possible with the lid off — this vegetable is tastier when left a little crisp, especially when fresh from the garden.

While the beans are boiling, add basil, marjoram, thyme or tarragon to the pot. Any one of these herbs will enhance the flavor.

Other tricks are almond slivers or walnut pieces added to the drained and buttered beans, or slightly-sauteed sliced onions, which give a nice variation of texture and taste.

lettuce chopped up or sliced in pieces with the peas.

Swiss Green Beans

Corn Flakes Topping:
2 cups corn flakes
2 table spoons margarine

Green Beans Mixture:
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup dairy sour cream
4 cups green beans, cooked and drained
2 cups grated Swiss cheese

Crush cornflakes into fine crumbs. Mix corn flake crumbs with melted margarine. Set aside for topping.

Melt margarine in large saucepan over low heat; stir in flour, salt, pepper, onion and sugar. Add sour cream; stir until smooth. Increase heat to medium and cook stirring constantly. Remove from heat.

Fold green beans into sour cream sauce; spread in greased 10 x 6½ x 2 inch (1¼ quart) baking dish. Sprinkle cheese evenly over green beans mixture. Sprinkle crumbs topping evenly over cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 F) about 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 6 servings, about ¾ cup each.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Jones

Jones — McComb

St. Thomas Anglican Church was the scene of the early June wedding of Karen Joan McComb and Danny Edward Jones.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert McComb; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones, Madoc.

The Rev. Peter Tett officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a crystal crepe gown with chantilly lace panel and train. An embroidered lace veil was caught in a juliet cap and she carried red roses and baby's breath.

Susan Baledge, Coquitlam, B.C. was maid of honor. She wore a yellow gown and wore yellow and white flowers in her hair. She carried a white and yellow mum nosegay.

Kywin Grills, Belleville, wore a pink gown with pink and white flowers in her hair. She carried a matching nosegay. Roxanne McComb, the bride's cousin, wore a mauve ensemble like the other attendants. Pamela Thompson, the bride's cousin, and Richard Jones, the groom's brother, were flower girl and ring bearer. The flower girl wore a green ensemble.

Bruce Philp, Stirling, was best man. He was assisted by the bride's brother, Larry McComb and the brother of the groom, Robert Jones.

A dinner and dance at St. Thomas Parish hall followed the wedding. After their wedding trip to the Poconos mountains the couple took up residence in Madoc.

RONALD GEORGE REEVES son of Mr. and Mrs. George Reeves, Ivanhoe, graduated recently from Wilfred Laurier University, Waterloo, with an honors Bachelor of Arts degree in English Language and Literature. A graduate of Quinte Secondary School, he will be attending the Faculty of Education Queens University in September.

MRS. PETER GRAHAM CARISSE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Riddle, Trenton, received her Bachelor of Education degree at a convocation ceremony held at University of Toronto, Toronto, June 3, 1974.

Mrs. Carisse received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Guelph.

She is planning to continue studying at the University of Ottawa.

Hecklers Provide Spice To Election Gatherings

By DOUG SMALL
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hecklers turned up all three major party leaders Tuesday, adding spice to an otherwise routine campaign day.

Prime Minister Trudeau was heckled in the Quebec riding of Montreal Lafontaine. New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis ran into a philosophic heckler in Calgary and Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield had a Winnipeg speech interrupted by a fist fight.

The incidents occurred as the three began the final lap in the July 8 race for votes.

Mr. Trudeau ran into heavy heckling and booing at a stop during a swing through four Quebec ridings prior to a flight to Penticton, B.C.

He visited the Montreal-Lafontaine riding for about 30 minutes in aid of the candidacy of 36-year-old Claude Andre Lachman, son of Quebec cabinet MP Georges Lachance.

The younger Lachance's bid for office has caused some discussion in the riding. There have been complaints that the senior Lachance has merely handed his constituency over to his son.

Mr. Lewis was interrupted during a routine speech in which he told supporters that the NDP was the only party willing to stand up for the average citizen against big business.

"Thoughtful Canadians will ask themselves how so sensible and fair an election system as we have presented is rejected out of hand by the other parties," he told an evening rally.

He one citizen, middle-aged Doug Colombo of Calgary, who said he worked for the Conservative party, countered the Lewis philosophy rose of his own.

"Why do they have to take the short cut of the sky so we can't have a star to reach for?" he shouted. "I don't refer to ring to any steps that would curtail free enterprise in this country."

Mr. Lewis was a noisy one also when he called the man a corporate welfare bum.

Meanwhile, Mr. Stanfield was slowly into another attack on the prime minister and was fly handling hecklers when the fist fight broke out between two party workers and a man who later identified himself as Dario Severson of Winnipeg.

Mr. Severson, who denied he was working for either party candidates, was hustled out of the large meeting room in the Fort Garry.

He said he was trying to get Mr. Stanfield's opinion about Conservative wage and price controls policy.

As Mr. Severson was being hushed from the room, Mr. Stanfield said: "My friends, don't worry about an interruption from time to time.

"I'm quite able to take care of myself."

In his speech, Mr. Stanfield called on voters to love Prime Minister Trudeau, but to support Conservatives in the election.

He told a cheering crowd of about 1,500 that the Liberals were trying to buy voters with taxpayer's money and that they were exploiting prejudice in Quebec.

He described as despicable a Liberal campaign advertisement in Quebec that refers to "Monsieur Trudeau" and Mr. Stanfield.

Meanwhile, Social Credit Leader Real Caouette campaigned over the air waves in Montreal, talking open-line radio-show audiences that his party could benefit from a wave of support to improve its standings in Montreal.

"I hope the Conservatives in Montreal will win sufficient votes from the Liberals to allow my candidates to wind their way between the two parties and carry away victory," Mr. Caouette said.

On another election front, election officials estimated that about three per cent of the total July 8 vote was cast at advance polls Monday and Saturday.

The estimate compares with the 1.56 per cent who voted in advance in the June 1972 election and the 2.36 per cent who used advance polls in June, 1968.

There are between 13.4 and 13.5 million eligible voters for the July 8 election.

Wine Ruling Sought

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Wine Institute is heading an industry move to have the federal government clarify the use of certain words used to describe wines in relation to a recent Supreme Court of Canada ruling forbidding a wine producer from using the word champagne in Quebec.

The Canadian Wine Institute wants the federal government to clarify the situation relating to the domestic wine industry's use of such words as champagne, burgundy and sauterne, arguing that the words have been used by Canadian winemakers to describe particular products for about 50 years.

Irish Children Taught To Hate British Army

BELFAST (AP) — "If you hate the British Army, clap hands." These are the words of a children's street song in the Roman Catholic Falls Road quarter of this war-scarred city.

It is a litany of hate sung by children who see British soldiers march the same as French children or Dutch children once viewed the Nazi conquerors in Europe.

Talk to Jimmy Brophy, 12, street warrior and aspiring terrorist: "My brother's a Provvie. He's killed two soldiers. His hasn't been home in a long time. But I'm joining the Provvies soon."

A Provvie is a guerrilla with the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing, the heavily armed Catholic body that wants to eliminate British influence in Northern Ireland.

Children just a couple of years older than Jimmy are involved.

When they were his age, they stoned troops. Now they fire high-powered Armalite rifles or Soviet-made RPG-7 rockets.

Two teenage boys armed with pistols were picked up recently in the dreary streets of Protestant East Belfast. They were booked as suspected assassins.

Three IRA guerrillas eliminated an army patrol with a bomb. The oldest killer was 17. His commander was 16.

A girl was found with an Armalite rifle jammed down the leg of her trouser suit. Another was arrested when troops found gelignite hidden in the baby carriage she was pushing.

Soldiers picked up an IRA teen-age intelligence officer in the Provisional's Belfast Brigade. He was 15.

The youngsters of the Protestant and Catholic ghettoes have been reared on violence the last five years. More than 1,000 men, women and children have been slaughtered. Thousands more wounded and maimed. The bomb destruction is frightening.

Some youngsters bear their wounds like a badge of war, One little Catholic girl proudly opened his shirt to display a big blackening bruise on her chest, a wound inflicted by a six-inch rubber bullet from an army riot gun.

Others have suffered mental breakdowns.

Officials estimate that a sizable number of Ulster's 600,000 children have been psychologically scarred, some so deeply they may never be cured.

Parents pass on to their children bitterness and distrust that they also inherited from their elders.

Lewis Critical

Choice of Senators 'Worst Patronage'

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis said Tuesday that Labor Minister John Munro made "a shocking admission" in disclosing that he used political influence to win federal appointments to federal supported agencies.

Government patronage is a well-known fact of life, Mr. Lewis told a news conference. But it was significant "that a minister of the Crown" had admitted it so openly.

Mr. Lewis said Mr. Munro had described patronage as necessary and desirable.

Mr. Munro, seeking re-election in Hamilton East, conceded Monday that he has used his political influence to win appointments for supporters and campaign contributors in the Hamilton area.

Mr. Lewis said the most dangerous aspect of patronage is its frequent connection with campaign contributions. He did not know details of Mr. Munro's activities, but said appointments involving contributors are automatically suspect.

He challenged both the Liberals and the Conservatives to make public their lists of election contributors. The Election Expenses Act, which takes effect next month, requires disclosure of campaign donations of more than $100.

Mr. Lewis said the most blatant type of patronage is the appointment of party hard-workers to the Senate. He mentioned Senator Keith Davey, co-chairman of the Liberal national election campaign.

"That is the kind of thing that is unacceptable . . . and should be stopped."

Mr. Lewis was to fly to Calgary later. The remainder of his election campaign days will be spent on the Prairies and in Ontario.

Caouette Hopeful Of Montreal Gains

MONTREAL (CP) — The Social Credit party could benefit from a current wave of support to improve its standings in the Montreal region during next Monday's federal election, party leader Real Caouette said Tuesday.

Following his appearance on an open-line radio program on French language station CKVL, Mr. Caouette said there could be a surprise in the voting results in the Montreal region next week.

Callers to the station were friendly and Mr. Caouette seemed buoyed by the first reaction and lack of hostile calls.

"I hope the Conservatives (in Montreal) will win sufficient votes from the Liberals to allow my candidates to wind their way between the two parties and carry away victory," he said.

His party's triumph is assured in the Longueuil area, he said, and the ridings of Mercier and Saint-Michel could hold some surprises. Both ridings were won by the Liberals in the 1972 federal election.

Later in th day, the party leader was to receive a favorable reaction during an open-line program on the Montreal French-language station CJAD.

Many of the listeners who participated promised to support his party in the election.

Mr. Caouette closes his campaign tour today with a final open-line broadcast in Montreal before returning to his home riding of Terrebonne-Jonquiere.

The Social Credit party got about 167,000 votes in the Montreal area in 1972, or about a close second in eight districts.

Growth Study Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada wants to know what makes industrialized society tick so fast.

To that end, it is launching what may be its most ambitious and important study ever, an examination of why an ever-increasing demand for resources and energy seems to be built into the industrial system.

Dr. Fraser Mustard, council chairman and rector of the University of Montreal, says in the council's annual report made public today that the study is to begin later this year and may continue indefinitely.

He says the grim prospects outlined in the Meadows book Limits to Growth have become the "most important of all debates."

The book says a throw-away society will pollute the environment beyond the point of no return or create an enormous technological monster that will collapse like a house of cards when natural resources are depleted.

Law Body Says Marital Property Laws Unfair

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan's Law Reform Commission says matrimonial property laws are unfair to women. If a marriage fails, the woman often has no claim even on things she helped pay for.

A paper released Tuesday, the first of three the commission will release for public discussion before it recommends changes, points out specific areas where injustices are perpetuated by the law.

In cases where a wife contributes her own money to purchase property put in her husband's name, the result when marriage breakdown occurs is uncertain.

The paper says the wife will probably fail to get any part of the property unless proper records and accounts of family transactions have been kept. Such records are rare. "The wife usually signs on the dotted line and throws her money into the pot."

Contributions made by a wife towards renovations and repair of property are unlikely to be taken into consideration by the court, the paper said, citing a recent court case.

"It seems unjust to say that because her money was applied to improvements instead of the purchase price she should not obtain an interest in the home. Yet such is the state of the law".

The commission criticized the Homesteads Act for not clearly defining the wife's homestead rights.

The act gives the wife veto rights over any of her husband's dealings concerning the home, but it does not give her the right of possession during the owner's lifetime.

Upon divorce, a woman loses protection under this act since she is no longer a "wife."

Joint ownership is another area where new legislation is needed, the paper says.

Conductor

TORONTO (CP) — Andrew Davis, associate conductor of the New Philharmonia Orchestra in London, has been appointed music director and conductor of the Toronto Symphony, it was announced Tuesday.

He succeeds Karel Ancerl, former conductor of the Czechoslovakia Philharmonic who was music director of the Toronto orchestra until his death last year.

James Wenkaway, president of the symphony, said Mr. Davis' appointment is effective at the beginning of the 1975-76 season and is for a minimum period of three years.

Manufacturers Oppose Equal Freight Rates

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association said Tuesday recent proposals to equalize freight rates across the country are a threat to the competitive transportation system, and detrimental to the West.

In a letter to the leaders of Canada's four major political parties, CMA President Walter R. Lawson said that despite a few shortcomings, the 1967 National Transportation Act should not be tampered with.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced in Edmonton in mid-June that if re-elected the Liberal government would abandon the freight rate structure based on competition and replace it with a system based on the real cost of the service.

For many years the four provinces have complained that freight rates were high and discriminatory.

Mr. Lawson said a Canadian transportation commission analysis has shown rates from Western Canada to Ontario and Quebec on manufactured goods are below rates in the reverse direction.

"This would lead to the conclusion that rates on finished goods based on cost as suggested would be detrimental mostly to the West," he said.

He said government attempts 20 years ago to equalize rates caused substantial increases in rates and great financial harm to the railways.

He questioned how railway rates could be based exclusively on costs when their competitors, namely truckers, are not and because railway costs reflect so many diversities.

Uniform rates would discourage directional and seasonal rates and hinder businesses in being competitive. Railways would be prevented from accommodating the special needs of shippers and from competing with their competitors, he said.

Because Canada's economy is competitive, shippers must be able to negotiate with carriers or business is jeopardized, he said.

Plaza Ban Protested

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A delegation from Ingersoll, 15 miles east of here, appeared before the Upper Thames River Conservation Authority Tuesday to ask that a recommendation by the authority rejecting a proposed shopping plaza in the town be turned aside.

Maryor Gordon Henry, leading the six-man delegation, said refusal of the developer's proposal would result in a "real hardship for Ingersoll."

The site of the 30,000-square-foot plaza is located on flood-plain land which is under jurisdiction of the conservation authority. The plaza proposal already has been approved by the town's planning board, the town council, and the application for re-zoning was approved by the Ontario Municipal Board in March.

Dancer's Interview With Officials Good

TORONTO CP — Soviet ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov performed well Tuesday in an interview with Canadian immigration authorities and Immigration Minister Robert Andras granted him a special permit to remain in Canada.

The 26-year-old premier dancer of the Kirov Ballet in Leningrad met with immigration authorities in secret and his whereabouts remained undisclosed.

The special ministerial permit will allow him to remain in Canada for at least six months, during which he can apply for permanent landed immigrant status.

Speaking by telephone from Thunder Bay, Ont., Mr. Andras said the "Canadian attitude has always been sympathetic in these situations ... consistent with a long-standing attitude of humanitarianism in immigration matters."

Mr. Andras did not disclose details of the interview between immigration officials and Mr. Baryshnikov other than to say it went well.

More Rain

Above and near-normal temperatures readings are expected for the beginning of July for most of the country, according to the weather outlook of the United States Weather Bureau. Precipitation is expected to be below-normal for most of Canada, with heavy readings for the Maritimes and portions of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are driving to the Maritimes this month and would like to take the route down the north shore of the St. Lawrence. Is there a car ferry service that would enable us to carry on beyond Quebec City and still get across to the south shore?

ANSWER: There is a ferry service from St. Simeon, about 115 miles east of Quebec to Rimouski. At this time of year there are seven trips a day, leaving St. Simeon at 8 a.m., 10 a.m., 12 noon, 1:30 p.m., 4 p.m., 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. The fare is $2.75 for adults, $1.50 for children 5-12 years (under 5 years no charge), and $6.50 for the car. The crossing time is 1¼ hours.

QUESTION: We are going to Cleveland and from there plan to return by taking the Ohio Turnpike to Toledo and then up to Detroit. We have heard gas is being rationed on the Turnpike. Have you any reports on this?

ANSWER: As of June 18th, the stations just west of Cleveland, in the Sandusky area, were limiting customers to 10 gallons (U.S.) The same applies further east near Youngstown. Other than this there is no limit.

QUESTION: Can you give us any details about Trois-Rivieres, Quebec?

ANSWER: Second oldest French city on the North American Continent, Trois-Rivieres was founded in 1634. As a frontier post it was a rampant against invasion by hostile Iroquois. The older section of the city reflects its French influence. This was the birthplace of Sieur de La Verendrye, known as the discoverer of the Rocky Mountains. The Ursuline Convent on Ste. Ursule Isle and Cathedral, a beautiful example of Gothic Architecture, was begun in 1854. It has some of the finest stained-glass windows to be seen on the North American Continent.

The Flambeau, a shaft of granite surrounded by a lighted torch, commemorates the pioneers, missionaries and explorers of early days. It was financed by school children's contributions.

Turcotte Esplanade, overlooking the waterfront, commands a view of the St. Lawrence. A monument to La Verendrye is here.

The Ursuline Convent, Des Ursulines Street, near the Anglican Church, dates from 1697 and has a museum and art collection. The architecture is typical of many convents which are still standing in Normandy, France.

Pothiere Isle divert the St. Maurice into three channels as it empties into the St. Lawrence, thus giving the city its name. The mighty St. Lawrence itself is spanned here by one of Canada's longest bridges.

In late summer, Trois Rivieres holds the annual Grand Prix de Trois-Rivieres, an international auto race. The city is the entrance to the St. Maurice Valley, a primitive region of forested mountains. This area offer opportunities for boating, hunting, fishing, golf, skiing and winter sports.

The Anglican Church is at the east end of Des Ursulines Street. Formerly the Recollet Monastery, it was built in 1869 and restored in 1934. Here General Montgomery and Benedict Arnold stayed in 1775, when the Continental Army was in Trois-Rivieres before descending upon the city of Quebec.

The Cathedral, a beautiful example of Gothic Architecture, was begun in 1854. It has some of the finest stained-glass windows to be seen on the North American Continent.

The Flambeau, a shaft of granite surrounded by a lighted torch, commemorates the pioneers, missionaries and explorers of early days. It was financed by school children's contributions.

Turcotte Esplanade, overlooking the waterfront, commands a view of the St. Lawrence. A monument to La Verendrye is here.

The Ursuline Convent, Des Ursulines Street, near the Anglican Church, dates from 1697 and has a museum and art collection. The architecture is typical of many convents which are still standing in Normandy, France.

HIGH REALISM IN CANADA — Paul Duval.

Excellent color reproductions show the development of the high realist school of painting in Canada from pioneer artists such as Krieghoff to contemporary realists, including Jack Chambers, Alex Colville, and others. Duval's text combines biographical information with discussion of their varied styles of work in this demanding art form.

REMBRANDT: THE COMPLETE ETCHINGS — F. G. Hoon.

Well-known as a master of this art, Rembrandt produced about 300 etchings during his lifetime. Art lovers can follow the development in his style and technique through these chronologically-arranged, fine reproductions of his works; recently, all in their original size. Notes on the etchings are included in the introduction by Hoon, an authority on Rembrandt.

KRISTRAAD — James Lyle Kristaad.

This is a representative selection of the Kingston-area artist's works from 1961 to the present. The majority of the paintings are landscapes, many having been done in Nova Scotia or in this area of Ontario, but unfortunately only one is reproduced in color.

SEARCHING FOR YOUR ANCESTORS — Gilbert H. Doane.

Amateur genealogists will find a large amount of practical advice in this popular guide. Although it is written from the American point of view, much of the information about town and church records, gravestones, family Bibles, setting up be family tree, and other topics, will be useful to Canadians.

THE BRIDGE AT DIEPPE, AND OTHER CANADIAN WAR STORIES. — Mabel Thiessen, ed.

Fifteen action-filled short stories made up this book about heroic Canadians in World War II. Many of these received the Victoria cross or other decorations for the courageous actions which have been vividly portrayed here as an inspiration to us.

'Demand' Charge Fills Gap

'Energy Rate' Hydro Charges Is Below Cost

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Hydro is selling power to its customers at a price below the increased cost of producing it, an Ontario Energy Board hearing was told Tuesday.

E. G. Bainbridge, director of Hydro's customer service, division, testified that Hydro management proposed last spring that the gap be narrowed by using higher energy charges for three-fifths of the revenue from future rate increases.

The proposal was rejected March 25 by Hydro's board of directors, which opted instead for an energy-rate increase that a management report said "maintains the present relativity between demand and energy rates."

Documents submitted to the energy board by Hydro in supporting its application for wholesale rate increases of about 15 per cent starting Jan. 1, 1975, suggest that the proposed energy rate to municipalities and industrial customers covers less than half of the cost of energy to Hydro.

A report to Hydro's board of directors from its marketing and finance branches proposed raising the energy rate to 4.19 mills per kilowatt hour mills next year and to 8.65 mills by 1979. It estimated that the energy rate required to cover all Hydro's energy costs will be 8.31 mills next year and 18.79 mills per kilowatt hour in 1979.

The report proposed that Hydro set as a long-term objective the obtaining of half its revenues from energy rates and the remainder from "demand" charges based on customers' peak load requirements. This proposal was accepted by the directors.

Hydro's energy charges produce only about 31 per cent of total revenues, the report said.

In other testimony, a senior Ontario Hydro official testified that there is "some concern" within Hydro's management about the availability of natural gas for generating power after 1985.

Emergency Phones Abused

TORONTO (CP) — A Metropolitan Toronto police sergeant says that some Metro residents are abusing an emergency telephone number by using it for situations in which no emergency exists.

Sgt. Edward Mullen of the Metro police communications said Monday that Bell Canada lists the number in telephone books for fire, police, ambulance, harbor police and emergency service without an explanation.

"So we have people phoning to complain about a parking ticket, to report a break-in at their home while they were away at the cottage. Believe it or not, we get people phoning this emergency number to ask how we are."

He was commenting on reported tie-ups of the emergency line when three children died in a fire Saturday night in the Borough of North York.

Sgt. Mullen said the line should be used only when a human life is at stake.

Pension Supplement Demanded

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen retired Sudbury area workers demonstrated Tuesday outside the head office of Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., seeking a $33 monthly pension supplement from their former employer.

Edward Nitchie, a union welfare officer, said the pensioners are seeking the extra bonus granted current production and maintenance employees in April to meet the rising cost of living.

"In the first place these are the people who built Falconbridge," he said, referring to the demonstrators. "And for no reason they shouldn't get the bonus too."

A company spokesman said 159 former employees, who retired before Aug. 1, 1973, have been notified that they will be receiving additional allowances with their pension cheques and will learn the exact amount by August.

He said workers who retired after union negotiations in 1972 had received benefits immediable to those who retired earlier.

He said that the company would have met with the workers on Tuesday but had not been asked to do so.

Lightning Hits Two

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Two area residents, struck by lightning Monday during an electrical storm, are in an Ottawa hospital suffering serious burns.

David Strickeland, 18, of nearby Lombardy and Diana Moore, 17, of Smiths Falls, were bowling cows into a barn on the Strickeland farm when they were hit by a bolt of lightning.

Strickeland is reported to be in a coma, with burns covering most of his body while Miss Moore received serious burns to both legs.

Endless Line Views Peron's Body

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — An endless river of mourning Argentines, four and six abreast in lines that inched along for hours, filed past the coffin of President Juan D. Peron today.

Peron's widow, Isabel, posed the state funeral until Thursday so more people could pay homage at the open coffin in the domed congressional building. Mrs. Peron was vice-president and succeeded to the presidency when he died Monday of a heart attack at the age of 78.

The country proclaimed calm. Government and private offices were closed, and "a general strike ordered by Peronist labor leaders closed most shops as well as factories.

Many of the first mourners at Peron's bier Tuesday leaned down to kiss his forehead or to touch his lips with flowers, but police soon began pushing away those who got close.

"He is our father," said Hector Hugo Costa, a railway worker who stood in line for more than 20 hours. "When your father dies, you want him with you."

"We are going to support Isabel—she is our mother," he said.

The body was dressed in a general's uniform, and the hands held a rosary blessed by Pope Paul when Mrs. Peron called on him June 19 during an official visit to Europe.

The lines stretched for more than 20 blocks. Many people held blue-and-white Argentine flags with black crepe ribbons. Medical teams treated hundreds who fainted in the long wait, rolling them on stretchers to medical posts for whiffs of oxygen.

Scuffles broke out periodically as people tried to break into the line, but there was no serious fighting. Wheat now incident threatened to get out of control, a hundred policemen rushed in. Hundreds of men from the General Confederation of Labor helped organize the lines of mourners, and the Peronist Youth worked with the police to maintain order.

Rain fell sporadically, but there was no shortening of the lines.

"Yes, I'm tired," said 21-year-old Sara de Solerya, a mechanic's wife, after 12 hours in line without eating or sitting. "But I will wait until my strength is gone because I am very Peronist."

"Not even God will move me from here," said an old man in another long line.

The government announced that the body will be taken after the funeral Thursday to the chapel at Peron's residence in Olivos, a northern suburb of Buenos Aires. The chapel will be opened to the public in two weeks, and later the body will be moved to the Chacarita cemetery after the Peron family plot there is refurbished.

A Dirty Trick

Consumers' Association of Canada recently discovered to be wary of vacuum cleaner suction demonstrations. No machine will remove all dirt in one or two tries. Suspect salesmen who run two machines and claim the second has superior suction power. Reverse the machines and you get the same results. CAC national headquarters is located at 135 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Moroccan Handicrafts Yield $25 Million

RABAT (Reuter) — Khalifa Ayoun is one of 250,000 Moroccans who earn their living from handicraft. His work contributes to the $25 million earned annually by Morocco's handicrafts department. In a way he is also a designer.

As one of 15 million Moroccans he is typical. At 52, he is married and has nine children. He learned to read and write at a Madi or Koranic school where he spent three or four years.

He began work when he was five, helping his father make silk braid and buttons used in the caftan robes worn by Moroccan women.

He did not follow in his father's footsteps. He learned a different craft — crocheting, and his products may be found in places as far away as Canada and the Soviet Union.

He usually is sitting on a crate in front of his cramped workshop and store in the medina or old city of Rabat. He must work in the street because he needs the sunshine as there is no electricity in his shop.

Tourists who visit the ondays kasbah in Rabat almost fall over him as they stroll down to the Rue des Consuls, Khalifa's street, to shop for handicrafts.

It is a typical "souk" or street of bazaars, teeming with people and colors, festooned with carpets, Morocco leather goods, copper and brassware.

Tourists usually pause at Khalifa's shop, because it is crammed with gaily-colored bonnets, shawls, jackets, overcoats, handbags and items of wool.

Business is good enough to feed his nine children and keep a house with a patio in the neighboring town of Sale.

His expenses are minimal. There are many shoop (17 million) than people in Morocco so there is no lack of raw material. The only tool he needs is a crochet hook, the carved plastic handle of a toothbrush.

The other ingredient is hard work. He crochets from dawn to dusk sitting on his crate.

He was making fezzes during the Second World War when there was a shortage of the typical Arab headgear. Despite their name, they were not made in Fez, Morocco, but imported from Czechoslovakia and supplies were cut off.

Gradually business grew and he graduated to other garments. He still makes the white skullcap or agula for traditional Moslem wear, but also modern styles popular with sportsmen such as skiers.

School Supplies Uniform And One Quarter of Horse

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — At Queen Margaret's School they not only supply you with the traditional green uniform, but with one-quarter of a horse.

If you don't like the uniform there isn't much you can do about it, but if you don't like sharing a horse with three other girls, you can bring your own. The school, known by its initials QMS, has five riding instructors and its own blacksmith.

Margaret Glide, head mistress, knows the name not only of all 200 of her students but of most of the 45 horses.

"It's almost a greater mistake to get the name of a girl's horse wrong than to misidentify her parents," said Miss Glide with a chuckle. "We're very horsey around here."

Half the horses in the stable are owned by students. Shelves outside the classrooms are dotted with riding caps. And you see riding crops and boots everywhere.

"We tend to draw girls who are preoccupied with horses," said Miss Glide. "Preoccupied, other than with their work, of course."

Miss Glide said that at QMS you either become totally involved with horses or you have no need to see another as long as you live. "We have a determined, anti-horse, pro-pig, sex group here."

QMS was founded in Duncan, a small Vancouver Island community, in 1921 by Norah C. Dewar and Dorothy R. Geoghegan and they provided over it as joint headmistresses until 1951.

Miss Glide, originally from Somerset, then became headmistress. In a business where the average length of principalship is 4.5 years, she is proud of her 11.

QMS is not a haven for rich girls who like horses, nor is it the exclusive privilege of the rich classes. But its tuition does not come cheaply.

With a ratio of only 10 students to each teacher the chances of passing subjects are, rather good. It is a reassuring fact for parents who will next year pay $3,600 a year for boarding students and $1,250 for day girls.

"You'd be surprised at the sacrifice some people make," said Miss Glide. "We have many girls from ordinary homes where both parents work to send their daughters here."

The administration building at QMS looks worn around the edges. Inside, the hall is decorated in an old English style and to the right is the cheerfully furnished dining area.

In her office, a modern oasis in the building with its Scandinavian furniture, Miss Glide explained that QMS is a traditional school stressing academic pursuits.

"We do not offer general programs. We have no home economics, for example. We are oriented towards girls who will go on to university, and we prepare them for that."

Other than the basic administration building, rapid of QMS is new. There are two boarding houses which accommodate a maximum of 120 girls and a gymnasium. The school teaches Grades 4 until Grade 12 and is fully treaded.

"There is tremendous pressure on you," said Miss Glide, of facetious wonder whether one person can really cope with it all."

It was to be replaced by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jonstyn of Ottawa at the end of the academic year.

"I want to go on a long holiday; I want to do some of the things I never had time for," she said until they retire at 65 to do."

Or could it be that Miss Glide never wants to see a horse again as long as she lives?

Jazz Heard Again In Old Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Emanating from a quiet corner in the heart of Old Montreal's maze of tiny cobblestone streets, echoes of jazz are beginning to be heard again in this city.

When Jazzmaster Rabaaa Roland Kirk opened the new hours here for top-talent jazz and blues artists, it was reminiscent of the city's night life missing since the days of Norm Sibert's Rose Show Bar, which closed 18 months ago.

In Concert is the only jazz club in Montreal to adopt a big-name policy on a weekly basis.

Among many stars to appear within the next three months will be Howling Wolf, Esther Phillips, the James Cotton Blues Band, Bo Diddley, Cannonball Adderly and Lee McCann.

"It's just what Montreal was waiting for," Kirk said. "These club owners are all in their 30s and they know what's in the air. They really want to do something for the music scene."

The idea for the club came in late May when the three young owners began a week's remodelling of their former Louis XVI Supper Club.

A posh restaurant interior remains and the club seats 250. Thick romaéesque pillars, the one serious imperfection, block the view of the stage for some.

The atmosphere is intimate and In Concert promises a good evening's entertainment for all jazz lovers. Bar and grill service also is provided.

Kirk's abundance and variety of material makes for a perfect opening night to any jazz club. He leads the five-man Vibration Society, a tight unit which, though at times a overly-restrained, at never-the-least a non-electric sound harmonizes thoroughly embracing the jazz experience.

HIP IS BLIND

Lead but sensitive, Kirk lengths the spirit by playing what he calls "black classical" music. Known as "the one-man jazz movement," he has a unique reputation for playing three instruments simultaneously—tenor saxophone, manzello and clarinet.

Though blind, he has manufactured countless percussive instruments and horns. He favors tenor saxophone, with a driving, rambling style.

Kirk's musical influences are the inventive bandleader Henry (Medaliyon) Pearson, flamboyant saxophonist Kenny Rodgers, pianist Hilton Ruiz and drummer John Goldsworth.

Kirk moved the crowd in the first set with a reminder of the death of Duke Ellington; playing the Duke's Satin Doll. It was a fitting, thematic emotional opening to Montreal's new jazz era.

Condominiums

Record Gains

WINNIPEG (CP) — Paul Nowgel, chairman of the Housing and Development Association of Manitoba's apartment construction and management unit council, says condominiums have been made to order for single-family dwellers.

A person can own a condominium for less than it would cost to buy a home, he said in an interview. The initial cost of getting into your own accommodation is reduced and the basic advantage over renting is being able to build up equity.

Many major property owners in the Winnipeg area are stepping up rental apartment building conversions into condominium units but there are still some objections from owners and residents alike.

One tenant of a luxury apartment block said she sold her home to gain freedom and money.

"When I go out, I go out. I like to live close the core and not worry. I don't want to take a mortgage. I came here to have peace of mind."

Beavering

An experimental project in Scouting, called Beavers, recently finished at the Ontario School for the Deaf. Beavers are a Scout movement for boys too young to become Cub Scouts. Since September the group of 28 boys, aged from five to seven, have been taking part in activities. One part of the ceremony involves feeding the beavy with a small piece of wood as these young lads are doing.

Storm Lashes Quinte

A severe electrical storm erupted suddenly just before midnight last night disrupted telephone service in the city and knocked three quarters of an inch of rain over the area in approximately 30 minutes.

Rainfall during the initial downpour measured .73 inch, with another quarter of an inch being received from then right this morning.

The electrical storm cut out approximately 5,000 hydro customers in East End Belleville as an Ontario Hydro transformer station in the Centre Street area was knocked out. The power went off at 12:04 and wasn't restored until 1:49 a.m.

Norman Manning, public relations officer for the provincial hydro district at Belleville, said the storm caused more than 100 momentary outages in the area between Peterborough, Port Hope and Belleville.

Rural customers in the Frankford area were hit, while in addition to the general blackout as result of the Centre Street transformer station being burned out, the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, manager Neil Bishop reported, also lost a number of interruptions in other parts of the city, although not as many as might have been expected.

The Ontario Hydro transformer station interruption put the Belleville commission's two circuits out of operation.

Street lights were out in many sections of the city.

The heavy rainfall washed gravel and sand down from the construction area on Victoria Ave. hill, spreading it across Pinnacle Street and down the curbside gutter as far as Front Street.

However, the city hall public works department reported no problems as a result of the storm.

Belleville General Hospital was affected by the power cut-off, as were Delora Textile, the Ault sewage disposal plant, Union Carbide, Reed Johnson, Stephens Adamson, the OSB and Brooks Stool. In the city's west end, American Optical was without power.

The electrically operated clock atop the city hall stopped a few minutes before six this morning as did the timepiece at the Bank of Montreal. The city hall telephone switchboard was also inoperative for a short period.

Belleville firefighters believe that lightning may have caused a fire in a home at 361 Herchimer Ave.

Around 2:15 a.m. the television set at the Herchimer St. home burst into flames and burned a hole in the wall and floor of the building.

Fire Chief Lee Colhane said he thought the fire may have been caused by lightning striking an antenna.

The fire was confined to the living room of the home, but the house was heavily damaged by smoke.

No official damage estimates are yet available.

In addition to the house fire, Belleville firefighters were called out to clear multitudinous in the alarm systems at the Canadian Dunlable plant in the northeast industrial park and at the Robert Mitchell Home Furnishing store on Coleman St.

Both alarm systems were triggered by the storm, Chief Colhane said.

Beavers End Successful Year

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

A one-year experimental program involving the newest branch of scouting — Beavers — recently ended at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

David Bentley has been running the program at OSD since September, assisted by eight leaders from 18-45. Beavers is the newest branch of scouting for boys aged from five to seven, who are too young to be cub scouts.

The colony at OSD each day is similar to a cub pack or scout troop — has 28 boys who live in Junior Residence there. They have met every Wednesday night since the fall and have been quite active in community projects.

The inside activities take place inside the school and can started early enough in the evening so that bed-time routines the Beaver sessions which last from an hour to an hour and a half.

The activities are similar to those of a beating group of boys, the only difference is the use of hand signals by David Bentley and the leaders, all girls at present, to communicate with the beavers.

The opining ceremonies begin with the beavers arranged into lodges of four or five sitting on mats with the leader standing in the middle of the room. All lit, command, they slowly make their way to the centre forming into two distinct but wavy lines. This is called making the river bank.

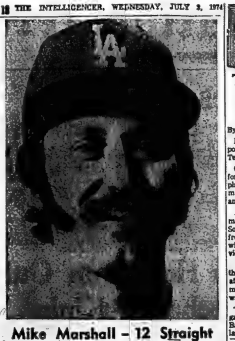
Next comes the building of the dam which is done by the beavers joining hands and forming into a circle. At the leader's command, they crouch down, elbows touching them, forearms straight up and say after a question from the leader, "Beavers, Beavers, Beavers, Busy Beavers. Sharing." At this time, the beavers in unison start saying, "Oooo ... ooo." This builds up in intensity until the beavers sprong up and do a tail slap or clap their heels behind their backs.

Now comes the feeding of the beaver. This is done by each boy carrying a small piece of wood and placing it before a representation of the beaver. After this, the activities start rising and may range from a vigorous game of soccer to quiet "colouring or reading a book depending on the boy's interests.

Outside activities since the fall have included trick or treating on Halloween, seeing the Christmas lights of Belleville, to holding a birthday party for the founder of scouting, Lord Baden-Powell.

The closing ceremonies are similar to the opening ones. They begin with the leader standing in the middle of the room and calling out "Silent Beavers." With the beavers form into two wavy lines indicating the river banks.

Then they join hands and form the dam formation. The leader at that point calls out "Lodge" and with this all go slowly down to the floor until they are sitting cross-legged. As the beavers go down, they make a sound indicating sleep — sh ... sh ...



This continues until all beavers are sitting cross-legged and then the leader claps his hands once. The beavers then stop their "sh... ing" and call out softly, "Sleeping. Sleeping. Sleeping."

The leader raises his arm above his head and the beavers do the same. Both leader and Beavers make one, repeated slap on the floor with the palm of the hands. The leader then says, "Good night busy building" to which the beavers wish him a good night.

The uniform of the Beavers is distinctive from the cubs, consisting of a floppy, blue and brown hat, blue neckerchief and blue shirt.

Beavers is a program that is uniquely Canadian and was started up two years ago in Winnipeg for boys too young to be packs, Cubs or Scouts. Since the movement has taken root in Ontario

Mike Marshall – 12 Straight

Busy Relief Man Sets New Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief pitcher Mike Marshall worked in a record 13th consecutive baseball game Tuesday night and earned his eighth straight victory as Los Angeles beat Dodgers defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-2.

Marshall started his daily march to the record two weeks ago. He hasn't missed a game since and now has appeared in 33 of Los Angeles' 77 games.

"I don't know what the limit is, but I haven't found it yet," said Marshall, who ran his record to 10-3 with the victory. "We've only played half a year," he added. "How can I be tired?"

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, Houston Astros downed Atlanta Braves 6-4, Pittsburgh Pirates topped Montreal Expos 4-2, New York Mets whitewashed Philadelphia Phillies 4-0, Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and San Diego Padres defeated San Francisco Giants 5-1.

The Reds opened fast against the Dodgers with Joe Morgan's two-run homer in the first inning. Just as Morgan hit his homer, dozens of fans in left field were fleeing a shower of flying glass that momentarily shattered. Sixteen persons were treated for injuries.

Los Angeles tied the score and it was 2-2 in five eighth when Willie Crawford, who had tripled and scored the Dodgers' first run earlier, opened with a single. Ron Cey delivered a triple.

Marshall, who came on in the sixth inning, allowed four hits over the final four innings to gain the victory.

Ex-Giant Willie McCovey bet a two-run homer and Clarence Gaston added a solo shot. powered San Diego to its victory over San Francisco.

Wes the Giants' 10th loss in the last 11 games, fourth straight under new manager Wes Westrum and knocked them into last place.

Claude Osteen spaced six hits and contributed three of his seven scoring Braves got 10 hits.

One of Osteen's hits sparked a three-run fifth inning for the Astros.

Tom Seaver, who gained his 10th victory of the season for the Mets, needed late help from reliever Jack Aker against Philadelphia.

Cleon Jones drove in three runs for the Mets, two of them on a first-inning homer.

Chicago scored all of its runs in the first inning when Rick Monday pounded his eighth home run and Bill Madlock and Vic Harris added run-scoring doubles to defeat St. Louis.

Sonny Siebert, 7-6, was the victim of the Cubs' early barrage.

Right-hander Jim Todd, 2-1, restricted the Cards to five hits through the first five innings and then another rookie, Oscar Zamora, came on to preserve the victory.

Ted Simmons homered for the Cardinals.

Bucs Top Expos

PITTSBURGH (AP) – Pitcher Jim Rooker survived a shaky start and Richie Zisk ripped three hits to help lead to lead Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-3 victory over Montreal Expos in a National League baseball game Tuesday night.

It was the 10th straight home win for the Pirates and the first straight victory.

Rooker yielded two runs on five consecutive hits to open the game but settled down to boast his record to 5-6.

With the score tied 2-2 going into the Pirates' 12th. Al Oliver opened with a high fly to left centre that Willie Davis dropped on the run for a two-base error.

Montreal reliever John Montague, who replaced starter Mike Torrez in the fourth, then walked Willie Stargell intentionally before Zisk zoomed Oliver with a single to centre.

Zisk, who drove in the Pirates' initial run in the first inning, singled home an insurance run in the seventh off Tom Walker.

Texas Rangers Pay $50 Fine Gets Results

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eric Soderholm was fined for poor baserunning and made the Texas Rangers pay for it.

Clipped of $50 Monday night for fouling up a suicide squeeze play, the Minnesota infielder made sure he didn't foul up anything Tuesday night.

At the swing of Glenn Borgmann's bat in the ninth inning Soderholm was off and running from first base and scored the winning run in the Twins' 5-4 victory over the Rangers.

"You have to gamble late in the game," said Soderholm after coming on Borgmann's double off the left field wall.

In other American League games, Boston Red Sox beat Baltimore Orioles 9-6; Cleveland Indians trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 5-3; Detroit Tigers stopped New York Yankees 4-3; Chicago White Sox turned back Kansas City Royals 6-1 and Oakland A's defeated California Angels 7-5.

A pair of double steals and Dwight Evans' two-run single helped Boston to four runs in the ninth inning, snapping a tie and lifting the Red Sox over Baltimore.

Frank Duffy's two-run single sparked Cleveland's four-run, second-inning rally, and George Hendrick hit his third home run in two days, leading the Indians past Milwaukee.

Detroit scored four runs in the fifth inning, two on a double by Garry Sutherland as the Tigers extended the Yankees' losing streak to six games.

Allen blasted his 19th home run of the season in the first inning, off starter and loser Lindy McDaniel, 1-3, and Melton hammered his seventh off reliever Steve Mingori in the seventh inning.

Wood boosted his record to 13-9 with a six-hitter.

Angel Mangual drove in four runs with a double and a three-run homer as Oakland defeated California. the Angels' sixth straight loss under new manager Dick Williams.

Oakland was trailing 3-2 in the sixth, when Mangual put the A's in front to stay with his seventh homer of the year.

Top Seeds No Worry

LONDON (AP) — Dick Stockton and Ismael El Shafei moved into today's quarter-finals of the all-England tennis championships undisturbed by the big guns that stalk Wimbledon.

Stockton, ranked 13th in the United States, faced Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union and El Shafei, who won the junior title here 10 years ago, met veteran Jean Smith.

"I've played Alex only once before on slow clay and I beat him," said Stockton before meeting his 19th-seeded opponent.

"I've played Stan countless times and never beaten him," said El Shafei of the fourth seeded American who won the title here two years ago. "But there always has to be a first time and this could be it."

In other quarter-finals today, top-seeded John Newcombe met veteran Ken Rosewall, the man he beat for the title in 1971, in an all-Australian match, and American Jimmy Connors, the No. 3 seed, faced defending champion Jan Kodes, the No. 6 seed from Czechoslovakia.

South African Linky Boshoff, 27, who gained the women's quarter-finals by upsetting Rosie Casals, faced Britain's Virginia Wade, defending champion Billie Jean King beat Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union, Evonne Goolagong ac Kerry Melville met in an all-Australian match, and Chris Evert of the U.S. was up against West Germany's Helga Masthoff.

Stockton earned his quarter-final berth by defeating second seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 in Tuesday's fourth round. Rosewall defeated seventh-seeded Tom Okker of the Netherlands 8-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

El Shafei beat Manuel Orantes of Spain, the No. 5 seed, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5. Smith survived against Patricio Dominguez of France 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Newcombe topped Erik Van Dillen of Aptos, Calif., 7-5, 6-4. Rosewall beat Roscoe Tanner of the U.S. 3-6, 9-7, 6-3, 7-5.

Connors downed Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-3, 5-7, 6-0, 6-1, and Kodes defeated against Mick Sander of Australia 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Miss Boshoff scored the first upset among the contests by defeating fourth-seeded Rosemary Casals of the U.S. 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. King, favored to win her eighth singles crown for the U.S., topped of Lesley Charles of Trinidad 6-3, 6-0, and Miss Evert, the No. 2 seed, ousted Mona Guerrant of the U.S. 7-5, 6-1. Three other Americans also did. Miss Goolagong sailed past Iris Kraemer 6-1, 6-4, Miss Wade disposed of Patti Hogan 7-5, 6-1, and Mary Pretz retired with bad knees with Miss Melville leading 6-1 in the first set.

Miss Morozova advanced with a 9-7, 6-4 triumph over Karen Krantzcke of Australia and Mrs. Masthoff of West Germany beat Racquel Giscafre of Argentina 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Krantzcke and Helen Gourlay teamed to beat Miss Casals and Mrs. King in the quarter-finals of the women's doubles 6-3, 3-6, 6-4. The Kings-Casals twosome had won the doubles crown five times.

Yardmen Bantams Lose to Oshawa

Down by a 3-1 margin after one period, the Oshawa Unionaire Bantams bounced back to take an 11-6 win from Belleville Yardmen Bantam Ford Bantams in a South Central Lacrosse Association game played at the Dale Ellis Rink last night.

The game was a closely fought battle all the way, with Oshawa not assured of the win until well into the later half of the third frame.

The Belleville squad led at the end of the first, Oshawa at the end of the second 4-3, and outscored the locals 7-2 in the third period.

Guy Morey led the way for Oshawa with three goals and three assists, with Grady Robson firing the hat trick as well. Bob DeGray and Jamie Upshaw each had two goals, with Guy Greentree netting a single to round out the attack.

Jeff Runciman had three markers for the Belleville team, with Kevin Gow potting two and Joe Belanger one.

Jeff Donald played an outstanding game in the Belleville nets, despite the 11 goals.

The winners took eight of the 15 minor penalties assessed in the game by referees Ray Payne and Gerry Vincent.

Lacrosse Results

Dairy Queen recorded its third straight win against no losses in Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association Novice action this week, dumping Quinte Mall 7-2 in a game played at Dick Ellis Rink.

Scott Edwards fired three goals and added an assist to pace the winners, with Richard Bone potting a pair of markers. Anne Mokesky and David Price rounded out the scoring for Dairy Queen.

Bobby Robson fired six goals to lead Frankford to a 7-6 win over Quinte Mall in another Novice game. Joe Skidd scored the other goal, with Brent Fitzsimmons getting the shutout.

Darrell Quick scored both markers for Quinte Mall.

Team No. 3 got two goals from Danny Hounsberg and Steve Slaughter in their 6-4 victory over Peter's Auto Association, with Ron Potts and Jamie Forster also scoring.

Ford Bantams had three for the losers, with Sean Dockrill finishing off the scoring.

In bantam action, Cornerstone Builders defeated Bob's Sports' Girls 11-3 in an 11-inn.

Jeff Donald fired six goals and added one assist. Guy Haggarty and Andre Valy added two each, with Phillip Howe contributing one goal and two assists. Scott Bissell earned the shutout.

The remaining game between Red Gill Appliances and Twelve was rescheduled to a later date.

In midget action, Local 183 dumped Stratford 8-1, while A and D Esso thumped Picton 9-1.

Peter Barrett had four goals for Local 183, adding two assists, while Dave Milbridge and Dave Drake netted two each. Kevin Daniels rounded out the scoring with a single.

Mike Foxton got the only Frankford goal.

Carol Mills kept up his terrific scoring pace for A and D, firing five of his team's 9 goals, as well as adding two assists. Andy Tepper and Robbie Prosser each added a pair, with Bob Hurst getting one.

Covered closely by Belleville's Kevin Gow, Oshawa Unionaire Guy Greentree attempts to corral the ball in last night's SCHA bantam game at the Dale Ellis rink. Oshawa came up with an 11-6 win in the well played game, with Greentree netting one of the 11 markers. Gow had two for Belleville.

Francis and Bateman Team for No-hitter

Ralph Francis and Ron Bateman combined talents to record a no-hit shutout at CNRA Park Sunday, as Black Diamond knocked off Post Office 5-0.

Francis worked five innings plus, giving way to Bateman in the sixth. The starter struck out nine and walked six. Bateman preserved the shutout in relief, striking out one and walking one. Both pitchers received excellent fielding support from their mates.

Steven Lockhart took the loss. Touched for six hits, he fanned seven and walked four.

Black Diamond wrapped it up with a four-run fifth and completed the scoring with one in the sixth.

Gene Francis banged a double and a single to lead the winners. Ralph Francis had a solid his own course with a pair of singles. Myles Hickswell and Wayne Shendrew each collected one single.

At Queen Elizabeth Public School, CNR topped Canada Johson 9-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Dave Banks. The winning pitcher fanned seven and walked two.

Gary Gammie took the loss. Surrendering nine base hits, he struck out four and walked one.

Sonls lost his bid for a shutout in the third inning when Brian Yeomans, batting with a double, was chased home on a Jim Woods single. The only runners accounted for the only other hits for Meads, meeting the bid for a pair of singles.

Leading the CNR attack were Martin Walsh and Jerry Hill who drove in three runs each with triples. Walsh also supplied a single. MIR. Boll contacted for a double and a single and Warren Hay tripled. Dave Plombie, Gil Nesbitt and Sonls rounded out the batting display with a single apiece.

Stewart - Warner got a solid one-hit performance from Dave Marvin in an 8-1 win over Rinaldi Steel at Prince Charles School. Marvin struck out three and walked four while Rinaldi was the victim of one safety, a single by Lou Rivers.

Meanwhile, the winners were collecting nine hits off the offerings of Joe Scott who went the route and walked five.

Jim Heron supplied the game's only extra-base hit, smashing a home run. Steve Bezre helped himself to a pair of singles with one each for Dennis Lentel, Paul Greenwood, Mark Mc-Farrell, Randy Carmichael and Pete Hollins.

Stewart-Warner spiced its attack with two three-run innings, opening up in the first and again in the sixth. The winners two runs in the fourth. The losers counted once in each of the first and fourth frames.

Rollins Construction Back in the Groove

Rollins Construction are back in normal in the Quinte Fastball League today. After dropping their first game of the season to the Ellis Juniors Monday, they dumped Bardon Supplies last night by a 4-3 margin, for their fifth win in 14 starts.

In the other game last night, Augers Men's West moved into a tie for third place in the six team loop with the Juniors, with a 4-2 victory over Dwolin Motors. The loss dropped the Motormen to fifth place, two points behind Augers' and the Juniors.

In the first game, Rollins used two pitchers to quiet the Bardon attack on two hits. Ken Denville started for the Constructionmen, going five full innings before giving way to Jim Chase.

Denville was touched for one hit, striking out three and walking one, while Chase also allowed one hit and struck out two.

Jamie Hunter shortened the loss, giving up seven hits. He whiffed three and walked two.

Bardon had taken a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second on an unearned run. Wayne McDonnell scored when Dan tripold and went to third on an error by Wayne McTaggart, the Rollins' third baseman, and scored on a base hit by Bob Kerr.

Rollins had a four run rally in the top of the fourth to pull away the win, sending seven batters to the plate.

Dale Duvall started the rally with a single, with McTaggart working Ione Hunter for a base on balls. Base hits by Denville and Ralph Boomhower scored two runs, with the third and fourth coming as an error by Bob Brooks, the Bardon catcher.

Paul Goodfellow led the winners at the plate with a triple and double, with Denville striking two safeties. Other hits went to Duvall, and Ted Waite.

In the first game, Augers' banged out nine hits off losing hurler Don Mahoney, to pick up the win, their fifth of the season. Along with a pair of hits, it gives them 11 points.

They got off to the right start with Bob Dewolin markers came in the bottom of the sixth. Consecutive singles by Terry Meagher, Bruce Stickle, and Jim Harwood to lead off the inning, along with a two - out double by Eric Maher added up to the two runs.

Runners were left in scoring position at second and third when Rick Watt fanned to end the inning.

George Ferguson picked up the win, going the distance for only six hits. He left nine batters watching third strikes, while walking two men.

Mahoney was tabbed for the loss, giving up nine hits. He fanned four and walked two.

Mary and Drake each had two singles to pace the winners, with Barbara Mavety, George Ferguson, Reich and Henry each bagging one.

Meagher had two base hits and Maher a double to lead the losers, with Stickle, Harwood, and Rick Rosebush each picking up one hit.

Chalk Up Another Win for Pat Maracle

Pat Maracle keeps rolling along. The veteran harler of consolers, after a season in the Quinte area pitched yet another game in the Prince Edward North Shore League Monday night, giving up only three runs on 10 hits as his Reserved Gas mates downed O'Brien's Tree Service 11-3.

The 'Living Legend' of the softball wars struck out four batters and walked only one, adding a base hit to his own cause as well.

His son, Pat Jr., crashed a home run and double, as well as a single with Gary Thompson contributing a double and pair of singles. Murray Maracle had a double and single, with Doug Greenaway adding two singles.

Other hits went to Lyell Shaver, Jim Maracle, Carm Salmon and Rick Salmon.

Gary Mattier and Junior Grant shared the loss on the O'Brien's pitcher, each giving up five safeties.

Jerry Weymark had a double and single for O'Brien's, with Dennis Morgan each stroking two singles. Ken McCormack had a double, with singles by Tony Williston, Pete Mitsaker and Mattier.

Panasiuk is Aiming For Three Straight

CALGARY — Five former champions, including Bob Panasiuk of Windsor who seeks to put his name alongside Ellis Cowan as the only golfers to win three years straight, highlight a field of golfers from the east who won three consecutive victories, have already entered the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship for $30,000 and title, Labatt Cup being played here at Willow Park Golf and Country Club July 18-21.

Besides Panasiuk, Canada's Golfer of the Year in 1973 who carries successive CPGA wins the last two years into this year's tourney, four previous winners already entered are Al Balding of Toronto; Cal. (winner in 1952-53, 1962 and 1970), Moe Norman of Clifford, Ont. (the 'W champion), Wilf Homenick of Winnipeg (winner in 1963 and 1971) and Bob Cox Jr., of Richmond, B.C., champion in 1968.

Chisholm In Charge

With Dave Chisholm firing strikeouts to his credit, Thurlow Yardmen whipped Courtenay 11-0 at Courtenay, Sunday, Chisholm showed perfect control, walking none.

The winners unleashed a 16-hit attack on two Courtes pitchers.

Chisholm and Bill Sullivan paced the Thurlow hit parade, Dave accounted for a double and four singles while Sill showered a pair of triples.

Checking in with two singles each were Charles Buckley and Rick Woodward.

12-race Card At Speedway

By CECIL S. PAUL

The weatherman and Brighton Speedway don't seem to agree as the races were cancelled on Saturday night but this time, a complete show was run on Sunday night despite cloudy skies and showers just prior to post time.

Only one re-start in 12 events made for a fast and exciting night as Greg Anderson got the action underway by taking the first stock qualifier after he'd been back to back up his second win of the night in the feature for this class. This was Greg's second start of the season and he moved into top spot in the point standing with a total of 138. 19 points in front of second place driver, Bob Nathan.

Someone thought that Greg was making to fast for a stocker so he was the victim of the first four-dozen of the season. Greg was legal in his class, proving that it is the driver and not the car that counts as he went into the evening leading by 15 points. Wayne had to settle for a second, giving Harrington an extra 5 points.

The feature for the six modified had Ross O'Hara running in front for most of the race but Bob Prudhomme took over and it looked like Bob came out of another four turn for the checkered flag. Wayne Foster came from nowhere and shot over the finish line, Ron Herrington finished in third place with Wayne having 15 big points to give him a 5 point lead over Bob Prudhomme in the Top Point Award Standing. Wayne also leads in the most checkered flags and the most feature wins as well.

Doug Dafoe, Brighton was running well on the outside of the track and, following complete the events dropping out with car trouble in the 13th lap. Bob Smith of Colborne moved into fourth place, a position in back of third place driver, Doug Davis of Brighton.

Winston Webber of Trenton, the man who took his big ride off the end of Dell Park a week ago, was back in action with another set of wheels, showing that if you build them safe, you escape serious injury when accidents like this takes place.

Another Picton driver is starting to make a name for himself here. Last week it was Barry Jones who had had a good night on Sunday, but it was Gary Deerhold, no stranger to stock car racing, but a newcomer to Brighton who had the big night. Gary ran a close second behind Eric Mitchell of Oshawa in the qualifier but the feature night was a different story.

Gary took over at the green flag and led all the way for a big one and a total of 10 points for the night, putting him on the score sheet for the first time this year. Carl Rademacher, another of those boys from Picton, earned a win in a qualifier with Ray Cormier of Trenton and Ernie Mitchell scoring on the other two.

Howard Moore of Campbellcroft and Danny Reid of Frankford went into the night of Sunday at 200 straight with both drivers looking for the big break that would put them out in front. It was Moore who got the break, a bad one, as he failed to earn a point while Reid picked up a fifth place finish in the qualifier and ran second in the feature to take a 45 point lead over Moore and a good grip on the top eight cylinder point standing sheet.

The main event, the super feature with George Wrightell of Picton running well in front when he lost a wheel on the ninth lap of the 15 lap contest. Bob Prudhomme of Belleville, who was running in second, took over and came in for his third win of the year and his first super feature checkered flag. Bob is currently in third place in the point standing, with 175 points, 70 in back of the top driver.

ADCO turned back Sliding Sheet Metal 18-13 in Belleville Minor Softball Association tyke play. Jerome McQuaid led the winners with two singles while John Switzer and Max Valyear each connected for a double. Scott Adams and B. Clary each slammed a home run and a double for the Sheet Metal squad. Blake Thomson checked in with two doubles.

At the squirt level, Sidney Ice took an 8-7 squeaker from Ernie Tuck Appliances, and Complete Rent-Alls nipped Malcolm Brothers 18-8.

Bruce Harper, Rick Cook and Jim Sopha shared the Sidney Ice pitching and Harper belted the game with a triple and a single, as did Joey Parker. Bob Kanary and Bruce Wright each collected three bases.

Bobby Turner worked five innings for Ernie Tuck while Kevin Lucas came on to finish up. Joey Miller and Paul Clarke each had two singles for the losers with Steven Griffin slamming a triple.

Complete Rent-Alls did more than pick up a win. The team mauled Malcolm Brothers' win streak at seven games.

Darel Phillips struck out 12 and walked four in picking up the win. He allowed 11 hits. Ray Lucas and Hugh Brennan toed the rubber for the losers. Touched for 11 hits, they recorded 13 strikeouts and walked seven.

Billy Curry bit for the cycle in seventh innings. Dunn had a home run, triple, double and single. John Gibson supplied a triple and a single while Phillips chipped in with three singles.

Brennan led Malcolm Brothers with a homer, double and single. Lucas was good for a triple and two singles. Stephen Vachon blasted a home run.

Action saw Stephen Licence outscore Westgate Carpet 13-7 as winning pitcher Steve Bennett went the distance on a four-hitter to bring his record to 3-0. He sports an earned run average of 1.00. Steve fanned 10 and walked six.

John McKnight and Bennett each supplied a pair of Stephen Licence hits and each drove in two runs. Steve Bennett had a double and David Wilson a single.

Ed Quinn led the losers with a double and single. Ted Stalker checked in with a double.

House League Roundup

Calabrese was involved in a pair of one-run decisions in Belleville Minor Baseball Association House League action. Dropping a 3-2 decision to League House Dart, Calabrese pitched a one-hitter in the other game. J. J. Trudeau topped the Legion team 13-7.

Legion pitcher Kevin Wright and Bobby Dafoe limited Calabrese to six hits as the 3-2 ball game ended. Losing twosome chalked up 19 strikeouts and walked just two.

Calabrese got first rate pitching from Peter Little and Brian Bird who combined for a shutout while fanning 15 and walking only two.

Wright and Greg Laing each banged out a pair of hits for Harbourers. Kevin Reid homered for Calabrese, and Peter Little collected a triple and a single.

In the 16-12 squeaker over Trudeau, Peter Little and Mike Finnegan shared the pitching while fanning 17 and walking only two.

Wright and Greg Laing each banged out a pair of hits for Harbourers. Kevin Reid homered for Calabrese, and Peter Little collected a triple and a single.

Each team managed only five base hits but pitchers on both sides had control problems as the game gave up 11 walks and Trudeau's, 21.

Bird topped Calabrese with two singles while Little, Reid and Peter Boniet each had one. Tops for Trudeau's was Terry Nelson with a double and a single while other hit spots were Strathern, John Trudeau and Marriott.

Kevin Lucas, Reid and Strathern split the pitching for the winners in Trudeau's defeat of Legion Dart House League. The winners got 11 hits off barriers Wright and Bobby Dafoe. Legion managed only three hits off Strathern and Strathern who struck out 15.

Leading the Trudeau hit parade were Mike Marchal with a home run; Jamie Ryan, a triple and a single; Strathern, two doubles, and Marriott, a double and a single. Louie Labelle, Mike Woods and Mark Chapman shared the Legion hitting.

Bayshore and Nelles showed what a difference a few days can make in tyke division play. In their first meeting of the week, the teams proved little as they played to a 1-1 tie. But when they met again, 21 runs were produced as Nelles came out on the long end of a 13-11 count.

In the third game of the week, Alhambra clipped Kinmen 13-10.

The 1-1 draw featured classic pitching by Larry Casperaneni and Trevor Powell for Bayshore. Casperaneni, Bradley and Nico Petchkey for Nelles. Mike Gough led all scorers with three hits while a pair of singles. Bradley supplied a double. Bob Watson doubled for Bayshore.

Bayshore parceled four giltedged runs to the second in the 24-13 reversal. Seeing action were Alan Dolmer, Bill McHugh, Todd Crawford and Casperaneni. Leslie Bradley and Nico Petchkey did the Nelles chores while backing the losers to five hits.

Mike Gough spiced the winners' attack with three singles and a double while Petchkey got two hits and scored twice on a triple. Bradley and David Parker each clouted one circuit blast.

Again was Bayshore's top hitter with a homer and single.

David Sharcore and Alan Tompkins connected for two hits apiece to gain Alhambra the decision over Kinmont. Randy Bell pitched route for the losers over Chris Radway and Andy Bell.

Sharcore, Terry Latimo and Jim Hibbert each slapped three hits for the winners. Ron Ryan and Randy Bell had two each while Jeff O'Neil slammed a triple.

Leading the Nelles Maltsway, Bailey and Mike Loucks had pitcher's duties for the Kinmont.

In the loss powerw division game, Legion clipped Kinmont 8-7 with Bayshore and Tony Parks getting the win. Jonathan Ryan and Mark Bell pitched for Kinmont.

Tim Turner led the Legion hitters with a triple and two singles. Gerry Sealey belted a homer and a single while Parks and David Mallaren each had two singles each. Kevin Jones rattled out four singles in defeat. Martin Ryan tripled and singled with a triple each for Dart and Tony Trudeau Doug Gaskell had a double.

Competition was keen in the bantam section. Kinmen and Skopels played to a 5-5 tie as Kinmen go past Mulroney's 11-8.

Kinmen's Dave Bennett fashioned a six-hitter. He fanned nine and walked one. Terry Kingman finished up with a four-hitter while striking out seven and walking one.

Ken Skelly led the team attack for Kinmen, pounding the ball for two homers and a pair of doubles. Bennett aided his cause with a double and two singles. Peter Bowles and Peter Love each collected a pair of singles for Skopels.

In the six-year division's, Kinmen pitching was handled by Bennett and Gerry Blood. Jim Storch and John Cook teamed up for the losers.

Randy Bell had a field day in the hitting department, accounting for two Kinmen double and four singles. Richard Wilson had two and two others each.

Paul O'Brien had four singles for Mulroney's. Checking in with two hits apiece were John Brennan and Joe Cook.

Niagara Falls swept both ends of an Ontario Fastball League doubleheader Tuesday in Oshawa, shutting out the team that will represent Ontario in the Canadian champion ships, 9-0 and 10-0.

Oshawa won the Provincial fastball title during the week end.

In seather league doubleheader Tuesday, London Dukes beat St. Catharines Jeracos 4-3 in 13 innings in the first game but dropped a 7-6 decision in the nightcap.

At Oshawa, Ed Neudorf held Oshawa to four hits in the first game and in the nightcap Jake Neufeld tossed a no-hitter.

Larry Christie had a bonne run and two singles for Niagara Falls in the opening game and team-mate Vic Dyck drove in two runs in the second game with two singles.

Left fielder Norm Neudorf saved Neufeld's no-hitter with a diving catch on a fly-ball hit by losing pitcher Wayne Colley with two out in the last half of the seventh inning.

At London, Don Clark of St. Catharines pitched a one-hitter in the Jeracos' shut-out win in the nightcap.

In the opening game, London's Bill Fairbairn hit a single in the 13th inning to knock in a run for the victory.

Les Gregerace had the only London hit in the second game—a single in the third inning.

Losing pitcher in the game was Bob Slowinski.

In the opener, Dick Hames was the winner for London and Dick Balint lost his third game of the season against seven wins.

Doc Nesbitt knocked in all three St. Catharines runs in the first inning on a double with the bases loaded.

In games today, Toronto travels to Woodstock for a doubleheader and Burlington plays at Hamilton.

Brazil World Soccer Underdog

FRANKFURT (AP) — Brazil's soccer crown went on the line in the 1974 World Cup today, with the triple champion cast in the role of underdog.

Only a victory against the Netherlands at Dortmund can put the Brazilians in Sunday's World Cup final. A draw lets the Dutch through.

West Germany and Poland met at Frankfurt to decide the other final place. A draw is enough for West Germany. Only a victory can give the Poles a chance of adding the world championship to their 1972 Olympic crown.

East German coach Georg Buschner believes West Germany and the Netherlands will be the final contestants. He predicted the Netherlands will be the eventual winner.

Buschner, whose team beat West Germany in the first round of the 1974 series and lost to the Netherlands and Brazil in the second, said the Dutch defence had not really been tested during the series but the West German defence had shown some weaknesses.

In five games, the Dutch have conceded only one goal, and Rudi Krol put that into his own net in a 4-1 victory over Bulgaria.

British bookies agree with Buschner and make the Netherlands the even-money favorites for the title with West Germany 7-4, Brazil 6-1, and Poland 7-1.

Brazil and the Netherlands have met only once before, in Amsterdam in 1963 when the Netherlands won 2-1.

The Brazilians, like the Dutch, have conceded only one goal in their five games in this World Cup. But their attack looked lifeless until Sunday's 3-1 victory over Argentina.

Paulo Cesar Lima, Brazilian left winger, believes the Netherlands' success is based totally on team captain Johnny Cruyff, who usually plays for Spain's Barcelona club.

"If you mark Cruyff out of the game, the Netherlands has had it," he said.

Many experts, including Cesar's own manager, Mario Zagallo, have taken a different line. Too much attention to Cruyff opens the way for other formidable Dutchmen, among them either Johnny Rep or midfielder Wim Jansen.

West Germany, like Brazil, has survived a slow start to come close to peak form. The West Germans defeated Sweden 4-2 Sunday after trailing by one goal at halftime.

Montreal, Rochester Winners

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Griffins and Montreal Les Quebecois bolstered their positions in the National Lacrosse League Tuesday night by defeating home-town teams.

The Griffins lengthened their lead by defeating second-place Wings 16-13 before 9,365 fans in Philadelphia, while Les Quebecois defeated Toronto Tomahawks 16-12 before a Maple Leaf Gardens crowd of 3,246, climb within two points of the third-place Tomahawks.

Kevin Parsons paced the Rochester attack, scoring four goals, with Paul Warden and Rick Dudley adding three apiece. Dudley also scored six assists. Charlie Henderson and Dave Johnston scored two goals each, while singles were shared by Bill Hicinbik and Tom Fleischer.

For Philadelphia, John Grant and Terry Rowland scored three goals each. Larry Lloyd, Zeny Lipinski and Brian Robinson provided two goals apiece. Larry Ferguson, Doug Maynard and Terry Lloyd shared the other goals.

Geof Floyd and Jim Lynch each scored three goals to lead Les Quebecois. Dave Litzenberger and Mel Hayward added two goals each for the winners, while John Davis, Gord Gaiziuch, Bill Bradley, Bob McCarthy, Wayne Sutherland and Rick Bosley each scored one. Davis, team captain, also had five assists.

The Tomahawks were led by Brian Thompson, who scored four goals. Bob Shaw, Duffy McCauley, Brian Wilson, Wilson McCrea, Stan Cox, Jim Quigg, Brent Hilkorg and Charley Marlowe got one apiece.

India's 'Quebec' Pressures Gandhi

BOMBAY (CP) — The leader of the state sometimes described as the Quebec of India is attempting to step up his pressure on Prime Minister Indira Gandhi for greater provincial autonomy.

Chief Minister Muthuvel Karunanidhi of the southern province of Tamil Nadu has announced plans to call a national conference on the issue.

Karunanidhi, whose Dravidian Progressive Party is bitterly opposed to Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party, has threatened to resign his provincial office "in order to carry on the sacred struggle for autonomy with greater vigor."

His state, which includes the major city of Madras, has long been at odds with the federal government over the status of Hindi, spoken mainly in the north, as India's sole official language.

Among its objectives are recognition of Tamil and a dozen or more other regional languages as official languages at the federal level.

Mrs. Gandhi and her party colleagues have described the demand for autonomy as basically secessionist and favor a strong federal government as the best safeguard of national unity in a country that embraces many races and creeds as well as languages.

Karunanidhi himself formerly advocated independence for Tamil Nadu but modified his stand when the Chinese invasion of India in 1962 fostered public sentiment in favor of a united country.

He is reported to have met with a number of politicians from other provinces including Biju Patnaik, a former chief minister of Orissa. Reports of the meeting said the two men were in broad agreement that the present constitution is heavily weighted in favor of the federal government.

Karunanidhi was also expected to get the backing of Sheikh Mahomed Abdullah, Moslem leader in the northern province of Kashmir who was imprisoned for several years following fighting between India and Pakistan over the disputed territory.

Abdullah has long pleaded with the federal government for political status for Kashmir, which Moslems are in the majority.

Paper Company Offers Land for Cottages

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — Good public relations has never hurt any business, and a major forest products company here has found a novel way of winning friends, and presumably influencing people.

Scott Maritimes Ltd. has embarked on a program to provide the establishment of recreation colonies on some of its woodland holdings.

Logs an advocate of opening up its woodlands to hunters and fishermen when they don't interfere with cutting operations, the company now is professing what it terms "more substantial" recreation projects.

"We're getting away from shack-type camps to more substantial recreation homes," says Robert Murray, the company's woodlands manager.

Recently, the company laid out and offered for sale leases on more than 150 lots at Aylesford Lake, Kings County, and found immediate buyers for most of them.

Mr. Murray says the idea was to get away from "string row" development of the old hunting lodge concept to larger lots with common area on a good beach that could be used by all cottage owners. Other cottage owners were given land and beach frontage for a yacht club.

"This experiment, of course, is to see how demand builds," he said. "We want to see if there is a market for cottages on lakes."

The company has hundreds of lakes on its woodland holdings, but is concentrating most of its study in areas with easily developed lakes adjacent to large population centres.

"If this proves to be what the public wants, we will clothe other such areas on lakes, and develop them."

Because of the greater fire danger posed by scattered camps people concentrate in such areas."

Meanwhile, the company says it will continue to keep its more than 250 miles of access roads open to weekend outdoorsmen who just want to get away from the crowded cities for a few hours.

SALAD MONTH IS HERE

"Start Fresh . . . It's Salad Month." That's the theme we've chosen for July and it's a natural. Fresh crisp salads are especially delicious in summer, fresh crisp salads are especially good for you in summer, from a dietary point of view, and of course at a time part of the meal. Home-grown garden products will assure the freshness and local value of your summer salads. Your own individual touches will put the finishing touches. Here are a few suggestions to help you get started on your salads.

For a delicious salad, combine a number of green, chewing type, leafy or leaf lettuce, romaine, endive, raw spinach leaves, sliced raw zucchini and chicory. Young radishes and green onions are flavorful table accents. And toasted, slivered bread cubes or garlic croutons at serving time for texture and flavor.

Choose from lots of other delicious, protected products listed and available in the supermarket to tempt you to make some particular salad delicious.

Remember that herbs are wonderful additions to dressings for all kinds of salads. Be a little daring with seasonings . . . that's part of being creative! Use a little imagination and you'll consider salads a delight.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, July 4

Aries (March 21-April 19) This will turn out to be a fun day for you if you abide by the majority rule. Don't insist upon having your way.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Travel could have its frustrations for you. Why not plan something where you have the final come to you?

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Forget about trying to mix business and pleasure—they just won't jell. Set your sights on relaxing. Let yourself go.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Base your decisions on the more logical aspects of your nature. Be prepared to compromise and yield a little.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be called upon to lend a helping hand to a friend. Although it will cause you some inconvenience, do it with a smile.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Have a good time, but don't let out all the stops. This is one of those days when moderation and self-discipline are needed.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In the earlier part of your day you'll have some aggravation to contend with. Toward evening, the picture changes.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your social activities something of a positive nature will occur. It will considerably enhance your self-image.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In any situation that requires you to spend or commit yourself in some manner, be sure you know who you're doing business with.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be rather harsh on someone you're quite fond of if you don't make allowances in their shortcomings.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're going to be pleasantly surprised when see you think has been taking advantage of you comes through in a big way.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be selective if you have a choice regarding your social activities. Don't go to the affair where the loudmouth is.

Edmonton TV to Seek To End 'Linear' Sytem

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada's second wholly independent television station will open in September and its general manager says it will be the first concerted effort in this country to get away from "linear" broadcasting.

Wendell Wilks, 33, who worked as an ombudsman before doing what he says is the first in Prairie broadcasting outlets, finishing panel duties, is general manager of ITV and wants that station to offer an alternative to its 700,000 potential viewers.

"The old linear rip-and-read approach belongs to another medium," Mr. Wilks said in an interview.

"It was brought from the print medium into radio originally and when television started there weren't any television broadcasters . . . so the radio guys determined that they would move in and take over television stations.

"As a consequence we got this bastardized system with a big influence from newspapers. . . . What we've done is just taken that and introduced it to television.

"Television is a more real and more exciting medium if used properly."

The 56-million ITV operation will follow the approach of one station per market and not affiliate with either CBC or CTV.

It has bought its share of American and Canadian programs for the fall but intends to use a fully-equipped semi-trailer van, worth about $1 million, to produce local programs, covering such things as hockey games, symphonies, ethnic dances, legislative meetings and the like.

It will broadcast on conventional and cable channels.

Mr. Wilks said much of the station's revenue, and he expects to lose money for the first three years, will come from selling shows it produces, especially commercials and the Tommy Banks music and variety show.

ITV is owned by the Alberta-based Allarco Co. and faces direct advertising competition from two established stations, 18 radio outlets and one daily newspaper.

"We determined when we set out to build the television station that we would supply an alternative service. We would do things that are not at present being done by the existing broadcasters. . . . I think we've been somewhat successful in creating a schedule that reflects that.

"We've blocked programs, keeping in mind the philosophy we've had from the beginning . . . so when both of the local stations are running news or public affairs, we run entertainment. When both of the stations are running heavy entertainment programming, U.S. syndicated material, we run Canadian material. When we're producing news documentaries, it's up against their entertainment."

Comedian Toronto TV Host

TORONTO (CP) — Comedian Gene Taylor has written jokes for Rob Ilcic and toured the Playboy Club circuit in the United States on a salary of $650 a week.

He gave all that up to come to Toronto as host of CITY-TV's afternoon movie show, Prizewinners Playhouse. He also does zany newscasts under the pseudonym Victor Voice and is host to a 1950s-style party each Tuesday night at the Nickelodeon on Yonge Street.

Moving here meant taking a cut in pay, but Taylor, explaining his reasons for the change in an interview, said he is the youngest one he knows who can boast of having his own daily show.

Besides, the nightclub thing generally is going down, and as likes Toronto: "Clean and safe, all the things New York should be and isn't."

Taylor's Victor Voice newscasts started last October during breaks in the afternoon movies. Several weeks and later just before the Friday night Baby Blue Movie and reopened was so good the station decided to make them a regular feature.

Taylor said his jokes are "just terrible—but they're meant to be."

Taylor, a 26-year-old native of Detroit whose real name is George Lee Hershkin, began his career at 18 as a disc jockey in Streator, Ill. Two years later he started working nightclubs.

When Bob Hope came to the Canadian National Exhibition in 1969, Taylor paid a bellhop at the Royal York Hotel $30 to slip Hope inside under the star's door. Before he knew it he was travelling in advance of Hope, writing local material in places where Hope was to appear. He left in 1970 when "Hope's politics started bothering me."

An addition at the Detroit Playboy Club in 1971 led to a stint at Playboy clubhouses in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, and Los Angeles.

J.F. NELLES REALTOR

OLDER HOME?

Some might think so, but I was built to last. My original owner's gone now, but I'm still sound. I still keep my owner cool in summer and that new gas furnace keeps me warm in winter. My floors are still glossy and my dining room was built for big families, the bath, an electric fireplace in my family room and a playroom in the basement. My present owner wants me to keep him, but he's needed in another city. I need a new family with a couple of kids - - - do you know any one interested?

ME TOO

I'm a Color-lok frame bungalow. I live on a lot that's 275 ft. deep and has 6 feet of water frontage on Walker's Bay. I've got 2 bedrooms, large tile floors, a 12 x 24 rec. room, attached 1½-car garage and a big planted sun deck overlooking the water. My owner wants to move to the city. You can get me for $43,500 and we can watch a family of nesting Mallards together.

Freed Pilot Expects Rest to Be Released

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Canadian bellicopter pilot Don Wederfort, held hostage for three months by anti-government forces in Ethiopia, said Tuesday he feels four other North Americans will be released soon.

Wederfort, 28, of Calgary was released by the Eritrean Liberation Front (E.L.F.) June 28. He appeared at a news conference called by Texneco Oil Co. of Houston, which employs three of the four men still held.

Wederfort said he felt his release was a "gesture of good faith on their (E.L.F.) part to show the others were alive and well and also to establish a good line of contact."

The E.L.F. captured five men — including Wederfort, March 26 when the helicopter carrying them was mined while on an oil-exploration mission.

The four still held in the rugged mountains in Eritrea province include Cliff James, a Texaco geologist from Walkerton, Ont.; John Rogers, a geologist on loan to Texneco from Texaco; William Cayce, a Texneco geologist and Metta Tavares, a United Nations Development Program geochemist assigned to the Ethiopian ministry of mines.

Tire Tread

Check tire tread when considering the purchase of a used car, advises Consumers' Association of Canada. If the tread on any tire is worn unevenly, the front wheels are probably out of line and will need alignment. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

Canadians On The Move

Consumers' Association of Canada advises travellers to avoid unchlorinated drinking water and food drinks, particularly in tropical countries. Salads, unpeeled fruit and other uncooked foods are also suspect. CAC national headquarters is located at 100 Gloucester Street, Ottawa.

PAMPERED PATIENTS

Greek and Roman doctors often persuaded their patients to drink bitter prescriptions by smearing the rims of cups with honey, a practice CAC points

Sculptor's Figures Laugh at People

PENSE, Sask. (CP) — Cafeteria Bill, his receding red hair slicked back and his middle-aged paunch incongruous with his fair figure, poises a spit wad on the end of a spoon.

He looks with slightly bulbous eyes over his shoulder, past the cafeteria table strewn with cigarette butts and candy wrappers, scanning the students for a victim.

"Cafeteria Bill's a nervous guy," said Joe Fafard, who created the 12-inch, three-dimensional work sculpture. "He loves to look at people and imitate them when they leave."

It's a vocation Fafard can understand. He, too, loves catching people off guard, when their faces fall into natural expressions and their hands aren't hidden.

The 31-year-old artist has been making clay figures for 11 years but only recently have critics begun to appreciate his light-hearted, compassionate portraits.

"It's a way of laughing at people—the way you laugh at someone you love," he said in an interview.

Fafard has made about 36 clay portraits, taken from photographs or from memory, depicting individuals who "represent a certain attitude, a certain feeling."

They range from George, a retired stables agent "who has kept his mind alert to his 80th year and represents surreal, a hero in a sense," to a lonely parish priest.

The sculptor of the priest, "who has deprived himself of the good life by sheer will power," shows him sitting on a maroon loveseat, his head stretched to the empty ceiling.

The portrait was inspired by a dream, in which Fafard is walking naked in a Quebec hamlet. The priest comes out of the rectory and begins screaming and stares at him.

"I have to stare back. I am staring hard. As I stare the priest begins to shrink, and shrink. When he is only this high I swat him with my hand like a fly. When I look under my hand there is only a crushed little dead yellow bird there. My mother comes by, looks and sighs.

"I think if I had picked up the screaming little priest and stroked his head I would have have transformed him into a living yellow canary rather than a crushed dead one."

Fafard said the dream means that he should shrink people only so far, and use his power consciously.

Another clay portrait shows a timid figure—"an art critic from California who treated us like country bumpkins"—as a stylized rocking horse.

A clay portrait costs about $1,000 and takes about a month to complete, from the initial shaping to the final firing.

"Each shape demands different considerations," he said. "I build the head with a good thickness of insulation, then the chair, then build from the shoes until I get to the neck."

Fafard, who is married and has three children, was born in Ste. Marthe, Sask., of French-Canadian parents. He has lived in rural Saskatchewan most of his life with the exception of six years at the University of Saskatchewan, Pennsylvania State University.

As a child, much of his time was spent herding, feeding and milking cows. "Cows had plenty to do with what we did," he said, and they still do.

Fafard's three-storey home in Pense, about 20 miles west of Regina, now is filled with cow objets d'art—cow statues, cow curtains, cow paintings, cow baths, cow mirrors, cowhead plugs in his kiln and even a painted china plate showing an aerial view of cows crossing a slough.

Across from his home, on the root of the Pense school, reclines a friendly-looking 15-foot woolly mammoth, made by Fafard and some of his University of Saskatchewan art students out, of chicken wire, reinforced steel and 35 miles of plastic ballet twine.

It was originally placed on a ledge at the Regina campus art school, said Fafard. "There it sat disturbing no one until the director of the school decided to remove it secretly" and give it to a lowbrow apartment block.

"But the kids were destroying it and I figured it was worth saving." So he rescued it with a semi-trailer truck and sold it to the Pense school board.

Cancer Can't Stop This Youth

NEILSTADT, Ont. (CP) — Just as the advertisement says, cancer can be beaten. But it takes courage and determination.

Kevin Lahn, 16, is a healthy sports-minded teen-ager, despite the loss of a leg resulting from a childhood bone tumor.

He even roars down country roads on his motorcycle, as this community near Owen Sound on his motorcycle, after helping his father, Bruce, with the chores and the 5,000 chickens they raise.

Mr. Lahn, a former Metropolitan Toronto police officer, recalled the days when he tried to accept the possibility of Kevin's death.

"When the tumor was found on Kevin's leg 10 years ago, the doctors said they would remove it surgically but that they were not going to amputate his leg because this form of cancer—Ewings sarcoma—had a history of reappearing in other parts of the body.

"After the tumor was removed, everything went well for almost a year. Then suddenly the swelling and soreness returned."

Mr. Lahn said when Kevin returned to hospital the doctors injected radioactive isotopes into his system to track down any new tumors that might have formed.

No others showed up. But this time the leg was amputated to save Kevin's life.

"Every four months we have to take Kevin to Toronto to have his leg checked," Mr. Lahn said. "The last time we got a bill for $80. It wasn't till then that I found out he had taken a chisel and whittled down his artificial foot to fit the new platform shoes he had bought."

Canada Represented

TORONTO (CP) — Canada is one of 11 countries represented at this year's World's Fair, which runs until Nov. 3 in Spokane, Wash. In addition, British Columbia and Alberta have individual pavilions at the exhibition. Aug. 28 to Sept. 1 has been designated Canada Week, and one of the principal attractions will be the RCMP Musical Ride.

Boat Attracts Tourists

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada Goose, which was a Newfoundland sealing vessel for years, is one of Nassau's latest tourist attractions. The 125-foot schooner makes half-day cruises of the harbor from Prince George Wharf every day except Mondays.

Volta River Basin Country of Blind

GENEVA (Reuter) — By the fast-flowing waters of the upper Volta River in West Africa lies a half-deserted village. Fields are untilled, the huts mostly empty.

Its remaining occupants are gaunt men and women who shuffle down the dusty village street with sightless staring eyes, outstretched arms touching each others' shoulders, led by small boys.

The village is one of thousands which lie abandoned in the Volta River basin. For this fertile region is the country of the blind, from which millions have fled to preserve their sight from the insect-borne disease of onchocerciasis, or river blindness.

The only hope for the future lies in the helicopter and spraying the river rapids. He is the forerunner of the biggest health project undertaken by the World Health Organization (W.H.O.) aimed at eliminating the breeding-places of the disease-bearing blackfly.

Seven African countries—Dahomey, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Mali, Niger, Togo and Upper Volta—have agreed to join in the 20-year program.

They are supported by W.H.O., the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and the World Bank.

The $120 million campaign will cover a territory of about 270,000 square miles, as big as Britain and France together. Full operations will start in November.

W.H.O. official Fernand Tolmicki, who recently returned from West Africa, said he saw thousands of victims of river blindness.

In the upper basin of the Volta people suffering from onchocerciasis are estimated at more than a million, 70,000 of them blind, Mr. Tomicke wrote in the W.H.O. magazine, World Health.

"The adolescents have wounds on their bodies where they have scratched themselves but still seem relatively alert," he said.

"The adults are a pitiful sight. Walking skeletons, their bones protruding under their scarred skins, they totter along with hanging heads and sightless eyes.

"Most of them are more dead than alive. All look old, though few are over 40."

River blindness is caused by a worm, transmitted to man by the bite of the blackfly. Two conditions are needed for the fly and the worm to flourish. Blackfly larvae will only hatch in fast-flowing water, hence the name river blindness, and the worm can only develop in the blackfly at a warm temperature.

In regions where the blackfly is abundant the inhabitants, mostly farmers, have almost no means of protection. Because of the heat they work naked from the waist up and with bare legs. The blackflies are so numerous and small that they cannot be kept away and their bites cause intolerable itching.

Severe and prolonged infection with onchocerciasis always has serious results, among them blindness.

Destruction of the blackfly itself is impracticable since it can operate over a radius of about 90 miles.

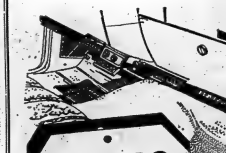
But if the adult blackfly cannot be destroyed, its larvae are vulnerable.

Blackflies lay their eggs in stretches of river with fast-flowing turbulent water. The larvae need water rich in oxygen and can feed only in rivers carrying large amounts of finely divided nutrients. The location of the breeding sites can be determined from observing the speed of the current.

But the task is enormous. There are 8,700 miles of water courses in the Volta basin to be kept under surveillance.

Ironically, onchocerciasis has hit some areas as a result of the peoples' own efforts for development.

At Lamoussa in the Ivory Coast, the townspeople decided in 1951 to reclaim land by building dikes on the Tiao River. The blackflies found excellent sites in which to multiply and half the population over 40 went blind.



The riverbeds have been abandoned for 13 years, the dikes have collapsed and the disease has retreated.

The operation will start with parts of Ghana, Ivory Coast, Mali and Upper Volta. Starting next year it will extend to the remainder of Dahana and Upper Volta and in 1976 it will cover the whole of the program area.

Aircraft and helicopters will spray an insecticide upstream from the blackfly breeding sites. Even low dosages destroy the larvae over long distances downstream, while causing only minimal side-effects to vegetation, fish or other living organisms.

FLAG HAD TO WAIT

Although the Stars and Stripes originated in 1777, it was not until 146 years later, a serious attempt was made to establish a uniform code of etiquette for the U.S. flag.

After 15 Varied Hours Trudeau Still Smiling

By DOUG SMALL
The Canadian Press

For Pierre Trudeau, the day was another of precious campaign minutes lost, then regained; of outstretched hands and jostling crowds; of speeches tough and tender; of motion.

It ended, like many others, a time zone away from where it began, 15 highly-charged hours later, tucked away in tidy newspaper, television and radio reports with others invested in the July 8 general vote.

If it had tired him, his appearance gave no indication. The smile of good night to a group outside an elevator at a Yarmouth, N.S., hotel was the same as that which greeted morning crowds in the lobby of another hotel in downtown Montreal.

But there were hints in his final speech of the day—his fifth—that the rolling hours of travel by plane, bus and limousine; the well-meaning bumps of crowds; the repetitious pitch for support had taken a toll.

There was a verbal slip—quickly corrected—as the day ended before a crowd in Yarmouth where he mistakenly called the people citizens of Digby, a town 65 miles north where he had said similar things before similar people in a similar setting outside a shopping mall.

And there was a change of tone: The slashing speeches of mid-day gave way to reflective comments on the sea and his childhood.

He recalled before the gathering standing in the dark at the southwestern Nova Scotia community how excited he had been when, as a boy of six, he had first been taken to the sea. He could hardly sleep, he said, with the ocean crashing outside, and he and his brother had taken off their shoes and stockings to walk barefoot for hours in the sand.

Such reflective comments by the 54-year-old prime minister are rarer in this campaign than they were 12 months ago when he sought his second mandate. Then, he emphasized his obvious deep feeling for the country in low-keyed, at times poetic, speeches.

This time, however, in an attempt to counter electoral setbacks that reduced a strong 1968 majority to a weak minority after the 1972 campaign, he is attempting to convey himself as a fighter; a man of attack and in a hurry to get back to the business of governing.

But though his image on the stump is often a tough one, it seems somewhat out of character for a man considered by his friends to be sensitive and even shy. Campaign days are days of dickey, and he may have revealed his own feelings about them when he urged his 25-year-old wife Margaret not to join him at the beginning of the battle, although later she did campaign.

He was worried, Mrs. Trudeau said recently, that she would "just get discouraged."

"You're too sensitive," she said he had told her. "It's a hard grind out there—there are a lot of skeptics."

Though the private man occasionally breaks through—"his campaign image—it shows, for instance, in his obvious love of thoughtful gifts given by children—his days are organized to preserve the most from his public person.

Time for himself is sparse.

A typical day, recorded recently, began at 8:10 a.m. when he woke after a less-than-comfortable sleep in a stuffy Montreal hotel room.

He and Mrs. Trudeau breakfasted in their room on grapefruit, poached eggs and milk. Then after dressing in a light brown-striped sport jacket and co-ordinated slacks—one of a modest number of outfits he's worn on the campaign—and carefully packing his own bag, he and his wife made their way down an elevator and through the hotel lobby to a waiting limousine.

Ten minutes late.

To get back on schedule, minutes were shaved from the trip through morning expressway traffic, a chilling experience accomplished by frantic weaving behind a crack motorcycle police escort.

Mr. Trudeau thanked the six policemen after his cavalcade—it included two buses full of aides, reporters and cameramen—rolled to a stop beside his chartered DC-9 jet, then climbed aboard after his entourage.

Within moments, he was settled in his seat at the front facing the others, had donned his glasses and proceeded to work his way through documents, short conferences with aides and a glass of orange juice.

An hour and a half later, the prime ministerial jet landed at the Canadian Forces Base in Shearwater, N.S., and one of Mr. Trudeau's campaign days was officially under way.

Formalities over, the prime minister jumped into a waiting car and headed off to a Halifax shopping centre, the first of five he was to visit that day.

He dove into the day's first crowd with vigor, reaching over heads to shake hands and easing behind a narrow human corridor carved out by security men as he made his way to an outside platform.

Introductions. A hilarious moment when the two press bosses, attempting to drive past the platform, were blocked by the milling crowd, cutting the prime minister off from the people in the middle of a warm-up speech by a local party organizer.

Then, a stock speech. Conservatives were divided, particularly on their centrepiece to come and price controls policy. Leader Robert Stanfield, whose home riding was only blocks away, would exempt food, fish and houses from his price freeze.

"What's left to control" the prime minister asked rhetorically. "Only wages!"

The crowd responded with a roar.

Then, back to the bus through the crowd, a wearing experience repeated at the beginning and end of each of five stops.

At the end of a long day, the constant jostle of genuine crowds becomes not unlike Chinese water torture.

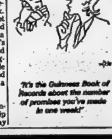
A five-minute bus ride; then a rerun of the earlier stop, but inside this time, where the crowd is more local. Another sea of waving hands; another stock speech.

Back through the crowd, into the bus, out to the airport. This leg was tight, but reporters wanted a comment on Front de Libération du Québec kidnappers who had left Cuba for a visit to France.

Mr. Trudeau grinned as they crowded into his bus, battling security men who had their mind on schedules.

After repeating the reporters, he joined them on the plane. Time only for a plate of fruit and cottage cheese before the trip ended 30 minutes later at Shearwater again.

A guard of honor this time, then another shopping centre. Slight modifications were made in his speech. A comment on defence was skipped in, apparently.



Then, by car to Digby, an hour and 20-minutes drive. Another shopping centre, then peace.

A sumptuous private dinner with his wife: Melon, fish chowder; Nova Scotia lobster and a salad.

An hour later—after only one incident in which a tourist couple from the United States, spotting him, interrupted the tranquility of his dinner hour by chasing to the magnificent—but he was back in his car for the final 95 miles to Yarmouth.

Another shopping centre; the last of perhaps 4,000 people he had encountered during the day, then bed.

Arms for IRA Stolen From Canadian Bases

TORONTO (CP) — Many of the weapons bound for Ireland that were seized by police furing the weekend were stolen from Canadian military bases, RCMP said Wednesday.

Police said they believe all the hand grenades in the arsenal—the largest cache of weapons bound for Ireland ever seized in Canada—were stolen from depots in Quebec.

On Tuesday, RCMP displayed the weapons, believed to be destined for the extremist provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. Included in the display were copies of the provisional wing's handbook.

RCMP Inspector George Scott said police believe some of the firearms were bought from Crown Assets Disposal Corp., the government agency that sells surplus equipment.

But before the weapons are sold, they are deactivated, Insp. Scott said some of the weapons seized showed that work had been done to reactivate them.

The arsenal, seized in four raids in southern Ontario, totalled more than 50 guns, machine s guns, semi-automatic rifles, thousands of rounds of ammunition, hand grenades and other weapons.

Four Toronto men, a resident of Detroit, Mich., one from Tavistock, Ont., and another from St. Catharines have been arrested and charged with conspiracy to export arms illegally.

Insp. Scott said the grenades, a .50-calibre machine-gun "and a good deal of the other weapons we have seized cannot be obtained legally."

"The black market and theft from army depots could account for a lot of those guns being in circulation," he said.

However, Brig.-Gen. Ian Morrison, chief public relations officer at national defence headquarters in Ottawa, said Wednesday there have been "no thefts in Quebec in recent times."

And Defence Minister James Richardson said in a telephone interview in Winnipeg he is not aware of any thefts from military bases but would make inquiries.

Sea Conference Gets Message

Canada: Tough but Willing Negotiator

CARACAS (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis, who returned to Canada today, left no doubt among delegates to the international law of the sea conference that Canada will be a tough, if willing, negotiator in the weeks ahead.

Davis, delivering a major Canadian policy speech Wednesday, called for a treaty based on salmon fishing and extensive offshore control of continental shelf waters by coastal states.

Among other things, the minister outlined Canada's position on a 200-mile economic zone taking account, its attitude toward deep-sea fishing for salmon, mineral resources and fish on the continental shelf, pollution control and the problems of protecting the delicate Arctic waters.

The concept of the "patrimonial sea" extending to 200 miles from the coastal state was defined under the 1958 Geneva convention on the continental shelf. Canada does not claim sovereignty over this vast area, but maintains the right to manage the marine life and mineral wealth found there.

In addition, Canada's continental shelf extends beyond 200 miles in a small area off the Grand Banks, an area which constitutes five per cent of the whole shelf.

Davis pointed out that coastal states such as Canada must be given the right to manage their marine resources according to biological reality and not according to arbitrary man-made lines. Canada thus supports the view that the coastal state has a responsibility to manage the whole of the continental shelf even if it extends beyond 200 miles.

He indicated however, that Canada might be prepared to accept the general principle of the 200-mile limit, if certain guarantees are met.

The protection of these involves the management of Canadian salmon, which are spawned in Canadian waters, which migrates throughout vast distances during its lifetime. Davis also advocated that the fishing of such species be prohibited outside the 200-mile economic zone, and limited to the areas of the country where the fish spawn.

At a later news conference Wednesday, Davis said Canada will continue to enforce its own anti-pollution measures in Arctic waters even after any international agreement is reached. He added that the main responsibility for pollution control lies with the coastal state, and affects not only adjacent states, but the entire world.

The Canadian proposals drew favorable response from some delegates but a Japanese representative protested the proposal on salmon fishing.

"This we will never accept," the Japanese official said in an interview. "It runs against the whole spirit of conciliation which we and other countries are trying to foster."

British, U.S., Australian, Indian and Austrian delegates said the Canadian position was for the most part constructive and a valuable contribution to the support developing here on several key issues.

A British delegate commented: "The Canadians, like ourselves, have some very valuable fish, mineral and oil resources to protect and develop. They seem to be going out of their way to do this in the most co-operative manner possible."

Said a U.S. source: "The Canadians are proposing things in a way that we believe will leave all of us this room we must have to reach compromise and reconciliation."

Selassie Agrees To Military Veto

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie has agreed to military supervision of the Ethiopian government and to acceleration of constitutional changes to bring the country democratic reforms.

In an hour-long showdown with the 81-year-old monarch at his Jubilee Palace Wednesday, a committee of military reformers who have been calling the tune in Addis Ababa for five days obtained the emperor's assent to direct military intervention in civilian affairs.

The armed forces were given virtual veto authority over the cabinet, parliament and the armed anyway, but getting the emperor to agree makes it legitimate," one diplomat said.

The emperor also called a special session of parliament to enact constitutional changes making him little more than a figurehead, making the premier responsible to parliament and ending government support for the Ethiopian Orthodox Coptic Christian Church.

Observers said they expect the committee of officers, none of whom are higher in rank than colonel, to present more demands later, including the naming of soldiers to fill key cabinet posts—defence, interior, justice, education, information and land reform.

Meanwhile, Endalkachew Makonnen continued as premier despite the military reformers' anger with his lack of progress in making the changes he promised when he took office four months ago. It was this delay that resulted in the military intervention last weekend, when the reformers took control of the country.

The reformers' goal now, and when they overthrew Makonnen's predecessor in February, is to "end the years of the feudal clique of landholding nobles and aristocrats and their allies in the church.

The emperor also agreed to the release of political prisoners arrested by various regimes and amnesty for exiled foes of these regimes. Scores of persons were indeed arrested, including participants in an abortive coup in 1960. But prisoners taken in the fight against secessionist guerrillas in Eritrea province were not likely to be freed. Neither are at least 37 former cabinet ministers, other officials of the court and government, and military commanders arrested in February as opponents of reform or suspected embezzlers.

Having a Ball

Everyone, regardless of age, has fun at a penny carnival. Two-year-old David Irwin of Leslie Drive was one of about 20 youngsters who took part in the carnival organized Wednesday afternoon by Michele and Jackie Hebrison and Jennifer and Paula Lockyer to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy. A total of $10.25 was raised by the neighborhood children, in games such as this one of spill the cans.

Packers' Lockout to End

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed said Wednesday Alberta's major meat packing firms have agreed to end a lockout of workers July 8. The announcement was made at the legislature to about 500 members of the National Farmers Union who gathered to call for an end to the dispute.

The Election? It's Because

These three students at Brampton's Madoc Public School have firm opinions about what caused the federal election. Shane Gemmill (left) says taxes are too high, making it hard to afford a decent baseball bat. Nichola Fraser (centre) says the reason for the election is the high cost of food. Janie Middaugh thinks meat is costing too much because nobody is looking after the cows and pigs anymore. (CP Photo)

CUPE Denied Right to Represent Provincial Employees

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government tribunal has barred the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) from representing provincial employees, it was announced Wednesday.

The Public Service Labor Relations Tribunal said CUPE is disqualified under a provincial law that requires unions to be "formed for the purpose of regulating relations" between the province and its employees.

The tribunal ruled the law means the union has to be formed solely for that purpose, and CUPE's national constitution is much broader in scope.

It dismissed the union's application for bargaining rights for 1,200 employees of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

But it left the way open for CUPE to set up a local expressly for the purpose of organizing government workers and then applying for certification. CUPE's rejection, it said, arose from the fact it applied as a national organization.

Marie Bild, the union's legislative director, said the union now has to decide whether to seek a judicial review of the ruling or to start a new organizing campaign among the compensation board employees and have them sign with a CUPE local to be established.

Constitutional Convention Is Planned

LONDON (CP) — The British government intends to introduce legislation for the election of a constitutional convention in Northern Ireland.

The convention would "consider what proposals for the government of Northern Ireland would be likely to command the most widespread acceptance throughout the community there," the government said in a white paper published today.

The convention will be required to report on its conclusions which will be placed before Parliament, the white paper said.

The government says there should be an independent chairman and 78 elected members on the convention.

Nixon Home

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon is here for a long holiday weekend after a surprise journey to Moscow which he described as helping to "lead the world out of the lowlands of war up to the summits of peace."

Nixon stopped briefly at Limestone Mc., Wednesday night to make a broadcast speech in which he reported in general terms on more than 24 hours of negotiating sessions with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

The speech site was an air-base hangar where Vice-President Gerald Ford and several hundred military dependents greeted the president and Mrs. Nixon.

The speech reiterated points covered in the Moscow communique that listed the limited arms control agreements, including agreements to restrict anti-ballistic missile systems and ban some underground nuclear weapons tests.

Two Cosmonauts Board Salyut

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts were put into orbit Wednesday aboard the revisited United States astronaut said Soviet officials told him the cosmonauts have used their space ship to the Salyut 3 space station next up some days ago.

Jack Reilly, spokesman for the group of U.S. astronauts who are guests of Soviet space officials, said: "We were notified this morning that a linkup had been made."

Reached by telephone at Star City, the cosmonaut training centre outside Moscow, Reilly said he was told: "Everything is going according to plan."

Tass, the Soviet news agency, announced that Col. Pavel Popovich, a 13-year veteran of the space program, and Lt.-Col. Yuri Artyukhin, his flight engineer, were launched Wednesday night in Soyuz 14 for "joint experiments with the orbital scientific station Salyut 3."

Although Tass gave no details, it was announced that the cosmonauts will check the Soyuz capsule to Salyut 3 and then rendezvous and dock aboard the space laboratory before returning to the earth.

Tass said the spacemen will also make "a comprehensive checking of the different onboard systems of the Soyuz ship," which is to be used in the joint Soviet-American space flight next year.

There was no indication how long the flight was to last.

The Soviet government has yet to make a completely successful test in space of its manned scientific stations, the chief goal of the Soviet space program.

The first such station, Salyut 1, was sent on April 24, 1971, and three cosmonauts spent 23 days aboard. But during their return to earth, a hatch on their Soyuz spacecraft apparently did not seal and the three men were killed.

Salyut 2 was launched on April 3, 1973, and 35 days later Tass reported its mission had ended without a crew being put aboard. Western specialists said the spaceship broke up in space, a serious setback to the Soviet space program.

Meanwhile, the United States in May, 1973, put up its Skylab space station, a 186-tonner more than five times the size of the 18-ton Salyut 1. Then it put three crews aboard in succession for periods of 28, 59 and 84 days, and brought them all safely back.

The last manned Soviet space flight was in December, when two men rode Soyuz 13 in orbit for eight days. The flight was believed to be a test of new design features of the ship.

Attempted Murder Charge in Trenton

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Jim Brant, 46, of 674½ Front Street, Trenton, has been charged with attempted murder by town police here, following investigation of a stabbing incident Tuesday evening.

Edward Hand, 30, of Balsam Street, remained in hospital in satisfactory condition under intensive care.

Police Chief David Saunders said Mr. Hand sustained stab wounds to the abdomen and body.

Police say Mr. Hand was stabbed at a Front Street residence and was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital by a neighbor.

Mr. Brant remains in police custody.

A bail hearing is set for Friday in Belleville. Police are still investigating the incident.

Crash Kills Woman at Brighton

BRIGHTON — One woman is dead and another is in satisfactory condition in hospital here today following a two-car crash Wednesday on Highway 30 three miles north of here.

A Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman said the name of the dead woman is being withheld pending notification of next of kin. The woman died in hospital early Thursday.

Brighton provincial police said the vehicle occupied by the two women was in collision with a car driven by Donald Phillip Moran, 21, RR 2 Colborne. Moran was not injured.

Moran car was southbound on the highway at the time of the accident which resulted in damage estimated at $4,000, said police.

Pointed Gun, Fined $150

TRENTON — John Ernest Meadow, 34, Trenton was fined $150 in provincial court here Wednesday and placed on three years probation after he pleaded guilty to dangerous use of a firearm.

Town police laid the charge following an incident in the Gilbert Hotel in which a firearm had been pointed at a man's stomach.

Crown Attorney Glenn Delroy said Meadow was wearing the 22-calibre pistol revolver on his leg in "cowboy fashion".

Meadown was arrested later in a room in another Trenton hotel.

Judge R.B. Baxter told Meadow he must abstain from alcohol and not be found with a firearm in his possession during probation.

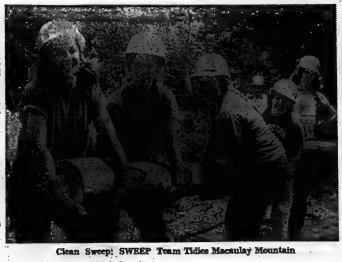
Merchants Defrauded

TRENTON — Douglas Wayne McPhee, 18, Bleecker Ave., Belleville, pleaded guilty to 34 charges of false pretences and fraud before provincial court Judge R. B. Baxter here Wednesday.

The charges involved $880 in goods and cash from 24 Trenton area businesses.

Mr. McPhee was remanded in custody for sentence July 30 pending preparation of a pre-sentencing report.

Fire In Workshop



PICTON — Damage, is estimated at about $500 in a workshop fire early early today.

Flames broke out in the woodworking shop of Morley Breakenridge, Union St. shortly after 1 a.m. The blaze of undetermined origin apparently started near a work bench, spread across the floor and up to the ceiling.

A town fire department spokesman said Mr. Breakenridge had been working in the shop Wednesday evening but reported that the building was locked when the fire broke out. The alarm was turned in by a neighbor who spotted the flames.

Clean Sweep: SWEEP Team Tidies Macaulay Mountain

Students at Work

Conservation Creates Jobs

PICTON — Nature trails are being created at Macaulay Mountain by a Project SWEEP (Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program) crew under direction of senior supervisor David Mahlon and foremen John Adams and Wendy Gamas.

June 24, a crew of 21 high school and university students began employment with Project SWEEP, one of the provincial government Experience '74 students employment programs. The students work through the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority maintaining and developing conservation areas around the county.

PERCA states that, contrary to popular belief, SWEEP crews will be involved with little road side clean-up this year.

A temporary sand bag dam will be built at Demorestville to learn a permanent structure might be of value. The clearing of nature trails has been started at Macaulay Mountain Conservation area which will be the new location of PERCA offices.

A permit school groups to obtain maximum information on visiting authority properties technical advisors Jen Henry and Sharon Reid will begin work on an in-depth guide for teachers. It will include maps, plans, photos and sketches of the different conservation areas with information on agriculture, forestry, geology, biology and social changes.

Other projects for the ten-week SWEEP program including construction of 50 check erosion dams, signs for conservation areas and a fifty-foot cedar bridge. The seven PERCE conservation areas will undergo general clean-up fencing, tree - planting and landscaping.

Problems or Not ?

Picton Council Ponders Traffic in Downtown

PICTON — A Picton woman's letter on town traffic problems has been referred to council's public works committee for study and report at the next session.

The letter from Mary Storey was one of two received by council following a report released in Prince Edward County council last month by economic director William Rogers. The report indicated the town has urged traffic problems and says is required.

Deputy-reeve Jerry Richardson said he is not convinced there is a traffic or a parking problem in Picton. He said he has not yet been forced into drumming his fingers on the steering wheel while waiting a half-hour to reach his destination.

Deputy - reeve Richardson said suggestions such as creation of bypasses seem worthy of consideration for the future but it is "completely ridiculous" to discuss this question now.

"I'm getting a little bit annoyed that people are making claims such as this," he said about the implied traffic congestion.

"The whole thing is blown out of proportion," said Reeve Ross Cronkwright.

Reeve Cronkwright added, however, that many Main Street parking slots are filled with cars of store employees and observed that they should be encouraged to park on the Mary Street lot.

Councillor Jack Evans said he finds traffic slow several times during the day. It does not yet take a half-hour to reach a destination through town traffic but there must be a plan where the traffic problem is recognized, he said.

He cautioned council that it can take "years" to plan and design alternate routes.

Reeve Cronkwright said Friday nights traffic seems times is slowed but suggested posting a policeman at the Main Street stop light could reduce this problem. He said he would rather see the streets clogged than empty and he indicates business.

"We should do some serious thinking today," councillor Evans urged as the question of traffic was discussed.

Openers For Museum

AMELIASBURGH — This township's historical museum will reopen with a big sixth season of operation Sunday and has attracted more than 2,- 000 visitors since it began in 1968.

On Sunday a piper led a parade to the museum's pioneer Park for a ribbon-cutting ceremony officially opening a new building with antique farm machinery and a replica of a village blacksmith shop.

Official duties of the day were shared by Reeve Russell Thompson, James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward — Lennox, and William Nightingale, museum board treasurer.

A crowd of 300 watched the proceedings and viewed be numerous items of memorabelia on show.

Bishops Mark Centennial

MARMORA — Last Sunday will be long remembered by members of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Marmora as the highlight of the church's Centennial Year celebrations.

Bishop J. R. Creegan, of Kingston, officiated at a morning confirmation service.

In the afternoon the congregation was joined by Archbishop E. W. Scott, Primate of Canada, in a Communion Service.

The archbishop said baptism makes people part of the world-wide Christian church, not one denomination.

"We therefore have a responsibility to our fellow Christians in the world, regardless of color or denomination", he said.

Final Push to Find Summer Work For Students in Trenton Area

TRENTON — A final drive to place students in jobs will companies here is now underway, Al Hamilton, Canada Manpower student placement office supervisor, said Wednesday.

Mr. Hamilton said July will see a "last-ditch effort" to find students jobs.

"It has to be July," he said, "in August, there are few students left and jobs last only a couple of weeks."

From now until schools and universities re-open in fall, placements will loom. Peak months are May and June.

At the end of June, 35 per cent of the 1,100 students registered had been found regular work.

Less than 100 were directed into casual jobs, which last less than a week.

To give jobless students greater visibility and greater opportunity for placement, Manpower officials plan increased publicity.

July has been proclaimed "Hire A Student Month" in Trenton, Brighton, Consecutive, through town utility commission billings, will be urged to hire students for painting, fence-mending, lawn-cutting, and other odd jobs.

A weekly community television program will outline students needs.

To date, said Mr. Hamilton, the student placement program has had fairly good response from local industry and business.

World Trees Planting Plan for Trent Valley

TRENTON — The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority is examining purchase of 200 to 500 acres in its watershed for tree planting.

The acreage would permit growing of trees from around the world.

It is believed that the world-tree-farm concept is in North-ed use in Canada. If one is established in the Quinte area, it would be the first of its kinds in Ontario.

Bigger Budget At Frankford

FRANKFORD — Council gave village taxpayers some good news and some bad news here this week with a $346,800 budget, up $23,117.

There is a lower mill rate for separate school supporters. Homeowners must pay 128.6 mills, down 3.7 mills from 1973.

The commercial rate is down 2.1 mills from 152.1 mills.

Public school taxpayers will pay a municipal 1 mill increase. Commercial properties face a 1.7 mill hike to 153.7.

Taxes will raise $178,928 with the remainder of the budget coming from normal municipal levies and senior government subsidies.

Mine Event

MARMORA — Marmoraton Mining Company played host to Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Ascend mining department safety recently.

This was the first time that the annual event was held outside of the United States.

Some 24 mining representatives from Pennsylvania, Maryland and one from Venezuela attended this meeting.

Oldtime Touch

MARMORA — That old time popular music, the Lions Social was revived recently Friday evening as part of St. Paul's Anglican Church centennial celebrations.

Over 200 people attended, many in centennial costume.

Downtown Blaze

While the scent of roses and African violets may still linger hauntingly with those who were present at the Belleville Garden Club's show at Centennial secondary school over the weekend, the aroma downtown is less of a pleasurable experience.

Pungent yes, for the atmosphere in Front Street yesterday still carries the pantstraining aroma of the aftermath of yet another fire.

It is quite a while since the downtown area proper occupied the attention of firefighters; but here it is happening again and only good work by the firemen prevented this outbreak spreading and an even greater calamity.

As it is, one building is a total loss and the prospect ultimately is of yet another vacant lot.

When that comes about, as it must, this could provide an opportunity, rather than rebuilding, of improved access to parking facilities at the rear of Front Street stores.

But that is for the future. For the present, we have to mourn the passing of yet another Front Street landmark.

A Notable Movie

The Exorcist has come and gone in Belleville and it has been as interesting and compelling a piece of cinema as has been seen in a long time.

Those who have read the book doubtless will have seen the movie too, while those who have seen the movie only, as in our case, now will want to read the William Peter Blatty book. If only to try and clear up some of the loose ends which the film inevitably left hanging. Indeed quite a lot was left to the imagination.

If the final night's audience was any criterion, prior publicity evidently had stirred Belleville moviegoers to the film's macabre reputation. No members of the St. John Ambulance were in sight and while some nervous souls could be observed averting their faces at times, no one ended up on the floor in a dead faint.

Indeed the very grotesqueness of the young girl's appearance in the grip of demonic "possession" had a sort of comic aspect. And knowing that the vomit which she ejected onto the hapless priest attending her was only pea soup somehow softened the satanic chaos of it all.

There comes to mind The Picture of Dorian Gray, Oscar Wilde's weird tale of a young man who grows old as a wicked man's alter ego, and the movie on this theme starring Hurd Hatfield back in the forties.

There was a vulgarity of language about Blatty's work which doubtless turned some off. The girl who spoke in the grip of the evil spirit, and her mother (the latter overwrought but certainly not possessed) might have made even a barrack room blush. But now, this incredible seems to be the language of our times, even of the high school and university campus, and anything more refined, especially in the tense atmosphere of a work such as The Exorcist, might have had less impact.

The photography heightened the atmosphere of the supernatural, although some classic scenes were cut-off a shade too soon before they could be fully savored.

Even at that, this was a notable production, from a book that has had considerable impact around the world.

Areas Of Need

The Right Rev. Bruce McLeod says election candidates have not addressed themselves to the problem of inflation as it affects the poor.

The United Church Moderator has a point. Inflation hits everyone, but the poor, already living on the cheapest foods available, are hit hardest of all.

But as we have pointed out before, this election campaign has overlooked many areas: the poor for one, including many of the native population, and foreign policy.

Differing Styles Emerge As Leaders Stump The Land

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Well, as Prime Minister Trudeau himself said: "The style c'est l'homme," which, even as uncelightening unilingual Canadian remit amount, translates into "the style is the man."

Oh sure, the Prime Minister says a lot of things, some of which he must wish he had never said — or at least deleted the expletives before saying.

But "Le style c'est l'homme" is historic for him in the personal sense, because on it — and style meant charisma — he based his successful drive six years ago for the Liberal leadership and the power of Prime Minister.

So, saying it when perhaps in all his career it mattered most, he must have meant it. really, or what, is the man?

So what is the style, and who, really, or what is the man?

You never can be sure.

It and he change. . . .

The campaign is continuous, not just from election campaign to election campaign, but from year to year, and often even from day to day.

There was the gay bachelor man-of-the world, flip, trendy, try-anything-once Trudeau of the Liberal leadership campaign and the quickly following 1968 election.

Conservative Leader Stanfield was, well, as critics saw him, dull; or as viewed impartially, reasonable.

New Democratic Leader Lewis, taking party command only in 1971, and in his first campaign as NDP chief in the '72 election, was insecure, indignant and impassioned.

Social Credit Leader Caouette was volatile and explosive.

Over the following three years Prime Minister Trudeau, bearing the pressures of responsibility so new and strange to him, let his true style emerge. Lewis, less press and public walled off, brought decently into fruition in high places, and took to calling liberals those questioned his drives to bilingualize the public service and, as he phrased it, "redistribute income" of working Canadians.

Stanfield remained dull and reasonable; Lewis angry and impatient; Caouette still fiery.

Came '71 and marriage, and the Prime Minister, the skirdiving, sliding, back-flipping, sandalled and shaggy-caused political showman suddenly became a recluse.

Emerging outside of his East Block office and the House of Commons general, he publicly his family life, with wife Margaret accorded every bride and groom the privilege of 24 Sussex Drive.

Then the last election, and the Prime Minister, bored and bothered by the necessity of pretending his subjects for an extension of his rule, leisurely toured the land like a feudal lord surveying his fiefdom and indulging the common people's peasant to what he chose to call "conversation."

And there was Stanfield, ungracefully reasonable as ever; Lewis raising anti-corporate hell and Caouette fighting like a tiger.

The style is still the man.

And now the Prime Minister, no longer the Prince Charming of Parliament Hill, style is all out from behind. The Prime Minister privately and publicly with Margaret front and centre — but right in there verbally brawling in the street near shopping plazas like any other political leader.

Suddenly very much the public man, working hard to be like all the others, scrambling for votes.

Humble, almost blurting out: " . . . It's this guy Trudeau you don't like. Well, nobody's asking you to like Trudeau . . . just asking you to vote for his party. Judge me not as a person — my wife likes me, my mother liked me and a lot of people like me. I know you won't like me, but I'm happy just the same."

Yet the wife likes him so much that Margaret's talking for him will be taught her about loving before and after marriage, "a lesson" she is fond of calling it.

Is that c'est l'homme, except that they change so swiftly and dramatically.

Meanwhile, there is Stanfield, placidingly reasonable still; Lewis steaming, and Caouette as game as ever.

Like them or not, you can count on them, they are re-assuringly unchanging, if unexciting.

Argentina Under Isabel Peron

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The death of Juan Domingo Peron, charismatic and unpredictable president of Argentina, opens a new area of uncertainty for his personally troubled country.

Having emerged barely a year ago from seven years of increasingly repressive military rule, Argentina has been governed now of the figure who, even during 18 years of exile, remained adored and admired by factions for nearly three decades.

Isabel Peron, 43-year-old former dancer who was General Peron's choice for vice-president in elections last September, has been called a nonentity by the Argentine presidency.

Politically inexperienced, Mrs. Peron appealed tearfully Monday to "friends and adversaries to calm their personal passions" and help uphold the nation "which died and Peron gave me."

As acting head of state after Peron's physical condition deteriorated, she had been reported during the weekend by almost all of Argentina's dailies as political heir and by the armed forces.

But the initial feeling among some Latin American specialists here after the death of the 78-year-old Peron was that Mrs. Peron's rule might prove to be brief.

A potential scenario, as seen by Washington, is for the Peronist coalition to disintegrate sooner or later into the frequently hostile factions whose only unifying force has been Peron.

A logical step would then be for Mrs. Peron to step down and for new presidential elections to be held within the constitutionally mandated period of 90 days.

Analogies were being drawn here with the recent situation in France.

After the death of Gaullist, Georges Pompidou, Gaullists found themselves thrust out of a final contest that pitted Valery Giscard D'Estaing to the presidency. Giscard D'Estaing held a majority in the National Assembly but their cohesion may be short-lived.

Similarly, while the Peronists rallied a 62-per-cent vote behind their leader in the presidential election last fall and control the Argentine Congress, there is no distinct Peronist field now elections for president would force out their favored candidates in force.

Cut off by return from exile a year ago, Juan Peron had to contend incessantly with ambitious and unprincipled Peronist kingdoms and disillusion. The movement was also plagued among the left wing, who regarded Peron's courting of conservative labor and business circles and his accommodations with the armed forces.

Isabel Peron has been mostly closely identified with the conservative wing of the Peronist movement and is unlikely to hold the leftists' support wistfully a noticeable change of direction.

If the Argentine political situation deteriorates drastically, a move by the armed forces cannot be ruled out. The military already controls at least half the governments of South and Central America and it was the military which engineered the 1955 coup that ended Juan Peron's first turbulent period of rule.

Hitchhiking Poses Growing Dangers

The Globe and Mail

Think back, you aging citizens. The first hitchhiker could not have been more than a day or two behind the first automobile.

University students have done it in every decade. Beatniks did it in the movies. Servicemen did it in the tens of thousands with the Canadian military's official sanction and encouragement during the Second World War. And surely we must be into the second generation of long-necked Canadians who have flowed in romantic waves along the Trans-Canada Highway to see their country on thumbpower.

But now it is 1974, and for the second time in a year North York Board of Control — with Controller Dorothy Greene objecting — is seeking laws that would effectively ban hitchhiking in the borough.

What should it be?

Few people want to see more restrictive laws on individual liberties; the state controls us too much as it is.

Yet each every summer of hitchhiking leaves the news accompanying stories of violence done to hitchhikers — most of it to young women who have taken their liberation out in the highways. Violence done on the highways in the summertime — violence connected with hitchhiking in the cities all year round. Assaults. Wounding. Rapes. Abductions. Murders. (some of which are perpetrated by hitchhikers, it is admitted). And, since 1971, six young girls murdered in the Metropolitan Toronto area police think they might have been hitchhiking.

It is worse in the United States — Boston has recently had a spate of murders of hitchhiking girls; Los Angeles reports three hitchhiking — related crimes daily. In Canada, there are no hard statistics on violence to hitchhiking - related crime there is no second thing as a "typical" York Board of Control — with Controller Dorothy Greene objecting — is seeking laws that would effectively ban hitchhiking in the borough.

What should it be?

In Canada, there are no hard statistics on violence to hitchhiking - related crime there is no second thing as a "typical" case that Statistics Canada asks police forces in the country to report on. It should be.

Still the question remains: what should the law be?

In Ontario, the law does no more than restrict hitchhiking on certain heavily travelled portions of expressways. This is supplemented, more or less, by Ontario Provincial Police pamphlets handed out to young people warning them of the hazards involved. Education, however, does not really look as if it is going to be good enough.

The publicity reported number of violence crimes suggests strongly that any woman who hitchhikes — particularly alone — is being recklessly irresponsible about her own safety. Yet hundreds are doing it every day in Toronto. It may be a fine philosophical argument against Liberation cause, that it women refrain from hitchhiking they are only maintaining the sexist convention of women being seen by men as victims, but it could be a bloody awful way to go about changing things.

As for the general motivation behind hitchhiking — mostly it's a lark, or more convenient means of getting for the fare. We doubt if there are more than a handful who do it out of genuine economic need to avoid a transit fare.

It is dangerous. And maybe the time has come to say that the North York controllers are on the right track. Certainly a change in attitudes, both community concern and debate, and the community would be helped greatly if the Ontario Police Commission and Statistics Canada would pull out the figures to show just how serious the problem is.

LETTERS
The Privacy Of The Human Body

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to suggest that if your Religious Master Irby wishes to teach his children to value and protect their bodies, he might refer to the book "About My Body" written for Children. It is incomparable in its beauty and explanation of human growth processes: physical, mental, and emotional. I have given a copy of the book with our children, and I recommend it. There is here a much healthier attitude toward their body, and a better understanding of body functions than would be gained from "Nude World" or "Men" magazines.

It seems that whenever children start showing interest or disgust at humanity, they are punished for their inquisitiveness. Children are labelled "dirty minded", mentally perverted", "sex crazed" or "religious freaks". This is unfortunate because in most cases, the opposite is true.

You see there is a difference between believing something to be dirty and believing something to be private. There is a difference between beauty and vulgarity.

I wonder, does Kingston Collegiate close and lock the bathroom doors when it is using the premises? And if so, why? Is this a personal inhibition, dirty and unnatural?

No one should think any body function is dirty, but many of us still believe that some things, and indeed parts of the human body, are private.

Readers Views On The Hustings

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Two rather firm editorials within a week — it's enough to make a man mad. I write of course to your disclosing the high spending notorious of the Liberal Government in Ottawa and their contribution to our present state of living. By inference you doubtless intended to lead them with the taxpayer's money. This is a subject I wouldn't swallow if you were to write a 16-page editorial. Neither party is any better or worse than the other when it comes to spending money that isn't ours. I say as we have this tremendous inquiry throughout the country where people seem resigned to giving up more and more to the free-wheeling spenders in Ottawa. If you think this is a vote-getting issue in Ontario, press a comment and review on the Conservatives in Toronto.

On the matter of inflation or ever-increasing cost of living, I have been waiting for 18 years now, so far in vain, for a really hard-nosed editorial regarding some of the extravagant practices that have taken place in the last three years. For instance, how do you justify Belleville council's inflationary act of increasing the mill rate by 6 mills? How do you justify the proposal to buy the soon-to-be vacated PUC property on Front Street for $1 million and convert it into a parking lot. Does this not use the taxpayers' money in a careless manner? Is this business operations of the Front Street merchants? I have been a more parking space.

How do you justify the building of still another bridge across the Moira River? Will it not simply be easier to get out to the Quinte Mall? If the high-priced consultants who said another bridge will also bring more business into the downtown area, have they backed up their theory with a questionnaire to ascertain if such a benefit will indeed come to pass? I am not against the building of not one, but two interchanges on the 401 which in 4 years ago and since then it is apparent we have learned how to recognize the danger signals at an early stage and correct them rather quickly and economically with a crane and pick-head at the mouth of the river. If every citizen in Belleville could count on going 38 years without a traffic accident, or an illness or a fire, how many of us would carry insurance? If you missed the point I was trying to make, these items are to be insurance against something that hasn't happened yet, I'll buy it.

Finally, how do you justify not having in our council represented by wards? Look up the addresses of our members of council and it is readily apparent what area of the city the majority live in. This is like having all the provincial members of parliament for the province residing in Toronto. Belleville, Hamilton area. I would like to know how we can go about getting a ward for the purpose of representation on city council.

Count Made Of Advance Poll Votes

BRANDON (CP) — Alfred G. Wood, returning officer for Brandon-Souris — constituency, said Wednesday he discovered that votes had been counted and the results given to candidates in one of the advance polls last weekend.

Earlier, commenting on a news story from Ottawa, Mr. Wood said he had no knowledge of such a count.

Mr. Wood said the deputy returning officer and her clerk at Boissevain have been relieved of their posts on instructions of Jean-Marc Hamel, chief electoral officer.

All persons concerned have been cautioned not to release the vote figures, which is an offence under the elections act.

Indians Win

BANGOR, Me. (AP) — Canadian-born North American Indians have an aboriginal right to pass freely over the United States-Canadian border, U.S. District Judge Edward Gignoux has ruled.

In a decision given Tuesday, Gignoux granted the request of a group of Indians for declaratory judgment that they are exempt from immigration law requirements that they register as aliens and obtain visas. The suit was brought by Andrew Akins and seven other Indians.

Back in Air

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Eighteen months after the tragedy from which he emerged at the side mortally, Marten Hartwell has piloted an aircraft in the Far North.

The flight was over the same course, Cambridge Bay to Yellowknife, from which he strayed and eventually crashed Nov. 8, 1972, while on a mercy flight to evacuate two Eskimo patients.

The flight last week was arranged by Mike Hackman, 43, an Edmonton businessman who owns a fishing lodge 50 miles northwest of Cambridge Bay. The job was to ferry a Cessna 180 to Edmonton for repairs.

Nudity Banned

LINCOLN, Ont. (CP) — Town council decided Wednesday to make nude bathing, public sexual intercourse and open consumption of alcohol and drugs illegal in this municipality adjoining St. Catharines.

Town clerk Jan Tufford said the three-page bylaw is aimed at rock festivals.

Seeks Facts

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Status of Women Council has asked the provincial government for a policy statement on birth control information, a council official says.

Marjorie Harvey, executive officer of the council, said Wednesday in an interview that the ministry of health should make birth control information services compulsory in all public health units and hospitals in the province.

Independent Canada Body Hits 3 Parties

TORONTO (CP) — The Committee for an Independent Canada criticized the three major political parties Wednesday, saying they have neglected energy issues and natural resource policy in the federal election campaign.

Bob Page, national committee chairman, said the New Democratic Party is the only one to mention energy in the campaign.

"David Lewis is the only political leader with an acceptable or agreeable policy on the Mackenzie Valley pipeline," he added.

Laborites Say Wage Freeze Would Be Easy

REGINA (CP) — Representatives of six Saskatchewan labor organizations have declared their opposition to Progressive Conservative plans for incomes and a 60-day freeze on prices.

In a series of interviews, the officials said it would be theoretically simple to control wages but difficult to control prices.

Wages are basically frozen already," said Gary Pechpinski, a south Saskatchewan representative of the Canadian Labor Congress.

"The only process to increase wages is through the collective bargaining process. The worker does not have the right to increase wages every month or week as we see happening with the price of goods."

Ken Bench, secretary of the southern Saskatchewan Building and Construction Trades Council, agreed that freezing wages would be simple, "but how do you control prices?"

Gerry Edwards, president of the Regina Labor Council, said that "to freeze the bottom of the wage scale is to subject those people to compulsory poverty."

Other representatives said a freeze might have a harmful effect on collective bargaining.

Son Charged

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Lawrence Kerr, son of Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr, was one of three teen-agers charged Wednesday with possession of marijuana.

Kerr, 18, William Williamson, 17, and Pat Hargreaves, 18, all of Burlington, Ont., were arrested after Hakon regional police checked a station wagon in a town park.

Mr. Page said that Mr. Lewis initially supported the pipeline in December, 1971, when he agreed with Liberal policy to go ahead with its construction.

"But Lewis realized the shortfalls of the project and opposed it in March.

"We want to know why the government is committed to this project when National Energy Board has not heard both sides of the story."

Mr. Page, an associate professor of history and Canadian studies at Trent University in Peterborough, Ont., said these are the years of the "great Canadian sellout" and Canadians will suffer in the next decade because of the present political misdirection.

Stabilization Plan Is Urged for Beef

OTTAWA (CP) — A stabilization plan is needed for the beef industry to help stop wide price fluctuations at the retail level, the chairman of the food prices review board said Wednesday.

Beryl Plumptre told a news conference that a floor price would help producers know what they will get for cattle sent to market. That, in turn, would let consumers know what they will be paying for beef over a reasonable length of time.

Mrs. Plumptre released a board study that shows increases in beef prices during the last year were caused by higher prices at the farm level and not by increases in the price margins of wholesalers and retailers.

Price increases charged by producers were the result of increased grain costs and government actions that "distorted the market" here and in the United States, Mrs. Plumptre said.

A government ban on the importation of lower-priced cattle from the U.S. kept Canadian prices higher, she said. U.S. cattle have been banned until they can be certified free of the growth hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES), a growth agent linked with cancer.

The 1973 price freeze in the U.S. also drove up prices. Farmers held cattle off the market until the freeze was lifted. That action affected Canadian since "it's nearly a North American market" for beef.

Plumptre said the supply of cattle will increase this fall, and result in a softening of retail prices." This will be caused by farmers fattening cattle over a longer period using hay instead of high-priced grain.

Analysis of prices in the Toronto region show that price margins implemented by wholesalers, and retailers had not contributed to the sharp rise in prices in recent years.

"In fact through the period of rapidly rising beef prices in 1972 both beef processors and retailers realized lower margins," she report said.

Mortgages Costly

TORONTO (CP) — A person pays $16,467.26 interest on $1,532.74 of principal during the first five years of payments on a $30,000 mortgage with an interest rate of 11.5 per cent, repayment schedules prepared by a Toronto mortgage company indicate.

Robert Yeaman, a manager with Consumers' Computing, says the figures are startling but that most house-buyers do not fully understand how much interest they will have to pay on a mortgage.

His company, which prepares about 22,000 amortization tables a month for potential homebuyers, says most people receiving the tables are not "reading them as closely as they should."

A person borrowing $30,000 at 11.5 per cent interest on the loan, with payments amortized over 25 years, will eventually pay $105,044.66 to retire the debt.

Forest Fires Spreading

TORONTO (CP) — Forest fires continue to spread through sections of northwestern Ontario with firefighters forced to battle both flames and adverse weather conditions, Dr. J. K. Reynolds, deputy minister of natural resources, said Wednesday.

A total of 71 fires was burning Wednesday over 143,000 acres in the area with the largest centred south of Dryden, where 30,000 acres were burning by mid-On Wednesday, a squadron of 62 aircraft, including 23 helicopters and two DC-6 waterbombers from British Columbia and the Northwest Territories, was brought in and deployed across 57,000-square miles east of the Ontario-Manitoba border.

Since the rash of fires broke out June 29, firefighting costs have averaged about $150,000 daily with the total cost approaching $1 million, Dr. Reynolds said.

Board to Hold Hearing

TORONTO (CP) — James Mackey, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board said Wednesday the board will conduct a hearing concerning the liquor licence of the downtown Westover Hotel.

Mr. Mackey's liquor licence was suspended without a hearing ... the hotel owner brought the matter before the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Dennis O'Leary ruled that the liquor board acted improperly when it suspended the licence June 21.

George Yarmoluk, investments Co. Ltd., owner of the hotel, brought the action against the board and was granted costs of the application to quash the suspension.

Mr. Mackey said in an interview that the case is unusual and marks the first time that the board has ever suspended a licence without a hearing.

Stanfield Says Lewis Pawnbroker

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Taking his campaign party leap-frogging through the Maritime provinces Wednesday, Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield suggested David Lewis has been set up as Prime Minister Trudeau in the July 8 election campaign.

"Throughout the campaign, nothing has been more touching to me than the solicitude Mr. Lewis has shown the Liberal leader," Mr. Stanfield said.

The NDP leader had kept up his association with Mr. Trudeau during the campaign by not criticizing certain Liberal proposals such as a means test for additional old-age pension benefits.

Mr. Stanfield suggested Mr. Lewis has had NDP principles "in hock" during the campaign.

"The story of Mr. Lewis, so far as this election is concerned, is his downhill slide from power-broker to pawnbroker in just seven weeks."

The Conservative leader made a late-night appearance at a Moncton rally for Conservative candidate Charles Thomas, who represented Moncton in the last Parliament.

Mr. Thomas was named official candidate after Mr. Stanfield repudiated Mr. Jones, chosen at a Conservative convention in May. Mr. Jones is running as an Independent.

Mr. Stanfield rejected the former Moncton mayor because of his opposition to the Official Languages Act.

Mr. Stanfield was to visit Windsor, Montreal and St. Jerome, Que., today.

Chiefs Tell Indians To Vote PC

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Indians were advised to vote Progressive Conservative in the last of the 23 ridings to the province in the July 8 election by two of their leaders Wednesday.

Forrest Wilson, chairman of the executive committee of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, and Victor Adolph, committee member and former chairman, said in a joint statement Indians should vote Conservative because of the party's pledge to fight for native rights.

The exception in the statement concerned Skeena riding where Frank Howard is the only Democratic Party candidate.

Election Fought On Trivia

OTTAWA (CP) — A joint document prepared by the National Anti-Poverty Organization and the Canadian Association of Social Workers says federal politicians have been fighting the July 8 election campaign on "non-issues and irrelevant trivia."

The publication, entitled the Voter's Blue Book, sets out positions of the three major parties on subjects such as social security, food prices, housing, land and tax policies and agriculture. It advises supporters to vote for the party they feel will best promote the objectives of anti-poverty groups.

$1,500 Annual Income for All

Caouette's Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit party leader, reiterated Wednesday his party's proposed annual income scheme, should it form the next government, following the July 8 federal election.

Mr. Caouette told listeners of French-language radio station CKAC that the first $6,000 in yearly income for a married couple, and the first $3,000 for single persons would be tax-exempt.

Every person over 18 years of age would also receive $1,000 yearly from a Social Credit government as a guaranteed annual income, whether they work or not.

Senior citizens would receive an additional $1,000 a year while parents would get an extra $300 annually per child.

Mr. Caouette said that money would come from the Bank of Canada, and would not increase the monetary supply any more than when Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa "goes to New York to raise funds at certain interest rates."

Mr. Caouette predicted the Liberals will take 118 seats, the Progressive Conservatives 105, Social Credit 27 or more and the NDP 17 or less next Monday.

Old Parties Put Business First - NDP

REGINA (CP) — David Canadian wheat board for the benefit of "their speculating friends."

"They are prepared to ignore the fact that orderly marketing of grains is not only a benefit to Prairie farmers and consumers but also essential to stable supplies and prices for the Canadian consumer."

A text of his remarks was released prior to delivery.

Earlier, Mr. Lewis reiterated his opposition to the federal government's new feed grains policy, scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1.

Making his last tour of the Prairies before the July 8 election, he said the policy will weaken the wheat board and may lead to higher feed grains prices.

The most contentious part of the new policy is a provision that would remove the board's monopoly on sales of feed grain—barley, oats and poorer grades of wheat—from the Prairies to other parts of Canada.

Liberals deny this would mean excessively low prices for feed grain or that it would put farmers at the mercy of private speculators. But Agriculture Commodity Exchange—charges made by New Democrats.

Five of the Saskatchewan ridings elected New Democrats in 1972. Seven others, Conservative and one, Liberal.

Barrett Hits 'CPR Welfare'

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Premier David Barrett of British Columbia said Wednesday the federal Liberal government's proposal to form a Crown corporation to subsidize railway services in the country is "welfare for the CPR."

"I am a social worker and I am opposed to this kind of welfare," he said. "The CPR would be much better than to have the access to taxpayers' money."

Blakeney Attacks Grits For Their Oil Policy

REGINA (CP) — The federal Liberal government has launched a full-scale attack on Saskatchewan's rights to sell oil resources, Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan said Wednesday.

The New Democratic Party premier told an election rally attended by David Lewis, federal party leader, that the attack came when Finance Minister John Turner brought down his federal budget May 8.

"It's time we brought down the Liberals," he said to cheers from a largely partisan crowd of about 1,500 that filled a building on the city's exhibition grounds.

In the May 8 budget, the federal government proposed to stop oil companies from deducting their provincial royalty payments from federal taxable income, a move that has drawn sharp criticism from the oil industry. Companies have responded by cutting down exploration activity, saying the government's move amounts to increased tax.

Mr. Blakeney said federal Progressive Conservatives have taken a similar stand to the Liberals' toward provincial resources, some claiming that oil prices are too high for Ontario.

Freeze Is Called Axe for Operation

OTTAWA (CP) — PTime Minister Trudeau says a Liberal government would institute a system of wage and price controls if inflation becomes serious enough to threaten the country's social structure.

But he rejects Progressive Conservative proposals to impose such a system now because that party is advocating it "in the wrong time and in the wrong fashion."

The prime minister told interviewers on a CBC television show taped Monday and shown Wednesday that Conservative suggestions for a wage and price freeze would be similar to using an "axe to operate on appendicitis."

In some circumstances, an axe could be used for such an operation.

But Conservatives were proposing the system when the country was and far away from the "crippling levels of inflation experienced by such countries as Britain and Italy.

Further, the Opposition party says it would not act to control food, fish, house or energy prices, the prime minister adds. Yet those were the commodities that most were contributing to cost too much.

Conservatives were simply feeding people when they said they would also so wage and price controls, allow "all kinds of exceptions."

Earlier, Mr. Lewis reiterated his opposition to the federal government's new feed grains policy, scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1.

Making his last tour of the Prairies before the July 8 election, he said the policy will weaken the wheat board and may lead to higher feed grains prices.

Trudeau Says PCs Shun Basic Problems

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday night accused the Conservative party of being afraid of making some voters unhappy that it is proposing some policies based on what he said were some of the basic social needs of Canadians.

During his third campaign visit to British Columbia, he was again dampened by rain as more than 1,000 people crowded the auditorium and corridors of the Vancouver Coliseum to hear him describe Progressive Conservatives as "those who think the bottle is half empty and cry in despair."

The prime minister, accompanied by his wife Margaret, said that his opponent Robert Stanfield is afraid of making some people unhappy because "he's afraid of making Quebec unhappy . . . he doesn't talk about the Quebec problem. He's afraid of making Indians and Eskimos unhappy . . . he doesn't talk about their problems. And what has he said about the law of the sea conference?

At one stage, the prime minister said the Conservatives are good at telling people what that they don't come up with any solutions.

"You should know," shouted a heckler.

"Yes, I know," replied the prime minister, "I met a lot of them in the hotel lobbies during the campaign."

He said this campaign gave voters a clear choice, something that didn't exist in the 1972 campaign when the issue was "Trudeau or Lewis."

"Now there is a clear choice of responsible policies and hope in the future of Canada or rolling back economy and failure."

About 1,000 people were on hand at a Pound River to welcome the prime minister and

Nothing To Do?

It's Good for You

"Hey!" says your friend at the office. "Whatcha gonna do this weekend?"

Feeling very dull, you admit the worst. "Oh, um, nothing, really."

Don't be embarrassed. Chances are you're not as idle slugabed, nor do you lead a boring life. You might even be ahead of your time.

You may have discovered for yourself what some psychologists are now telling us — that doing nothing is being lazy. And being lazy is often a very good and necessary thing.

The recent swell of encouragement for the loafer in the hammock has come as a reaction to his opposite; the 'workaholic.'

Workaholics don't know how to stop. They're involved in constant activity, planning the next project before the current one is over.

Their vacations become rushed tours from one fleeting point of interest to another.

Life has no meaning for them unless they're winning goals, even in the pursuit of pleasure.

But, says researchers into heart disease, mental illness and system disorders such as ulcers, workaholics lose in the long run.

Stress, without periods of relaxation to recharge the body's batteries, is a killer.

All very cheerful news for those of us who are lazy bums at heart.

It's such a refreshing change to have our "just lying around and daydreaming" sanctioned.

In fact, no matter what you've been told by angry teachers who wanted your attention, daydreaming is not all bad.

The daydream provides a fertile ground from which spring many of man's best ideas. (After all, Newton was not struck on apple trees when struck by the idea of gravity . . .)

Even apparently useless daydreaming — fantasies of fortune, success and love — have their place in our lives. They round out our ordinary existence, and may even propel us to achieve the stuff we dream of.

A true sloth, of course, hardly even daydreams. He can dawdle dimly for hours, thinking of nothing.

And nothing is so infuriating to a parent who wants the grass mowed, or a mate who has a schedule of things to do.

But what's more crucial, I ask you — a lawn that's shaggy a little longer, or a happy, hassle-free kid?

Few things seem worse, either, than the report card labelling your child: "Lazy. Stares out the window during class."

Yet this very quality might be the one that saves the little nipper from early extinction.

Okay, people who take the time to chew on a blade of grass and watch the clouds change shape may not always live longer.

I wouldn't go that far.

But I'll bet they have important things, like how many spots there are on a ladybug's back.

You go ahead to your whappo tennis game . . . or stay indoors and work for that promotion . . .

I'm off in the backyard to do some serious research into survival.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS DILLIO

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston

Johnston — Beach

A clearing on a wooded hillside was the setting for the wedding June 1 of Anne Elizabeth Beach and William Alan Johnston. They exchanged vows in a double ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. E.C. Brown, minister of Frankford United Church, and the Rev. C. Judd, of Bloomfield. The bride's grandfather, Mr. Hector Beach, composed and read the closing invocation.

Anne is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Beach, Frankford, Ont., and William is the son of Dr. and Mrs. E.E. Johnston, of London, Ont.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white satin dress with leaded bodice and short train. A full length veil fell from a simple comb, and she wore a cameo brooch which had belonged to her grandmother. She carried an arm bouquet of white lilacs and long-stemmed white roses.

The maid of honor, Eleanor Beach, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Audrey Johnston, sister of the groom, were gilbert jumpers with white and green flowered blouses. They carried bouquets of white lilacs and yellow roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Eric Johnston, of Brockton, Ont., and ushers were brothers of the bride and groom, John and David Beach and Peter Johnston.

The reception was held at the White House Inn, Deighton.

They will reside in Toronto where William has recently opened a law practice and Anne will intern at the Women's College Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Culhane

Culhane — Scott

Robert Jane Scott and Gregory Stephen Culhane were united in marriage in June at St. Michael's Church with Father Kenneth Stitt officiating at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Janet Scott, Belleville; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Culhane, Belleville.

Given in marriage by Major D. Timms, Ottawa, the bride wore a chapel gown with a high neckline. A juliet cap decorated with chantilly lace caught a four tiered illusion veil. She carried red roses and lily of the valley.

Kathy Beecher, matron of honor, wore sheer over pink taffeta gown and carried daisies and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids Stephanie Timms and Mary and Colleen Culhane were similarly attired.

Groomsman at the wedding was Paul Stanton, assisted by Mike Culhane, John Culhane and Steven Culhane.

A buffet at the Four Seasons preceded the couple's wedding trip to the southern United States.

They will reside at 94 Sidney St. Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pierce

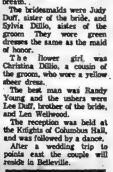
Pierce — Lindstrom

Westminster United Church was the setting for the wedding of Colleen Averil Lindstrom and Thomas Joseph Pierce. Rev. Frank Mitchell and Rev. Ron Stitt officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Margaret Lindstrom, RR 1, Belleville and the late Harold Lindstrom; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pierce, RR 1, Enterprise.

Given in marriage by her uncle, John Armstrong the bride wore an empire line gown of imported organza and valenciennes lace. Valenciennes lace bordered the neckline and outlined the sleeves. The bemilleved the demi-bell skirt and attached chapel train was enclosed by a lace edged band. The headpiece was white velvet and held a finger tip veil edged in valenciennes lace. She carried a cascade of baby pink roses.

Following the bride was Ann Linstrom, the bride's sister wore an empire line gown with mauve flowers on a white silk background. She wore a white wide brimmed hat and carried a nosegay of mauve and yellow daisies with white ribbons.



The bridesmaids, Kathy Zinck and Theresa Fowler were gowns and accessories similar to the bride's attendant.

The flower girl Joanne Harkness, great-niece of the bride, wore a gown in similar style as the other attendants. Her headpiece was a halo of flowers interlaced in her hair. The ring bearer Timmy Fenton wore a white suit trimmed in gold and carried a white satin pillow with lace trim and the two wedding rings.

The best man was Ray Shillington and the ushers were Dan Harkness and Doug Higgins.

After a dinner served by the church women, there was a dance held at the Legion Room at the Quinte Hotel.

The couple took a wedding trip to Pennsylvania and Ontario. They will reside in Belleville.

JOHN SAMUEL CHISHOLM, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Chisholm, RR 3, Belleville, Ontario, received his Bachelor of Science Degree on May 22 at Guelph University. John is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville, Ontario.

SHIRLEY EVELYN CASWELL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Caswell of 123 Avondale Road, Belleville, Ontario, and the late Joyce Roltan of Tweed) graduated from the Kingston General Hospital School of Nursing. Evelyn won the "Silver Medal Award" for General Proficiency on Friday, June 28, 1974 at Grant Hall in Kingston. Evelyn is a graduate of Centennial Secondary School, Belleville Ont. She has accepted a position at the Kingston General Hospital.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan are pleased to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter Gloria-Jean to Frank Zanier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zanier of Toronto. The wedding will take place Saturday July 13, 1974, at 4 p.m. West Huntington Presbyterian Church.

Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sero are pleased to announce the marriage of their elder Eleanor Margaret Fereh to Brian G. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lewis of Strathroy. The ceremony took place at 6 p.m. Friday June 28 at Poplar Hill Baptist Church near London, Ontario.

Doreen Silver Greer and James William Jenkins wish to announce their marriage on June 27, at Kingston.

Ann Landers

She Okays Hubby's Date 'For Old Time's Sake'

Dear Ann Landers: I think you are a narrow-minded fool to tell that wife she has a right to object to her husband taking his ex-wife out to dinner to celebrate their former wedding anniversary.

My husband and I agreed that this would be an annual event and the same went for her birthday. I also said it would be OK with me if they went together on those two nights of the year, for old time's sake. I realize I'm very broad-minded, but it paid off. My husband was pleased as punch and his ex-wife never gives us any trouble. Actually, most men do what they want anyway, so a smart wife says, "Have a ball" and then she doesn't get faked out. Sign me — Broad-Minded

Dear Solver: Most women wouldn't tolerate such monkey business, but apparently you figure your husband is going to do as he pleases and have decided to go along with it. If it's all right with you, it's all right with me, lady, but I'm glad he's yours and not mine.

Dear Ann Landers: Boys who have sex in their early teens don't think of it as "giving up their virginity" but "gaining their manhood." At least that's what I'm hearing. My letters and my way of life.

Papermaking, bookbinding and glass-blowing are also demonstrated.

All in all it's one of the best exhibitions you'll find anywhere at any price.

To get to the Ontario Science Centre, drive north on the 401 to the Don Valley Parkway, just inside Toronto. Go south on the parkway. Watch for Ontario Science Centre signs and exit where indicated. Good signs will clearly mark the way.

It's best to leave Belleville early, if you're driving. The centre opens daily at 10 a.m. and gets crowded very fast.

It's open until 5 p.m. on Monday and until 10 p.m. every other day.

If you want to take the train, try the early one to Union Station in Toronto. Then board the Yonge St. subway going north to the Eglington station.

At the Eglington bus station stand on Platform No. 6 and take the Eglington East bus to Don Mills Road. A few steps will take you to the science centre.

The public transportation method will cost a little more: train fares to Toronto are Monday -to Wednesday $12.50 return and $14.00 return on other days of the week. Children from five to 11 pay half fare and once in the city it will cost 30 cent a ticket or four tickets for $1 to ride the TTC.

Admission to the science centre itself is $1.50 for adults. It's cents for students and 25 cents for children under 12. There is a $2.50 maximum per family.

Children Need Love

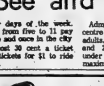
By DORIS CLARK

I have said that children need the feeling of being loved. This is an emotional need, sometimes expressed in affection from parents, teachers, playmates.

It's a community responsibility too. There are children in our home fails in its job of giving affection and security. It then that the understanding teacher or neighbor is doing a service by stepping into the breach and calling the attention of a child welfare agency to her youthful student's dilemma.

Perhaps the solutions, for a time, is to move such a child into a foster home, with kind and considerate foster parents. Usually, at the same time, the social workers will be counselling parents, either to help them to understand their love for each other, or to organize separate lives.

Ideally, the home is kept together and the needy child brought into it with a better hope of demonstrated affection and love from the foster parents than from the mest to him.



Dear Doris: Your column continues, as always to be most interesting and helpful. Some day I should like to go into the problem of the divorcees and widows and how we are discriminated against by our married acquaintances.

Might be quite enlightening, but can it be solved at all?

Peace and Privilege.

Dear Discouraged: It must be a defect in our culture; and also perhaps an evidence of the double standard. A song says it for us: "You're Nobody Until Somebody Loves You!" But the song is addressed to both male and female hearers.

It could be solved if we worked at loving people, rather than acting out socially acceptable couples for parties and activities. Some of our free spirits do solve it, regularly, with loyalty to long friendship; and a blithe unconcern as to whether their social arrangements come out exactly hair-male and half female!

Austrian Women Improve Status

NEW YORK (AP) — Though she refused to take credit for the change, Elfriede Kirl reports improvement in the status of women in Austria, where she has been appointed a cabinet minister for family policy and women's rights since 1971.

"The whole government and the Social Democratic party have worked toward this end," said Miss Kirl, who was attending an international conference in New York.

Thanks to recent legislation, Austria, with 7,395,000 people, will be permitted in Austria under regulations similar to those in the United States.

"Abortion is not denied, either from a sociological view or from the view of the woman herself," she said. "But the option must remain open. Our emphasis is on the positive — contraception."

Since Austria has no surplus population, family planning is considered from the standpoint of the individual, rather than as a means of controlling population.

Women, married or single, receive free medical attention during pregnancy and get a year's leave from their job after giving birth.

MANY WORKING WOM.

"But we are not seeking to encourage large families," said Miss Kirl. "The laws have been enacted to help people who already have children and to prevent women from having abortions for economic reasons."

In Austria, 40 per cent of all women are in the work force, she said. Occupations and professional groups where women are concentrated include health services, cosmetics, tourism, textile and garment industries, saleswomen and unskilled factory workers. In theory there is equal pay but in practice women's work is undervalued.

"More and more parents are giving their daughters a better education," Miss Kirl said.

"But there are still fewer women in the universities than men — only about 25 per cent are women.

Having achieved abortion reforms, Austrian women now are demanding more part-time jobs, training to the family, such as the legal relationship between children and parents and between husband and wife. Under present laws a man can prohibit his wife from working and the husband has authority over the children.

"Some of the laws date back to 1811 and do not correspond to the structure of today's society," Miss Art said.

The secretary, one of three women in the Austrian cabinet, said the status of women in her country is about equal to that of women in Germany and the United Kingdom.

$6,000 Is Spent by U.S. To Study Polish Frogs

WASHINGTON (CP) — An expenditure of $6,000 for a study of bisexual Polish frogs?

An outlay of $5,000 for an analysis of violin varnish?

And how about $50,000 to ponder the state if the Canada-United States fur trade between the years 1770 and 1820?

Those are only a few examples of U.S. government expenditures which have raised the wrath of Representative Jack Kemp (Rep.-N.Y.).

Congressman Kemp was Quarterback Kemp about 10 years ago when he wore the red, white and blue uniform of Buffalo Bills. Today, he holds down the 38th district of New York for the Republican party and there are those who say that while he may have changed teams, he certainly hasn't changed colors.

Kemp is a conservative Republican and one of his crusades is for reduction in government spending as a means of cutting the cost of living.

And so it is with ire and indignation—but not without humor—that Kemp has entered a list of "ludicrous expenditures" into the Congressional Record.

Calling on the research of James Dale Davidson, executive-director of the National Taxpayers' Union, Kemp notes that "some genius got $5,000 to write the poem [light]" and quotes Davidson:

"That's not the title, by the way; that's the poem. The whole thing comes to seven letters worth $714.28 each."

The department of health, education and welfare put out $19,300 to find out why children fall off tricycles: The answer—"unstable performance, particularly rollover, while turning."

Then there was the expenditure of $70,000 which "went to the study of the smell of perspiration given off by an Australian aborigine."

On this point, the article in the Record comments:

"No doubt some money could have been saved on the . . . project if only the state department had prevailed upon Turkey to lend the Australians the odor-measuring machine we purchased for the Turks for $28,361."

Other examples:

"The Queen of England received $68,000 for not planting cotton on her plantation in Mississippi. Ford Motor Co. got only $14,000 for not planting wheat, and Libby McNeill garnered $19,000 for growing no onions.

"The Queen, the article states, 'came off like a proletarian' compared with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, who picked up $2 million to purchase a luxury yacht.

Another $25,000 was consumed investigating the "cultural, economic and social impact of rural road construction in Poland," while $20,000 was devoted to the study of the blood groupings of Polish Zlotnika pigs.

"In another area of great concern to average taxpayers," the article states, "$20,300 was spent to learn about the mating calls of Central American toads".

And Kemp, who voted for cutting military spending, must have shed a tear to report: "The Pentagon spent $775,000 to study the Frisbee." (The Frisbee is a plastic saucer-like toy skimmed from hand to hand in a game of catch.)

Ready with Advice

The five law students from Kingston who operate the Queen's Legal Aid project at the United Community Services building at 240 William Street have helped 175 Bellevilie residents since they opened their doors in May. The students, Larry Goldapple, Brian Law, Rein Kas, Jim Smith and Charles Balme, hope to provide advice to people who have minor legal problems that they would not normally take to a lawyer. Their office is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and again from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Law Students Legal Advisers

To the uninitiated, the Canadian legal process can be a jungle.

If you are buying trouble with your landlord, your wife, or the man who sold you that used car, you may find yourself befuddled by the forms, facts and fine dollar words that hide your legal problems and their solutions.

Bike Fall Injuries Serious

A nine-year-old Bellevilie boy, David Bishop, of 733 Catherine Street is listed in "satisfactory" condition at Toronto's Sick Children's Hospital this morning after he fell from his bicycle on Catherine Street yesterday afternoon.

The Bishop boy was riding his bicycle east down the Catherine Street hill shortly after 4 p.m. yesterday when he fell and injured his head.

He was rushed to Bellevilie General Hospital by ambulance and was treated there for cuts to his head, face and hands.

Later in the evening, he was transferred to Toronto where he is being treated for head injuries.

The Campaigners

Gottfried: Timid, Now Confident

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Federal candidates for the New Democratic Party in the Prince Edward-Hastings riding, Ontario, Gottfried, is energetically hiking down the campaign trail.

Mr. Gottfried, a 33-year-old teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, relies on canvassing and door-to-door contacts as the backbone of his bid for election.

"Frankly, the first time I went canvassing I was very timid. Now, I enjoy it," Mr. Gottfried confides the candidate who is seeking office for the third time in as many elections.

The Gottfried campaign has included ministerial stops in Picton, Trenton and Belleville and the workers' response is reported as "exceptional." Door-to-door canvassing is also is earning good reception, according to the candidate who sounds the pavement nightly searching for those who are participating in three such particulars, twice as a party worker and now as a candidate.

The evening team has Harvey Gottfried with party workers who invest an hour or so of a street as he walks the other. If a voter raises a specific question, the candidate can be summoned by one of his supporters to provide the answer.

The only candidate to make a pitch from Picton's Main Street during this election campaign, Mr. Gottfried also has reached out to electors through all-candidates sessions.

He says that he would have supported more of these meetings in the campaign as they offer a good opportunity to communicate views and policy to the press. Views also are spread by word of mouth, following the sessions.

Mr. Gottfried observes that most all-candidates' meetings attract only the committed voters but there is long range benefit from these opportunities to discuss issues.

The candidate has geared his campaign to all segments of the population but admits that the greatest bids for support have been made in the towns of the riding. This is explained by the fact that there is a limited number of party workers and concentration of effort is necessarily in the built-up areas. Mr. Gottfried adds that he has made every possible effort to address the rural voter during every campaign.

He notes that the all-candidates' session he has addressed were sponsored by farm organizations. Consequently, a number of rural residents were in the audience.

Although Prince Edward-Hastings has been traditionally a Tory riding, MR. Gottfried feels he can forget it. Noting its most optimistic campaign to date, the candidate feels the simple Beach Boys adage "most definitely" are more receptive to the NDP in this federal campaign.

"There is a general acceptance, probably because of the role of the NDP in the last parliament," he says.

A Physics teacher at PECI, Mr. Gottfried contends that he was "incredibly busy" in the last two weeks of school. Now he is finished with classroom teaching and finds that he can spend more time in the evenings in campaigning. There are still papers in the desk and inventories to be taken and meetings to be attended but the general pace has slackened.

His campaign has settled into a fast - paced bid for voter support, with daytime canvassing and door-to-door canvassing by evenings. Also, Mr. Gottfried spends time each week consolidating with Key campaign workers planning sessions.

If there's a spring rain canvassing is cut short and the candidate may catch an early night's rest.

Mr. Gottfried comments that he has spoken with many voters and reports that a number feel they have voted repeatedly for the Liberal or Conservative parties without real results. They are now seeking a switch to the NDP, after years of traditional loyalties.

"I think basically a lot of people have been voting Liberal or Conservative find their choice difficult. The Liberals are blamed for the increase in the cost of living. Many do not see Stanfield or Lewis Progressive Conservative Party as a viable alternative," he remarks.

At his committee rooms for a visit with campaign manager Richard Sutton and other party workers, the candidate finds up to a dozen people in the doorway. They are passing through and offer support in the form of buttons, stickers and posters.

"It's the only common sense thing," says the man as he refers to his support of the NDP.

The unexpected visit typifies the changing tide mentioned only moments before by the candidate.

Harvey Gottfried thanks his workmates and turns to make plans for another night of ringing doorbells on campaign avenues.

Harvey Gottfried Accepts Nomination

High Mortgages Slow Sales

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

For Bellevilie and district real estate brokers, spring — traditionally a heavy buying time — is looking worse than January, as interest rates continue to scare off prospective buyers.

First mortgages are gone for around 12 per cent at conventional lending institutions and seconds — available only at secondary lenders and private sources — are at 16 per cent.

"This is the source of the biggest buyer resistance," says Gerald Joyce, Bellevilie and District Real Estate Board president. "People in many cases will just not pay these interest rates."

Interest rates collapsed the realtor balloon following April as near million dollar sales in February slid to half million dollar sales in a single month that usually brings bristling business.

April 9, while Mr. Joyce refers to as D Day, the legislature passed two pieces of provincial legislation placing a 29 per cent surtax on non-resident land owners and a 50 per cent of profit, land speculation tax.

"It's hard to relate the direct effect these two pieces of legislation had last on the market, but coincidentally interest rates went up at about the same time," said Mr. Joyce.

Since January the number of homes listed on multiple listing service has increased 50 per cent, from "heavily" going into March. In April — following new legislation — the number of sales dropped $100,000. In May dropped another $200,000 and levelled off in June.

According to Mr. Joyce "there are plenty of homes on the market — enough to satisfy the buying public."

But with mortgages money almost non-existent a few weeks ago, is now available but almost still are not selling.

"High ratio mortgages (90 per cent of the principal with the buyer providing 10 per cent down) sounded pretty good when they were selling for around 10 per cent ... but a 90 per cent mortgage isn't good enough to make 13 per cent interest sound good," said Mr. Joyce.

Mr. Joyce levels most of his criticism at Canada's senior governments and says it is their move to relax interest rates to allow home ownership.

"The federal government is slowing down the economy and it used the building industry as the brakes," he said.

Mr. Joyce said, Either enough political pressure be brought to bear forcing the governments to reduce the Bank of Canada prime lending rate (thereby reducing the cost of loans to individual) or the government informally allows lenders to drop their interest rates, regardless of the prime rate."

Mortgages, said Mr. Joyce "are one of the most lucrative, secured investments."

Responding to the demand for mortgage money, he city brought the matter money lenders into council chambers to discuss the matter. At that time no one would forecast either the availability of funds or the price for mortgages.

Is there anything a buyer can hope for, it's a downward trend in asking prices.

The marketing principal of supply and demand should begin to affect the market with increasing numbers of home listed and decreasing numbers being sold.

Mr. Joyce, hesitant to speculate on price trends, said "the current situation, would at least have a stabilizing or levelling off effect on housing prices."

In the meantime, Bellevilie is looking at a zero vacancy rate in rental dwellings.

Mr. Joyce points to this as one of the effects of provincial legislation and the resulting tough market for the buyer.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1974

Farm Policy Changes Urged

Restructuring of farm policy to completely embed Canadian agriculture is to survive as a basic industry, Jack Ellis warned Wednesday.

Among his proposals at a Thurlow township rally:

— Refrafting and updating of the best from standing legislation.

— Recognition that farming is entitled to the same financial assistance other industries have been receiving for years.

— Specifically, a $18 payment per hundredweight for industrial milk to dairy farms, where production is fluctuating.

— If necessary a consumer subsidy on butter, payment of which may be declining world markets.

Mr. Ellis said down his attitude as to agriculture problems to supporters at Club Cedars in Corbyville.

It was among the last of organized political rallies in his bid for office as the general election headed toward conclusion. The rally drew supporters from the riding's south - east Hastings and Bellevilie, before the Ellis campaign headquarters for one more wrapup rally at Bancroft.

Long-standing legislation like ARDA and The Farm Land Act should be combed for successful features, he said.

These could be made more applicable where necessary and integrated into present agricultural policy. The broad objective would be to not only encourage producers to stay on the farm but prompt young people to move to farming.

Financial aid to other industries has been acceptable for years. Now the same approach should prevail in farming, he said.

Pressing needs of dairy farmers may open the way for the consumer with a further increase in prices. Last year Canada bought 87 million pounds of butter, stored for 6½ cents a pound. But this year, other producing countries are facing scarcities. The Republic of Ireland has offered the commodity at $1.20 a pound.

"If world started quoting butter at those prices we'd be in real trouble," he said. Farmers should receive $18 a hundredweight for their milk. This would increase butter prices and a subsidy might be necessary. But this would be a consumer, not a farmer, subsidy.

Such a subsidy would be spent in Canada and partially retrieved in taxes.

"How much would you get back from Ireland?" asked Mr. Ellis.

Mr. Ellis said he also was "astounded" to hear his "two major opponents" in the campaign state recently on television they would not allow the city of Bellevilie to grow or neighborhood to expand.

The irons, he said, is going to grow "reasonably".

Air Service Name Only

Quintair is now a company on paper only, according to spokesman Alan Morton.

The company was making strides toward providing a charter air service out of the Bellevilie - Trenton airport, but according to Mr. Morton, there was not sufficient sentiment to support the single Beech Baron aircraft. It has since been sold.

"All licences have been cancelled and all that is left is the name," said Mr. Morton.

Asked if he and his partners would consider another aircraft venture, he said, "we don't want to lost money that badly."

Alarm Box

Bellevilie firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Thursday:

Wednesday, July 3, garage fire at 186 James Street, believed to have started in some old clothes stored next to wall, minor damage.

The Earth Yields

Prompted by work of three Bellevilie high school students, vegetable plot yielding food for needy during experiment which hopefully will prove cost benefit of homegrown produce. Funded by federal Opportunities for Youth are Chris Perry, 17, (left), Ted Wilton and Andrew Tipper, both 16.

Three Young Gardeners Hoeing for the Future

A vegetable garden, seeded by a trio of teenagers in the Bellevilie area, may yet blossom with benefits for consumers.

But that's only part of the experiment's potential.

Mostly folk will be immediate beneficiaries. Local farmers also could reap information on a possible new vegetable crop.

It's all par of an Opportunities for Youth project with a name as long as the growing season: Cutting Food Costs Through Gardening for the Future.

Behind the title are Moira Secondary School students Chris Perry, 17, Ted Wilton and Andrew Tipper, both 16.

Their project is actually centred in phases and currently has them laboring over vegetable plots at Parrots and on Elmwood Drive, just east of the city.

At Fotheve, the youths are experimenting with brussel sprouts, a late-season vegetable that has never been grown in any quantity in the Quinte district. The aim is to test the feasibility of producing the vegetable in the area.

The Elmwood experiment also has a long-range objective, although it will be producing worthwhile community side effects all summer.

The team is growing a variety of vegetables, hopeful of demonstrating the worth of a home garden produce for householders. Convinced of its potential to consumers hit by rising food prices, the trio will record the cost of their operation. This will be tallied against the costs of similar volumes of vegetables.

The youths plan to distribute the vegetables grown to needy families. They have approached Bellevilie's United Community services with the idea and estimate about 180 city households could be involved.

The three students give credit for the original application to Herschel Reilley, project co-ordinator and their employment supervisor, both of at Moira Sdcondary School.

Their employment and others in the community also readily responded to make the project possible.

The twin experiments will cost a total $2,810 in federal OFY funds. But at its conclusion the trio speculate they may have saved more than the $70 a week allowed them in wages.

OFY programming isn't tied to their growing season. Its funding runs from June to August. But the youths started work in May — when ground had to be turned. They don't expect to finish until October. Meaning they've been spending most of their wages to buy supplies.

Chris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perry donated ground for the vegetable plot behind their Elmwood Drive home. A city supplier — Bishop's Nook — advanced them credit and made sure stocks were available in a season when many big demand for seeds.

Jack Fotheve, a section of land was given over for the project through approval by farmer Henry VanWinkoop, who plowed and fertilized the plots.

The Fotheve project came about as a partnership between Andrew's father — Graham Tipper, Hastings County provincial government agricultural representative — and a Bloomfield canner. The canning factory, interested in vegetable from crop in the district, donated the relatively expensive aprons seed.

Already, one group in the community has profited by the Elmwood plot this week. They were delivered by the three to Bellevilie's Cheshire Home for handicapped adults.

Gaylord Perry One Off Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nobody is going to rain on Gaylord Perry's parade.

The Cleveland right-hander survived a 90-minute rain delay and continued his march toward an American League baseball record, beating Milwaukee Brewers 4-2 Wednesday night.

"There is more pressure each game," admitted the Indian pitcher after winning his 15th straight game. "I know it's there, but I think I pitch better under pressure."

The streak is one short of the American League mark of 16 shared by Walter Johnson, Joe Wood, Lefty Grove and Schoolboy Rowe.

Ruhe Marquard of the National League's old New York Giants holds the major league record of 19, set in 1912.

Perry endured despite impatient crowds. He said that his hitting slipped because of the rain delay in the seventh inning.

"I had a tough time getting my rhythm back," said Perry. "My curve ball got me behind a few hitters after that, but it clipped them set up my other pitches. I just went out and changed my rhythm."

In the other American League games, Kansas City Royals beat Chicago White Sox 5-3, Detroit Tigers stopped New York Yankees 8-4, Texas Rangers rated Minnesota Twins 7-2, Baltimore Orioles raved a doubleheader from Boston Red Sox, 9-2 and 6-4 and Oakland A's clipped California Angels 3-2.

John Lowenstein knocked in all the Indian runs with a three-run homer and a squeeze bunt.

Perry, 15-1, who hasn't lost since opening day, tied the Indians' record for successive victories set by Early Allen in 1937.

Lowenstein's fifth homer, a homer, his fifth of the season, broke up a pitchers' duel between Perry and Jim Colborn, 4-5, as the Indians won their fifth game in a row and ninth in 10 starts.

For Once, Marshall Stays Put

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mike Marshall finally missed pitching in a game Wednesday night.

It wasn't that the Los Angeles Dodgers' iron man was tired after pitching in a record 13 consecutive games. There just was no point in calling for him in the second game of Wednesday night's National League baseball doubleheader at Chicago.

The Reds got too far ahead too quickly for Marshall to be able to do anything about the 6-0 Cincinnati victory.

For a while, it appeared that Marshall's record streak might end at six straight games. Tommy John was sailing along smoothly in the opener.

But when the Reds put two men on base with one out in the ninth, manager Walt Alston summoned Marshall into his third game of the season and 19th in a row.

Marshall responded by striking out Johnny Bench and getting Tony Perez on a grounder to end his 14th save of the season. He has also won 10 games.

In other National League games Wednesday, New York Mets stopped Philadelphia Phillies 6-2, San Francisco Giants edged San Diego Padres 3-2, Atlanta Braves took Houston Astros 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates slipped Montreal Expos 1-1 and St. Louis Cardinals shut out Chicago Cubs 5-0.

The split kept the Dodgers' fat National League West lead at 8½ games over the Reds.

In the opener, Ron Cey hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers and John had the Reds shut out on three hits until the seventh inning when Tony Perez homered.

Pete Rose opened the ninth with a single and after a strikeout, Davey Lopes booted the Morgan's double play bouncer, putting the tying run at the plate and Marshall on the mound.

In the nightcap, Don Gullett and Doug Rau were in a scoreless battle until the fifth inning. Then Pete Rose tagged a sacrifice field home run and Cincinnati added another run on alleies by Dave Concepcion and Morgan and a sacrifice fly by Perez.

Rusty Staub and Cleon Jones smashed home runs leading the Mets past the slumping Phillies. Ted Martinez and Staub had three hits each for the Mets.

San Francisco won its first game under new manager Wes Westrum, defeating San Diego on a 10th inning home run by Gary Matthews. The Giants had dropped four straight games since Westrum took over as manager last week.

A pinch sacrifice fly by Hank Aaron in the 11th inning gave Atlanta its win over Houston.

Larry McWilliams of our affiliate carried St. Louis past Chicago and enabled the Cardinals to open a three-game4 end in the National League East.

Three Nordiques For Team Canada

QUEBEC (CP) — Three members of Quebec Nordiques were named Wednesday to the World Hockey Association's Team Canada '74 that will meet the Soviet Union in an eight-game exhibition series in Canada and Soviet later this year.

Selected from Les Nordiques were veteran defenceman J. C. Tremblay, along with forwards Rejean Houle and Serge Bernier. The three will join Bobby Hawes—father Gordie and sons Mark and Marty—from Houston Aeros, left winger Bobby Hull from Winnipeg Jets, and goaltender Gerry Cheevers from Cleveland Crusaders on the elite squad.

The four-game Canadian leg of the series begins in Quebec City Sept. 17, shifts to Toronto two days later, then moves to Western Canada for games a Winnipeg and Vancouver Sept. 21 and 23 respectively.

The team leaves Canada Sept. 25 for Helsinki, Finland, for an exhibition game and training camp before playing four games in Moscow Oct. 3-8.4.

Lou Lefaivre of the federal government's Sport Canada organization and Dennis Kozak, executive secretary of Hockey Canada, were here to announce further details of the series Wednesday.

Lefaivre said some difficulties could surface over the Sept. 19 playing date in Toronto and that negotiations were under way with Maple Leaf Gardens there. The Gardens are owned and operated by Harold Ballard, president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

If the Toronto building was not available, Lefaivre said it was possible the venue could be shifted to another city, possibly Ottawa.

A Day of Tennis Upsets

LONDON (AP) — Chris Evert, and her fiancee, Connors, now, are the logical favorites to take the Wimbledon singles titles, but a man old enough to be father of the bride, Ken Rosewall of Australia, is a sentimental pick in the tennis tournament.

Defending champions Billie Jean King and Ilie Nastase were sidelined in Wednesday's quarter-finals along with highly touted Australians, 1971 winner Evonne Goolagong and top seeded John Newcombe.

That left the 19-year-old Miss Evert and Connors, 22, as the top seeds left in the tournament. Rosewall has been trying to win for 22 years.

Miss Evert was to meet Kerry Melville and Olga Morozova of the Union Soviet to face Virginia Wade in the women's singles semi-finals today.

"I haven't beaten Chris in the last couple of years," said Miss Melville. "With Billie Jean out, Chris must be the favorite now."

Connors' semi-final opponent was to be Dick Stockton, but while Rosewall will take on Stan Smith. It is the first time both have reached the men's semi-finals since 1967.

Miss Evert and Connors withdrew from the mixed doubles where they had been given a good chance to upset ISF defenders, Miss King and Owen Davidson of Australia.

Miss Evert, the No. 2 seed from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Fleming of Canada, advanced to the semi-finals with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Miss Wade of Wem. Geometry while her doubles partners, Connors, upset Miss King 7-5, 6-3.

Billie Jean has won 17 Wimbledon titles, including five singles crowns.

Miss Melville pulled an upset almost as stunning as the Russian's. She ousted Miss Goolagong 9-7, 1-6, 6-4. Miss Wade, 6-1.

Rosewall, a finalist three times but never able to win the championship among his other runner-up honors, ousted Smith, the top-seeded Newcombe 6-1, 1-6, 8-6, 7-5.

Rosewall showed brilliance in the first and third set against Smith, who was basically a strong serve failed him. But Newcombe had a double fault in fourth set. With the score 5-5 and Newcombe leading 40-15 on Rosewall's service, he was going for a break but missed and Rosewall battled back.

Smith, who won the title here in 1972, became one of three American semifinalists by outlasting Charlie Sheil of Expo 9-4, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

Connors has won 17 Wimbledon titles, including five singles crowns.

WILLIE STARGELL

JERRY REUSS

Stargell, Reuss Sink the Expos

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell hit a two-strike pitch over the 12th home run of the season leading off the bottom of the ninth inning, giving Pittsburgh a 2-1 win over Montreal Expos in a National League baseball game Wednesday night.

Stargell's homer against reliever John Montague gave the Pirates their 16th consecutive victory at home and rewarded Jerry Reuss' seven-hit pitching.

Montague took a 1-0 lead in the third inning.

Ron Hunt opened the ninth with a single and took third when Willie Davis' single to left was misplayed by Stargell, who missed a shoestring catch.

Dave Cash followed with a sacrifice fly to right to score Hunt.

The Pirates tied it in their half of the third off Don Demeter, making his first major league start.

Richie Zisk singled, took second on Mario Mendoza's single, moved to third on Rennie Stennett's ground out and scored on a wild pitch.

The victory was the seventh for Reuss in his last eight decisions. It was the 25th complete game in his last nine starts. His earned-run average is 1.91 in his 19 games in under 2.47, and he extended his hitting streak to six games by beating an infield single in the eighth.

Demola left the game after leading off and straining his bicep in his pitching arm. The injury was not believed to be serious.

In the Montreal ninth, Ken Singleton opened with a single. Pinch-runner Larry Lintz took second on Jim Gos' sacrifice and moved to third on a fly to centre by Barry Foote. However, Woods took a called third strike to end the inning.

Als Suspend John Harvey

MONTREAL (CP) — Running back John Harvey has been suspended by Montreal Alouettes for the second time in three days, the Eastern Football Conference club announced Wednesday night.

Coach Marv Levy said just before the 11:30 p.m. EDT deadline, "I flight for Winnipeg where they play the Blue Bombers in an exhibition watch tonight that "it's going to take more than just his asking me to play again to get him off the suspended list."

YORK TAKES SECOND

HELSINKI (CP) — Teri York of Vancouver placed second Wednesday in women's high diving competition during an international meet in this Finnish capital. Ulrika Knape of Sweden was first with 364.65 points and Miss York had 339.95.

Practice — Who Needs It?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Perhaps Ron Lancaster and Jerry Keeling have been playing quarterback in the Canadian Football League for so long they don't need to practice.

A player strike beat the veterans from working out with their teams last weekend but they were by figures in Wednesday's slate of exhibition games.

Lancaster engineered all three Saskatchewan touchdowns, including two in the fourth quarter, as the Roughriders tied the Argonauts 25-25 at Toronto.

Keeling passed to Hugh Oldham and Jim Foley for touchdowns that helped Ottawa Rough Riders down Calgary Stampeders 29-20.

Lancaster played the first quarter, but was relieved in the second by Van Brownson for a couple of series and then until near the end of the third quarter by Randy Mattingly.

Neither replacement was able to get the Riders moving.

George Reed scored the first Saskatchewan touchdown in the first quarter on a one-yard run after Lancaster hit Bobby Thompson on a post pattern, splitting the Argos' secondary.

Then, with Saskatchewan losing 25-11 in the fourth quarter, Lancaster got the Riders moving again.

After the Argos lost a fumble, Lancaster connected with Reed on a pass from Rick Casazza, another returning quarterback.

Calgary touchdowns were scored by Gene Thomas, Tom Forrest and Gerry Shaw. Jackie Canale, who missed a vital field-goal attempt in the final quarter, converted two touchdowns for the Stampeders.

Montreal Alouettes visit Winnipeg Blue Bombers for tonight's only exhibition game.

GRAY LISTED IRD

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Welterweight Clyde Gray of Toronto was listed No. 2 in World Boxing Council rankings released Wednesday. The No. 1 challenger to champion Jose Napoles of Mexico is Hedgemon Lewis of the United States. Art Hafey of Saskatoon, N.S., was ranked No. 9 in the feather-weight division.

Constellation And CTC Win

In Industrial Softball League action Wednesday night, Constellation took a 10-7 decision from Belleville Yardmen and Canadian Tire edged the Intell 5-8.

Constellation had to squelch a seventh inning surge before picking up their two points from the Yardmen.

The losers came on with five runs in the final inning, after trailing 10-3, before finally being put out.

Ken Kerik threw the win, allowing seven runs on nine hits and two walks. He fanned four Yardmen batters.

The Yardmen hurler Brian Plumbe, fanned two, issued one walk and gave up 10 runs.

Ron Mitchell was top hitter for the winners pounding a homer and a single. Wayne May added a triple and a single, and Mike Callaghan and Ed Cain each had a double.

Jerry Hill had a homer and a single for the yardmen and Plumbe punched a home run.

The Intell came on with three runs in the sixth inning and four in the seventh to tie the score at 8-8, but Canadian Tire rallied for a run in the bottom half of the seventh to take the win.

Andy Prudden took the win, fanning seven while issuing two walks and giving up 10 hits.

John Edwards and Ron Culloden were on The Intell mound. They struck out two, walked three and allowed 12 hits.

Prudden had a triple, double and single to lead CTC at the plate. Bruce Clarke added two doubles and a single and Eric Asselstine and Jack McMurter each had two doubles.

For The Intell, Culloden belted a grand slam homer an doubled a single and Tony Goncalves pounded a homer. Glynn Reynolds drilled a double and a triple and Terry Hiddleston added a triple.

Tops as Team

Bay of Quinte Country Club representatives Fran Bannon, Betty Walmsley, Dolly Diamond and Jackie Hughes brought the low net team trophy home after play Tuesday in the Kingston District of the Canadian Ladies Golf Association (CLGA) championships at Amherstview Golf Club.

Fran scored a 68 while Betty and Dolly each recorded a 70, and Jackie was right in step with a 71.

Cataraqui golf Club's Connie Cuperjotet captured the CLGA award for the district, topping the field with a low gross of 81. Elaine Hiddeson of the host club carded a 94 to take low net honors.

Bay of Quinte golfers showing the way in First Flight were Betty Ingram with a low gross of 85. Fran Bannon, low net, 68; and Betty Walmsley, second low net. Enn Corks had fifth low gross.

In second Flight, Dolly Diamond's 70 was good for low net honors while Mary Deton came in with fifth low net. Jackie Hughes had second low gross in Furth Flight.

Purina-ettes In Top Form

A 19 and an 11. And those are just the winners' totals in Bayside Ladies Softball League play Wednesday night at the Bayside.

Purina-ettes trounced Quinte Antenna 19-2 and Belleville Broadloom downed Canadian Sears 11-4.

Sandra Fleming went the distance for the Purina-ettes, fanning six, walking one and allowing just seven hits.

Aileen Barr took the loss, walking four and giving up 13 hits and fanning none.

The winners got runs in every inning but the six in the fifth and five in the sixth.

Fleming helped herself to the win pounding a home run and a triple, to lead the Purina onslaught. Sue Wright hit two doubles and a single and Margie Bateman chalked two singles and a triple.

For the losers it was Audrey getting a triple and a single and Boonie and Nina adding a double each.

In the second contest, Mary-Anne Gilks notched the victory striking out five Sinnppgan-Sears batters, issuing three walks, giving up 10 hits and four runs.

Jeanne Garvin was the loser allowing 18 hits, two walks, 11 runs and fanning two.

Lynn Wood pounded a triple and a single for Sinppans and Debbie Barnes added a triple.

For the winning Broadloomers, Peter Fisher had two doubles and a home run and Shannon Sills and Linda Cole had a double and a triple each. Mary-Anne Sills pounded out a home run and Chr's Smith added a single and a pair of doubles.

Three-hit Shutout For John Masterson

Canniton dumped Read 8-3 and Lasta shutout Shannonville 2-0 in Wednesday night's South Hastings Baseball Association games.

Gordie Adams got the victory for Canniton, throwing three hitters and striking out eight while issuing just one walk.

Doug Stewart took the loss, fanning four and walking five.

Larry Adams led the way for the winners with a double and a single while Kevin Allen added a pair of singles.

For Read, Peter Badgley had a double and a single as Peter Walsh added two singles.

John Masterson was on the mound to blank Shannonville. He fanned 11, walked none and gave up just three hits.

Bill Barnicoat took the loss. He struck out 10 and walked two.

John Masterson punched a pair of singles for Lasta, and Dale Hamber added a double.

For Shannonville, Bill Barbierstock had a double.

Trenton Will Host Playoffs

While attention is focused on Belleville this weekend when the annual Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament takes place, baseball is in the spotlight a Trenton as well.

Branch 118, Royal Canadian Legion will host the first of three tourneys here, Saturday, when Cobourg and Trenton look up to decide the District honors.

The following weekend, the same playoffs will be held at Trenton and in August, teams will compete for the provincial title.

Volkswagen calls it the perfect station wagon for its time. Dasher is powerful and gets about 26 miles per gallon. It's small enough to be at home in town, big enough to cram with 5 doors and a goodly rear suspension for taking big loads. It has front wheel drive for better road handling plus Stabilomatic which forces the car to hassle. It is a straight 4 cylinder, water cooled engine with an overhead cam and an all-gears surface. It needs regular maintenance only once every 6,000 miles and that is covered by the Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket. The Dasher wagon is ahead of its time. One Goalie Who Uses His Head

Whitley's Reaches the Top Rung

It may be a short stay but Trenton Whitley's took over the top rung in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association standings Wednesday, edging past Cobourg Town's with an 8-6 romp over Trenton Spartacus.

The win brought Whitley's season record to 7-1-1 for 15 points, one more than runner up Cobourg which is at home tonight to Belleville United.

In other league action Wednesday, Parson's Cleaners of Belleville downed Cobourg Haulage 10.

Playing at Centennial Park in Trenton, Whitley's, with coach Ray Hore directing the assault from the sidelines put on a demonstration of team play which completely disorganized Spartacus.

The absence of the steadying influence supplied in earlier games by goal keeper Angelo Hantzikristos further handicapped the losers. Angelo was out of town. And Spartacus was out of luck.

Barry Kidd and Peter Kakouris split the Spartacus goalkeeping but there was little they could do in the face of the determined Whitley attack.

Quick now. When's the last time you saw a soccer goalie head the ball? It's rarely done. Trenton Spartacus player drawing looks of astonishment from Trenton Whitley forwards Henry Sonneveld (right) and Jim McDonald, in Peter Kakouris. Peter had just taken over in goal and was still trying to don his sweater when the kick came. Whitley's took over top spot in the league with 8-6 win.

Steve Phipps responded with a steady game while recording his first shutout.

Kidd and Jim McDonald scored another big night, picking up two goals each but extra scoring power was supplied by players who normally depend on their ability to set up mates or break up the opposition's thrusts.

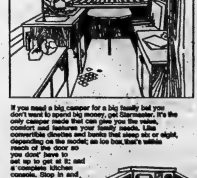
Mike Roach clicked for a pair, Len Tich added one and fullback Robert Arrensnult completed the scoring in the game from the penalty spot after Spartacus player was handled the ball.

Roach opened the scoring early, taking a pass from winger Eddie Mallens and dropping the ball over the goalie's head on a drive from well out. Mike's second goal came on a well-aimed direct free kick.

Sonneveld and Roach teamed up to make the play for Tich's counter.

Defenders Harry Lamers, Dennis Woolcock and Terry Blight weren't tested often but were there when they were needed. Lamers and Blight each took time out to make the play for goals.

Almost lost in the outbreak of well-executed scoring plays was a heady performance by centre half Ron Canonca. He was on the ball all night, breaking up plays with timely tackles and creating opportunities for his mates.

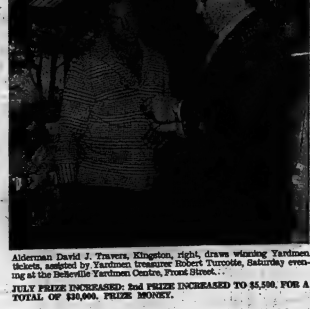


At the Ontario School for the Deaf pitch, Parsons scored the game's only goal early.

Steve Graham beat two defenders on the right wing before sending a perfect cross to Tommy Britton who connected from close range.

Parson's refused to let up and continued to press but were prevented from adding to the total. Alert goalkeeping and their own poor finishing wrote off several good chances.

Mark Mestus supplied a strong effort on the winners' forward line. Coming through with solid work on the defence were Phil McSherry and Dave Pierson.



Subbing for regular goalie Rick Birni, who is recovering from an appendectomy,

At five years old, Hawthorne Boy is still looking for his first victory, but owner Jack Jeffrey is hoping to see it happen this Friday at Quinte Exhibition Raceway. The horse has been bothered by freak injuries in the past, but Jeffrey believes he is in top form now.

Netherlands, West Germany in Final

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — The soccer stars of West Germany and the Netherlands have three days to restore their tired and bruised limbs before the Final of the World Cup at Munich's Olympic Stadium Sunday.

To get to the final, the two teams won through the most gruelling matches of the three weeklong tournament. But they were gruelling in different ways.

The Germans plowed through a field like glue, run ning until they were ready to drop, and edged Poland 1-0 in Frankfurt.

The Dutch downed the defending champions, Brazil, 2-0 on a firm field at Dortmund but took a heavy pounding from some of the roughest tackling seen in the competition.

The Netherlands came out of the battle severely mauled. Winger Ron Rensenbrink limped off with a pulled muscle and may miss the final. Midfielder Johnny Neeskens, scorer of Holland's first goal, was heavily booked.

Dutch officials alleged afterwards that Neeskens was felled by a karate blow in the first half.

Seven minutes from the end he had his legs scythed from inside right in a knee-high tackle by Brazilian defender Luiz Pereira. Pereira was sent off the field and Neeskens was helped limping to the dressing room.

But the tough little Dutchman has a reputation for shrugging off injuries and playing on.

"I'm not too worried about Ron at the moment," said Dr. Fried Kessler, the Dutch team physician. "I know how tough he is. Rensenbrink is the big worry."

If West Germany and the Netherlands keep up the standards that have taken them through so far, Sunday's final will be a classic.

Gerd Muller, who topped the goalscoring list in the last World Cup in Mexico in 1970, scored West Germany's winner in the 52nd minute of the muddy struggle against Poland.

West Germany did not cope with the difficult conditions as well as Poland in the first half. They kept the ball too close on the water-logged surface and their passes often failed to reach their target.

"We talked about it in the interval and changed tactics," said veteran German coach Helmut Schoen, who saw his men through to victory in his 100th international game as team manager.

Johan Cruyff, the Dutch captain, turned the Dortmund game in his team's favor. After opening on the left in the first half he suddenly switched to the other side of the field and made the chance for Neeskens to score the first goal in the 56th minute.

Cruyff himself added the second in the 65th minute.

Brazil, the dethroned champions, will be without at least one of its stars when it plays Poland for third place Saturday. Pereira will be automatically banned from the game after being ordered off Wednesday.

In other second-round games Wednesday, Sweden beat Yugoslavia 2-1 at Dusseldorf and Argentina and East Germany drew 1-1 at Gelsenkirchen. Neither game had any bearing on the weekend's pairings.

Warriors Upset Globals

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS
Woodstock Warriors took the ends of an Ontario Fastball League doubleheader 1-0 Wednesday against Trenton Globals.

In the only other game, Burlington downed Hamilton 3-0.

Second-inning runs in both contests gave Woodstock the two 1-0 decisions as the Warriors got strong pitching performances from Gord Pullen and Bill Fidlin in recording their third and fourth victories of the season. The warriors have lost 10 games.

In the opener, Randy Hewitt led off the second for the winners with a single and then scored on Phil Parking's single.

Pullen limited the Globals to a pair of hits in going the route for the victory. He walked one and struck out three. Mike Mohan was the loser, allowing for the while walking one and striking out three.

Third baseman Frank Kolnjshafer opened the second inning of the nightcap with a walk. Flash runner Rick McKenny moved to second on a sacrifice bunt and then came home on two successive wild pitches by loser Pete Landers.

Three Signed

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Wednesday they have signed the last three regulars from their 1972-74 National Hockey League squad to long-term contracts.

Signed were centre Pete Mahovlich, third highest scorer on the club last season with 36 goals and 37 assists in 78 games, along with left wingers Murray Wilson and Yvon Lambert. Wilson scored 17 goals last season and Lambert six.

No terms of the contracts were disclosed.

Stingers Win

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (CP) — Pat DiCio, Gaylord Powless and Bruce Murdock scored four goals each Wednesday night as lead Syracuse Stingers to a 25-9 win over Maryland Arrows in a National Lacrosse League game.

Paul Cicci added three goals and Jerry Kustanski two for the Stingers, who moved to within three points of the fifth-place Arrows.

Other Syracuse scorers were Tom Wright, Russ Thomas, Terry Sanderson, Robbie Patton and Travis Cook.

Paul Sargent scored five goals and Ken Henderson four for the Arrows.

It's a Full-time Hobby

By ALAN TESWORTH
Sports Staff

Although he did have some very successful years as a horse breeder and owner, Jack Jeffrey of Belleville now has settled back to just enjoy his time-consuming hobby of harness racing.

The now retired, former real estate salesman owns three horses and is ready to race at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

He has been involved in the game for some 18 years, and has had many good seasons.

His former assistant, trained by on the Jockey Club Golden Circuit for many seasons, with most of them top notch condition-race horses, as opposed to the name horses, that compete in stakes races.

He says his best horse ever was one called JMJ. Jeffrey raised the horse from a colt, and kept JMJ until he was 10 years old.

In his eight seasons of racing, JMJ earned earnings of over $40,000.

The fastest horse Jeffrey ever owned himself was a trotter named Goess Who, with a mark of about 2:05.

The mark is not outstanding by any of the present standards, but 2:05 is the track record at the Belleville circuit. It's a mark held by Early Lakes John.

His going concern right now is a five year old gelding, Hawthorne Boy, who has yet to win a race.

The black gelding sired by Hawthorne, with Exeter Lily Queen as dam, qualified at the Belleville track last Friday night, and will be going in the Maiden race, the third on the 10-race card, tomorrow night at the raceway. His time in winning the qualifier was 2:16.1.

Jeffrey purchased the horse from Herm Lazes of Belleville, trained him and had him ready to qualify. However an injury to a ligament prevented that.

The new Jeffrey is now required to correct the injury, incurred when rolling in the stall.

But, the five year old is now back on his feet and ready to race, shooting for his first lifetime win Friday night.

Other horses in the Jeffrey stable are Lady Mona 4, a five year old gelding, and Martin Hanover, a two year old colt.

Lady Mont is to be shipped to Quinte's Maiden Carlton Raceway to start racing there in a few weeks, while the two year old has been turned out before the try at the track.

For now, Jeffrey is concerned with Friday night's race, which will see Hawthorne Boy guided to post by Guy Laronde, one of the top drivers on the Ontario B circuit in Ontario.

Also on Friday night's card is the return to Belleville of Bonnie Hawthorne, in the feature mixed stake race.

Last season's track record holder of 2:06, said last Fall to Wanamaker and Sally Sadden by Ray Rose, will come out of the first post position, under the rein of Nelson Roly, one of the top drivers in Canada.

He will get top rate competition fo rthe purse of $400 from Mr. Clark with Ken Weeks in the sulky, Kelly Tuck with Mark Sovrns the driver, Bob Ron Roddie, with Bob Bellamy guiding him, Zorro Gratan, with Hugh Camp up, Third Edge, driven By Doug Johnstone, and Wilson Howard's Victor Hal Direct.

Post time for the first race at the Fairground will is 8 p.m. The card will feature five quendine and five exactors.

Campaigning Arduous Chore In Caoutte's One-man Band

By BILL COULTHARD

At election time, Real Caouette generally is recognized as the Social Credit party's one-man band.

Keeping up the beat for a party with limited funds, lack of staff and a one-province support base, howvre, can be a wearing experience.

It means standing in line for tickets like any other traveller at the airport, handling his own baggage and other inconveniences that do not bother the leaders of the three major political parties.

Still, Mr. Caouette's timetable is more flexible and it means he can often sleep later than his rivals as he campaigns for Monday's federal election.

But the fact that breakfast can be as late as 8:30 or 9 a.m. because his working day doesn't begin until 10 is easily offset by logistical tribulations.

A typical day recently took him from Quebec City to Chicoutimi on a propeller-driven local flight. He was returning to his Quebec province bastion after a brief tour of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

For Mr. Caouette, it was an early start with a trip to the airport for the flight, which left about 10 a.m.

The previous day had been wasted waiting six hours in Halifax airport for a flight to Montreal that never did take off because of weather conditions. A three-hour bus trip took him to Moncton, N.B., and he arrived in Quebec City via Montreal in the wee hours of the morning.

So it was a tired federal leader who brought the Social Credit campaign to the Chicoutimi press club where he joined journalists from the Saguenay— Lac St. Jean area at lunch and, later, for questions.

Mr. Caouette, a Rouyn, Que., auto dealer who takes pride in recalling that he has been met at the airport by a handful of local candidates and whisked into town for the luncheon.

In the afternoon, he had a television interview and an appearance on a radio hot-line show-one of his favorite forms of campaigning since it enables him to reach a wider audience that he could meet at a public meeting.

Then he returned to Rouyn on another propeller-driven flight via Quebec City.

He talked affably with the woman sitting beside him, but did not get up to tour the cabin.

On long-haul flights in bigger planes, Mr. Caouette regularly leaves his first-class seat for a tour of the tourist cabin, chatting with reporters assigned to his campaign and shaking hands with any passengers who appear to recognize him.

Mr. Caouette had no campaigning scheduled in his northwestern Quebec riding of Temiscamingue that night.

It is this leisurely pace of campaigning that helps sustain speculation about his health.

Mr. Caouette contends that, except for his diabetes, he is in the best of health.

But he appears to tire easily, and often catnaps while travelling in cars or planes. Before his flight in Halifax, he slept at the airport.

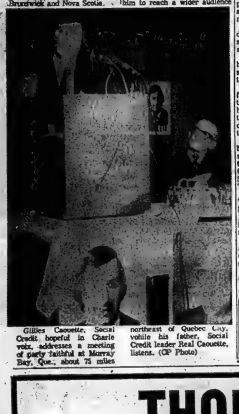
A typical day in Mr. Caouette's campaign involves two or three appearances on television or radio, usually on open-line programme s, news conference and often an evening public meeting.

Unlike the other leaders, he does not participate in tightly-scheduled mainstreeting of shopping-centre appearances.

But with travel time included, his few campaign events often stretch his working day to 14 to 16 hours.

This is party because, except for his two campaign forays to the West and the Maritimes and his occasional long-distance trips within Quebec, he focuses on private automobiles for his travel.

He like to compare this, in his characteristic humorous manner, to the expensive charter jets used by Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and Prime Minister Trudeau.



And he call his automobile The Canuckle Express, in jocular reference to the Trudeau Express campaign train used by the prime minister early in the campaign.

Mr. Caouette is the father of a daughter and two sons, one of whom, Gilles, is campaigning for re-election in Charlevoix.

Although his diet as a diabetic forbids it, Mr. Caouette enjoys an occasional glass of beer. When he grabbed a quick snack in Moncton on his way back from Halifax, he asked a news cameraman not to film the beer bottle on the table.

Did he think, reporters asked, that it would have a negative impact on the voters.

"No," Mr. Caouette replied mischievously, "I don't want my wife or my doctor to find out. I'm not supposed to drink the stuff."

Hammering Stump May Prevent Pain

LONDDEN (Reuter) — Latest research indicates that 19th century surgeons may have had a point when they advised amputees to hammer the stump of their severed limb with a mallet.

Primitive though it sounds, and nobody is recommending it today, the pummeling may have helped prevent that curious but often excruciating phenomenon known as "phantom limb pain."

Almost all amputees are routinely, physically aware of their absent limb. It feels as if it is still there. But about one in seven experience actual pain from it.

Two pain researchers, Patrick D. Wall and Michael Gutnick, have just conducted the first scientific study into the actual cause and mechanism of his pain.

Reporting in Nature magazine, they said experiments on the legs of live rats which were wired up for electronic monitoring showed that severed nerves remain much more active than normal, intact nerves. But counselled electric shock treatment to the ends of severed nerves in effect, a modern equivalent to the hammer—can give prolonged relief from phantom pain.

Wall is professor of anatomy at University College, London.

Gutnick is from the department of zoology at Hebrew University, Jerusalem.

Their study was designed to discover what happens days and weeks after a nerve has been severed.

It was already known that the ends of severed nerves sprout small fibres which entwine with other tissue to form swellings known as neuroma. These neuroma are the root both of sensation and pain which seems to come from the absent limb.

Both experiences are enhanced when the neuroma are physically stimulated. The ultimate aim of the Wall-Gutnick studies is to understand the differing mechanisms which make one phantom limb hurt and another merely tingle.

Wall's earlier experiments indicated that relief could be obtained if nerve fibres around a wound were electrically stimulated, since this seems to result in blockage of the pain signals up the spinal cord to the brain.

Tackling the problem of neuromas' "impulse generators," they call them—Wall and Gutnick found that if they stimulated these nerve buds electrically and then, by a known technique, blocked passage of the pain through the spinal cord, the activity of the neuroma was dampened. From the rat experiments, it seems that the severed nerve endings are rendered numb for some time.

The significance of their findings appears to be that electrical treatment causes the neuroma to go into a kind of spasm called tetany, a sudden blood-chemical deficiency usually associated with hyperactive muscles.

Thus the blockage of pain from neuroma results more from the reaction of the stimulated neuroma themselves than from the interruption of the signal through the spinal cord.

Alan W. Stewart, 26, surprised officials of a small community program which helps parolees, with a donation of $21,000. Stewart, a jobless graduate of the University of Rochester made the donation from a $50,000 inheritance which he recently received. He had previously made a $9,000 donation to another community organization in 1969 and has helped many friends in financial trouble. He is now down to his last $1,000. (AP Photo)

Farmer's Advocate Busy First Year

EDMONTON (CP) — The only farmer's advocate in North America says he has had a successful first year but expects to be swamped with work and will soon have to hire an assistant.

Helmut Estrup was appointed to the unique Alberta government position in January, 1973, after spending six years as director of member services for United Farm, an organization representing the majority of Alberta farmers.

The job, simply, is trying to solve the problems of farmers, and Mr. Estrup said in an interview he has found successful solutions to 823 of more than 1,000 cases put before him.

But 1,000 cases make a heavy load for one man so he is looking for an assistant.

"The man that will be my assistant will be a man who has practical experience in agriculture and the intelligence and common sense to deal with problems," he said.

"I sometimes get farmers in my office who have complaints about each other. So with the old common-sense approach, perhaps knocking their heads together and forcing them to realize the other person's position, they usually leave after a handshake and become neighbors again."

The son of a West German farmer and a one-time farmer himself, the 47-year-old Mr. Estrup understands a farmer's frustration at not being able to cultivate land because an oil company is using it.

The oil company, under provincial law, has a right to get at the resources, in the ground but that means the farmer loses some land and has to plow around obstructions in his fields.

Lately, Mr. Estrup said he has been successful in getting the resource companies to pay more for the use of land, although not in getting them to accept liability when machinery is damaged because it ran over a protruding pipeline.

He is also familiar with government law as it affects farm machinery and can help with warranties or deal with bureaucratic foul-ups in municipal councils or pilot a farmer through expropriation proceedings.

"It is often the bureaucratic machinery that creates the problem and I fight the bureaucracy and red tape.

"I don't deal with complaints about a (provincial) government agency. That comes under the jurisdiction of the ombudsman."

While he can't prosecute for the farmer or even do much more in court cases than advise the farmer to see a lawyer, he does have a clout with most companies operating in Alberta.

"Let's realize that every company needs a licence ... needs consideration from various government departments and cannot afford to get into trouble with the provincial government. This is really where my strength lies.

"In agriculture alone we have about 84 pieces of legislation that deal directly with farmers and the law. As our society becomes more sophisticated, more businesslike, the old-fashioned handshake is no longer satisfactory.

There is a need for a negotiator and a mediator and that s why we have the position of ombudsman and farmer's advocate.

There are days, he admits, especially in the spring, that he would rather be sitting on a tractor than on a desk chair but his excursions into the country—he spends three days of every week on the road—help him keep in touch.

Aside from the occasional ripples to solve matrimonial disputes, to which he turns a deaf ear, Mr. Estrup said his toughest problem so far was getting compensation for a farmer who for six years had been fighting a railway for damages done to his land. The farmer wanted $20,000; the railways offered $3,000. In the end the claim was settled for $23,000.

His greatest disappointments were being unable to get adequate compensation from a machinery manufacturer who made use of a farmer's invention and from a farm building contractor who refused to allow an injured farmer to alter a contract on a building.

Horseshoes Form Chair

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — If horseshoes bring good luck, then Walker Pullen must be a lucky person.

The retired Woodstock-area farmer has spent the last three years collecting horseshoes for a recently completed hand-built lawn chair.

The chair is made from more than 40 horseshoes and weighs about 50 pounds.

Each horseshoe was tacked to a metal frame, then the shoes, casuesta and sheet metal seat were welded together with stainless steel. Finally, the whole chair was chromed to give it a silvery finish.

Mr. Pullen says the shoes were used either by government or police horses in various countries. The chair includes shoes worn by horses in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Sydney, Australia, Mounted Police and government horses in Spain, India and England. Some took six months to obtain.

One shoe comes from Danny Wagner, Lorne Greene's horse in the Bonanza TV series.

Mr. Pullen said he decided to build his own lawn chair while shopping around.

"A fellow wanted to sell me a chair, but it wasn't a real antique," said Mr. Pullen. "Then, while I was looking through a pile of junk, I remembered putting aside a horseshoe. Later, I came back and decided I'd try to build my own chair out of horseshoes."

Man Owns 360 Films

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Most people go to the local theatre to see movies but a Woodstock man steps into his basement, chooses one of 360 motion pictures and flicks on his projector.

James Smith has collected movies for more than 30 years and uses his basement to store, repair and show them.

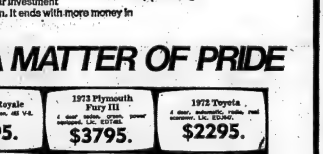
Mr. Smith's collection, valued between $10,000 and $12,000, includes episodic versions of the Battle of Britain, The Flight for Liberty and The True Glory which depicts the Allied march to victory in the Second World War.

Mr. Smith has comedy films such as McHale's Navy and Charlie Chase and westerns with Gene Autry and John Wayne. He also has 26 full-length color feature films including The Untamed World and Keep the Wild Wind.

Mr. Smith said he is not out to make money from his collection—it's a hobby.

"I've been collecting the shows and movies since I was a kid. It's really no different than collecting stamps or coins."

He shows his movies for company and for the occasional benefit. "Sometimes I end up showing the same movie that the late show has on."



The lack of newer movies in Mr. Smith's collection is explained by his belief that "pictures made years ago were better, especially the acting."

"In the old days youngsters were used to school and came out trained actresses and actors; today they just throw them in. In the old days there were more family pictures today the word is sex and murder."

Must Muffle Jets

TORONTO (CP) — Walter McLeish, director-general of civil aeronautics for the federal transport department, says federal regulations will require airlines operating in Canada to use "hush kits" on noisier jets by 1986. The kit involves muffling the engine and fitting quieter vanes on intakes, and may cost Air Canada $116 million for its

Defecting Russian Scientist Details Persecution Here

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Eight years ago, in October, 1965, Dr. Boris P. Dotsenko came to Canada as a part of a group of Russian psychiatrists on a regular exchange visit.

The visit was marred with the usual round of convivialities, with nothing to indicate that there was anything unusual.

However, within days, Dr. Dotsenko left the Soviet embassy in Ottawa and flew to Edmonton where he sought political asylum, thus disclosing a story of international intrigue and bringing upon himself a campaign of harrassment.

Dr. Dotsenko, 48, visiting St. John's as a delegate to the joint congress of the Canadian Association of Physicists and the Canadian Astronomical Society, spoke of the events which led to his defection and which have dogged his footsteps since.

The story began in 1962, when Dr. Dotsenko was working as a member of the Institute of Physics of the Academy of Science in Kiev. That year, without consultation with the physicist, the authorities posted him to the top position in the nuclear laboratory at The University of Kiev.

"Soon after I was visited by officials of the KGB, the Soviet secret police, who asked me many questions concerning my knowledge of physics and of the international physics community. My superior told me that these people were pleased with me and they planned to work with me in future for a long time to come. They promised great success in my career," he said here.

"I was told that I should cooperate with the KGB. Others had not and had disappeared, never to be heard from again. That was a good warning for me and I decided not to take any chances. I decided that I must control my own feelings about the situation until the time came when I could speak to people who would be willing to listen."

Dr. Dotsenko was informed that his specific duties with regard to his cooperation with the KGB would be to work with the International Atomic Control Agency in Vienna, Austria. He was to report whatever information he could gather on secret projects back to the KGB.

From that point, he lost all privacy. He was watched by secret police informants day and night, not the least of which were members of his own family.

And my specific role, I confessions telling of my "sexual" behavior. The confessions were held by my superiors at the Institute to be used against me should I consider speaking out against the Soviet system, and my specific role I confessed him this father) about this and he would report on as he told me he was urged by the KGB to inform them of anything that might compromise me in my duty to the state. And he told me to whom he wrote the reports.

"This man who had received the reports told me he could crush me at any time he chai I was completely in his grasp.

"Not only my father, but also my wife was reporting on me. I told my wife some very confidential things in private conversation which were repeated to me in exactly the same words in interviews with the KGB. Eventually, I was obvious that my wife was reporting regularly on my activities.

"That was then turned around to show me that I really didn't have a family and should depend completely on the state and the KGB, who always acted in a very friendly manner towards me."

Dr. Dotsenko was told that in preparation for his assignment he would be sent on an exchange visit to Canada. He was to work in this country for six to eight months purely as a scientist, producing good, sound work and establishing his name in Western circles. He was to do our spying in could relax and be himself.

The physicist was given no specific instructions and training up to that point. He was told that all of this would follow his return from Canada, when he would spend six months to Russia training intensively for his assignment.

When he got to Canada, Dr. Dotsenko decided that he had better act immediately if he was to gain his freedom. But the story didn't end there.

Though the federal government allowed him to stay in Canada, he was faced with a new set of what he terms Soviet-initiated pressures.

"Due to actions of the Soviet friends in Canada, I was not at first able to get any jobs at Canadian universities.

"When I renounced my Soviet citizenship and my Communist party membership, Soviet officials in Canada expressed a desire to see me. We met at the immigration office in Edmonton where I insisted that everything said be recorded, that taking would be done in English in the presence of Canadian authorities, all of which was done.

"The Soviet authorities insisted that I must return to the Soviet Union but I refused. After some further conversation we parted and that was that. The Soviets told Canadian officials that whichever university I worked at, people from that university would not be able to go to the Soviet Union.

"A friend of mine told me the my case was discussed by the Toronto branch of a Canadian association of university teachers in a meeting in Toronto and that many of the professors blamed me for threatening the exchange visits and, therefore, people insisting that I should be kicked out of the University of Toronto where I had got some temporary work.

Dr. Dotsenko said that he received a letter from his father, which he felt was written to a style that implied it had been dictated. The letter stated that my son, as saying that if he did not return to the Soviet Union, he would never get employment as a research scientist again.

However, he did get a temporary position as an assistant researcher at the University of Alberta from 1966 to 1968. During that time, the university was suspended from the exchange program with the Soviet Union.

Dr. Dotsenko said his stay there was made uncomfortable by the fact certain scientists blamed him for the suspension of cultural relationships with these people were poor, and they treated him accordingly for left.

The physicist decided to leave quietly and without complaint. Unable to get a position at any university, despite his sound academic and work background in the Soviet Union, he took a job as a high school teacher in Wawa, Ontario, from 1968 to 1970. He decided to try again in Newfoundland.

Nothing came through until 1970, when the University of Toronto offered him a small grant, which enabled him to carry on his research. This was followed by an invitation to the Memorial University (formerly Waterloo Lutheran) where he spend the last three years. But this position proved far from adequate.

"I was so overloaded with teaching undergraduate mathematics courses that I was unable to carry on my research.

"The exchange program at that time underground has suspended but I was simply kept from doing research. I do not know if this was done deliberately or if it was connected to the earlier machinations, but despite many appeals to all the officials in the university, I were able to get a change in the situation."

He has some job possibilities but no guarantees that he will be able to get a new post.

What if he doesn't get a job.

"I have some money. I can survive, I can't predict everything that will happen to me. I just believe a man should do his duties, that's all. I simply trust that if a man is more concerned about his work than about his own egocentric well-being, then someone will appreciate that. I'm trying to do my work in scientific research."

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuter) — Richard Burton, newly divorced from Elizabeth Taylor, arrived in England Wednesday aboard the liner France with his blonde travelling companion Ellen Rosen. But she's no more love in his life, the actor's bodyguard said.

The bodyguard, known only as Gino, passed messages between reporters and the twice-married actor locked in his luxury suite aboard the liner.

Miss Rosen, 27-year-old daughter of Jake Hilt director Robert Rossen, occupied an adjoining suite during the six-day voyage from New York.

Gino told reporters: "There is absolutely no truth in the suggestion that there is a romance between Mr. Burton and Miss Rossen. They have been friends for many years and enjoy each other's company."

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., (AP) — It was Christmas in July Wednesday night as the New York City Ballet performed The Nutcracker to the delight of 3,718, including many children.

The popular children's ballet, usually performed at Christmas, opened the summer season of the company at the Saratoga Performing Arts Centre.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.-people act their part, (AP) — A fuming Sammy Davis Jr. denied Wednesday that he was acting "pampered" when he left without performing at a gala casino opening in Monaco. He said he and his wife had been ignored by Monaco's royalty.

Princess Grace "thought it was just another fig in the woodpile," Davis said.

The entertainer held a news conference in his home here to deny newsmagazine accounts of his behavior at the celebrity-packed opening of Monaco's newest gambling casino June 22.

The accounts said Davis, who was to appear for free, demanded $30,000 in expenses for a 16-person entourage, billed the Monaco government for $19,008 in yacht rental fees, and offended the royal family.

He explained it, left in a huff because there was no helicopter to meet them at the airport in Nice, France.

Princess Grace, the former actress Grace Kelly, was quoted by Time and Newsweek magazines as saying, "When there's not much anybody can do."

Davis said he had asked for $15,000 or $20,000 in expenses, that he had paid for the yacht himself, that he had only brought nine persons with him, and that the helicopter accusation was false.

BERLIN (AP) — A Canadian film, The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz, was presented the top Golden Bear award Tuesday night as best feature entry in the annual Berlin Film Festival.

The two-hour movie, directed by Ted Kotcheff from a script by Mordecai Richler adapted from his own novel, stars Richard Dreyfuss, Michelien Lescot, Randy Quaid and Jack Warden.

The film is a tale of a young Jewish boy from Montreal whose taxi-driver grandfather implants in him the notion that a man without money and property is nothing. Thus he sallies forth to make it big from rags to riches.

The film's producer, John Kemeny, said he was "tremendously happy" about the award.

The film, already a success in Canada, cost about $1 million to produce. It was shot in 19 weeks in and around Montreal.

The jury praised the film as "an unusually witty and perceptive portrayal of Jewish family life in Canada and a successful character portrait of a success-driven young man."

It said the film also is a "telling comment on the materialistic attitudes of post-war society."

The jury singled out the "brave performance" of the leading actor, Dreyfuss.

Clapton to Make One Appearance

Eric Clapton, regarded as the major guitarist in rock music, will appear at the Montreal Forum July 8.

The guitarist has lived in semi-retirement for at least two years and the Montreal performance will be the only appearance Canadians will have to hear him.

The son of a building laborer in Surrey, England, Clapton started out to become a skilled glass window designer, but got hooked on the Spanish guitar at 16.

He played with several shortlived groups before forming topnotch Cream, considered one of the most rock ensembles. Following its breakup, Clapton formed Blind Faith and later, Derek and the Dominos.

His last concert was given in London in 1972 and was recorded. Since then Clapton has lived in semi-retirement, emerging this summer for a North American tour. He is also making a record, to be released by Polydor in August.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, July 5

Aries (March 21-April 19) Last-minute changes of plans will mix-work to your advantage. Progress will be made only if you steer a straight course.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) In your impatience with your work you'll see some shortcuts you think will be labor-savers. Be sure they aren't.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20) Something that you know is forbidden will be particularly appealing. You may give it a try, thinking you won't get caught.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) If your plans involve the participation of a co-worker, double-check to be sure the other party will be there when needed.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be sure to give whatever you're working on your undivided attention. A mistake could cour if you get careless.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) You're still prone to take chances where you know you shouldn't. Don't be so eager to get yourself in a bind.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you expect members of your family to jump instantly to your commands, you'll have to make your orders less erratic.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll sell yourself on an idea you like up out of left field. It will be hard to convince you it's just a foul ball.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Continue to keep that padlock on your purse for at least another day. By tomorrow you'll be more financially.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone will try to ignore your good nature with an unreasonable request. Don't feel you're obligated to grant it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Hiding from present responsibilities or sweeping them under the rug will not give you the freedom of mind you're looking for.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Banking big hopes on something that is yet a seedling will only serve to disappoint you. Place your trust in present reality.

Mortgage Rates Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mortgage may be the best buy when it comes to purchasing a home, says the American Bankers Association. A house that sold for $35,300 in 1972 was selling for $40,900 in 1973—a 16-per-cent increase. During the same one-year period there was only a 10-per-cent increase in new conventional home mortgage rates.

Can't Replace Cops

HALIFAX (CP) — Supt. of Detectives Fitzgerald Fry says burglar alarms are "a great deterrent at times, but you can't beat good policing." He says the crime rate in the Halifax area, although showing a gradual increase, hasn't reached serious proportions because of adequate policing, including special patrols and study groups.

DONE IN LAB

On May 17, 1971, Cornell University ornithologists announced what they said was the first successful rearing of a wild bird of prey hatched from an artificially inseminated egg.

Collected For Cows

HUNTINGVILLE, Que. (CP) — Sherbrooke city council authorized payment of $18,000 to settle out of court a claim for damages lodged by Georgs McVety. During a gale in October, 1973, 11 of Mr. McVety's milk-producing cows were electrocuted by a toppled hydro pole.

By Gerald and James Jacoby

Ben Franklin put down the dummy and said, "Today should be my day in declarer. My name was three small trumps is based on that theory."

"Thank you, Ben," replied Thomas Jefferson. "It's little tired after writing the Declaration, but I'll do my best."

His best was excellent. The defence started with three rounds of hearts. Jefferson ruffed the third lead, cashed the ace and king of trumps and paused for study before playing to the next trick.

East was sure of a trump trick. It was up to Jefferson to see that the defence didn't also score a club against him.

He worked out the play rather quickly. He led a club to dummy's king and a second back toward his own hand. If wouldn't do East any good to ruff in. He would simply be ruffing a low club so he discarded Jefferson's losing club ace, played a diamond to dummy's ace and led dummy's last club. Again East couldn't afford to ruff so Jefferson won that trick also.

Now he led his small club ruffed with dummy's last trump and showed East his hand with the lowest. "We hold this truth to be self-evident that you can only take one trick."

Answer: Bid four spades. Your partner did not have to bid so he has shown extra values by his spades. You have made a slight overbid in your evaluation.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two spades your partner bids three hearts. How has he shown four spades. What do you do now?

Level of Sugar In Blood Tricky

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After having checked my blood sugar several years there was nothing wrong with me but my nerves. I went to the hospital for a five-hour blood sugar tolerance test and found that is what is wrong with me.—Mrs. F.F.

That's the aggravating thing about hypoglycemia. It can resemble nervous tension, and your doctor is by no means the first I have received telling the same story. Typically every-thing tested (all normal)—except for a tendency for the blood sugar to fall to too low a level at times.

In fact, that is another deceptive aspect about low blood sugar. A single blood sugar test can appear perfectly normal, and sometimes several tests in succession will look normal enough. But a five-hour GTT has a preference for a six-hour test, with the sugar being checked at hourly intervals, will show a marked decline in the level, and not just a slight dip as one. The more abrupt, the more troublesome to the patient when it happens.

Obviously hypoglycemia isn't the cause of every case of "nerves," so it isn't wise to jump to conclusions either way. If the blood sugar tests show normal levels, then look elsewhere for the nervous spook. But when in doubt, the blood test is wise—as in your experience.

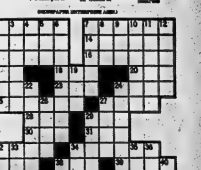
In a good many instances of low blood sugar, there are other symptoms that are hard to mimic: sudden spells of weakness and feeling famished; visual disturbances; mental confusion and such. Then a sugar test confirms what already is strongly suspected. Some folks may fight off these symptoms with sheer nerve tension then, but the strain of trying to keep going and throwing off the weakness can cause enough tension to make the patient behave in a way that can be misinterpreted as "nerves."

It's not a very difficult condition to control, usually, but it takes a mean one to diagnose at times.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had a peeling balm from the nose will cause cancer. If so, what are the symptoms?—E.J.

I don't know of any indication to suspect the cancer notion, but the habit is bad because it can cause infection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 59 and have reduced my weight by 40 pounds. My hair is not gray and my face is young-looking except for a wrinkly wrinkling and baggy double chin. Is there anything I can do to improve this other than surgery? I deal with the public and like to appear at my best. What are the pros and cons of that type of surgery at my age?—Mrs. L.S.



I don't know of any method except plastic surgery, but there is no reason why you should not consider it at your age. Your regular doctor can refer you to a dependable plastic surgeon.

Thai Police Quell Riot

BANGKOK (AP) — A woman passer-by and a young dissator relief volunteer were shot fatally just before dusk today as police and young rioters exchanged gunfire for a third night in Bangkok's riot-plagued Chinatown.

The shooting broke out as police tried to clear the street at a police station that has been the focus of fighting that began late Wednesday night.

Until the government said early today that it had contained the violence, officials said at least 16 persons had been killed and 189 wounded in battles between security forces and Chinese youths. Police said they have arrested more than 80 persons.

The latest victim and a male companion were caught in a cross-fire at the station. Authorities said it was not known which side fired the fatal shots.

A little later snipers at the disaster volunteer in the face as he directed traffic about one block from the station, police said. The youth, one of a group that has been nursing the wounded and helping administer the riot area, died a short while later.

The government broadcast that had contended the violence was put down said a state of emergency imposed Thursday may be lifted soon.

The violence reflects longsimmering resentment by the city's young Chinese against Thai police. "The people here just hate policemen," said one police officer assigned to Chinatown.

The trouble began Thursday morning, subsided during the afternoon and then resumed Thursday night.

Most shops in the Chinese quarter were closed. The streets were almost deserted, but were littered with rubble and the wreckage of cars of trucks set ablaze by the mobs.

"Those kids should be killed," said one angry Chinese merchant. "They're just gangsters trying to destroy our peaceful Chinese community."

Trucks that had been rushed to the royal palace and other strategic locations were withdrawn to meet rumors of a coup. But about 2,400 soldiers brought in from the suburbs remained on guard at government buildings, communications installations and other key spots.

Incoming trains were checked for smuggled arms.

The first rioting developed after police arrested the driver of a taxi parked in a no-parking zone Thursday and took him to a police station. When the driver yelled that he was being beaten, crowds of youths rushed on the station.

Lebanese Veto Arms For Camps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Lebanese government vetoed a Palestinian request to the Arab League for 25 million worth of anti-aircraft missiles and other heavy weapons to protect refugee camps in Lebanon against Israeli air attacks. Beirut newspapers reported today.

The reports said Premier Takieddin Solh told the emergency meeting of the 21-member league in Cairo Wednesday and Thursday that any defence system contributed by the other Arab states would have to be placed outside the camps and put under the control of the Lebanese army.

Mahmoud Riad, the league's secretary-general, announced Thursday night that the Cairo meeting adopted resolutions "capable of confronting the situation in Lebanon."

But the Beirut papers said the dispute between the Lebanese government and the Palestinian guerrilla leaders forced the meeting to postpone a decision on any concrete action until an Arab summit meeting in Morocco in September.

Plan Protested

BELFAST (AP) — Militant Protestant leaders rejected today any parts of the British government's new proposals to bring peace to Northern Ireland. Initial response from the Roman Catholic militants of the Irish Republican Army also was unfavorable. Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government issued a white paper Thursday proposing that the citizens of Northern Ireland elect a constitutional convention to decide on a form of government acceptable to both warring religious communities.

Danger Past

Nixon Made Trip At Risk to Life

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon's doctor says Nixon was warned that a permanent blood clot in his left leg might kill him during his Middle East trip but that the president insisted on going ahead with travel plans.

"The danger is now past," Dr. Walter Tkach said late Thursday.

Dr. Tkach for the first time said Nixon has thrombophlebitis, which he said involves the presence of a permanent blood clot in his left leg.

"The clot is pretty well fixed," Dr. Tkach said, explaining it has attached itself to the wall of a vein and no longer is likely to break loose and go to his lungs or lung—a development that might prove fatal.

Dr. Tkach said the consultation hospital treatment for Nixon at the time the president first told him of the swelling. But he said Nixon, who had kept the ailment secret from him for several days, was insistent on going forward with his Middle East trip although "we told him what the potential hazards would be of a clot breaking off and hitting his heart or lung."

Dr. Tkach said Nixon informed him of the swollen left leg after arriving in Salzburg, Austria, on June 19 en route to the Mideast.

Dr. Tkach also said Nixon was given medication for a week during his overseas journey—something the White House had reported earlier. He would not name the drug involved.

Civil Servants Consider Strike

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Area civil servants Thursday night called for withdrawal of their services unless the Ontario government reopens wage negotiations to include the high cost of inflation.

About 150 members of the Civil Service Association of Ontario called for the withdrawal with only four objections.

At a meeting Tuesday night in Toronto, union executives asked nearly 500 civil servants to strike. If approved, a board of directors vote authorizing strike action.

The vote came following an address by G. G. Norman of Toronto, CSAO administrator, who criticized firings benefits had been done in June by an arbitration board as well as the government's refusal to renew wage talks to take in a cost-of-living allowance.

The association represents 40,000 workers in social, scientific and technical administration and general-service categories, as well as academic and support staff at 22 community colleges.

About 15 further meetings are planned for across the province.

Kidnapped Trio Escape From Forest Chains

TRUCKEE, Calif. (AP) — Authorities were silent today about clues that led them to a brawny woodcutter sought in a triple slaying and the kidnapping of three other persons.

John Wayne Card, 26, was arrested in the Northern California mountain town late Thursday by FBI agents and sheriff's deputies. The FBI said he was charged with a 45-caliber automatic pistol but offered no resistance.

Card's arrest came 10 hours after a widow and her two children, kidnapped last Friday, escaped from chains in a forest and walked to a ranger station.

Card was booked for investigation of kidnapping early today after authorities returned him to Wilburn, Calif., in Glenn County, about 100 miles west of Truckee. He also was booked for investigation of murder in the slayings last Friday of a Wilburn storekeeper, his wife and daughter.

Authorities would not disclose the motive.

Earlier Thursday, Kay Skillin, 34, her son, Wesley, 13, and Dorothy Debaun, 50, walked into a forest ranger station in Wilbur Springs, 55 miles northwest of Sacramento.

They told authorities they were chained to a tree in the forest Wednesday about a mile from the station. They said they worked their way free and walked to the station at daylight Thursday. Their captor had left plenty of food and water for them, they said, but they didn't know whether he planned to return for them.

Heart Attack Puts Handleman In Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Handleman, Ontario housing minister, was in satisfactory condition in a Toronto hospital after suffering a heart attack in his office Thursday.

A nursing supervisor at Mount Sinai Hospital said Mr. Handleman was not in the intensive-care unit.

After the initial seizure, Mr. Handleman ordered his car and had himself driven to hospital.

Premier William Davis's executive assistant, said Thursday he believed Mr. Handleman would remain in hospital for three or four weeks, adding it was unlikely the minister would resume his duties for two or three months.

Rainfall Up

TORONTO (CP) — Rainfall in the city totalled 3.36 inches in June, almost double the month's normal 1.78 inches but it was not the wettest June this century, a weather office spokesman said Thursday.

Soviet Spacemen Work in Station

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts began carrying out experiments today inside the Salyut 3 space station after successfully docking their Soyuz capsule to the orbiting laboratory, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said the mission commander, Pavel Popovich, and his flight engineer, Lt.-Col. Yuri Artyukhin, took over the controls aboard Soyuz 14 for the last 400 feet to the linkup with the 18-ton Salyut. The earlier part of the approach was controlled from the ground.

The exact time of docking was not revealed, but Tass said it occurred today. There was no indication how long the two men will stay aboard the space station or when they will return to earth.

Salyut was launched June 25, and the cosmonauts were sent up from the Baikonur space centre in Kazakhstan Wednesday night in an effort to carry out the Soviet Union's first widely successful operation involving a manned space station. The 1971 flight of Salyut 1 ended in disaster when its three crew members were killed on the trip back to earth. The second Salyut was sent into orbit in 1973, but no crew was put aboard, and the station apparently broke up.

Tass said Popovich and Artyukhin, both 44, are feeling well and have begun to carry out their program of experiments aboard the station.

Tass said the work program includes studies of the earth's surface, the atmosphere, outer space, the effect of space flight on the cosmonauts, and testing of the space station's "improved design and on-board systems and equipment."

Union Dreams Up Pressure for Settlement

Goderich Could Get Quarter Million Gift if Strike Staged

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — A union representative for Goderich salt plant workers has proposed a formula that would give Goderich about $250,000 for community projects if the workers vote to strike but continue working for 16 weeks beyond the strike deadline.

Tch Stewart of the International Chemical Workers Union proposed Thursday that the plant's 26 employees continue working and place their wages in a trust fund administrated by the town treasurer, and that the company place 150 per cent of its payroll into the fund.

The workers' contract expired May 4 and conciliation talks will begin July 12. Neither side has yet released details of salary and benefit offers or demands.

Mr. Stewart estimated that the amount in the trust fund at the end of 16 weeks would be $250,000, with the workers contributing about $100,000 and the company $150,000.

If the strike did not ended within that time, Mr. Stewart said, the money could be donated to a community project approved by both sides.

Mr. Stewart said he was convinced that both sides would settle rather than lose the money. "There is sufficient economic coercion here for both sides," he said.

Bernard O'Reilly, labor relations director for Domtar Chemicals Ltd., Sifto's parent company, said he will discuss the proposal with his company's negotiator but said a similar idea had been tried in the United States.

"It merits consideration as a rational way to settle strikes that are wasteful to the company, workers and the economy," he said.

Woman From U.S. Was Crash Victim

TRENTON — Jean Knick, 71, Danbury, Connecticut woman, died in hospital here Thursday following a two-car collision on Highway 33, three miles north of Brighton Wednesday.

Another woman, Margaret Diacond, 69, of Clearwater, Florida, remains in satisfactory condition in Trenton Memorial Hospital with a fractured pelvis. She was a passenger in the Knick vehicle.

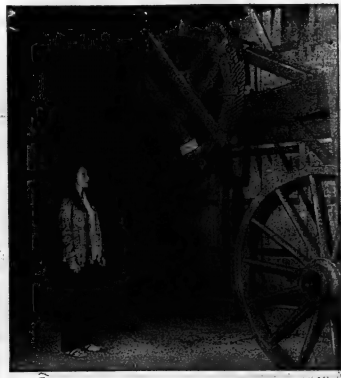
Hospital authorities released the dead woman's name after next of kin were notified Thursday on arrival from the United States.

Provincial police at Brighton said the Knick vehicle was struck broadside while turning north off a service station by a southbound car driven by Donald Morse, RR 2, Codrington.

Two Injured at Trenton As Car Rolls, Burns

TRENTON — Two youths escaped serious injury when passersby pulled them out of a burning wreck following a single car collision on Highway 33, south of Highway 401, early today.

Provincial Police said the two were trapped in the vehicle when it burst into flames.



Driver of the vehicle, Carl Arsenault, 18, of 251 Dundas St., West, Trenton, was treated for bruises and released from hospital here. One of three other passengers, Richard Esmond, on rehabilitation leave from CFB Trenton, was treated at the base hospital for minor injuries following the 1:45 a.m. mishap.

Edward Cormier, 18, of 187 Marmora St., another passenger, was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital where he remains with an injured shoulder.

In satisfactory condition is a fourth passenger, Gary Scriber, 17, of 37 MIR St., Frankford. He is being treated for scalp lacerations.

Police say the Arsenault vehicle was northbound on Highway 33 when it went off the road and rolled onto its side, an estimated 20 feet from the Trent Canal.

The vehicle was a complete writeoff, police say.

USSR Crafts on Show

PICTON — From Russia With Love, a collection of Soviet handicrafts, for sale at a Picton gift shop, one of a handful of retail outlets in these items in Ontario.

Scott's Gift Centre this summer is displaying 1,000 items carvings from Russia, with wood carvings incuuding paper mache boxes and plates, wooden toys and other novelty pieces.

The handicrafts include Khokhloma from the USSR, and art dating back to the 16th century. Khokhloma, named for a village in Russia, signifies brightly colored boxes, spoons, vases and canisters in three basic designs.

The Ural stone carvings in the collection are hand carved from stone schools taken from the mountain range, dividing the Asian and European continents in the USSR.

The carvings, for the most part, are of animals such as deer, bear and wolves. Five basic stones; Selenite, Aniyorite, Calcite, Serpentine and Slate are used for this craft.

The collection also includes USSR stone, among them a wooden truck and train made in Lithuania. Wheels are attached with screws instead of nails and the wooden toys are strong and sturdy. Puppets are of exceptional quality and dressed in typical costumes.

One of the most impressive pieces in the display at the gift centre is a Ukranian eagle from the USSR. The eagle is the national bird of many countries and is a favorite subject of Ukrenian wood carvers.

Ronald Scott says the Russian handicrafts, hopefully will interest tourists as well as local residents. To assist customers in their choices, sales staff has been provided with literature explaining origins of the various pieces.

Water Show For Picton

PICTON — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a water ski show featuring Prinn. Edward athletes in Picton Harbor on Saturday.

The show will begin at 4 p.m. in front of the yacht club.

Two Few Firemen For Inspections

PICTON — Advertisements will be inserted in the local press inviting Picton residents to contact the town fire department for free fire inspection.

The decision following discussion in town council this week concerning a staff shortage that makes it impossible for all homes to be inspected.

Reeve Ross Cronkwright, fire committee chairman, said there are 1,800 dwellings in the town and it could require four men to inspect each of them.

Deputy-reeve Larry Richardson said he did not feel citizens generally would resent periodic checks to discover potential fire hazards as long as there were no overtones of a "vigilante" committee appointed to hunt down offenders.

He stressed that the fire department should be concerned both with fire prevention and fire fighting. He said when fires do break out fire-fighters provide excellent response.

The deputy-reeve noted that inspections could, in some instances, be casual in-trend of complete home tours.

Writer Visits Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD — Author of At Home in Upper Canada, Jean Mimbinnick of South Bay will be at Bloomfield Public Library on Saturday afternoon.

An expert on Canadiana and Upper Canadian knowledge, Mrs. Mimbinnick has included many local stories in her book on pre-Confederation days in Upper Canada. Autographed copies of her book will be on sale at the library this weekend.

Authority Might Move

MARMORA — If suitable office space can be found, the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority might consider moving its office here from Havelock, Ralph Neal, village's representative on the Authority has told council.

Marmora would provide a more central location for the new field manager who will be working with the Crowe Valley Authority and the Lower Trent Valley Authority.

Child Hurt In Mishap

SCOHARIE — A Prince Edward county child was transferred to Belleville General Hospital Thursday with a broken leg she received when struck by a car on Scoharie Road.

Caroline Mary VanMeer, 12, was returning from a roadside mailbox when she ran into the path of a taxi driven by Leo Grenier of Picton, said police. She was taken by ambulance to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital and later transferred to BGH.

Site For Pipes

MARMORA — The parking lot at the Crowe River and the old dump have been suggested as village council as possible sites for pipes and other supplies which Cairncon Construction Co. will store in preparation for the municipal project here.

Reeve Jack Reynolds rejected the idea of using the municipal park for storing the material because of the damage that could result.

Frankford Recreation Project

Carnival Raises Cash for Sports

FRANKFORD — Receipts from the first summer carnival planned here this Saturday are expected to be more than $2,000 and bring the village closer to a start on a proposed sports complex.

Rod Verchere, Frankford recreation committee chairman, said Thursday cash from the carnival will go to build tennis courts, a basketball diamond, a track and a children's playground.

The facilities would be adjacent to the village's existing community centre-arena, south of Marsh St.

Mr. Verchere said he expects admission fees to various carnival events will total more than the $2,000 sum collected during Frankford's 1974 week-long winter carnival in February.

He said the committee is trying to raise $10,000 towards the cost of the complex.

New sports facilities could cost an estimated $30,000 part of which would come from provincial government coffers.

Plans are to build on a block of village-owned land behind the existing arena.

If the recreation committee's fund raising drive proves successful, said Mr. Verchere, "kids should be playing ball there next summer."

Canoe Race Planned from Campbellford

FRANKFORD — The first Campbellford - Frankford canoe race gets underway during the first summer carnival to be held in this community Saturday.

An expected 50 paddlers in 15 canoes, will enter the Trent River at the Campbellford starting line.

Rod Verchere, one of the carnival's prime organizers said Thursday the contestants are expected to complete the 20-mile course on the Trent River by early afternoon.

Prizes for contestants will receive the Bata Industries Trophy at the Falls Inn, Bata. Cash prizes for the top three will also be awarded.

Carnival activities planned for that evening include a chicken cook-out at the Frankford arena from 5 p.m.

Also planned is a dance and games of chance the festivities will conclude with a step dancing contest at the arena.

Election Day Nears

The moment of truth is about to dawn in this latest of federal election campaigns, when all the oratory is silenced and voters come to make their choice as to which party governs Canada for the next four years.

There could have been many another matter discussed, but the one burning issue this time is inflation.

It is recognized that inflation will not disappear overnight, whichever party gains power. At the same time we know that its growth, and the long winter of discontent that led finally to the Government's defeat, and the calling of an election, have been spent under the jurisdiction of Pierre Trudeau's Liberal party.

If such a government were to be returned there can be no prospect of the disciplined measures that must be taken to control inflation. Certainly no such measures have been enunciated by the Liberals and the electorate itself might be likened to the spoiled offspring whose every wish is granted by an indulgent parent.

If Canadians at large are spending far beyond their means, there has been no encouragement from Ottawa to cool it — and this to the detriment of all. The cost of living has reached heights that strain the resources of everyone and cause real hardship to many. Yet all the while the biggest spender of all — spending which frequently has been as wasteful as it has been ill-advised, is the federal government.

And it has been building up over a period of years. Remember all Mitchell Sharp's mini-budgets and sabre-rattling to the effect that Canadians would have to tighten their belts, with Mr. Trudeau making appropriate supportive noises. Then there was Edgar Benson and a stab at austerity and promises (this was back in 1969) there would be no relaxation of such measures until there were clear signs that inflation was beaten.

But far from being defeated, and for all Mr. Trudeau's more recent claims to have a "grip" on the problem, inflation under the Liberal government has since escalated out of sight, and control.

And this is the Government that is seeking a renewed mandate.

Robert Stanfield's Conservative party offers a policy to combat inflation. The substance of this policy has already been stated and we believe it offers the greatest of a more stable, efficient and disciplined economy.

The choice is one of further unbridled spending, a repetition of policies that already have cut heavily into the value of the dollar, and one that, while maintaining a reasonable level of prosperity, is accompanied by high unemployment and a social instability as well as to the needs of all sectors of the population.

Happiness on Job

More understanding, perhaps even bonhomie, is needed on the job. And especially so at the management level, according to Douglas Carter of Vancouver.

Mr. Carter is executive director of the British Columbia division of the Canadian Mental Health Association and he says management can be "cold and authoritative . . . expecting everyone to function in the same way every day."

Of course people are not like that. They are not robots or computers and as we all know even the latter break down now and again.

Human beings are more fragile and while no one is suggesting people as a species need pampering — there is enough of that in our welfare state — we agree with Mr. Carter that a little more humanity or compassion could make all the difference.

In short, more sensitivity and greater attention to the morale of employees. Mr. Carter even talks of having social workers as managerial supervisors. Would management go that far? This could be an expensive luxury. Perhaps what is needed is simply extra understanding on the part of existing personnel. Or simply the application of a little basic psychology. "A smile instead of hot air. Encouragement in place of criticism.

While Attacking His Opponents...

P.M. Is Selective in Manipulating The Campaign Issues

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — One of the oddities of this fast-closing campaign has been the silence, through the last seven weeks, about issues which, in the last election less than two years ago, rang so loud.

Except for the most guarded and rare references, the leaders have remained discreetly quiet about bilingualism, strikes in the federal public service, spiralling governmental spending, and even higher taxation.

It could be a consistency of silence between Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield to avoid issues they consider simply too hot to handle.

Or it could be the skill of the Prime Minister in reversing the traditional campaign roles by going to the attack and compelling the Conservative Leader, to go on the defensive.

It seems mad, but the Prime Minister has made a campaign of blaming the Conservative Leader for everything that has been going wrong during the last six years of Liberal rule.

Somehow this seems to have made it possible for Mr. Trudeau to assert the threats where he thinks he's strong, and avoid battle where he could be vulnerable.

Thus far it appears to have worked far slicker than logic should allow — this attacking of Mr. Stanfield for policies he never was in a position to apply, while avoiding any mention and struggles off responsibility for his own failures.

After all, he has been the man in charge since 1968.

In this strange selection of the issues, the Prime Minister has been able to bury bilingualism except as a regional question in a few particular ridings.

From Toronto-Rosedale, not a word has been heard of Energy Minister Macdonald's wild election night explosion last time when, in fury over Liberal losses, he blamed it all on what he called "Tory redneck backlash-ism."

He did not even except his own constituents from his accusation of racism.

Nor has there been a whisper from the neighboring Toronto riding of High Park where Murray McBride, beaten last time in Eastern Ontario's riding of Leeds-Renfrew-Carleton, is trying for a Liberal comeback.

Mr. McBride is not just any run-of-the-riding Liberal candidate. He is one of the government's white-haired boys, given a job, like so many other defeated candidates, as a cabinet assistant.

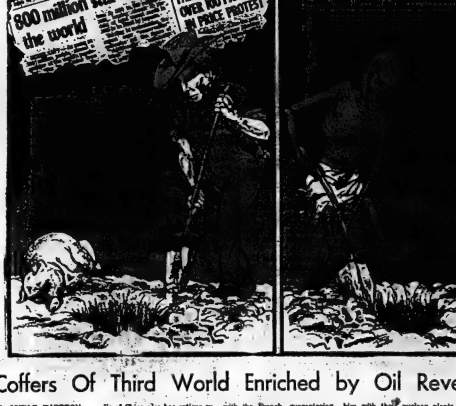
So Mr. McBride is something special.

So special that they had to airlift him out of the Ottawa Valley after Canadians hit him in Toronto because, as he stormed in rage after the 1972 defeat, he was "ashamed of being an English-Canadian."

He was so furious that day of defeat that he wrote his own diatribe against his Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton constituents, calling them, among other things, "anti-bilingual rednecks," accusing them of "bare-faced hatred, fear and animosity."

But does High Park know his "charms" of being an English-Canadian?

The issue may run silent, but it runs deep, too.



Why the mutual silence of the leaders on public service strikes — with the Postal Workers' boycott in progress even now of the mail code?

With the federal staff approaching the half million mark — maybe two or three million or more votes — have the unions been persuaded not to so terrify the political leaders into silence?

Government spending wildly out of control is similarly ignored by both leaders. Spending means taxing.

But both Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield appear agreed in their mutual silence that votes are secured not by promises of saving — even if it means less cash — but by pledges of spending.

Odd, isn't it, when so many taxpayers all across the land believe in their hearts and know in their pocketbooks that Ottawa is simply wallowing in waste?

Coffers Of Third World Enriched by Oil Revenues

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The industrialized world now will watch how well the newly rich emerging countries like Venezuela, Saudi Arabia and Indonesia will use their extra funds from higher-priced oil and other commodities.

The watch will be tempered by the large amounts of sophisticated and technology which the newly rich Third World countries will make in the West and Japan, a trend which already has begun with the huge $5-billion deal between Iran and France.

This includes among other items three of the very expensive supersonic Concordes, making Iran the first country outside of the Anglo-French builders to place firm orders for the aircraft which will fly at 1,350 mph. The People's Republic of China also has options on two more, but has not moved to buy them.

The Shah of Iran even flew home in one of them just to show his confidence in the new aircraft. One wonders however if the Concordes will be to the shah what exploiting a nuclear arms race was to Hitler's Gandhi and the two big VC-10 British jets Ghana and China were to the late Ghanian leader Kwame Nkrumah. Purely and simply very expensive symbols of self-importance.

Goodness knows, with the mounting oil royalties the Iranian shah will command out of the West from an oil industry which he has largely taken over, he can afford them, where the Gandhi cannot when the much centrally could not a decade ago.

With this kind of massive deal with the French, guaranteeing them polysonic business for an indefinite period into the future, Iran is making the moves to become a form of world power giants before, say, the Chinese or the Brazilians seriously do the same.

The Iranians under their strong and dictatorial shah will try and do it in conventional ways, not merely by crowing about the biggest and most modern military establishment in the Middle East.

The shah is already well on the way to doing this with scholar purchases as well as as primed investments from the French and Americans.

There are about 500 British Ocnkarian tanks for him in the works as well as new naval vessels for the inshore needs of the Persian Gulf and modern jets. And on the U.S. ready list are the Grumman F-14 and the McDonnell Douglas F-15 fighters, which bypasses the cost of living increases', is an

If this is true and Mr. Ellis can prove this, then he must be convinced that the public will form the next Government.

Mr. Ellis has said clearly the NDP platform "No Restrictions on Wages and Salaries, only on Profiteering".

The PCs have stated clearly that "a total price and wage freeze" will b implemented by them. Since our riding, Hastings riding, already is the lowest paid in Ontario, what is it that we are saying is that Hastings will be kept as a colony and frozen. Will farmers issues also be frozen, Mr. Ellis? Great ideas! Great policy!

Motorcycle Accidents

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The Cornwall Police Department has promulgated a crusade down as a result of the growing number of motorcycle accidents.

Perhaps in the years, late spring weather is the cause of a lot of youthful exuberance. In any case it seems to be the case every year at this time, there is a rash of motorcycle and bicycle accidents.

Sometimes the cyclists are lucky and escape serious injury. But the risks are high; and parents and friends should be often are the result.

The police cannot be everywhere.

What then is the answer?

Perhaps the Ontario government should bring in more intelligent motorcycle licensing regulations and tougher laws to deal with offenders.

And the cyclists should also see the need to exercise more safety and attempt to do something about it through clubs, the provision of safety literature and the like.

Election Draws Further Comment on Eve Of Vote

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have wondered for a long time how Mr. Ellis arrives at conclusions before he investigates. In his critical analysis on the Unemployment Insurance Commission he begins to run down Manpower counsellors (did he mean Manpower tool); and is critical of "Manpower does not discuss Unemployment Insurance problems". In short, the first two pages are sarcastic, cynical, and biased.

Having drawn the conclusions at the beginning of the paper rather than the end, which is impossible, Mr. Ellis then proceeds to write an analysis . . . after which he has stated several times that the UIC should be investigated.

Now, how could he analyze before investigation? We all know that the Investigation always precedes the analysis. Mr. Ellis tries to bury the pattern but he is dead, yes, dead before he is proven to be ill-, or guilty without a trial.

You Mr. Editor, introduce Mr. Ellis as the Member for Hastings MP and Mr. Ellis signs as J. R. Ellis, MP.

Mr. Ellis is apparently unemployed, and calling him MP is quite premature. Conservatives do not like investigations, premiers, and roughly most of the people in Ontario do not like Mr. Ellis' conclusions, and certainly not the country number one by both Liberals and Conservatives. Every number two is the person on whom he is dead, yes, dead. Mr. Ellis has stated that he considers $75 per week an average pay on unemployment insurance too much. Did he try to live on $75 weekly, or is that again one of his biased conclusions without investigation? He also stated that the UIC in Belleville is inefficient and referred to too many people, he — and this is my conclusion and a very logical one — wants to be very unemployment and lower paycheques. This is very consistent with the greed, indeed avarice of the Conservative party. Conservative Government is seven months late in settling negotiations with Postal workers, (e.g.)

On television, Mr. Ellis quoted more than 2,000 clients in one paper, more than 1,000 complaints he helped to settle. Actually the figure is less than 500. Some of these were settled wrongly via the Special Pay system, which bypasses the computer. Wrongly, because they turned out to be overpays! The complaint had been a false one. Mr. Ellis, once again drawn conclusions before investigation.

Agree with him that the employees at UIC are hard-working and conscientious people. How Mr. Ellis knows that I leave after an eight hour day, especially trained, person is appointed to deal personally with Mr. Ellis. This is to make sure that nobody will be pushed around. Mr. Ellis overpays again, which later are detected by computer. Very Allow me to say that Mr. Stanfield, aided by Mr. Ellis, has categorically stated that all wages, salaries, pensions and profits will be frozen. Mr. Ellis' statement: "No one has anything to worry about a frozen wage level unless their income is truly astronomical, in which case the cost of living increases', is an

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On October 25, 1971, Conservative Candidate Jack Ellis addressed a meeting in the Madoc Kinsmen centre.

According to a newspaper report at the time, Mr. Ellis told the meeting, he would release a fifty place on public record a list of any business holdings if elected. He said further, that he would file such a list with the County Court Judge's office. He would take such steps because he felt they should be required of any politician.

Mr. Ellis has indeed prepared a list of his business holdings, it is locked away in the safe of Judge Gibbons.

A lawyer of my acquaintance asked to see the list. He was advised that the list is in a sealed envelope and is not to be opened without Mr. Ellis' consent.

I, too, attempted to put the question of "public record" to the test. In reply to my letter inquiring about this, Mr. Ellis informed me, "You are clearly mistaken in your allegation that I ever indicated I would publish my personal investments".

I suspect Mr. Ellis assumes backing documents into a public safe is placing them on public record." I do not agree. I am afraid Mr. Ellis has not honored his campaign pledge of 1972.

BERT GERLING

Editor's note: According to The Intelligencer's report from Madoc on this subject October 25, 1972, Jack Ellis, Progressive Conservative candidate in Hastings said that he was not particularly place on public record a list of any business holdings if he were elected.

Mr. Ellis said he would divest himself of any undeveloped land in which he had any interest not less than two months after election.

Small private businesses in which he was involved already comprising of population, true economic growth prospects, ideological reflect, these elements which lead to an extension of the nation in the world.

Brazil and Iran have basically very poor societies in large areas of their territories. The population explosion is rampant in both. China appears to have controlled her enormous population growth, has lacks the broad spread of technology which is a concomitant to power.

Yet paradoxically, it is China's size in terms of people and the productivity they have accomplished with little of the sophisticated equipment available in the West, which could still leave it the leader into a new century when a different array of nations may play at superpower.

Ships' SOS Forwarded To Trenton

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa woman helped bring aid to two disabled ships on the Atlantic Ocean when atmospheric conditions brought their radio signals in here while they were not heard in Halifax.

Grayce Kupkee was listening to her 23-channel citizens' band radio Sunday evening when she heard distress calls from Seahawk, whose engines were fibreglass.

Another ship, the Virgin Queen, was wallowing in the sea with her engine entirely out of service.

Mrs. Kupkee notified RCMP who in turn made the word on to Canadian Forces search-and-rescue service at Trenton, Ont.

That call was relayed to Halifax while Mrs. Kupkee remained in communication with Seahawk and both ships were rescued safely.

"It's all in a day's work," Mrs. Kupkee said. "I'm a night receiver on 12 hours a day."

B.C. Government Loans Indians Half Million

VICTORIA (CP) — A precedent-setting agreement between the government of British Columbia and Indians in the Burns Lake area that provides substantial financial help for native participation in a $15 million sawmill project was signed Thursday.

The pact provides for a $500,000 loan by the Burns Lake Native Development Corp., a new organization representing about 1,100 Indians in and around the Burns Lake local of the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians. (BCANSI) to buy an eight-per-cent share in a new mill.

Depending on how successful the Indians are in the purchase, ship, all or part of the loan may be forgiven by the governments. It bears no interest for the first five years and only three per cent thereafter.

Other parts of the agreement provide a government guarantee for a $540,000 bank loan, representing the Indians' eight-per-cent share in the debts incurred in start-up costs and a $150,000 annual grant from the Human Resources department to fund "social development" work in the area.

Another grant from the lands and forests department will pay salaries and other costs of staffing the native corporation until it receives the first dividends from the sawmill share—expected to be 1978. Total of the grant is estimated at between $800,000 and $900,000 over the four years.

The government has also agreed to loan the corporation $600,000 to help Indians take advantage of opportunities provided by the construction and operation of the sawmill "to establish, for example, a logging contracting operation."

Chief Ted Lowley of the Babine Lake Indian band said about half of the work force at the sawmill and in associated logging operations will be Indians.

Gary Bowsfield, president of Waldrond Canada Ltd., which has a 44-per-cent interest in the mill, said 200 persons will work in the sawmill and between 150 and 159 in the logging operations.

Canadian Cellulose Corp., the provincial Crown corporation with pulp mills at Prince Rupert and Castlegar, Canada, and Eurocan Pulp and Paper Ltd., a private Finnish-backed company with a pulp mill at Kitimat, each have a 24-per-cent share.

Mr. Bowsfield said the mill should be operational sometime in the second half of 1975, and will produce about 160 million board feet of lumber a year.

In total, the package will provide more than $1.5 million in loans and grants, not counting the government guarantee of a $640,000 bank loan to the native corporation.

Police Say Baby Sold

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A Toronto woman has been charged with making a false registration of birth following an investigation by police into what they described as the sale of a 18-day-old baby for $875 to a Collingwood, Ont., couple last year.

Beverley Ann Leishman, 18, was charged Thursday. Police said there is no record of her existence in the Criminal Code to selling children.

Police said they believe the baby girl, now 18 months old, was handed over to a Collingwood couple, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, now living in Cyrus, Alta., near Calgary.

The couple are keeping the child under the supervision of the Alberta department of health and social development.

Mrs. Leishman is to appear in court in this town, 45 miles north of Toronto, Aug. 12.

Few Cherries

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The cherry crop in the Niagara Peninsula is expected to be below average again this year because of bad weather, the Ontario Tender Fruits Producers Marketing Board said Thursday.

Officials said wind and rain in June caused extensive damage and production this year may probably will be no better than last year, which was 25 per cent below average.

Massive Drive Made To Check Dryden Fire

TORONTO (CP) — The ministry of natural resources launched a massive ground and air attack Thursday on a fire that has destroyed about 227 million worth of timber near Dryden in northwestern Ontario.

The Dryden fire, covering about 27,000 acres, was one of 62 burning in the region east of the Manitoba border Thursday, down from 74 active fires Wednesday.

The fire near Dryden and three near Red Lake were among 13 reported out of control. A total of about 139,971 acres has been reported burned in the northwestern region this year.

Fighting the major fire was a force of 353 men, 79 pumping units, six bulldozers, seven helicopters, nine fire bombers and eight other fixed-wing planes.

The fire line destroyed enough pulpwood, mostly jackpine and spruce, to keep two pulp mills in operation for a year, the ministry said.

Big Crop

GENEVA (Reuter) — World wheat production is expected to show a big increase this summer, Director-General Addeke Boerma of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization told the UN Economic and Social Council here Thursday. He said he hopes this will allow partial replenishment of cereal stocks which last summer reached their lowest level since the early 1950s.

Ottawa Nurses Vote to Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Nurses at the Ottawa General, St. Vincent and Montfort hospitals voted Wednesday to strike if they do not receive a pay settlement equal to that granted through arbitration to counterparts at the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

The Ottawa Civic award raises monthly pay to the nurses to $828 and has been termed "incredibly generous" by negotiators hospital negotiators.

The nurses have set a deadline of midnight July 22 for agreement of their demand and will strike at 7 a.m., EDT, July 23 if there is no settlement, a spokesman for the nurses said.

Civic Hospital nurses have indicated that they would walk out in sympathy, despite their endorsement of a strike begins.

Swahili Favored

NAIROBI (AP) — President Jomo Kenyatta announced Thursday that Swahili will be Kenya's official language during Prime Minister Ngala's absence. He made the announcement as the ruling Kenya African National Union elected him its president for life.

indicated the situation could be the worst since 1961, when one million acres of timber were burned.

A large part of the northern area of the province has been declared a restricted fire zone, fire control director Len Sleeman said Thursday.

No open fires of any kind are allowed in the area until the danger subsides.

Ray Reilly, regional director for the resources ministry, pinpointed six hots spots in an area running west of Thunder Bay to the Manitoba border.

Dryden, Ignace, Fort Frances, Red Lake, Sioux Lookout and the Kenora area are all dangerous fire areas.

J. K. Reynolds, deputy resources minister, has said the province is paying about $150,000 a day to battle the fires, with the total cost approaching $1 million since the fires broke out June 29.

University Suspends Two Who Barred Prof

TORONTO (CP) — Two University of Toronto students were suspended Thursday after Capnt. the university's disciplinary body, found them guilty of preventing a visiting United States professor from speaking last March 13.

William Schabas, 23, was suspended for four years and Anthony Leah, 24, for three.

The two, both graduate students, are members of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), a group dedicated to promoting change in society.

Throughout a 16-day hearing, which was often disrupted by noisy outbursts, the two students said they prevented Prof. Edward Banfield of the University of Pennsylvania from speaking at the university because he is "a racist."

Mr. Leah said the university is intended to deal with the real issue.

"The only effect is going to be to make the movement against racism grow and expand," he said.

Prof. Banfield, a sociologist, is the author of The Unheavenly City, a book which the demonstrating students said portrays blacks as responsible for their own poverty and Italians as poor because they are immoral.

Hospitals Neglect Duty

TORONTO (CP) — Most Ontario hospitals are neglecting their duty in early identification of victims of child abuse, says Albert Rosenblatt, research associate at McMaster University's school of social work.

She said that only three hospitals—St. Joseph's in London St. Joseph's in Hamilton and Ottawa General—have so far accepted a trial screening system produced by the Home Accident and Injuries Study (HAIS), began almost two years ago as a follow-up to a study of child abuse in Ontario.

Is there any more to say? How about mileage figures?

Best gas mileage of all popular† small cars

The economy-minded car buyer is usually delighted to learn that the Toyota Corolla isn't just the lowest priced model of the popular† small cars. It's also the one that goes the farthest on a gallon of gas.

Small car mileage chart

Best mileage attained by each manufacturer in miles per imp. gal.

Make	0 5 10 15 20 25 30 35
Toyota Corolla 1200	32.5 mpg
Datsun 1210	29.9 mpg
Vega Hatchback	29.5 mpg
Pinto	27.4 mpg
Volkswagen(Beetle)	25.2 mpg

These figures are from U.S. Government-approved Environmental Protection Agency Tests. In these tests, the Toyota Corolla 1200 averaged 32.5 miles per Imperial gallon. The best gas mileage of the ten best selling small cars in Canada. (Your own mileage may vary depending on road conditions and the way you drive.)

Economy and much more

With today's shrinking dollar, you have to be a shrewd shopper. You have to look for good value right down the line.

That's why even the lowest priced Toyota comes equipped with a wide range of extras. Like front disc brakes, four-on-the-floor transmission and fully reclining bucket seats.

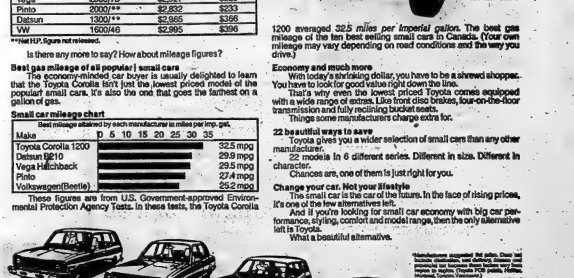
Things some manufacturers charge extra for.

22 beautiful ways to save

Toyota gives you a wider selection of small cars than any other manufacturer.

22 models in 6 different series. Different in size. Different in character.

Chances are, one of them is just right for you.



Change your car. Not your lifestyle

This small car is the car of the future. In the face of rising prices, it's one of the few alternatives left.

And if you're looking for small car economy with big car performance, styling, comfort and model range, then the only alternative left is Toyota.

What a beautiful alternative.

Eggs Intended for Breaking Sell as Fresh in New York

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario-produced eggs that sell for 61 cents a dozen in Ontario are selling for 49 to 59 cents in Buffalo, N.Y., spokesmen said Thursday.

"Some of the smaller dealers (in New York state) are being a lot of customers," said Henry Kreiser, a Buffalo egg producer with 110,000 hens.

He said the United Egg Producers, a United States fanciers' group, has been protesting to the U.S. government about dumping of Canadian eggs there.

However Ed Morgan, manager of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) said laws, said in an interview he believed that few if any Canadian eggs are being dumped in the U.S.

CEMA and its associated provincial egg-marketing boards set the Canadian egg producers' price at 59 cents a dozen, and charge producers seven cents marketing fees.

Last week, egg packers' unsold eggs are bought by CEMA for 56 cents a dozen, to cover cost of washing, grading and packaging.

When CEMA's stocks built up in North American countries were not buying all the eggs produced, CEMA said it began having quotas which broke down for drying and freezing in both Canada and U.S. processing plants.

The preserved eggs are stored, and CEMA hopes eventually to export them outside North America.

CEMA sells those eggs to processing plants for 32 cents a dozen, spokesmen said, but some eggs sold for breaking are being diverted into the fresh-egg trade in the northern states.

Because the U.S. wholesale price is 49 cents, the margin is tight and highly profitable, they note.

"It's too big a spread; it's too tempting," Max Roberts, president of Export Packers here, a firm that breaks eggs for sale to bakeries and other food processors.

"We know of instances where they didn't go to the breakers," Mr. Rabenstein said of the CEMA shipments to U.S. processors. They "wound up with a lot of cracked eggs."

Eggs that CEMA ships to the U.S. processors are supposed to be marked with a blue dye to keep them from being sold as fresh eggs.

"We are taking every precautions to see that they don't escape on to the table market," Mr. Morgan said.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry DeChene

Deschene — Barr

The wedding of Nancy Louise Barr and Larry William Deschene took place at St. Peter's Church Saturday June 15. Reverend D.J. Ryan performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barr and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Deschenes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length crystal crepe gown enhanced by lily points sleeves. Her gown was accented by headpiece consisting of six rows of lace and four layers of veil. The bride carried two dozen roses.

Kathy Denton the maid of honor, wore a floor length gown with short sleeves and a white lacey hat. She carried yellow roses and white mums.

The bridesmaids, Cheryl Barr, Patti Barr and Karen Deschenes, were attired as the matron of honor and carried pink roses with white mums.

Paul Werre McCue was the best man. Ushers were Dave Denton, Dave Shapton and Patrick Walchuk.

The reception was held at the Lions Club Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Craig

Craig — DeMille

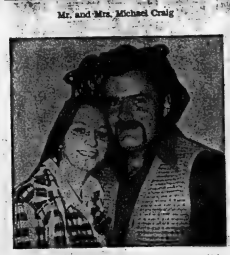
The June wedding of Bonnie Lynn DeMille and Michael Gary Craig took place in St. Mark's United Church in Carrollton, performed by Rev. John Morrison.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl DeMille of Carrollton, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Craig of RR 6, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of crepe de chine, with a bodice and cuffs of guipure lace.

The long-sleeved full-skirted gown featured a scalloped chapel train, trimmed with accordian pleated lace, which held a large veil bow before falling into a finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white daisies and mauve stephanotis.

Glenda Emerson was maid of honor in a blue crepe empire-waisted gown with sleeves and cummerbund trimmed with white lace. Her wide-brimmed blue hat was trimmed with lace to match the bride's, and she carried pink roses and white daisies.



The bridesmaids were Kathy McMillin, the bride's sister, Carla Edward and Debbie Donaldson, dressed in outfits identical to the maid of honor. They carried bouquets of white daisies and blue carnations and wore white picture hats.

The flower girl was Teri Glazier, in a gown similar to the others with a smocked bodice and matching bonnet. She carried a basket of pink roses and white daisies.

The bride's brother, Ralph DeMille was the groom's best man. Serving as ushers were Allen Craig, Steve Brown and Bob Kline.

After a dinner and dance at the Royal Canadian Legion, the newly married couple travelled north on their honeymoon.

They now reside at 23 College Street West.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clairmont, Trenton, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Pamela Ann, to Gregory Robert Browning, son of Mr. John Browning, Belleville and Mrs. H. V. Guthrie, Verona, Ontario. The marriage will take place Saturday, July 27, at 3 p.m. at St. Peter's Church, Trenton.

MR. AND MRS. TERRANCE JAMES MURPHY

Murphy — Smith

St. Thomas Anglican Church was the setting for the June 1 wedding of Pamela Joanne Smith and Terrance James Murphy. Performing the ceremony were Peter Tett and the Right Reverend William Robinson, Bishop of Ottawa, the bride's uncle.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald Smith and the groom is the son of Mrs. Doris Murphy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-lined empire-waistline gown. The train fell from the bodice. The skirt and train were of white satin and the bodice and sleeves of imported lace.

Her headpiece was a Juliet cap of lace similar to the lace on the dress with a cathedral length veil of silk illusion tulle. She carried a nosegay of daisies, pink rose buds, lily-of-the-valley, forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

The matron of honor Barbara Whelan, wore a gown of sky-blue flocked sheer with border pattern of spring flowers. It featured a V-neckline, puffed sleeves and A-line skirt. She wore a garland of daisies and pink carnations on her head.

The bridesmaids were Paula Partington, sister of the groom and Leslie Morton cousin of the bride. The junior bridesmaid was Janet Smith, cousin of the bride. All attendants were dressed in costumes similar to the maid of honor, and all carried a nosgay of daisies, pink carnations and babies breath.

James Nickle was the best man and the ushers were Charles Smith, brother of the bride, Allan Partington, brother-in-law of the groom and Brent Hegadoren cousin of the groom.

The reception was held at the Fiesta Room at the Hotel Quinte.

The couple will reside in Belleville after a wedding trip to Eastern Ontario.

Vernon Chase and Patricia Stapley Chase

Chase—Stapley

Frankford United Church was the scene of the mid-June wedding of Patricia Lynn Stapley and Vernon Albert Chase.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stapley, Frankford; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Chase, Frankford.

Rev. Ernest Brown and Rev. Douglas Miller officiated.

The bride wore an Elizabethan gown of silk organza with a lace-edged high ruffled neckline. Her tiara held a four-tiered illusion veil and the bride carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Steve Farkas, the matron of honor, attended the bride in a blue print organza gown which featured an elbow length cape. She carried a daisy mum and carnation bouquet and wore blue roses in her hair.

Attired as the matron of honor were attendants Evelyn Knight, Chris Lawson, cousin of the bride, Sandra Stapley a cousin of the bride.

The groom was attended by best man Ron Murray and ushers Clare Craig, Ross Stapley, the bride's brother and Duane Chase, his brother.

A reception and dance followed at the Bateau recreation centre.

After a wedding trip to the Bruce Peninsula, the couple took up summer residence in Frankford.

Sister Catherine New Bank Board Member

TORONTO—(CP) — The newest member of the board of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce will fit the traditional image of a bank director.

She is a suitspoken woman who has combined her duties as a Sister of Charity with a commitment to the continuing education of women.

Sister Catherine Wallace, 57, of Fredericton emerged from her first board meeting in early June with a whole new perspective on the Canadian international financial situation.

"I'm not a finance person," said the petite, grey-haired nun. "But I have my perspective which is always reacting to financial information so that it is not just figures and figures and figures.

The officers and administrators of the bank are the people with competence in finance.

The Bank of Commerce has two women on its 69-member board, Dr. F. Marguerite Hill, physician-in-chief of Women's College Hospital in Toronto, was appointed in 1968.

Sister Catherine's own experience includes a distinguished career in education and involvement "in the women's question before it became the women's question."

From 1966 until this year when she left to become chairman of Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission, Sister Catherine was president of Mount Saint Vincent University in Halifax, which for many years was the only degree-granting university specifically for women in Canada. The school now is co-educational.

When she was first approached about becoming a director, some of the things discussed at the bank's initiative were matters concerning women.

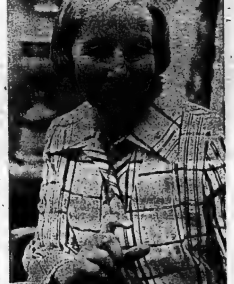
"I thought this was very good because it wasn't a case of my pressing them for information or saying, 'Are you concerned about this?'"

There has been a real effort by the Bank of Commerce to encourage women and there are about 50 women in management positions, she said.

"When the bank goes to universities to recruit, "they really see everybody who comes" but not as many women as men come for interviews.

Sister Catherine said that while more women are now moving out of secretarial courses and into management and business administration courses, they are still not aggressive.

"I think it just hasn't come naturally to them. Universities and other groups have to make a great effort in terms of this so that women who are competent for the positions and ready for them and would do beautifully in them so present themselves.



"I think business should give women every encouragement. I think they should be taking some initiative."

At the same time, women have to show they are really eager and ready, she said.

A Canadian citizen now, Sister Catherine was born and raised in Massachusetts. She obtained her BA degree from Dalhousie University in Halifax and her master's degree and PhD from St. John's University in New York.

She taught in New York, Nova Scotia and British Columbia before joining the English department of Mount Saint Vincent in 1958.

Sister Catherine is president of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada and serves on the executive of the Association of Commonwealth Universities and on the Advisory Council on the Status of Women. In 1972, she received the Medal of Service of the Order of Canada.

A DECISION TO DÉCORATE

A good rule of thumb decorating a new home is to keep the cost of furnishings between one-third and one-half the cost of the house. If living an inclusive decorator check if the designer belongs to a national professional organization. If possible, look at examples of the decorator's previous work to determine if your tastes are similar. Once you have decided on a designer, be honest about your budget limitations. Medical Assistants Can Aid Elderly Patients

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alert assistants who check to ensure that patients know the dosage of prescribed drugs can help avoid unpleasantstandings between doctors and patients, a gathering of nurses and other medical practice specialists was told here.

West Vancouver physician Dr. Robin Bell-Irving said some patients, particularly the elderly, fail to understand drug prescriptions.

"The increasing incidence of drug misuse among the elderly, unnecessary patients is alarmingly high," Dr. Bell-Irving said at the annual conference of the Medical Office Assistants' Association of British Columbia.

Three physicians discussed the use and misuse of drug. Dr. Bell-Irving said a nurse or medical receptionist often learns things about a patient which the patient would never tell the doctor.

Patients will pretend to understand a doctor's instructions when, in fact, they haven't understood a word. Dr. Bell-Irving said it is often will discuss this with the doctor's assistant who can help by explaining to the patient's problem to the doctor or by making sure the patient understands the instructions.

Frequently, elderly patients become confused and take too few or too many pills they are said. In such cases the physician or pharmacist should write out the instructions or have a member of the family supervise the taking of the pills.

Dr. Bell-Irving said elderly patients often take from five to 10 medications daily.

"Sometimes these medications or drugs have been prescribed over the years by several different doctors. We must find, through testing changes in body chemistry and age, the patient does need only one or two of them or, in some cases, none at all."

"Drug misuse becomes self-apparent," said Dr. J. N. Hyska of the University of British Columbia's medical faculty. "Patients over 60 were found to be the most unreliable."

He said in the case of prescriptions for children the correct daily dosages rest on the reliability of the parents.

"When a child is only mildly sick, and particularly if the mother has two or three other children, she tends to become lax about administering the pills," Dr. Hyska said.

Medical and nutritional fads were discussed by Vancouver physician Dr. Peter Grantham.

There is a tremendous upsurge in diet fads, organic food fads, tranquilizer fads and the fad for natural childbirth are the pressures of husbands in the delivery room, he said.

"Women attend pre-natal classes and learn it's good and natural to have childbirth without an anesthetic," Dr. Grantham said. "They are told to breast-feed their babies and to have their husbands with them in the delivery room during labor.

"All this is very fine but when it is overstressed as it is today, it becomes a fad.

"Some husbands faint dead away during the messier stages of childbirth; some women find so called natural childbirth a pretty awful experience and others say are ridden with guilt if breast-feeding doesn't agree with them or their baby.

"We need a little common sense and moderation."

Successful Living

Ask a Social Worker

By DORIS CLARK

Not long ago a widow in dire financial straits talked to me about her worries. She had a rent bill facing her which she could not pay.

I know her situation. I know she had a perfect right to government help, when it came to meeting living expenses. So I suggested she apply to the government office.

She said how afraid she was that "those relief people" might take some of her possessions, like her record player. Then she began to clutch her head, and said she knew she would have no answer "questions, questions, questions!"

Time and again people have expressed their fear of going to a social agency. This woman called it "torture."

It actually comes of our own ingrown pride in keeping our affairs private and belief able to manage. A man will walk back and forth along the street in front of an agency before going in to ask or help.

Trained social workers realize these things and have in easy societies that a person carries which e comes to an agency. Social workers strive to put such people at ease, make them feel that they are worthy intelligent human beings, with a right to the help which the agency wants to give them.

Sometimes the help is in the nature of discussion and proper handling of income, and counselling with regard to budgeting money which is there already; but sometimes the whole problem is that there just is no income.

Trained social workers (and they are college graduates) know how to handle the, they know how to let people at ease, receiving the help to which the person in trouble lays upon them. Government investigators, too, study to help people to receive what is their without any feelings of inferiority.

Suppose the dilemma has to do with an expectant mother, with three or four children. If there are young homeqakers in the town, a worker in the family agency will help make arrangements for one.

What about if your foster age nine, has been a source of rebellion all married authority? Suppose 16 reigns illness to avoid school? It helps himself to Mother's purse who he has a talent for petty chips?

Some of these things are real dilemmas for young and inexperienced parents luck as they have their own happy hold of the reins, parents are often scared more than youngsters themselves, poor they are entitled to guidance in accomplishing one of the most important jobs there is to—helping their own children to become happy and fulfilled personalities.

Social worker— and I am talking about trained social workers with degrees of bachelor or master of social work — have studied human behavior and know how to help people work their way through problems.

Time and again we get a report after a visit, that the worker was kind, helpful and a lovely person. If you or your family need help, either with a financial or psychological problem make that first appointment and discover that social workers are human.

(If something is troubling you, there's help to be had. Write to Doris, in care of this newspaper, for another short on your difficulty.)

Ann Landers' Smooching In Front of Kids 'Healthy'

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing this for "Been Down That Road," the woman whose husband was always after her for sex. She complained because he made "suggestive" remarks in front of the children.

You could have done better than that answer, Ann. I know, because I was raised in a strict, religious family where there was no sign of affection between my father and mother. It had a terrible effect on my sister and me.

Our parents never exchanged one word of endearment. There were no pet names or even a pet on the hand (much less the fanny) in front of my father. I was a roomer and my mother was a housekeeper.

I learned from example. When they see no sign of fondness or caring they get the unspoken message that something is wrong with showing affection. They grow up inhibited and find it difficult in later years to express affection to others.

Both my sister and I had to have several years of therapy before we could open up and accept love from a member of the opposite sex.

Please tell your readers that parents should never be ashamed to show love for one another. Encourage them to smooch a little in front of the children or caring they get the impression that some thing

Stanfield Bids For Quebec Votes

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Crowning his Quebec campaign with his biggest election rally Thursday, Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield exhorted Bill support-ers to elect enough Quebec MPs to give his party a majority in the next Parliament.

A cheering, banner-waving crowd of 8,000 crammed the St. Jerome Arena heard Mr. Stanfield forecast his party will receive the largest number of seats in the Commons in the July 8 election.

But he urged the crowd to give the final blow that will send enough Quebec MPs to Ot-tawa to form a majority Conservative government.

Marcel Masse, Conservative candidate in Labelle riding and a former provincial cabinet minister at the stage for Mr. Stanfield's last Quebec appear-ance in the election by appeal-ing to voters to throw out the "silent team" of Trudeau Liber-als—and replace it with a Con-servative group.

Mr. Stanfield renewed charges that Prime Minister Trudeau has forgotten about commitments to Front de Liber-ation du Quebec (FLQ) terror-ists who were exiled to Cuba in the October, 1970, crisis.

Mr. Trudeau has said the FLQ terrorists were granted safe passage to a country of their choice for the release of kidnapped British diplomat James Cross.

The kidnappers picked Cuba, but there was no provision for return of the exiles to Can-ada to stand trial if they left that country, the prime minis-ter said. But he suggested they will probably return to Canada eventually as no other country will have them.

Mr. Stanfield said the prime minister should reveal all de-tails of the agreement. "The very foundations of our system are at stake, justice must follow its course without obstruction and without exception."

Supporters were brought in by bus from as far away as Ge-neva, Que., about 100 miles away, Mr. Stanfield's appear-ance at the rally was delayed a half hour by a traffic jam created by outsiders flowing into the city of 30,000 near Montreal.

The crowd was warmed up by popular Quebec singers Mich-elle Richard and Claude Valade and the group Les Classels in the arena, filling the aisles.

A few "middle-aged women clambered onto the stage to kiss the Conservative leader as he turned to leave the area.

Earlier, Mr. Stanfield told television interviewers in Wind-sor, Ont., that Agriculture Min-ister Eugene Whelan is stepping "pretty close to bigotry" in re-ported comments about the Conservative leader's handling of controversial Leonard Jones, mayor of Moncton, N.B.

He said he has been told Mr. Whelan remarked it was un-democratic of the Conservative leader to reject Mr. Jones as a party candidate in the Moncton riding.

Mr. Stanfield has said he could not accept Mr. Jones be-cause of his opposition to the official Languages Act. But Moncton mayor is running in the election as an independent and is given a good chance of winning the riding.

Bums' Rush

Dave Lewis Takes Stroll on Portage

WINNIPEG (CP) — David Lewis spent a lively hour mainstreeting among NDP crowds Thursday, winding up a cyclic campaign outing with a fiery attack on Liberal and Pro-gressive Conservative pension policies.

Accompanied by five local candidates, the New Demo-cratic Party leader was given a friendly reception as he strolled in shirtsleeves down sunny Por-tage Avenue, reaching out with both hands to greet passers-by.

Most, when told him well but many were quicker to recognize veteran parliamentarian Stan-ley Knowles, the federal NDP House leader. Mr. Knowles is running for re-election in Win-nipeg North Centre which in-cludes most of Portage Avenue, the city's main street.

Some went out of their way to walk around the NDP leader and a few refused to shake hands.

"Get out of my way, I'm for Stanfield," barked one old man who bobbed past on crutches.

A troupe of about two dozen sign-carrying NDP supporters blocked much of the sidewalk as they followed Mr. Lewis and the candidates.

At one intersection, where the entourage crossed on a red light, drivers fumed in their cars as pedestrians waited for green and heck to red again.

"What in hell is this," sput-tered one woman. "I haven't got all day."

The group covered 14 blocks in all, meeting scores of voters. The walk ended in downtown Memorial Park where a rock band was playing to a scattered noon crowd.

Lewis left immediately for the city's union centre where he ate dinner and said in a brief speech that old-age pensions should be nearly doubled to $200 a month, a longstanding NDP proposal.

He said the Liberals refused to recognize the plight of the el-derly when it brought down its May 6 budget and the Con-servatives have offered only a 10 increase.

"Give us a chance to form the government and we will not only give our senior citizens a liveable income but also, over five years, lower the age of eligibility from 65 to 60 for those who want of their own will to leave the labor market."

Lewis reiterated a demand that the government fulfil what he said was an August, 1973, promise to call an inquiry into the operation of the CNR pen-sion fund.

"There is no excuse for the delay unless the promise was merely a hypocritical gesture," he said.

He was to fly later to The Pas in northern Manitoba for an evening rally and return to Winnipeg for the night.

'PM Didn't Turn Back on Us' Says West Liberal

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Thurs-day completed his pitch for votes in Western Canada—an area that largely rejected his Liberal government in 1972— and was given a resounding send-off from Saskatchewan Liberal Leader Davey Steuart.

Mr. Trudeau, concentrating on the Assiniboia riding where the Liberals feel they have a chance to defeat New Democrat MP Bill Knight, flew into Gra-ham and this town with the message that a re-elected Lib-eral government wants greater western representation.

After Mr. Trudeau made his pleas in both centres, Mr. Steuart went to the microphone to urge voters to throw their support behind the Liberals be-cause "we can't afford the lux-ury of voting for the NDP or the Conservatives."

With Mr. Trudeau smiling in the background, Mr. Steuart said that after the 1972 provin-cial Liberal government could easily have turned its back on the NDP, since the West had turned its back on Mr. Trudeau. But it did not.

Instead, the prime minister made a serious effort to solve the problems in the area. The NDP members Saskatchewan sent to Ottawa merely "hollered and complained."

More than 500 persons turned out in the small community of Gravelbourg to see the first visit by a prime minister to the town. They stood in a sweltering, sunless auditorium—the outside temperature was 86 degrees—as Mr. Trudeau talked about the important role the West plays in Canada.

Mr. Trudeau had planned to visit Gravelbourg earlier, but his schedule was interrupted by the death of French premier Georges Pompidesou.

He came to support Ralph Goodale, former executive as-sistant to Justice Minister Otto Lang, who Mr. Trudeau praised as one of the greatest spokes-men ever elected on behalf of Western Canadians.

Then Mr. Trudeau, whose wife Margaret remained behind in Vancouver, flew off to Wey-burn, also in the Assiniboia rid-ing, to tell an outdoor crowd that Progressive Conservatives are a party of "confusion and contradiction."

Speaking to a friendly au-dience that nearly filled a large town parking lot, the prime minister said that his party "is not making some-thing in the 1972 election.

"Most observers said the West didn't trust the Liberal party," but since then a great deal of effort has gone into solving re-gional problems in the country.

He asked for more Liberal representation so western views would be made known in Ot-tawa.

The prime minister appeared tired after an arduous cam-paign, although he told the crowd that most of the "heavy hitting" has been within the Conservative party itself.

"The Liberals are united as never before. We are going to form the next government and we want a strong western rep-resentation.

Mr. Steuart, who followed Mr. Trudeau at both Saskatchewan centres, said that "things are better in Saskatchewan today than they were 18 months ago when the last election was held."

He sent one Liberal to Ot-tawa (Mr. Lang). He performed miracles for us. We can't turn back on Mr. Trudeau again."

If PCs Don't Get Majority

Dief Sees Liberal-NDP Coalition

DUCK LAKE, Sask. (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker predicted Thursday that the NDP and Liberals will form a coalition government, if Monday's federal election fails to produce a majority govern-ment.

Mr. Diefenbaker, campaign-ing in this farming community 30 miles southwest of Prince Al-bert for Ray Hnatyshyn, Con-servative candidate in Saska-toon-Biggar, said he based his predictions on comments by NDP members of the last Par-liament who he said support the views of a formal coalition.

The 79-year-old former Pro-gressive Conservative party leader said the coalition cabinet would include Liberal and New Democrat MPs.

He said NDP members feel the presence of New Democrats in the cabinet would bring about a Parliament with a longer life span than that of a minority Liberal government defeated this spring.

NDP Leader David Lewis said earlier this week a coali-tion with either the Liberals or the Conservatives is out of the question at present.

The prediction was the high light of Mr. Diefenbaker's six-hour, six-town helicopter tour through the farming region once included in his Prince Al-bert constituency but now part of Saskatoon-Biggar.

Mr. Diefenbaker ends his campaign today with an ap-pearance at the Shipwreck Fair and a major speech in Wey-burn.

He and his wife are to relax Saturday and Sunday before voting in Prince Albert where they will await the outcome of the election Monday night.

Judy LaMarsh Helps Ottawa-Carleton PC

OTTAWA (CP) — There was Judy LaMarsh, former Liberal cabinet minister, shaking cam-paign hands Thursday during the election campaign in Finance Minister John Turner's riding. But she was helping Bill Ne-ville, the Progressive Con-servative challenger in Ottawa-Carleton.

"I just happen to think he's a first-rate guy," she said of Mr. Neville, her executive assistant from 1963 to 1968 while she was secretary of state.

Her endorsement of the Con-servative candidate does not necessarily jibe with the fact that last Monday she voted for the Liberal candidate in her home riding of Niagara Falls. She does not plan to be home elec-tion day.

Miss LaMarsh, however, sees no conflict: she protested Thursday that both seemingly conflicting acts involve old friends, so she feels there is no irony in her apparently mixed allegiance.

Faulkner Would Aid Publishers

PETERSBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — State Secretary Hugh Faulk-ner promised Thursday to launch a $1.5-million program to pro-vide the publishing industry with funds and technical advice for promotion, advertising and distribution.

Mr. Faulkner, speaking at a news conference, also discussed the film industry and the pro-forming arts which fall under his department.

Mr. Faulkner said the Liberal government would extend the provisions of the Foreign In-vestments Review Act to in-clude Canadian publishers.

This would mean that Canadian book publishers will be un-likely subjects for takeover if they are not at present covered under the review provisions, he said.

He said that in order to get more private investors into the film industry, the Liberal gov-ernment would amend the In-come Tax Act to nearly double the capital cost allowance for investment in Canadian films.

This will enable film-makers to write off 131 per cent of their losses as compared with 80 per cent, he said.

To increase Canadian film sales abroad, he suggested the establishment of a federal fea-ture to promote Canadian parti-cipation in international film festivals and to encourage and support film festivals in Can-ada.

He said the Liberal govern-ment would also set up a tax-related regular minimum exposure of Canadian films in com-mercial movie theatres across the country.

Protest

HULL, Que. (CP) — Eight news reporters at radio station CKCH walked off their jobs Thursday to protest a station management decision to broad-cast a Montreal Expos-San Francisco Giants baseball game Monday night instead of federal election returns.

The reporters, members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Tech-nicians, say they will stay out until noon Tuesday to protest the station's decision.

The station had offered to al-low 30 minutes for election cov-erage plus interruptions of the game for any urgent news. Re-porters said they wanted full election coverage but were will-ing to have programming inter-rupted for the occasional base-ball score.

Food Prices Ease

By CHERYL HAWKES
The Canadian Press

Substantial increases this spring in the prices of dairy products, fresh vegetables and milk started to level off in June.

But beef and pork lovers continued to pay more for their favorite fare while chicken and fish eaters discovered lower prices.

A Cross-Canada Survey of 12 cities by The Canadian Press showed further increases in June in the total cost of 17 standard items in Central Canada and the West, with some relief for Eastern Canadian centres.

While cattlemen applauded the federal government's removal to 10% its import ban on United States cattle treated with the growth hormone DES, consumer group spokesmen speculated that removing the barrier would mean a 30-to 40-per-cent drop in the retail price of beef.

Wholesale beef prices did drop in mid-month as packers' cattlemen, fearful the ban might be lifted, brought their animals in for slaughter in record numbers.

But the panic was short-lived as federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan quelled the government would not reopen doors, despite threats of reprisals by the U.S.

While its effects have not been measured, a continuing lockout of their employees by three major meat-packing companies in Alberta has kept some cattle from market, helping to hold prices down. Meat-packing companies in the province have not been open for months and cattle farmers have offered for slaughter.

Coffee and sugar prices eased somewhat in some centres, but several seasonal products increased as the more-expensive Dehlicious season began in Ontario canne into season. But produce prices are beginning to show signs of summer as shoppers benefit from the domestic rather than imported goods.

Egg prices, which edged close to $1.00 a dozen in some centres throughout May, turned off in June, and milk and butter prices also remained stable.

Near the end of the month, the Food Prices Review Board issued its fourth quarterly report since its creation in May 1973. The report predicted "years of relative stability in food prices at the consumer level" settling." Supply and demand are coming into better balance, the 42-page report contended.

However, the report conformed that food prices have been rising faster than personal incomes—a 17.3-per-cent rise in the first three months of the year compared to a 5.5-per-cent increase after inclusion in the average after-tax income.

Trial Ordered

Provincial Court Judge J. G. Clendenning yesterday ordered Raymond Peter Ladouceur, 20, of Corbyville, to stand trial on two charges of robbery and unlawfully possessing a firearm. He could be fined $10,000 and 5 years' imprisonment.

The order to stand trial followed the conclusion of two lengthy preliminary hearings in provincial court here yesterday.

Ladouceur is charged with the offences in connection with a May 20 incident in which a Belleville woman was knocked to the ground on Catherine Street and had her purse stolen.

Cash Stolen

Belleville police are investigating a break-in that netted thieves approximately $50 in cash from an apartment at 4 Village Drive sometime yesterday.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reported today that thieves broke into Apartment 4 at 4 Village Dr. and stole the money which was in coin rolls and bills.

Nothing else was reported stolen.

Entry was gained to the building by slipping the latch on the front door sometime between 8 a.m. and 4.50 p.m. yesterday.

Man Charged

A 25-year-old Belleville man, Harvey Amos Keller, of 6th Bridge Street East has been charged with public mischief after a man smashed a window in the door at Sweet's Auto Glass on Dundas Street at 11.05 p.m. police chased and apprehended a man who had been seen breaking the window in the door to the Dundas Street store.

Damage to the window was under $50.

Emphasis on Arts

A three-year-old organization, the Canadian Cultural Society of the Deaf, made its first appearance in Ontario at the convention of the Ontario Association for the Deaf, where the society is holding cultural competitions to encourage deaf artists, performers and craftsmen. Admiring some of the crafts on display are Forrest Nickerson, Winnipeg artist and founder of the society and society vice-president, Angela Petrone.

Governments Accused Of Ignoring the Deaf

A deaf artist has accused the federal government of ignoring $6,000 deaf and hearing impaired people in Canada.

Forrest Nickerson, president of the Canadian Cultural Society of the Deaf, has blasted the government for failing to give grant support to foster the cultural growth of the deaf.

He made his point at the first biennial convention of the Ontario Association of the Deaf, at Ontario School for the Deaf this week. The OCSD is sponsoring a cultural awards competition and a talent entertainment Friday during the convention.

Mr. Nickerson was founder of the society, whose purpose is to promote a full cultural life for the deaf.

"Theatre makes pursuit of cultural activities more difficult," he says. "Deafness also makes cultural activities more essential."

Many people can — and do — excel in many cultural fields. Did they need motivation, says Mr. Nickerson. He is a successful artist who works for a Winnipeg art house and also does freelance sketches and artwork for wildlife booklets.

His society, formed in 1971, promotes provincial and national competitions with awards in 29 categories grouped in five areas: physical (painting, sculpture and photography), literary (poetry, creative writing), performance (pantomime and one-act plays), recreational (chess, dancing, magic and humor) and home arts (knitting, crocheting, quilting, embroidery, sewing).

The society also sponsors the annual Miss Deaf Canada Pageant, a talent contest for young women.

Among the project, society members envision is a Canadian talent registry for deaf entertainers and performers of professional stature who would be available to entertain the public. For instance, president Nickerson's brother, Malcolm Nickerson, of Toronto, is a talented magician.

The society is having trouble finding the funds for its programs and special projects. The federal government and the Canada Council have turned down requests for grants and provincial governments have also refused funds.

The society has asked for $45,000 the Canadian Treasury of the Deaf is asking for $10,000 to $12,000 and the Theatre des Sourds du Quebec has asked for $9,000. Individuals asking for assistance to take vocational and mime courses have also been refused.

In contrast, the All-Russian Society of the Deaf House of Culture in Moscow is supported by the Soviet government and the United States government supports the National Theatre of the Deaf.

The Canadian government gave between $40,000 and $50,000 to the blind but only $1,700,000 to the deaf during the same period. "The deaf have a right to culture fulfilment as much as any other person," say Mr. Nickerson.

The cultural society, formed in the west, is making its debut among the deaf in Ontario at this year's OAD convention.

The Quinte Arts Council is providing judges for the various categories, while the arts, crafts and literary work have lodged Thursday afternoon and the performing arts Friday night.

Convention of Deaf Opens

The 41st biennial convention of the Ontario Association of the Deaf opened Thursday at Ontario School for the Deaf with Mayor Robin Jeffrey bringing greetings from the city. Superintendent Dr. J. G. Demeza, left, gave a lesson in fingerspelling to the mayor (third from left), assisted by Maureen Baskerville, chairman for the convention and Robert Reid, president of OAS. The convention continues until Sunday.

Deaf Association Elects Woman as Chairman

For the first time in its long history, the Ontario Association of the Deaf has a woman chairman for its biennial convention.

Maureen Baskerville an Ottawa resident will preside over the convention that started at Ontario School for the Deaf here Thursday and will continue through Sunday.

The association, established in 1926, has met several times at OSD for its convention, but for the first time delegates will debate issues calling for the services of education to revise its constitution, policy and school for the deaf. At present the emphasis is on oral communication and fingerspelling and the deaf want sign language included. Most communication at the convention is by signing, with members of OSD staff on hand as interpreters for hearing people.

Dr. J.G. Demaza, many changes at the school told delegates they would see many changes at the school one of them the introduction of fingerspelling this year.

In September for the first time, the provincial government will permit deaf students without basic teaching certificates, to enrol in the teacher training program at OSD. Former government policy of providing only holders of a basic teachers certificate to enrol had limited deaf teachers being trained in British Columbia and the United States.

"We had one deaf person in teacher training this year, but she has a basic certificate, said Dr. Demaza.

Each of the three panels for the deaf, in Belleville, Milton and Brantford are recruiting deaf adults to train as teachers. Belleville has already selected one, said Dr. Demaza has hopes of recruiting another.

The school will start a new program for emotionally disturbed deaf children in the fall. One of the houses on the grounds will become a small group home for these children.

The superintendent noted that most OSD students now go home every weekend, under an arrangement by which their local school boards pay the transportation costs. Those from the far north are able to return for long holiday weekends.

Teachers' professional development days at OSD are held on Mondays so that northern children can have a long weekend. Those from the most remote areas are flown home and the rest go by bus.

In common with the new campscon school's OSD now has a superintendent's advisory council comprised of deaf adults, the president of the students' council, parents of students who work with the deaf. Its purpose is to keep the superintendent aware of the needs and desires of the deaf.

The convention continues with a keynote speech by Rev. Dr. Robert Randall, of the Mission of the Deaf in Toronto Friday afternoon, and a cultural evening later. A field day and banquet and ball at the Four Seasons Hotel are scheduled for Saturday and an ecumenical church service Sunday morning will conclude the events.

Chief Says Downtown Fire Deliberately Set

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Colhoun said today that the department has come to the conclusion that the fire that destroyed the building that housed Shane Fashion Boutique at 268 Front Street on Monday was deliberately set.

At present the fire department has no suspects in the arson case.

Chief Colhoun said today that his department's two fire inspectors and representatives from the Ontario Fire Marshal's office spent the last three days investigating the fire and came to the conclusion that the fire was started in the rear portion of the building in a 10-inch gap that separated the burned building from S. S. Kresge's Ltd. to the south.

The materials that were used to start the fire were destroyed in the blaze, the chief said, but evidence showed that the fire was started next to a long-disused loading dock that was located five feet east of the rear of the building.

The freight door that led into the building was badly damaged on the outside, while the inside was relatively unmarked, the chief said, which he indicates that the fire was started right next to it.

Chief Colhoun said he believed the fire had been set four to five hours before it was noticed eating lunch in a restaurant across the street and that the fire was discovered on Front Street turned in the alarm at approximately 1.00 p.m.

There are no official damage estimates available yet, but informed sources have unofficially put the loss at six figures at more than $300,000.

The three-storey brick building that housed Shane Fashion Boutique was con-

White Cane Officers Named

Wilson Morris has been named president of the Quinte White Cane Club for the year 1974-74.

Vice-presidents are Frank Duncan and Hubert Thrasher with Helen Wardaugh as recording secretary. Mrs. Wilson Morris as treasurer, and Mel Buckingham as financial convener. The president will act as transportation convener and Clarence Hicks as recreation convener.

Helen Wardaugh, who was the delegate to the Eastern Ontario Convention of the Canadian Council of the Blind at Cambridge, gave a report on the meeting.

The Belleville Kinsmen presented a cheque to each blind bowler of the White Cane Club. Miss Pat Hancock, club past president conducted the election of officers.

The Campaigners

National Campaign Never Stops

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

George Hees, Progressive conservative member of the last house, will have travelled more than 100,000 miles by the time the election rolls around.

It's a long, arduous campaign trail, taking Mr. Hees and a cluster of assistants led by hierarchy the length and breadth of the country, before the PC party can proclaim for a first win and hitting at what the conservatives see as the soft spots in the Liberal Government.

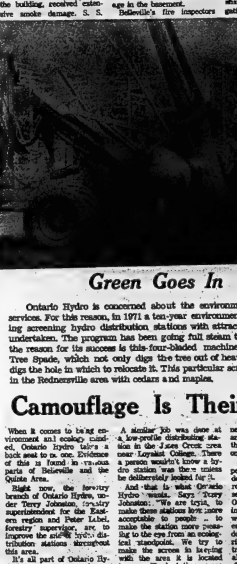
"There'll be no big changes in Quebec and the Maritimes," said Mr. Hees. "We're concentrating on Ontario and the western provinces."

National campaigning, a prestige position for a party member, means air flights, stags, a stop at lunch and dinner and 42 to undergo-ers each manner. And all the while "it's working with new faces, giving support, providing answers and explaining national policy," said Mr. Hees.

There's not much glamor in the cross country hops as far as Mr. Hees is concerned. "If anything they're too long," he said. "For sure they're too long."

Though he says, "normal in my home riding of Prince Edward Hastings that is one day, chosen to go out on the national campaign."

Last election all parties spent about $3 million in printed advertising and election costs. Mr. Hees said the campaign should be restricted to three weeks and the bill brought down to about $1 million.



If he or other reps, the campaign should be shortened "because the people are bored stiff hearing the same things," said Mr. Hees. "All the issues have been pretty well discussed and the people are pretty familiar locally."

Apart from his national commitment, Mr. Hees will be campaigning in his own riding doing the same thing he's been doing since he was elected.

"I'm campaigning all the time," he says.

Asked if he was tiring of the election trail, he said "it's a hell of an exhausting thing."

Tired or not, the Conservative campaign star of most times made the rounds in the old Sunday off. Then its back on the trail, making no predictions, saying there is no such thing as a safe seat.

Dancing Is Campaigning, Too

Green Goes In

Ontario Hydro is concerned about the environment of the areas it services. For this reason, in 1971 a ten-year environmental program involving screening hydro distribution stations with attractive landscaping was undertaken. The program has been going full steam this year and part of the reason for its success is this four-bladed machine called a Vermeer Tree Spade, which not only digs the tree out of heavily wooded areas but replaces it. Pictured in particular screening is being done in the Rednersville area with cedars and maples.

Camouflage Is Their Job

A similar job was done at a large transformer building station in the Lake Creek area near Loyalist College. There a person wouldn't know a hydro station was there unless he deliberately looked for it.

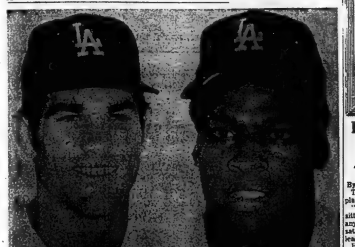
And that is what Ontario Hydro wants. Says Terry Johnston: "We are trying to make these stations look more acceptable to people . . . to make the station more pleasing to the eye rather than stick out like a sore thumb."

Hydro is also concerned with the rest throughout the eastern area. Other work they have undertaken involves the rights-of-way through communities and generally growing along them.

Trees have also been planted around hydro stations in the Corbyville area and other such screenings in the district. This year's screening project will begin in the Quinte area.

The trees being used are started in early June and was those in hospital with the area from such as cedars, tamarack and maples. All contributing to the overall beautification is pleasing to the eye as yeas-Rae.

Post Office To Close Early Election Day



Monday's general election will close post offices nearly two hours early in Belleville and Trenton.

Because of the election law that states an employer must give sufficient time off so employees will have hours to cast ballots.

The polls close at 8 p.m. To observe the law this means post office wickets must close at 4 p.m. election day. Roy Wardaugh, Belleville area postmaster said today.

Usual closing time in Belleville and Trenton is 5.45 p.m.

Dodgers Recall 1973

Los Angeles Dodgers are out to prove they've not ready for two collapses in a row.

A two-run ninth-inning rally Thursday produced a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati and dropped the defending National League West Division champion Reds 9½ games behind the runaway Dodgers.

"We blew it last year and we haven't forgotten. It won't happen again," said Dodgers' second baseman Dave Lopes.

Los Angeles' biggest lead over the second-place Reds a year ago was 8½ games on July 17.

In other National League action Thursday, Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, Montreal Expos nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 in the opener of a double-header but dropped the nightcap 3-2, Philadelphia Phillies lost their opener to New York Mets 3-2 and then ended an eight-game losing skid by taking the nightcap 6-2, Houston Astros shaded Atlanta Braves 4-2 in 10 innings and San Francisco Giants trounced San Diego Padres 9-2.

Los Angels relief ace Mike Marshall, who was three outs away from becoming the loser against Cincinnati, fanned seven batters he faced and wound up with his ninth consecutive triumph—he's 11-3 over-all—when Steve Garvey clouted a two-run single in the ninth inning against Pedro Borbon and Crawford scored on Bill Russell's single.

The Reds had taken a 2-1 lead against Marshall in the eighth.

Rookie Andre Thornton's double keyed a three-run fourth inning and Chicago held on to beat St. Louis.

The burst against John Curtis snapped a string of 39 innings in which the Cubs had failed to score.

Jose Cardenal walked to start the rally, Bill Madlock singled and Thornton's long double tied the score. Steve Swisher singled Madlock home and Dave Rosello's grounder scored Thornton with the winning run.

Wayne Twitchell, making his second start of the season since coming back from knee surgery, pitched afire-hitter and Larry Bowa tripled to highlight a two-run first inning that helped the Phillies end an eight-game losing streak in the nightcap. Bill Robinson drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a grounder and Mike Schmidt laced a two-run single in the eighth inning.

New York's Clean Jones drove in four runs, three with a bases-loaded double in the third inning, and John Milner homered in support of Jon Matlack's 10-strikeout effort in the opener.

Cesar Cedeno, who hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning, doubled home the winning run for the Astros in the 10th. His game-winning double off Dan Boitano scored pinch-hitter Roger Metzger.

The Braves tied to score with two out in the ninth on an infield hit by Darrel Evans, who homered earlier.

Gary Matthews hit a tie-breaking two-run homer in the fourth inning. Ed Goodson drilled athree-run shot in the seventh and Tom Bradley registered his first victory since June ofespite home runs by San Diego's John Grubb and Willie McCovey.

Leads Brewers' Attack

Mike Hegan Delivers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's no place like home plate for Mike Hegan.

"I think a guy who's satisfied sitting on the bench is not worth anything," says Hegan, who has sat there for most of his major league career.

He played an entire game for a change Thursday and drove in five runs with two homers in Milwaukee's 12-3 rout of Cleveland Indians.

Hegan got into the game only because regular George Scott was injured.

In other American League games, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 6-4, Baltimore Orioles trounced Boston Red Sox 10-6, Chicago White Sox bombed Kansas City Royals 11-2, Minnesota Twins defeated Texas Rangers 2-1, and Oakland A's turned back California Angels 9-4.

Hegan, who got into only one previous game for Brewers, hit his third homer of the season in the fourth inning and a two-run homer in the eighth.

Ed Sprague, 6-1, blanked the Indians until the fifth when Rudy Bell doubled home two runs and Jack Brohamer singled in another.

Walt Williams' sacrifice fly sparked a three-run ninth inning rally that lifted New York over Detroit and ended the Yankees' seven-game losing streak.

The Yankees jumped on Detroit relief ace John Hiller, 11-6, and got one-out singles by Elliott Maddox, Lou Piniella and Bobby Murcer.

Williams, who is batting .261 through Thursday, trounced St. Louis Cardinals 10-3 in the opening game of their Ontario Fastball League doubleheader.

Pete in Form

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pete Landers was back in his old form Thursday, pitching a three-hit shutout as Toronto Globals downed Burlington Provincials 2-0 in the opening game of their Ontario Fastball League doubleheader.

and has not had a hit since April 16, then hit his fly ball to left field, Murcer later scored on a single by Otto Velez.

Bobby Grich drove in three runs, one with his 13th homer, as Baltimore rolled past Boston and completed a sweep of their three-game series.

Earl Williams belied a two-run homer, his fifth, as the Orioles shortened Boston ace Luis Tiant, 11-7, for 12 hits in less than seven innings.

Bill Melton drove in four runs on a bases-loaded double and single as Chicago whipped Kansas City.

Larry Hisle's two-run homer capped a three-run rally in the sixth inning, carrying Minnesota over Texas.

Until the Twins rallied, the Rangers had held a 1-0 lead on Toby Harrah's home run—Dan Ford's 13th.

Vida Blue fired a five-hitter and Joe Rudi laced four hits, including a two-run homer, as Oakland completed a four-game sweep of California.

There's No Stopping PCOs

PETERSBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough PCOs ran their winning streak to 22 games Thursday, trouncing St. Catharines Legionaires 49-4 in the only Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game scheduled.

Jim Johnston fired 11 goals for the undefeated PCOs who now have scored 441 goals this season. Paul Evans had six goals and Bob Watson five.

Moe Jodoin and Brian Evans each netted three with Randy Ing the third.

Expos Split With Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Richie Zisk doubled home the tying run in the eighth inning and Bob Robertson's sacrifice fly lifted Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-2 victory over Montreal Expos and a split in Thursday's National League baseball doubleheader.

Pepe Frias drove in the deciding run with a fluke double in the seventh inning of the opener as the Expos and pitcher Steve Rogers ended the Pirates' six-game winning streak and their home unbeaten string at 14 games.

Rookie Dennis Blair took a 2-1 lead into the eighth inning of the nightcap, but Richie Hebner led off with a single and was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Willie Stargell, Zisk doubled and Robertson's fly sent Stargell home with the winning run.

Blair fell behind 1-0 in the second inning when Zisk reached on an error and scored on single by Robertson and Frank Taveras.

Dave Giusti, primarily a reliever, made his second start of the season for Pittsburgh and surrendered both Montreal runs in the fourth. Ken Singleton walked and Bob Bailey followed with a single before a sacrifice fly by Warren Cromartie and a single by Tim Foli drove home Dunn.

In the first game, the score was tied 1-1 in the seventh inning when Barry Foote opened with a single off Jon Reed, 10-5, who pitched no-hit ball over the final five innings.

After Jim Cox forced Foote, Reed hit a bloop to shallow right which Pirate second baseman Ed Kirkpatrick misplayed for a single, Cox scoring from second.

Rogers, 10-8, singled for Montreal's first hit in the sixth inning and scored the tying run on a single by Bailey. He hurled a seven-hitter.

The Pirates' run came in the second on singles by Stargell and Zisk and an infield grounder.

Although Howard and Robert Pringle's entry Pope looks like a sure out, he was safe on the play as the tag by Barden Supplies' game as a congratula- tu- ner for Bob Parsons in the bottom of the fourth inning, and eventually scored for the Printers' second run of the contest, which they won, 7-5, for their fourth straight shutout in the Quinte Fastball League.

Hockey Stars to Open Tourney

Legion 31 and Legion 99 Two Good Bets in Golden Bat

By MIKE BRADSHAW

From all appearances the team to watch out for in this year's Belleville-Golden Bat Tournament is Legion 31 from Toronto.

The 31 club is riding high in its own league behind their veteran pitching staff. Their hurlers have an ERA of under one.

Last year they were the 'B' Champions of the Tournament, and this year coach Tom Carter says they're even stronger.

But, in a tournament such as Belleville's, a strong team doesn't necessarily mean a winning team.

As Belleville Legion 99 coach, Bob Revoy, says, "I don't care how good a team is, if the ball isn't bouncing for them they might as well forget it."

And the Legion 99 team is one club that, with the help of a few bounces, could very well sweep the tourney.

Right now the locals are close to the top, if not already there, in their own league with a won-loss record of 11-2.

The 99'ers don't pound the ball with every trip to the plate, but the backbone of their club is their starting pitching — is carrying a batting average of .300. Which is consistent enough to win plenty of ball games.

Who else looks promising?

Well, the Kingston crew is strong. At last count they were 6-1 in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play.

Then there's always Whitby. Every team in Eastern Ontario ranked in their division this season in Ontario Amateur Softball Association play.

The game, which was originally scheduled to be played last Saturday, was rained out, with the two series pushed back one week.

Game time for the contest is 8 p.m. at the Memorial field.

Mavety, Ferguson Get Ball Rolling

It's the biggest and the best baseball extravaganza in the Bay of Quinte area and ranks by many of its visitors as the best in the province.

The Sixth Annual Belleville Bantam Golden Bat Baseball Tournament takes place this weekend.

Tonight at 6 the tournament gets under way with 28 clubs scheduled for the opening round of play.

Official opening ceremonies will take place at Centennial Baseball Diamond and five games will commence there after Three at Centennial, one at Parkdale and the 28er at Prince Charles School.

Larry Mavety, star defenceman of the world Hockey Association's Chicago Cougers, and George Ferguson, of the National Hockey League's Toronto Maple Leafs, will take part in the opening ceremonies at Centennial. Along with some of the area's top baseball executives members will also be on hand.

All in all there will be 23 games played in the double knock out tournament. Golden Bat honors include an 'A' Champion, a 'B' Champion and a Grand Champion.

Teams will all play in the first round. If they win, they advance to the 'A' side, and if they lose they drop into 'B' competition.

After the first round has been completed it' team should lose they are out of the running — a team is guaranteed two games.

The games will be played through Saturday with the three championship games scheduled for Sunday.

Each member of the 'A' and 'B' Championship teams will receive individual League trophies and the Grand Champions will receive Golden Bat warm-up jacket.

Each member of each of each team will also receive Golden Bat crests for having participated in the Tournament.

These awards are made possible through the generosity of Belleville Legion 99.

Also up for grabs are 32nd Valuable Player awards for the MVP's in 'A' and 'B' competition and most Sportsman like Player decided by Chiasson's Trophies of Trenton— and the MVP of the tournament, through Legion 99.

The evening highlight of the Tournament, the Golden Bat Banquet will go down this year, without question,

Scott Reid Extends H&R Streak

Howard and Robert Printle's pitching staff has become the toughest in the Quinte Fastball League in the past two weeks. They haven't had a run scored on them in the past four league games, and have been touched for only seven hits.

Last night it was Scott Reid's turn to shine on the rubber. He spun a one-hit shutout over Barden Supplies, backed up by seven runs by his own teammates.

The right-hander on the Printers' staff allowed only three men to reach base, one on the base hit, and two on a pair of walks. He left 14 batters standing at the plate while fanning three others.

Losing hurler Wayne McDonald was raked for nine hits on the Barden mount, also issuing three bases on balls. He fanned four in absorbing the Sapplymen's 12th loss of the season. They have only two wins.

The victory got a double and single from Ken Genereaux to pace their attack, with Wayne Woods adding a pair of singles. Rusty Garvin had a sixth inning triple, with one base hit each going to Larry Potter, Bob Parsons, Jack Hughes, and Dwight Rathwell.

In the first game of the twin bill at the Kenelm, Dewlish Motors recorded a 14-2 win over the Ellis Juniors to create a three-way tie once again for the fourth and final playoff spot.

The Motormen, the Juniors, and Auger Men's Wear all have 10 points in the race for the spot, each with 13 games remaining to play.

Ron Hill was the author of the offensive events on the Motor mound, allowing only three hits. He struck out four Juniors, while walking only one.

Gary McGillivray was tricked for seven hits in taking the loss, striking out three and walking two.

Second baseman Ray Lounsden had a triple and single for the winners, with Terry Meagher stroking a pair of base hits. Singles went to Tom MacDonald, Don Henwood, and John Burnside.

The Juniors' hits, all singles, were collected by Ron Vos, John Sprecksel, and Wayne Andrews.

UIC Stops Constellation

Constellation lost their first game in five in the Industrial Softball League last night, edged by UIC 7-6 in one of three games played in the league.

In the other games, Independents shaded Brooks Road 2-1 and Admiral Aircraft dumped Post Office 5-3.

UIC got five hit pitching from Rick Sullivan in taking the win, with the sturdy righthander striking out nine and walking four.

Ken Kerik took the loss for the Carpetmen, tracked for 12 hits. He struck out two and issued four bases on balls.

Ron Embree had a triple and single for the winners, while Joe Sullivan possessed a double. Two hits each went to Bill Healy, Ron Ivey and Dale Donahue, with one base hit collected by Joe Jaric, Al Calder and Clint Mallory.

For Constellation, it was Wayne May with a double and single, Ron Mitchell with two singles, and Mike Calyan with one base hit.

In a game at CNIB Park which saw two Fosters, Steve Crookwright and Steve Tetherworth, tossed out of the game, Meads scored three runs on five hits for their team win of the year.

Jim Sopka had a triple, with Gary Genereaux rlcading a double and single to pace the attack. Blaine Young and Paul Burley added singles.

For the Pontiac, it was Bill Lietch with a double and single, with Bob Lapsley adding a double. Doug Campbell and Randy Burks rounded out the hitting with singles.

Harold Wilkinson and bonny Holowell pitched in for victory, striking out six and walking eight.

Norm Lockhart absorbed the loss, issuing seven, but issuing five walks.

Rosewall, Connors In Finals

LONDON (CP) — Jimmy Connors of the United States bested his way into the men's singles finals at Wimbledon today, using sharp returns and a stinging forehand to overcome countryman Sandy Mayer.

Connors, the No. 3 seed for the championships, won the first set 6-4, conceded the second 6-4, but returned home when the next three sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Connors will meet the winner of the other men's semi-final, between American Stan Smith, 26, and Ken Rosewall of Australia, in Saturday's men's final.

NAME NEW MANAGER

LEEDS, England (Reuter) — Don Revie, Leeds United manager, has been officially named successor to Sir Alf Ramsey as England's soccer team manager. Revie, 46, agreed Wednesday to take the job but the deal couldn't be completed until Leeds directors accepted his resignation after talks with representatives of the English Football Association.

Shirley's One-hitter Produces a Shutout

Scoring 12 runs in the bottom of the first inning against Stagecoach Sam's, Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund went on to shellack the last place team 21-0, in a Belleville and District Ladies Softball League game played Thursday at Centennial Field.

Shirley Gulliver was the only one hit in the five inning contest, striking out seven and walking only one.

Heather Sinclair and Joanne Garvin shared the loot on the Simpsons mound, allowing all hits, as well as scoring up eight walks.

Joyce McFarlane led the winners with five hits, with Mary Reid stroking three, including a home run. Sharon Alexander and Wendy Corbey added four hit swings, included in their two hits each, with Donna Preston punching a double and single.

Lynn Wood had the only hit for Simpsons, a triple.

The other game in the league last night, between the Parkette and Robert Gardiner Construction at Madoc, was forfeited to the league leaders.

Wimbledon

U.S. Has Shot At 2 Crowns

LONDON (Reuter) — Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union and Australia's Ken Rosewall attempt today to break the United States hold on the Wimbledon tennis championships.

If they lose, the U.S. will be sure of both the singles titles because Mrs. Morozova plays second-seeded Chris Evert in the women's final and Rosewall is the only non-American contesting the men's semi-finals.

Mrs. Morozova beat title holder Billie-Jean King on Wednesday and toppled Virginia Wade of Britain 14-, 7-5, 6-4 in the semi-finals Thursday.

The odds are that Miss Evert, 19, who won her semi-final 6-2, 6-3 against Australia's Kerry Melville, will complete a triumphant European tour by taking the title. She already has won the Italian and French titles in the last five weeks.

She meets semi-finals today bring Rosewall, the ninth seed, and Stan Smith together in a third-seeded showing — Connors against Dick Stockton.

Wings Nip Tomahawks

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Wings were undefeated 8-2 in the final period, but they hung on to defeat Toronto Tomahawks 19-18 in a National Lacrosse League game Thursday night. In the only other contest, Syracuse Slingers beat Jr 10-12 to Les Quebecois in Montreal.

Brian Robinson led the Philadelphia offence with five goals. Wings' Mike Collins had three goals and Larry Loyd, Terry Ferguson, John Grant and Terry Lloyd scored two apiece. Glen Ferguson, Doug Maynard and Jim Wasson each got one goal.

Bob Haw passed the Tomahawks' goals four goals, while Brian Willing scored three. Getting two goals was Jim Quigg and Brian Thompson. Single goals were supplied by Daffy McCarthy, Joe McCrea, Larry Bell, Jack Chisholm, Tim Howell, Peter Thomas and Bill Squires.

Bill Sheehan and Rick Beasley were the pacemakers for Montreal with three goals each. Dale Alexander and Rob McCarthy each had two goals and singles were registered by Bill Bradley, Dave Litzenberger, Dave Taylor, Yvan Blanchard, Serge Loiselle, Jim Lynch, Peter Hammond, Cord Floyd, John Davis and Wayne Sutherland.

The Rangers were led by Gaylord Fowlers with four goals. Bruce Murdock added three, while Bruce Todman, Tom Wright, Rod Cook, Travis Cook and Chris Rich got Syracuse's other goals.

Bomber Rookies Find Als' Regulars Tough

WINNIPEG (CP) — Montreal Alouettes rode the passing arm of veteran Jimmy Jones to a pair of first-quarter touchdowns and went on to defeat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 23-8 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Thursday night.

Montreal opened the game with a veteran lineup that completely outclassed the almost exclusively-rookie Blue Bomber squad. But after the Alouettes built up a 16-1 first-quarter margin, Winnipeg coach Bud Riley, prodded by the 16,500 restless spectators, began inserting veterans into Bomber lineup.

That resulted in almost instant balancing of the action and rookie quarterbacks Ralph Brock of Winnipeg and Kelly Cochrane of Montreal both showed poise and confidence in moving their respective clubs behind the veteran lines.

But while the rookies looked impressive, it was the veteran Jones who made the difference as he directed Montreal to its three touchdowns.

Brian Baima, Steve Ferrughelli and Johnny Rodgers scored the majors, all against a rookie-laden Winnipeg defence that alternated with the veterans through the final three quarters. Don Sweet kicked three converts and two singles for Montreal.

Winnipeg's only touchdown came in the third quarter when Dave Montagano fumbled a punt on the Montreal 34-yard line which Wayne Norman recovered and carried into the end zone at 6:25. Walk McKee converted and added one single on a wide field goal attempt.

Montreal led 15-1 at half time and 23-8 at the end of the third quarter.

WHAs Team Canada Eager

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Sept. 1 opening of the Team Canada training camp may be advanced, Deryk Holmes of Hockey Canada said Thursday.

Holmes told a news conference that a number of players have expressed interest in starting before Sept. 1 to prepare for the eight-game series between the best of the World Hockey Association and the Soviet Union.

"We may have Lloyd Percival set up a conditioning program," Holmes said. " But first we have to discuss it with Bibby Harris (coach of Team Canada) and Bill Hunter (general manager).

"I think I know that it is necessary . . . and if all the players agree similar interests there's a good possibility the camp may begin sooner.

"I think in this case the WHA has shown a little more foresight then the previous team," he said in reference to the National Hockey League team which met the Russians in an eight-game series in 1972.

The second game of the series against the Soviet Union's national hockey team will be played in Toronto on Sept. 19, Ron Stewart, in charge of ticket for the series, confirmed.

Stewart said final arrangements were confirmed Thursday with Maple Leaf Garden officials, removing the doubt that had surrounded the game.

"We were just informed that the contracts has been settled and the game will definitely be in Toronto," Stewart said.

At the same time, Holmes said revenue from the series will be split evenly between the WHA and Hockey Canada. The Hockey Canada share will then be divided with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The first four games of the series will be played in Canada, beginning Sept. 17 in Quebec City but then moving to Toronto, Winnipeg on Sept. 22 and Vancouver Sept. 23. The final four games will be played in the Soviet Union in early October.

Now It's Back to Work For Soccer Finalists

MUNICH (Reuter) — Helmut Schoen and Rinus Michels, rival coaches of the West German and Dutch Football teams, put their players back to work at training camps today before Sunday's World Cup soccer final in the Munich Olympic Stadium.

With a day of rest and easy-paced workouts behind them after bruising contest Wednesday which won them places at the soccer summit, the coaches planned more serious training and study of their opponent's strategy.

Both sides held leisurely training sessions Thursday with several probable starters in the final doing little or no work.

The West Germans have moved to the Munich area, to train on the same pitches the Munich players goalkeeper Sepp Maier, captain Franz Beckenbauer and Gerd Mueller, Uli Hoeness, Paul Breitner and Georg Schwarzenbeck.

For the first two rounds of the finals, the West Germans were in the north of the country and initially at least they came in for rousing from the crowds as coaches of the West German and Dutch Football teams, put their players back to work at training camps today before Sunday's World Cup soccer final in the Munich Olympic Stadium. .

The West Germans have moved to the Munich area, to train on the same pitches the Munich players goalkeeper Sepp Maier, captain Franz Beckenbauer and Gerd Mueller, Uli Hoeness, Paul Breitner and Georg Schwarzenbeck.

For the first two rounds of the finals, the West Germans were in the north of the country about the lineups of the finals is even Dutch winger Rob Rensbrink, who left the field Wednesday with a badly pulled hamstring muscle.

He did not train Thursday, but was shot down with pills at Hiltrup and said the leg felt better.

"The doctor thinks I have a 18 per cent chance of playing on Sunday," Rensenbrink said. But the Dutch team seemed reconciled to be without him.

Experienced Piet Keizer, recovered from a throat infection which kept him even off the substitutes bench for the Brazil game, was ready to move back into the lineup.

Brazil and Poland, who last their group B chance in West Germany, meet in the third-place playoff at the Olympic Stadium Saturday.

Brazil's defending champions were a disheartened group when they moved into their Munich quarters.

For the playoff they will be without injury defender Luis Pereira, expelled Wednesday after a foul on Johan Neeskens.

Petty Second

Firecracker 400 To David Pearson

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — David Pearson pushed the nose of his Mercury past Richard Petty's Dodge by half a car-length at the finish line Thursday and won the Firecracker 400 stock car race for the third straight year.

A five-car duel around a many different makes of late model automobiles made up for the lack of speed in the 100-degree heat — slowest in the 17-year history of this holiday event.

The record crowd of about 45,000 stood as Petty passed Pearson at the start of the final lap of the 2½-mile Daytona International Speedway. But Pearson pushed past Petty coming off the fourth turn and won the sprint to the wire despite an effort by Petty to shut him off.

It was the fourth straight year Petty finished second in this race he has never won.

Bobby Baker in a Ford and Cale Yarborough in a Chevrolet were in a photo finish for third place.

East Ross of Atlas Crate, Ont., was 13th among 18 finishers. He won $2,900.

Bobby Allison's Matador ran into valve trouble in the final 50 miles and dropped out of contention. He finished fifth.

The lead changed 49 times among nine drivers.

A series of spins and blown engines brought the yellow caution flag down for a total of 10 laps, including 25 of the first 50.

Light rain prolonged one caution flag for 11 laps. But as the 40-car field skirmished to 39, the weather cleared and it ended in an exciting five-car battle.

Pearson's fourth victory in the season netted him $38,100. Petty's second-place cheque was $18,200.

Stanfield Can Take the Work---But How Does He Stand Food?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wednesday, June 26: Election Day minus 13. A day much like other election campaign days for Robert Stanfield, the Progressive Conservative leader.

Up early, traveling continually, consulting, mainstreeting and speaking to the voters. Seldom time for a decent meal and always late to bed.

"How do you do it" a weekly newspaper reporter had asked the 60-year-old Mr. Stanfield in a bus-ride interview near Williams Lake, B.C., earlier in the campaign.

"Oh, you pace yourself," replied the hard-running leader.

But there was little time for pacing on this particular Wednesday.

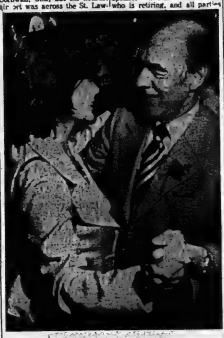
It was a usual day in that it was busy, unusual in that much of it was in Quebec where talking does not come easy for Mr. Stanfield.

In 1972, the Conservatives left much of the campaigning in Quebec to Claude Wagner (St. Hyacinthe) and won two seats. This time Mr. Stanfield has taken over much of the job of seeking desperately-needed French-Canadian Conservative representation.

It was a to be a busy and important day--three speeches, two in French. But, Mr. Stanfield slept until 8 a.m., later than usual, because he had not gone to bed until 2:30 a.m. after campaigning in Newfoundland.

The day started in Ottawa with a shower and a breakfast of an orange, a bowl of cereal, one poached egg on brown toast and a glass of milk--consumed while he read the morning newspapers.

Mrs. Stanfield planned to stay at home for a change and daughter Mimi, 21, was to join Mr. Stanfield in Montreal later.



He grabbed his raincoat and briefcase, jumped into the front seat of the family Oldsmobile, driven by chauffeur Oscar Henri, and headed for Uplands Airport.

Along the way he admired the lush June scenery and read over his speeches.

Waiting at Uplands was Ontario Premier William Davis, one of his most valuable supporters, and Mr. Davis' jet.

The first campaign stop was Cornwall, Ont., but the reserved Mr. Jet was across the St. Lawrence River at Messina, N.Y. As they flew there they talked about the campaign--Ontario is important and the party that gains there might win the election.

Cornwall also is important. It is in the Stormont-Dundas constituency last held by Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who is retiring, and all parties feel it's up for grabs.

Swinging Pair

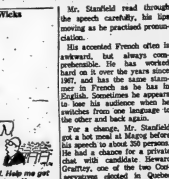
Premier Davis had to hurry back to Toronto to greet the Queen Mother, but he found time to spend a private hour with Mr. Stanfield and to do some mainstreeting in Cornwall.

The mainstreeting session was typical: Mr. Stanfield shaking about 75 hands and autographing the hat case of restaurant owner Reg Woodward. He also accepted a gift of a red and blue travel bag from a store owner and held a cocktail which came perilously close to staining Mr. Stanfield's light brown suit.

Back at a hotel, Mr. Stanfield dipped into the first of four sandwich servings of the day. Politicians seldom complain about the food, but their stomachs hurt.

He had to contend with the clattering of an open bar and the lunch service as he delivered a tough speech about inflation.

Conservative candidate Fern Gohdon, former Ontario labor minister, introduced the leader saying: "I have confidence in Bob Stanfield -- I don't care what other people say."



Mr. Stanfield didn't even flinch.

He wants men like Mr. Goldon in Ottawa because of his experience in government and proven record of working for people.

Two ham sandwiches and a glass of beer after the speech, Mr. Stanfield was off on the two big blue Conservative buses heading for Montreal.

In the 90-minute trip he squeezed in a private interview with a reporter and a quick look at his French-language speech.

At Montreal he was met by 70 persons at an old age home. The visit lasted 20 minutes, six for the speech and the rest for he and Mimi to shake every hand in sight.

It was a perfect opportunity for his oft-used peanut butter sandwich speech. That tells of the Liberal government's advice to old-age pensioners to eat nutritional peanut butter sandwiches made from day old bread. It goes with the charge the prime minister isn't excited about inflation.

The day was wearing on. Two bus rides, a 30-minute stop at a hotel, phone calls and speech review and Mr. Stanfield was standing before an audience of about 100 at a yacht club.

There he gave a plan for greater Quebec representation. He has been saying in Quebec that the rest of Canada has shown that it considers the Conservatives an alternative to the Liberals and it was time for Quebec to join them.

There were more sandwiches as he chatted with the people and plugged Raymond Cormier, a CBC television reporter seeking St. Jean seat.

The rain pounded on the yachts as he headed for Magog, another 30-minute bus ride away, where he would deliver the premier speech of the day.

Mr. Stanfield read through the speech carefully, his lips moving as he practised pronunciation.

His accented French often is awkward, but always comprehensible. He has worked hard on it over the years since 1967, and has the same manner in French as he has in English. Sometimes he appears to lose his audience when he switches from one language to the other and back again.

For a change, Mr. Stanfield got a hot meal at Magog before his speech to about 350 persons. He had a chance for a private chat with candidate Howard Graffley, one of the two Conservatives elected in Quebec in 1972.

After the rally Mr. Stanfield chatted, in French, with several persons in the audience, shook more hands and then hiked back to Montreal.

At 11:10 p.m. he headed for his hotel room to think about French-language television interviews scheduled for the morning before a flight to Edmonton.

Englishman Rescues New York Theatre

NEW YORK (AP) — Al- big card in Scapino, a farcical though accustomed to lucky breaks, Jim Dale concedes surprise at his smashing Broadway welcome.

"This American experience wasn't on my schedule at all," the lively, lean Britan stated. "I'd be an idiot if I didn't explore all the opportunities here now."

Long a solid favorite at home, comic - singer - composer - actor Dale is having his first significant impact on that side of the ecstatic reviews was Dale, portraying the rakish servant who solves everyone's problems in the Moliere classic.

The troupe was back in England by the time the totally unrelated troubles of the Circle in the Square organization got into the newspapers.

The Circle in the Square began off-Broadway 21 years ago and compiled an impressive record for artistic creativity. Financial migraines developed rapidly with transfer of its activities last season to a ratty but costly new midtown playhouse.

A couple of flops hastened a slide toward bankruptcy. Only a quick box-office hit could stave off disaster. The management of the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Picked immediately for the international limelight, the venture casts him as the superior rescuer, at least temporarily, at an eminent theatrical institution now facing overdue collapse.

This is how it happened.

A few months ago the Young Vic company put on Scapino as part of a British drama season at

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, July 6

Aries (March 21-April 19) You won't have much difficulty swaying those you come in contact with in your way of thinking if you use your charm and wit.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Goals that are important to you will come more effortlessly over the next few days. So will money.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Situations that call for the use of imagination and creativity will be your cup of tea today and tomorrow.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your mate will look favorably on your requests for material needs, provided your approach is well-timed and clearly stated.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Much of value can be accomplished if you sit yourself with the proper team-mate whose aims parallel your own interests.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a favorable change underway. It will ease some of the strains that have been affecting your work or career.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Some good news you'll be receiving shortly will erase the memory of any setbacks you may have suffered this week.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're very adept in getting lots of mileage out of your household budget. Keep poking for those bargains.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you stand back a little you'll get a much clearer perspective on your problems. Trust your own answers at this time.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Interest will be coming to you from two sources. One is a small channel. The other is quite unexpected.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll begin to feel more independent and in control starting today. This is the time to push forward, while the breaks come easier.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be stiff-necked about letting another go to bat for you if he offers to. It won't damage your image one bit.

such as waiting for mortgage rate to go down before you purchase. Should the rate drop by as much as one per cent, you would save $526.00 per year for five years or $1,720.60. Last year in 12 months the average house in Canada went up about $6,000. In fact once you would be $4,350.00 further behind. If inflation continues, and it seems likely they will, the same thing can happen year after year, so — don't get caught in the trap — the time to buy a new house is now. News Briefs

Elderly Couple Beaten

PORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Howard Burt, 76, and his wife, Irene, 72, were in satisfactory condition in hospital Friday following a brutal beating Thursday that netted an intruder $10.

Lockout Remains

EDMONTON (CP) — Norm LeClair, business agent for the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union, said Friday Alberta's three major meat packing firms were not prepared to lift their lockout unconditionally Monday. A scheduled meeting between the union and company officials was called off when the union learned termination of the lockout was conditional.

Fire Out of Control

TORONTO (CP) — A large forest fire 25 to 30 miles north-west of Dryden continues to spread out of control in the northwestern part of the province. The ministry of natural resources reported Friday that 56 fires were burning in the area compared with 71 earlier in the week.

Cosmonauts Confident

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet space scientists say they have confidence in the new docking unit aboard the Soyuz spacecraft, a critical piece of hardware for the Soviet United States-Soviet space flight scheduled for 1975. "We have no doubt about its reliability", mission director Alexei Yeliseyev said Friday.

White Housing Minister

TORONTO (CP) — John White, Ontario treasurer, has been named acting housing minister, replacing Sidney Handleman who suffered a heart attack Thursday, Mr. Handleman, 53, was in fair condition Friday in the intensive care unit of Mount Sinai Hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Papers Favor PCs

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty-four of Canada's daily newspapers have declared editorially the political party they favor in Monday's federal election, and by more than two-to-one they have endorsed the Progressive Conservatives over the Liberals.

TORONTO (CP) — There appears to be at least one strong feeling among voters during the dying hours of the federal election campaign—that another minority government is a distinct possibility.

The general mood of the electors, the polls and even the talk in some political back rooms indicate that either the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives will form a minority administration. But even experienced political observers are divided on which party will win the most seats.

If the 13.5 million persons eligible to vote do not give one of the parties a majority Monday, the country will have its fifth minority administration in 12 years.

The New Democratic Party precipitated the election when it put its effective balance of power behind the Conservatives to defeat the minority Liberal government over its May 6 budget. It was the first time in Canadian history that a government fell in the House over its budget.

Even then the New Democrats said the 18 months of minority government had been beneficial to the people. They cited increased family allowances, higher old age pensions and other social benefits provided in the minority situation, and said a Liberal majority government would not have provided these.

But they also explained their feeling that they had squeezed all they could from the governing Liberals.

The campaign that has followed has been quiet, with few strong indictors of what the voters are thinking.

It also has produced a new campaign style for Prime Minister Trudeau, who took a philosophical approach to the 1972 campaign which resulted in his majority government almost being defeated.

Mr. Trudeau emerged early as a fighting campaigner, often carrying the battle to the Conservatives with attacks on their promise to implement a 90-day freeze on incomes and prices, followed by 18 months of control.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has spent considerable time defending the proposal, saying it is the only way to break the grip of inflation, now running near 11 per cent.

But will inflation if another minority Liberal government presents the same budget to the Commons?

David Lewis, the New Democratic Party leader, condemned almost every part of the May 6 budget and has not been enthusiastic about some of the additional promises Mr. Trudeau has made. However, he also has said the parties would have a responsibility to avoid another general election for about two years.

The same question would arise upon election of a Conservative minority government. The Liberals, the New Democrats and the Social Credit have said they cannot support income and price controls.

The talk about inflation and how to solve it appears to have overtaken the most interest among the electorate.

There have been other issues, but most observers now agree that inflation is the central theme of the election. Some say the election has boiled down to a battle of for or against incomes and price controls.

Polls Say Ontario 'Politically Fluid'

TORONTO (CP) — Key Ontario, which produced the Conservative landslide majority government at Ottawa in 1972, is in a politically fluid state as election day comes on.

The polls have said this and that from day to day as the political weather vane switches. But by and large it's Ontario's pivotal role in the 1972 election that gives the Conservatives hopes of 60 from 17. The New Democratic Party went to 11 from six.

Backroom party strategists decline to say the numbers game on how the over-all total will come out, except for NDP organizer Gordon Vichert, who gives this estimate:

Liberals, 37; Conservatives, 31; the NDP four or so.

Some Liberal organizers predict gains of at least eight seats but Dorothy Petrie, Liberal party organizer for the province, says she will not make any forecast.

The top Conservative tactician, who prefers not to be named, also will not go for figure totals.

"We're going to win a few, how a few," he said. "You'll have to see what it looks like on election night."

Many Ontario seats involving major figures are in the scales and this time, say the strategists, gold go either way.

Liberals agree, for instance that External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp is in for a close one in Toronto Eglinton.

Trouble appeared to erupt around the head of Labor Minister John Munro in Hamilton East over patronage, allegation, but a Conservative campaign concedes he will take the seat against Ron Brewer, former pro footballer.

The Conservatives also concede Peterborough to State Secretary Hugh Faulkner, who is being opposed by Dart Roblin, former Conservative Manitoba premier.

Stanfield Reiterates Pledge to Trim Fat

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday night he would have no when he promised to "trim the fat" from federal government spending.

"The only thing that is increasing faster than the cost of living these days is government spending," Mr. Stanfield told an outdoor gathering of at least 200 persons in Medicine Hat, Alta.

Prime Minister Trudeau, in his last major campaign speech to a massive outdoor rally, said Friday the only practical way in Monday's general election was one for his Liberal party.

There was no point electing a minority Progressive Conservative government, he told a crowd of between 10,000 and 20,000 seats and trees in a huge Hamilton, Ont., park.

The New Democratic Party would never support the Conservatives' plan to introduce price and income controls.

And, he added, "don't give the New Democrats the final seats because if Mr. Lewis had the balance of power he wouldn't know what to do with it."

Food Company Profits Not Big Factor in Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased profits of food companies were not a major cause of higher food prices in Canada during 1973, the federal food prices review board said in a report Friday.

A survey of 30 companies by the board showed an increase in net profits of 25 per cent last year and an increase of 14.8 per cent in the cost of food.

But board chairman Beryl Plumptre said a news conference that net profits as a percentage of sales showed that if the profits had been halved, it would only have resulted in reducing the price increase by one per cent.

"The board considers that the increased profits of food companies, while a contributing factor, were by no means a major cause of food price increases in Canada in 1973," the report said.

Grant Thompson of Halifax, a board member, said halving the profits only resulted in a slight reduction in food prices because of the small profit margin on food products.

"If you're only making two cents profit on each $1 of sales, your profit by half would only save one cent on the dollar," Mr. Thompson said.

The report said higher profits meant an increase in the rate of return on shareholders' investment, but the study shows the increase was not out of line with what was happening in the rest of the economy.

Rate of return in the manufacturing sector in 1973 was 13.9 per cent while for food processing establishments in total, in turn for food retailers, was 18.9 per cent while non-food retailers got 13.3 per cent.

Big Powers Study New Global Agency

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Minister James Callaghan of Britain says the major world powers are considering setting up a new international agency as a way of meeting global energy and money crises.

He said the agency would bring together oil producers, consumers and needy countries to co-ordinate action on unprecedented problems of supply, prices and payments.

Callaghan in an interview in television Friday, also called for a strengthening of the United Nations' treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

The foreign minister said he and other British leaders will discuss these topics when Henry Kissinger Monday when the United States state secretary arrives in London for talks.

At a conference of energy-consuming countries in Washington last April, Kissinger said that co-operation must mark the relationship between oil producers and consumers.

Callaghan said the Arab states, by controlling the price and flow of oil, have brought a "new factor" into international economics.

"There has to be an institution in which the Arab producers have confidence and in which the Western industrialized countries do not appear to have a predominating position," he said.

Callaghan, however, stressed that the new international agency still is in the thinking stage.

Turning to the nuclear problem, the foreign minister said new nuclear explosions have made it all the more urgent to strengthen the 1968 nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

India recently became the world's sixth nuclear power after the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China. Several other countries, including Argentina, Sweden, Switzerland, Israel and Japan, are believed capable of producing nuclear weapons.

Irish Republic's PM Backs British Plan

LONDON (AP) — The premier of the Irish republic, Liam Cosgrave, has announced his support of the British government's new peace plan for Northern Ireland.

His announcement Friday followed talks in London between Irish Foreign Minister Garret Fitzgerald and the British minister for Northern Ireland, Merlyn Rees.

The plan calls for a constitutional convention of Ulster residents to come up with a new constitution within six months. If republic leaders find the formula must include power-sharing between Protestants and Roman Catholics, have the approval of the British Parliament and recognize Protestant-dominated Ulster's "special relationship" with the republic, which is mainly Catholic.

Militant Protestants toppled Ulster's first real power-sharing executive in a political strike last May.

Thailand Riots Not Political

BANGKOK (AP) — Premier Sanya Thammasakt of Thailand says there is nothing political in the three days of violence that have left 28 persons dead in Bangkok's Chinatown.

He told reporters Friday that two Chinese motorcycle gangs—the Eagles and The Dragons—have most of the responsibility. A ranking police officer said the accidental death of an elderly Chinese by police gunfire also might be to blame.

The street fighting between heavily-armed Chinese youths and Thai police ended at a reported 6 a.m. today after reinforced police units chased roving gunmen through the streets during the night and made more than 80 arrests. There has been long-simmering resentment between the Chinese and the Thai police.

Three persons were killed in a resurgence of fighting Friday night—a young woman caught in a crossfire, a young Chinese and a Chinese disaster relief worker.

Snipers entered the fray for the first time Friday, trading shots with police from the upper windows of darkened China town. Authorities said police failed an attempt to firebomb the Phaholchai police station.

The violence began Thursday night when a taxi driver, taken to the Phahpichai station for a parking violation, said he was beaten by the police.

Chinese youths went on a rampage and burned down the station, and police gunfire killed seven members of the crowd.

Rioters Subdued

A police officer, with gun in hand, moves to subdue youths who took part in riot in Bangkok's Chinatown Thursday night. The mounting casualty toll prompted Bangkok's police chief to send for 2,400 army reinforcements and declare a state of emergency. (AP Photo).

Connors Crushes Rosewall

BULLETIN

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy Connors crushed Australian Ken Rosewall 6-1, 6-1, 6-4 in the men's singles final Friday and joined his fiancee, Chris Evert, as a Wimbledon tennis champion.

Miss Evert won the women's singles title by beating Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 6-0, 6-4 Friday.

Recipe for Fire Bombs Given Without Thinking

TORONTO (CP) — Government information officers released Friday a recipe for making fire bombs used in controlling forest fires, then tried to suppress its publication.

Natural Resources ministry officials sent a telegram to its offices and newspapers urging staff and media to withhold details of the bombs' manufacture.

Ross Beagan, provincial news media officer, for the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, said he was told he was "giving the recipe for bombs to every nut in Ontario."

Earlier he had distributed a report noting that 13,000 incendiary devices had been made in the past two days. It said that as many as 18,000 may be required to help control 13 major blazes in the northwest part of the province.

The bombs are used, to burn a fire break, controlled between two barriers of chemical sprayed from aircraft, across the path of a major fire.

"Under the pressures at the time it is fairly safe to say that some people might have other applications in mind," he said.

Candidates Reply on Sovereignty

Prince Edward — Hastings candidates recently were asked for their responses to 12 questions posed by the Committee for an Independent Canada.

The committee claims itself as a "politically, non partisan" organization concerned with the preservation of the Canadian identity.

The committee encourages voters to consider the candidates' personal attitudes rather than voting for a party.

Candidates interviewed were Bryan Burgess (Ind), George Cunningham, (Lib), Harvey Gottfried (NDP), Progressive Conservative incumbent George Hees was not available for interview.

Following are the candidates' responses:

1. The implementation of part two of the Foreign Investment Review Act. This act would include the authority to prevent expansion into unrelated fields by foreign firms now operating in Canada.

BRYAN BURGESS: "Yes."

GEORGE CUNNINGHAM: "Yes."

HARVEY GOTTFRIED: "I certainly would."

2. Income tax and other incentives to promote the growth of Canadian secondary industry designed to process natural resources which are now exported in an unprocessed state.

BURGESS: "Yes, I am not against export tarrif and would like to see government low interest loans available only to Canadian industry, not to American."

CUNNINGHAM: "I would support certain incentives for Canadian corporations to develop, but they've got to show that they have actually put that back in and created so many jobs as they are developing it. They've got to show positive proof that they've done that or they would get no benefit as far as I'm concerned."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes. I definitely would."

3. A program of co-operation between the federal and provincial governments to reduce the level of foreign ownership of Canadian land.

BURGESS: "Yes."

CUNNINGHAM: "Yes."

GOTTFRIED: "I support that. I can envisage a situation where it would be to our benefit to allow land to be sold to foreigners . . . I would be in support of an outright ban unless someone could prove to me that there is some real detrimental effect."

4. Extension of the Election Expenses Act to prohibit donations to Canadian political parties from foreign-controlled corporations.

BURGESS: "Candidates running as independents do not get the benefits of free time and are at a real disadvantage."

CUNNINGHAM: "Yes, I would support that and hope that we get out of the corporation donations so it can't be the people of Canada that are supporting the elections."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes, I would support that."

5. A moratorium on all development of the Mackenzie Valley Gas Pipeline until all native land claims are settled; until all ecological problems are resolved; until Canada can provide most of the financial resources so that our economy does not suffer from the ill effects of massive imports of foreign capital; and until Canadians need a significant amount of our Arctic gas reserves.

BURGESS: "Yes."

CUNNINGHAM: "No. I wouldn't support a total stoppage of this. I would want Canadian investment. I think that is very essential, but I do think that if you wait too long then we aren't going to be prepared to handle it quickly enough."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes."

6. A limit to the amount of money that Canadian banks or other financial institutions in Canada may lend to foreign companies to initiate or expand their industrial investment in this country or invest outside of the country.

BURGESS: "Yes, with preferred rates for Canadians."

CUNNINGHAM: "Yes."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes. I would support that."

7. Increases in Canadian content on radio and TV.

BURGESS: "Yes, with incentives to industry."

CUNNINGHAM: "Yes."

GOTTFRIED: "I would support that."

8. A quota of 15 per cent Canadian content in movie theatres throughout Canada.

BURGESS: "I don't want to see government regulation but would rather see Canadians demand it, therefore letting it develop naturally."

CUNNINGHAM: "I would think I would like it larger. I would think that 25 per cent would be responsible."

GOTTFRIED: "I would favor that."

9. Removal of the special tax privileges enjoyed by Time and Readers Digest.

BURGESS: "Yes."

CUNNINGHAM: "Yes."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes." definitely. I would cut that out immediately. I think that was a mistake from the very beginning."

10. With our own oil shortages I am in favor of the elimination of exports through a phasing out period of between three and five years.

BURGESS: "I am not in favor of the reduction or eliminative at our exports for I feel that oil may not be needed in the future. I do agree with the two-price system with exports priced at what the international market will bear."

CUNNINGHAM: "I don't think that we could really phase out totally within that time but over a period of 10 years I would agree with you."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes."

11. The increase in the number of Canadians on the teaching staff of universities to 85 percent.

BURGESS: "I would like to see the universities hire anybody they want and not be regulated by the government. I would prefer to see the number of Canadians in teaching positions at the universities grow naturally."

CUNNINGHAM: "I would think so."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes."

12. Comprehensive legislation to govern the multinational enterprises in such fields as taxation, monopoly, management practices and transfer pricing.

BURGESS: "Yes."

CUNNINGHAM: "Yes."

GOTTFRIED: "Yes."

Sanders Works For Vote

New Democratic candidate in Hastings Lodi Sanders (left) shakes the hand of Ken Thompson Thursday during the candidates search for votes among 150 shop employees of Stephens — Adamson in Belleville. One of some 14 plants canvassed during the eight-week vote drive, the company manufactures built materials handling equipment. Mr. Sanders is finishing up his campaign prior to Monday's federal election.

Board Draws Line On Plan Changes

The Quinte Planning Board — in a step to streamline completion of Belleville's official plan — asked for an end of submissions for plan modification.

Following a number of delegations at Thursday night's meeting, Belleville Mayor Ben Corbe and Trenton Mayor Steve Casey questioned why the delegations were appearing before the entire board.

Both men felt the type of delegation appearing before the board would be better handled locally.

"We've not here to weigh the merits of color of brick and look at pretty pictures," said Ald. Corbe. "What board is here to deal with general land use policies and not the nuts and bolts of an individual development."

On these comments, the board last night decided to "draw the line" and halt delegations.

Bert Kenny, director of planning for the board, said it was important that the board move along quickly to get resolved solutions for the constraints, so they might then move on the changes and the plan before it is returned to the board for its final approval. Following that, the board will make a recommendation to the province to approve the plant and its zoning.

Overtime, Cost of Living Are Issues

Quaker Oats Deadlock Brings Strike

By AL AZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Quaker Oats Co. pet foods division production lines ground to a halt here Friday as approximately 185 workers went on strike.

They are backing union demands for a cost-of-living clause and completely voluntary weekend overtime.

Leo LeBlanc, president of Local P1172, Amalgamated Butcher Workers and Meat Cutters, said the two sides are "pretty well as a stalemate" in contract talks.

Key issue during negotiations has been the company practice of scheduling overtime Saturdays, he said.

The union wants voluntary overtime beginning Friday night.

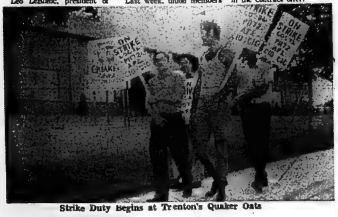
Last week, union members voted 55 per cent in favor of rejecting the last company offer allowing overtime after 4 p.m. Saturday.

Last week the company offered a 29 per cent wage hike over two years on top of an eight per cent increase "in fringe benefit improvements."

But LeBlanc said a cost-of-living clause was not included in the contract offer.

Workers, without a contract since March, earn an average of $3.65 an hour.

Mr. LeBlanc would not say how long the strike would last. "I know there are some who are pretty adamant about getting what they want," he said.



He said the union is "pretty definite" about changes in the company's overtime scheduling. "Something has to be resolved before we go back."

The union negotiating team has made the company aware it is willing to sit down to talk, he added.

Robert Prentice, Quaker Oats Co. plant manager, said the company had no comment to make on the strike. But he added, "were willing to sit down with the union and discuss the issues at any time."

He refused comment when asked of the company—manufacturer of dog and cat foods — is willing to make the first move to restart talks.

Strike action was taken at midnight Thursday following union rejection of a June 20 conciliation report. A subsequent company offer was also rejected by the local last week, setting the stage for Friday's picketing.

Local Forest Firemen Fight Northern Blaze

TWEED — Forest firefighters from here have been drafted into combat against the conflagration in the Dryden region of northwestern Ontario.

Both five-man fire crews stationed in this district of the natural resources ministry were despatched with supervisory personnel earlier this week as the mammoth blaze spread. They joined hundreds of other firefighters at the scene.

Other ministry personnel with fire combat training now are on standby in the Tweed district.

But the local hazard was rated about medium on the fire conditions index by a ministry official Friday.

Wet weather until recent days has helped reduce the danger of outbreaks in area bushland. The number of forest fires is down slightly from the same time last year. Up to Friday, 39 fires had been reported in this district, compared to 43 for the same time in 1973.

Prince Edward Crafts Revival Now Starting Its Third Season

By MARG. HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — County Crafts Revival, an Opportunities for Youth program operating for its third year in Prince Edward County this summer will introduce a special series of demonstrations.

First of these displays, Homespun Happiness, will be held on the Armory Mall lawn July 13 Homemade bread and cookies will be served during a quilting demonstration by Emma Kerr and Marie Thurston. Folk songs and guitar music will provide background for the exhibit.

Becky Young, a staff member of the project aimed at rekindling interest in local handicrafts, says that on July 27 there will be an art show by Lise Ann Johnsen, a Hillier township artist. Miss Johnsen will sketch during the exhibit.

On August 10, Mrs. Jean Wyson of the Swiss Shuttle will provide a weaving demonstration and on August 24 Verla Eversall of Bloomfield will demonstrate rug hooking.

"Many of the people have no idea of the time and work in these articles, says Miss Young of the demonstrations.

She adds that prices of the crafted items will be better understood if potential buyers see firsthand the production effort required.

Miss Young is assisted at the County Crafts shop in the mall by Dawn George of Bloomfield, Alice Cowan, Picton and Deborah Hodkiel of Demorestville.

All items sold at the boutique must be handmade by residents of Prince Edward County. Prices are set by contributors and no commission is received by the shop for any sales.

People get tired of bugging their friends and relatives to buy," explains Miss Young, referring to the increasing number of contributors who bring crafts for sale.

She says that already this year there have been 121 contributors in comparison with a total of 111 at the close of the 1973 season. Tourists are the main buyers for the handcrafted quilts, tablecloths, afghans and other items displayed. The County Crafts boutique provides an ideal souvenir stand for those on vacation as it features a variety of novelty items in a wide price range. Quilts proved best for approximately $70 while maple sugar leaves cost 40 cents.

The shop was opened in late May and will close Aug. 30 unless local residents can be encouraged to assume its operation as a year-round project. Miss Young says that efforts to form a co-operative amount contributors have met with little interest to date.

The shop this year is displaying more of Prince Edward's handicrafts than before and approximately 50 per cent of the work has been submitted b ynew contributors.

County Crafts Revival is operating on a $5,000 OFY

Teepee Marks New Mission Centre

TYENDINAGA — A touch of wilderness is being projected into plans for a training centre for evangelists here.

It came with the swift raising of a teepee on the Quinte Mohawk reserve this week.

The project originates with Rev. Ross W. Marncle, 28, who envisions the site as headquarters for a new missionary movement.

Espousing that cause has taken Mr. Marncle thousands of miles in the past 18 months into the northern fastness of several provinces.

Two friends he made enroute have now built the first of what may be several home on Highway 49. Lawrence Kalapchuk and William Salt are two Cree Indians from Paperi House on James Bay.

Cutting available into slim poles they built the spire - shaped framework which will later be covered by canvas to become a completed teepee. It will sleep 20 in traditional fashion.

circled, foot first, around a central fire that was used for cooking. Fresh evergreen boughs are spread on the floor every three or four days.

Eventually, as Mr. Maracle plans it, the structure will become one of two largest housing Indian Trainees in mission work. There will be a third for use as a chapel.

Ordained a minister of the Pentecostal church seven years ago, Mr. Maracle spent most of his time preaching to white congregations, many of them in the northeastern United States.

Less than two years he concluded that his work lay among Indian peoples, he says. Since then he has travelled by road, air and canoe to reach his goals.

Often he's taken along his wife and two children — two and five years of age.

He's lived in "bush huts, log cabin, wigwams," on the expeditions called outreach programs of the Inter-tribal Native New Life movement.

The endeavor is not exclusive to any one denomination and is supported solely by donations and "free-will offerings," says Mr. Maracle.

LSD Charge at Outlet Park

PICTON — Samor Jiansookiey, 17, of 188 James Street, Belleville has been charged with possession of the drug LSD, following a seizure of items at Outlet Provincial Park.

G. Seizure was made during a routine patrol at the park June 17 and the material later analysed as LSD.

In charge of the investigation was Constable Ian Knox of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police assisted by constables Raymond Best and James Ramsbottom.

Cost Less

MARMORA — Property owners can expect a marginal saving in the annual home charges for sewage services, indicates a revised agreement between the Corporation of the Village of Marmora and the environment ministry.

Instead of $233.00 for an average 66-foot lot approved in 1971, the new rate will be $192.71.

Because of increases over the cost estimates the total cost of the sewage installation project has now reached $1,800,000 instead of an estimated $2,100,000.

The $133.00 per year approved in 1971 was based on a provincial subsidy of 30 per cent. The present cost of $1,800,000 will draw a grant of 75 per cent.

Author Once Was Resident

MARMORA — A new children's book, King Orville and the Bulldogs by a former village resident, will soon be available at the Marmora library.

Author Kathleen Abell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jenkins, lived in Marmora a number of years.

While her parents taught at (old) Marmora High School she attended high school in Madoc and later took a course in journalism at McGill University in Montreal.

Mrs. Abell lives in Toronto with her husband, an orthopedic surgeon, and their four children. The book is dedicated to her children.

Mrs. Abell has presented two Marmora couples, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reedy and Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Hopkins with commemorative copies.

Nixon's Achievement

Caribou, up there in America's north-...ast where Maine pokes a melancholy finger toward Quebec and New Brunswick, seems an unlikely spot for a presidential foray as might be imagined.

President Nixon, with his flair for the dramatic, may have intended it that way. The big air-base there was as handy a place as any for a stopover, an address to the nation on his talks with Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, and refuelling before flying on to Florida.

Some may view this concluding segment of the Russian journey as yet another chapter in the President's ongoing attempt to sidetrack the Watergate morass, retain the initiative over those who seek to drag him down and/or impeach him, and reinforce his image as a man of peace pursuing detente with the Communist world.

Nixon just might succeed. The legal and governmental investigations into the President's alleged involvement in the Watergate affair appear to be in disarray. The longer the White House can hold out against such investigation, the greater the chance that the whole inquisitional process will lose momentum and simply fade away.

Indeed the tortuous procedures of the American legal system, the ultimate in allowing a person the benefit of the doubt in a democratic society, may favor the President. Already the psychological point for impeachment may well have passed.

With Mr. Nixon's resolute diplomacy in the cause of peace, first in the Middle East, then in the Soviet Union, with the aura of understanding he has brought to east-west relationships, the spectacle of him now being subjected to impeachment just does seem possible.

Never Say Die

It is one of the ironies of life that people sometimes find themselves — or fulfil themselves — in adversity.

The skill and strength of the competitors in the recent Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials at the Ontario School for the Deaf grounds here were a case in point.

It is good to know too that Belleville put its best foot forward for this event. Mayor Robin Jeffrey was among an imposing array of dignitaries present for the opening ceremonies; and afterwards, competitors and officials were loud in their praise of the arrangements made for the games here.

The trend for greater understanding of the needs of the handicapped and of their ability to participate in this kind of athletic activity, even though confined to wheelchairs, has been evident in Dr. Bob Jackson, co-ordinator of the 1976 Wheelchair Olympics.

He believes wheelchair sports are on the upswing. His words reflect the positive attitude that is brought not only to this form of activity but to many aspects of modern therapy which is showing people to achieve their full potential.

And speaking of OED, we might mention in passing the interesting reading in the pages of the school's magazine, The Canadian. Here are articles on school activities, examples of students' work, pictures of 1974 graduates and of the fine young men and women who are entering the field of teaching of the deaf.

Theirs is rewarding work, just as the acquisition of athletic skills in competitive differing from the norm is rewarding.

Against Odds

Much is heard of official attempts to improve "community relations" in Northern Ireland. Few realize that on the whole such relations have always been good and that only the work of extremists has made it look otherwise.

A Bellevillian has learned from relatives that a thriving store in Dungannon has been damaged for the fifth time — this time a 500 lb. car bomb which virtually wrecked the entire street, 23 stores and two churches.

But it is business as usual. The drug store for one is struggling on, with friends and neighbors helping clean up and other druggists offering supplies.

The Word from Judy LaMarsh

Grits and PCs Are Not Always What They Say They Are

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Thoughts to ponder on your way to the poll:

Who is liberal and who conservative? And spell them in lower case letters, indicating true political direction rather than party threat.

If you listen to Miss Judy LaMarsh, lawyer, radio hot-liner, political commentator, former National Health and Welfare Minister in Prime Minister Pearson's minority Liberal government, the Liberal (that's with the upper case "L") is the Conservative (spelled with the capital "C").

Yes, pronounces Miss LaMarsh, "Trudeau is to the right of Stanfield. The Tory is on the Left, and the Grit on the Right."

Bear in mind that Judy, who told a lot, but not a all, about Parliament Hill in her best-selling "Hird in a Gilded Cage," has always been given to starting her frank if not altogether surprising judgments.

You will recall her condemnation — while she was Pearson's Secretary of State — of the role for the vast empire of federal cultural agencies — of CBC for what she told the Commons was its "rotten management."

And who will forget how she invited herself out of the Inner Grit Circle of Cabinet Power at the Liberal leadership convention six years ago by calling Prime Minister Trudeau "that bastard."

If she has recanted, it has not been in public.

For while the lady let it be known that she might be available for nomination in her old Niagara Falls riding this time around, the Liberals did not exactly fall over themselves in rushing out the party's red carpet. The official welcome back into the magic circle.

So she may be taking another look at "that bastard" by believing Trudeau as a right-wing or white shafting Stanfield by putting him out into left field.

Funny thing, too, is that Judy may have something — if you listen to some of the Liberals on Trudeau and some of the Conservatives on Stanfield.

The Liberal leader has been in trouble with his left wing for being too "conservative," and the Conservative leader publicly accused by his right wing of being too "liberal."

Take one special way, Judy's been busy helping out her old comrade-in-chic, Finance Minister John Turner, too.

"Young Blue Tyes," as the girls summing themselves on the balconies of the apartment towers in his Ottawa constituency refer to him when he makes his "political house calls" is having to work this time for re-election.

Two years ago, like Trudeau, Turner thought he had it all wrapped up, so really did not have to bustle. Fine of words, taking him close to defeat, surprised Trudeau, lost of votes his majority more than halved — shocked Turner.

And this time around, "Young Blue Eyes" has got real tough competition.

Young William Neville, partner in a richly prosperous consultant firm with William Lee, the former wheeler-dealer executive assistant to Pearson, is his days of unifying the armies of forces of Prime Minister.

Bill Neville, before he went big-time here, was the top service reporter to consultant for corporations lobbying the government — the executive assistant to Judy.

"A very bright young guy," she says in her "Gilded Cage" memoirs. "Full of ambition, man. He took care of all my speaking engagements and more besides. His judgment was very often superior to mine, and I trusted him implicitly."

What an endorsement!

And what does she say about her old buddy, John Turner?

Not a word.

Like the Old Warrior, former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, returned to the field of battle, said at one of his stump stops in Quebec's Pontiac riding:

"I ask the Prime Minister who pleaded so passionately and eloquently for bilingualism and the rest for the French Canadian to feel at home in all parts of Canada, what about the rest of us?

"How are we in Saskatchewan, and millions of English Canadians like us, to feel at home in a unilingual Quebec?"

Mexican social revolution, was therefore a retarded social revolution. Juan Domingo Peron, its leader, was in a Spanish article, forbidden to come home, its members long forbidden from seeking office or voting.

The pro-Peron army generals were purged in 1955 along with Peron, and Argentina terrified and intimidated during his years in power and representing the conservative establishment of Argentina, often ruled in his place. By 1973 enough was enough. The army finally promised democracy by allowing the Peronistas would win.

Dr. Hector Campora, a Peron front, a political unknown, contested the voters and won an easy victory. Peron said run, but Peron will rule" became the newest of many Peronista slogans and battle cries.

Peron then came back in triumph. He won the presidential elections in 1973 by a free vote, but ruled as an aging, cynical, and in the end disillusioned leader.

He created Peronism without Peron had remained as strong as ever, it was certainly not the Peronism of the 1940s in Latin America by varied nationalists. The original movement, influenced by right-wing social doctrines of Europe's Falange and Mussolini's Fascism of the 1930s, grew in the middle of the left in the 1950s and '60s.

"Ties with Castro's revolution," Colin grew in the mid-1960s held fast by Peronists adepts like for socialist and social revolution which remained in power. The original movement, led organizations, Marxist and Maoist, was linked to the new Peronism, but it was a different, especially among its youth movements.

Peron, back in power in 1973 with another young and supposedly loyal wife, Isabelita, this time as vice-president, not mere secretary, and the new ones with cross-border ways of radically changing Argentina.

Argentina's political future is now in the hands of the movements, tainted, a nation without the leader who dominated and guided for 30 years, and his movement split ideologically.

Peron's widow, Senora Peron, the first woman chief of state in the Western Hemisphere, may not be able to survive without him.

Economic Recovery in Britain

By VINCENT EGAN

Thomson News Service

Britain—Canada's oldest trading partner, and still a big customer—has entered second-half 1974 with distinctly better economic prospects.

Last winter's coal shortage had forced British industry to cut its work-week to only three days.

The resulting loss of industrial output, according to the consensus of economists, was going to reduce British gross domestic product by as much as four per cent this year.

Latest figures show, however, that the three-day week—which ended in mid-March resulted in a production decline of 2.5 per cent in the first quarter.

That left nine months of the year in which to take up the slack. Now, the experts are looking for a second-half increase—enough to achieve a half-way to quite fresh and to the point, not "breakneck" Mr. Ellis was to categorize it. Peron's Widow Assumes Leadership But Uncertainty Grips Argentina

By JOHN D. HARRIS
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Argentina's dead president Gen Juan Domingo Peron long ago said, "Argentina is a country of social conscience. There is no profession in which you can do better nor see the misery of the people."

This statement was made after Peron had transcended an army career to become three times elected president.

Peron and his wife Eva Peron would seriously debauch Argentina in the years they violently nibbled the power base of the country's army. Between 1946 when Peron was elected and 1955 when he was overthrown.

Evita Peron, a former actress, amassed perhaps 270 million in cash construction of hospitals, day care centres for workers' children, state institutions for the old and infirm.

Her agency was called the Eva Duarte Foundation. And in spite of its built-in corruption and substantial ineffectiveness, it accomplished what no Argentine government had yet done for many souls, supplied some benefits to Argentina's worker class.

Peron and Evita did create a slothful former colonial capital into a modern industrial state in the 1950s by one of those magic combinations of leadership, demand and the technology to deliver it.

This was the Argentine-British meat trade which sprang to life with the invention of the "frigorifico," refrigerated ships, and the widespread use of barbed wire to divide the rich pampas into cattle-grazing lands.

At the turn of this century, the family homes or palaces of the Buenos Aires' rich exceeded in size and elaborateness the European capitals. The breathtaking Colon Opera House in Buenos Aires was and remains an exact copy of La Scala, the Opera House in Scala, gutted in 1944 by RAF Bomber Command. The gilded of a Buenos Aires newspaper first night is not exceeded in the Paris Opera House. The nouveaux riche now Madrid's Museum of Modern Art.

But in this great and ongoing Argentine boom, someone paid the price. Primarily exploited workers in the packing houses. The underpaid gauchos on the vast family bone-poor gauchos on the pampas.

Peron and his equally charismatic second wife Evita Peron thought they could change this Argentina capitalism, its descendants, "the shirtless ones."

They and the army where Peron had learned how to build a political revolution while he served as Argentine military attache in Mussolini's Fascist Italy, would form the base of the Peronista movement.

And though Peron and Evita would seriously debauch Argentina the army — they violently nibbled the power base of the country's army. Between 1946 when Peron was elected and 1955 when he was overthrown.

Evita Peron, a former actress, amassed perhaps 270 million in cash construction of hospitals, day care centres for workers' children, state institutions for the old and infirm.

Her agency was called the Eva Duarte Foundation. And in spite of its built-in corruption and substantial ineffectiveness, it accomplished what no Argentine government had yet done for many souls, supplied some benefits to Argentina's worker class.

Even though Eva died young of cancer in 1952 and Peron after 1955 would spend 18 years in a Spanish exile reminiscent of his predecessor, Juan Peron remained the most powerful single political force in Argentina.

Two decades of varying freely-elected or self-imposed anti-Peron governments or power able to substitute for the popularity of Peronism.

The Peronista governments-in-exile formed the Peronista Party from Spain. Despite the elections, aware they would win them hands down, instead Peronista voters, in the balloting, stayed away from the voting booths. An election in the early 1960s resulted in the anti-Peron hand-picked president from the outlawed Peronista Party.

The slogan "voten en blanco" (vote the blank ballot) by the jailed Argentine walls and streets throughout the 1960s and '70s, until the dictator's miraculous return to power in late 1973.

Legislature Sitting Rowdiest Yet

TORONTO — The session that ended in the early hours of Friday morning was the rowdiest in the province's history.

Out of the last 36 hours the members were at their desks only 12 hours. Many other opposition complaints that the government was using its majority to force through legislation through at the last possible moment.

Of course, in a situation where the government has only one seat more than half the total assembly tend to be disorderly in schooling their business and the opposition tends to be very responsive in their debates, carried on in the hope that they can there seems to be lots of time for everything.

Nevertheless, whatever the reason or whether right or wrong, it was a rowdy session. Filing that this spring sitting ended in the early morning.

For the sitting had very much of a shambles character.

It was the first time in years that the loudest sitting we have seen in a long time.

The hardest working member was Speaker Fletcher. Hon. Alan Reuter, who was in a continuous battle to keep order, and then the opposition which took up by far the most time of the house was the land speculation tax.

And not much needs to be said about it.

If you have been reading about the issue at all you know that the government has been criticized on interminably, and that the government looked very poorly on the tax.

It appeared obviously, ill-prepared and it did not help with regard (though Revenue Minister Arthur Wishart has planned the bill, was not guilty of this

Crop Outlook Better

OTTAWA (CP) — Improved weather conditions in most areas, with the notable exception of Ontario, have brought rapid improvement in crop conditions, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

Conditions by regions:

Atlantic: Recent favorable weather conditions have improved most crops but plant growth still is one or two weeks behind normal. Cereal crops are growing well in Prince Edward Island and haying should begin in about a week. Seeding has been completed in Nova Scotia and progress is good for most crops, except hay which is below normal. New Brunswick is expected to have a light strawberry crop. Potato planting has been completed.

Quebec: Seeding has proceeded rapidly with favorable weather. Tobacco growers have completed setting out plants. Milk production has increased due to good pasture conditions. Heavy rain and cool temperatures at the end of May reduced the effectiveness of herbicides.

Ontario: Cool weather and rain has hampered haying operations. The start of haying in most areas but lack of heat has slowed available crop development. Spring plantings is completed except in some areas around Sudbury and in northwestern Ontario.

Prairies: Fair, warm weather has brought on rapid crop development in most of the region. Weed growth also is heavy and spraying is general. Haying has begun in some areas and seeding operations have been completed. Grasshopper infestations have been reported in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and control measures have been implemented.

British Columbia: Clear skies and seasonal temperatures have resulted in general improved growing conditions. All seeded crops are 10 days to two weeks behind normal but growth is satisfactory. The Okanagan Valley cherry crop is of good quality but yield is lower. The apricot yield may be above average and progress of other tree fruit crops is satisfactory, except for apples. Seeding is completed in the Peace River area, with substantial shifts from wheat to barley and rapeseed. A general rain is needed for optimum pasture growth but pastures are in generally good condition.

Corn Futures Market Coming

CHATHAM (CP) — There will be a corn futures market on the Winnipeg commodity exchange before Aug. 15, the Ontario Grain and Feed Dealers Association was told at its annual grain conference Tuesday.

E. R. MacMillan, chairman of the exchange's board of governors, made the announcement in a speech to the association.

Association Chairman W. D. Thompson told the members that Ontario dealers have been relating Canadian corn prices to the Chicago commodities exchange because Canada sponsors Farm Safety Week to be observed this year across Canada July 28 to 31.

It is estimated by farm safety experts, that a 75 per cent reduction in the severity of farm tractor accidents could be realized if the machines were equipped with protective frames or crush resistant cabs and seat belts were worn. These devices are available in newer models. Farmers not using machines so equipped should consult the manufacturer's representative concerning modifications.

The operator can do much to prevent overturn, or any other tractor accident, by observing the following basic rules:

— Be familiar with the operating and maintenance manuals for all machines.

— Keep in good physical and mental condition by getting plenty of rest, dressing comfortably, working at a pace within your physical capabilities and taking frequent rest breaks.

— Avoid operating on steep slopes and stay clear of ditches, embankments, etc.

— When travelling farm machines along roads at speeds of less than 25 mph, display the Slow Moving Vehicle emblem.

— Drive slowly on rough surfaces and slopes or when visibility is poor — such as through tall grass.

— Reduce speed when turning or near ditches.

— Keep guards and shields in place and shut-off power before unclogging or servicing machinery.

— Keep children off and clear of all machinery.

Don't use "boy-sized" tractors for "man-sized" jobs.

Tractor Accidents Top Farm Hazard

Each year approximately 90 Canadians are killed and another 800 injured, many of them permanently, as the result of accidents involving farm tractors.

This sobering information is released by the Canada Safety Council which, in co-operation with Agriculture Canada, sponsors Farm Safety Week to be observed this year across Canada July 28 to 31.

It is estimated by farm safety experts, that a 75 per cent reduction in the severity of farm tractor accidents could be realized if the machines were equipped with protective frames or crush resistant cabs and seat belts were worn. Mortgage Rates Up

Interest rates have "edged slightly upward" as mortgage money supplies have increased over May, a monthly Quinte area mortgage market survey by A. E. LePage Ltd. revealed.

The survey, completed as of June 15, indicates money for industrial and commercial loans has risen by one-half of one per cent. Availability is listed from nil to very limited.

NHA housing, and rental and townhouse loan interest rates are both up by three-quarters of one per cent with funds listed as being limited to good, and poor to adequate respectively.

Interest rates for builders' loans are up a similar amount. Availability is nil to limited.

Rates for presold and resale houses showed the smallest month-to-month jump — recording a one-quarter of one per cent rise. Availability is listed as being fair to good.

Mortgage monies for condominium apartments and townhouses are in limited supplies at an interest rate varying between 11¼ and 12¼ per cent — up by one-half of a percentage point over May.

Weekly Livestock

Trade was dull and prices lower on most classes of slaughter cattle Tuesday. Good steers and heifers were steady. Good cows were lower. Good calves were strong and medium steers were steady. Good stock calves sold lower. Springers were steady. Weaned pigs and shoats were steady.

Following are quotations:—

Choice steers, .40 to .44; good heifers, .37 to .41; common and medium, .32 to .37; good cows, .30 to .32; bologny cows as high as .32; medium, .26 to .30; common, .22 to .26.

Good heavy bologna bulls, .36 to .38; medium .34 to .36; common .30 to .34.

Good stock calves, .47 to .52; choice veal calves, .51 to .56; good veal calves, .48 to .52; medium, .45 to .48; common, .35 to .45; boners, .30 to .35; bob calves 140 to 160.

Lambs, .42 to .46; sheep, .15 to .20.

Fat hogs, .28 to .30 on live weight basis; light sows, .18 to .20; heavy sows, .15 to .17; brood sows, $73 to $100; shoats, .26 to .28; weaned pigs, $19 to $18.

Good springers, $200 to $260 each; good heifers, $200 to $260 each.

4-Hers at Guelph

The University of Guelph was the location of the 1974 Provincial 4-H Leadership Conference. Among the 100 delegates attending the week-long session were Bob Eggaton, R.R3, Belleville; Janet Whitehead, summer assistant supervisor, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food; and Sandra Stein, Eldorado.

Weeds Thriving in PE

PICTON — Last year's winter kill on Prince Edward County's forest crops has provided a boon to weeds of the winter annual type, according to Grower Smith, field crop specialist with the Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Picton.

Predominating in wheat fields this year is the Shepherd's Purse, a winter annual with narrow stem-leaves hooked basal leaves and heart-shaped pods.

Also present in the wheat crops is False Flax, but the greatest problem, says Mr. Smith, is the Pennycress, or Stinkweed as it is popularly labeled.

Pennycress produces a very large seed which becomes crushed by the threshing action of the combine during harvest, resulting in the loss of the seed being squeezed out, then tainting the wheat.

Bachelors Practice

Members of the Hastings Bachelor Survival Club will be asked to do their cooking before an audience at their July meeting.

The June meeting was held at the Ontario Ministry of Food and Agriculture in Stirling with home economist assistant supervisor, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food; and Sandra Stein, Eldorado.

Kate Ann Wahl demonstrating dish preparation.

Club members will be able to show what they learned at the next meeting to be held July 18 either at Stirling Public School or at Queen Secondary School in Belleville.

Recycling Their Ain

The Hastings County Natural Resources' 4-H Club is bathing a paper and glass pickup on Saturday, July 6, with collection areas in Tweed and Madoc.

The pickup spot in Madoc is behind the IGA store and in Tweed at the Red and White Store parking lot.

Purpose of the collection is to help clean up the environment through recycling.

Swine Club Slate Elected

Larry Forestell of Stirling is the 1974 president of the Hastings 4-H Swine Club.

Vice-president is Garry Schleifer, secretary Mike Keeby and press reporter Jim Forestell.

The election of new club officers was held at the May meeting when plans were made for the summer activities.

The June meeting was held at the farm of Lyle Vanclief in Prince Edward County. The swine herdsmen led members on a tour of the pens before feeding. After the hogs were fed, watered and bedded, Vanclief answered a question period, Mr. and Mrs. Vanclief served refreshments to conclude the evening.

74 4H-ers In PE County

PICTON — Seventy-four Prince Edward County residents are active members in 4-H Agricultural Club work this year.

The eight existing clubs cover the subjects of calves, beef, conservation, machinery, field crops and potatoes and tomatoes.

Andy Marpstaar, RR2, Consecon and Tim Wehlenk, RR5, Picton, are engaged in active work with five of these clubs.

Plowmen Seek Site

A delegation from the Ontario Plowman's Association visited Frontenac County recently looking over prospective sites for the 1977 International Plowing Match in Frontenac County. The delegation was accompanied by local members of the International Plowing Match Committee.

Sites inspected were the Bracken farm at Harrowsmith, the Vandewal and Grant farms at Sydenham, the Scott and neighboring farms at Joyceville and the Greenwood farm on Highway 15.

"Where do we go to vote for the man of my choice..."

This Monday July 8th...

over 13 million Canadians have the right to choose who will govern their country.

If your name is on the voters' list, you have the right to vote.

By now you should know whether or not your name is on the voters' list for Monday's federal election. If it is on the list, you have the right to cast your vote for the one candidate you would like to represent you in the next parliament.

The place where you live is probably just a hop, skip and a jump from the place where you vote.

You vote at the polling station for your polling division. In most parts of Canada, the polling station is close by in the neighbourhood or community where the voters live. The coming Monday, your polling station will be open from 9 in the morning to 8 in the evening (daylight saving time).

Voting is as simple as marking an "X" in the circle. Instructions on the simple voting procedures are in plain view in the polling station and in the polling booth. They're easy to follow. But, if you need any help just ask the person who gives you your ballot paper. That person is your deputy returning officer.

The ballot paper he will give you looks like the one pictured here. The names of the candidates are listed alphabetically and their political affiliation (if any) is printed under the name of each candidate. You can vote for only one candidate. You vote for your one choice by making an "X" in the circle after his name.

Kingston Display Of Indian Art

An extraordinary display of Indian art opens to the public today in the Kingston Gallery of Fine Crafts.

Featuring items as intricate as silver jewellery and as simple as tamarack duck decoys, the show draws most of its work from the west of Canada.

The major part of the collection comes from the 'Kaan craftsmen of Hazelton, British Columbia. Their carved wooden masks dominate the gallery, hung on walls, or suspended by wires in the air.

One of the most fascinating of the masks has a moveable wooden "beak", over two feet long, and a wild thatch of hair made of beaten cedar roots.

Other west coast art includes framed prints, argillite sculpture by Haida artists of the Queen Charlotte Islands, and a hanging button blanket.

"Originally, abalone shells were used on this type of blanket," explains Thelma Edge, owner of the gallery. "It was worn by participants in religious ceremonies."

Like much of the work on display, the button blanket had its origins in ceremonial and practical areas of Indian life, but has developed into an art form in recent years.

"Kaan art, for example, began a little more than 30 years ago as part of the community's effort to solve its social and economic problems, by means of the local cultural skills. Today, 'Kaan art is internationally recognized, and has brought Hazelton's people fame and pride in their own culture.

Supplementing the 'Kaan work in the show are many other outstanding pieces. One of the most dramatic is a robe sewn of 98 skins of arctic hares. Covering a whole wall, it makes a strong contrast to smaller items such as birchbark baskets, beaded moccasins, and clay bowls.

Near the entrance is an eagle feather headdress fashioned by an Ontario Iroquois woman. It is worth a great deal of scrutiny for the meticulous detail with which it is made.

Also impressive are pieces of ivory and bone jewellery carved by a woman from Campbell River, B.C., who was present at the private opening Thursday evening to talk about her work.

Lorraine (she uses only her first name professionally) explains that many of the Indian skills were in danger of being lost until the Department of Indian Affairs began to encourage craftsmen to make and exhibit their work.

"Missionaries had convinced our people that carving was "shameful, and eventually young people showed no interest in learning the skills of their parents. But now that there's a market for this work, there is pride again in our cultural heritage."

Lorraine began carving at the age of five, starting with bars of Sunlight soap. Although she gives it top for several years, she now uses the income from her carving to support herself and her daughter.

The Gallery of Fine Crafts is well worth a visit before the show closes on July 27. Collectors of Canadian art will be glad to know that all pieces on display are for sale.

The gallery is located at 219 Princes Street, Kingston.

A 'Kaan mask suspended in mid-air is one of the most striking items in the show Carved of wood, it has long hair made of beaten cedar roots.

Two lacrosse players battle each other in miniature. Made by Ontario Six Nations' craftsmen, these detailed figures are fashioned of corn husks.

Thelma Edge, owner of the gallery, looks at a beaded moccasin in front of the hanging button blanket with Flora MacDonald, the critic for Indian Affairs in the last parliament, who opened the show Thursday evening. Miss MacDonald spoke about the cultural importance of this type of art display, and said how pleased she is that residents in this area are being given the opportunity to see Indian work from across the country

Another of the 'Kaan masks mounted on a pillar, greets visitors to the gallery with an eerie expression. Originally used in religious ceremonies, the masks are now made and valued as original works of art.

The Consumer Water Buffalo Causes Reaction

Sharon Airhart

If you've a history of allergenic reaction, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs warns that leather sandals marked "made in India" may cause problems. The sandals are often made from buffalo leather and many persons have reported cases of contact dermatitis caused by the tanning and dyeing agents. If you have a pair, and want to wear them, try soaking them overnight in water, before wearing to remove some watersoluble chemicals. Wear socks with the sandals.

Persons with a known background of skin sensitivity should wear the water buffalo at all.

Another letter to those who should know answers in advance an annual inquiry of fruit preservers.

People who can or freeze peaches would like to be able to buy bushels of the tender fruit on the market each year. But, of course, there are only those air-quart baskets. D.M. Tweedie of the Ontario Fresh Fruit Growers Marketing Board says that peaches are extremely tender fruit and "you can well imagine the condition of the peaches in the bottom of a bushel container after travelling this distance." Ms. Tweedie suggests that if consumers want to buy peaches directly from farms in the Niagara Peninsula, they are "at liberty" to do so but then it "becomes their responsibility to get them home."

You probably don't want to know this, but from the fall of 1972, ground beef prices rose 46 per cent, the highest increase in price of any beef cuts. Beryl Plumptre's Food Prices Review Board, in its June report on ground beef, tells us a few other interesting facts about hamburger.

First of all, we all eat a lot. About 21 pounds each every year. If you're eating normal sized servings, you eat ground beef about every third day. Of course, rich people eat less hamburger than poor people.

The Board also tells us that there is a lack of standardization in ground beef from store to store: one firm's minced beef is the top-of-the-line product, another firm's labels is cheapest with those words. Hamburger — ground beef, whatever you call it, can't have more than 30 per cent fat content. According to a survey by the Board of seven major retail firms, fat contents range from 19 per cent for high priced ground beef in some stores to 25 per cent for the cheapest product.

All of this is merely prelude to the real bad news: when the Dept. of Consumer and Corporate Affairs tested group beef samples for fat content, sulphite additives and the inclusion of foreign matter (!), 25 per cent of the samples were found unsatisfactory.

Other low - priced meats, cooked and fresh sausage, did even more poorly 32.8 per cent and 36 per cent, respectively, of the sample were found unsatisfactory. That "foreign" matter, by the way, generally means meat other than beef.

In 1972 and 1973, the Health Protection Branch of Health and Welfare Canada tested only 105 samples of ground beef for bacterial content. Only one conviction was made and the store was fined $50. The Food Prices Review Board, naturally, wants more samples tested for fat content, preservatives and foreign matter and many more samples tested for harmful micro-organisms.

Margaret Trudeau Exhorts Women

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, who has been very much out front in her husband's political campaign, says she would like to see more women engaged in politics.

In a taped interview with Betty Kennedy on radio station CFRB, broadcast Wednesday, she said:

"What I hope I'm doing, apart from helping my husband, is encouraging women to get involved. After the campaign, I'm going to work very hard for this."

Prime Minister Trudeau's wife said her participation in the campaign was on her own decision.

"I convinced him of it," she said.

She added that she felt proud, and knew my husband as the whole person he is."

She said she feels the reaction to her appearances with husband Pierre has been "very, very good . . . very, very friendly and warm, and I've enjoyed it."

She told Miss Kennedy of her first meeting, as a schoolgirl, with Mr. Trudeau, who taught her some surfing off Tahiti and then sat around on a raft with her for 20 minutes. She knew him only as Pierre.

When she came ashore, she said, her mother told her: "That's Pierre Trudeau, the black sheep of the Liberal party."

Major Parties 'Ignore Women'

TORONTO (CP) — The major political parties do not pay enough attention to women's rights, the Ontario Committee on the Status of Women said today.

In a news release, the committee said the Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and New Democratic Party are ignoring issues of importance to women.

The parties were raised according to the priority that women's issues hold in campaign literature.

Although the Liberals came out slightly ahead of the other parties, the committee said, it does not endorse any particular party.

"The Liberals have had a chance to introduce legislation and they are still far from implementing a comprehensive program . . . the opposition parties . . . still do not give us detailed proposals to consider."

The committee's top priorities are for equality of women in the labor force, equal pensions and benefits, better services for young children, improved maternity benefits and relaxed strictures on birth control and abortion.

The committee is a volunteer organization formed in 1971 to press for implementation of the recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women.

Natural Fertilizer

For small gardens, flower pots, window boxes or a tree in the front yard, Consumers' Association of Canada recommends non-chemical fertilizer, and for extensive areas a larger quantity is required. Compost is available in most greenhouses and garden and lawn supply stores.

Ann Landers
Pack the Pig a Lovable Pet

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure a lot of people thought you'd been hornswoggled when you printed that letter from the man who wanted to know if it was true that pigs were smarter than dogs. He needed an animal to guard the house and was considering a "watch pig."

I just read something in a journal that corrected that letter was on the level.

A man named Anderson in Grass Key, Fla., has a pet pig named Packer. Packer is housebroken. When he wants to go outside he stands by the kitchen door and oinks.

Anderson says Pack is much smarter than any cat or dog he has ever owned. Also he is the hungriest. Pack eats 15 pounds of cracked corn and barley every day, which adds five pounds to his weight. The pig now weighs 350 pounds. Eventually he'll weigh 800. "Just more of him to love," smiled Mr. Anderson.

Hope you'll print this. I will surprise many people.—Daily Ann Fan

Dear Daily: Well, here's your letter. And you can count me among those who were surprised. I wonder if Mr. Anderson will feel the same about Pack when he weighs 800 pounds.

I notice nothing was said about a Mrs. Anderson. I'd bet 15 pounds of cracked corn he's a bachelor.

Dear Ann Landers: Can you tell me how to get a guy who is really an A-Number-One-All-Around-Hand-Man off his lazy rear end? He makes a good living and I don't have to work, but I can't get the big lug to finish a project. Here's the state of affairs:

1. He took a lovely antique rocking chair apart because it was a little off kilter. I begged him to leave it alone, but no, he insisted on "fixing" it. The rocker is 114 years old, a real beauty. I'd love to use it but it's dismembered in the corner of the storage room.

2. He bought equipment and material for a tile patio five months ago. It's still in the garage.

3. Three unfinished bookcases he promised to paint and put in his study are in the storage room with the rocking chair.

4. He bought two huge bags of lawn seed. They are in the garage with the lumber for the patio cover.

There's plenty more but I don't want to bore you. What can I do with a man like this? Whenever I speak to him about his unfinished projects he calls me a nag and says, "please get off my back." I await your words of wisdom in our local paper.—Big Mama

Dear Mama: Sorry, there is no sure way to get an immature man who is drowning in a sea of unfinished projects "off his lazy rear end." If it's any comfort to you, I hear from dozens of women who are struggling with the same problem. I'll tell you what I tell them: Stop nagging. Give him a deadline and tell him if he doesn't meet it you'll hire the work done. Then do it and do it.

When he sees the bills, that might get him off his lazy rear end.

Confidential to With All His Faults I Love Him Still: A lot of men have three secret wishes—to outsmart race horses, women and fish. Your guy needs Gamblers Anonymous. They do a great job. Write to the National Headquarters. The address is P.O. Box 9323, Chicago, Illinois 60690.

Successful Living
Penny Drop Party Fun

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I belong to a ladies' club and sometimes have to entertain them. These ladies are up in years but alert. We have rounds of bingo games; we want something different.

We have 24 members, meet at different homes, with two ladies helping with the lunch. Could you send me some ideas, Doris, please?

I have some contests I could send you some time. I have this one: Holding a penny between the knees and then walking a yard or less towards a glass on the floor. Then the contestant tries to drop the penny into a glass tumbler by loosening the knees. The penny falls, sometimes jumps out of the glass!

It was very amusing and we had lots of laughs.

God Bless.

Dear God Bless: So "good fellows get together" where you are. Good for you!

I'm sending you my list of "Quiz and Games For Groups of All Ages." And also the one called "Party Games." I have started using some of the skits as being particularly amusing, and I could imagine that your peppy bunch will have a good time with them.

Thank you for the one about the pennies. I don't doubt but what some of our other social groups will both young and old — will try it.

Dear Doris: I recently read the article about working in a Care Home, signed An Aide. I found it very misleading, especially for anyone who may have been thinking about doing this type of work. I agree with you, Doris, the woman has a very bitter outlook on life. To me it sounds as if she should never have taken up that type of a career.

I am 19; yes, that young! I have worked in a Care Home for about a year now and I really think the work is terrific.

As far as cursing and name calling by residents are concerned, I don't think it necessary, but incontinence cannot be helped. If it could be, I'm sure residents probably would not have to be in the home. Living. Well I if you are not capable of this you are indeed not fit working at the job.

As she states", "We pay you to lift us." Does she not realize that if it were not for the elderly we would be out of jobs? Remember. Tender loving care is the key to a job like this.

I hope this woman who sent in that letter, isn't still working in a home with the outlook she has.

A Young Aide, Manitoba.

Dear Aide: You've got the picture! Your letter is a welcome evidence that we have loving, helpful people in all level zones of our homes.

Dear Doris: Please tell me if drinking tea will make anyone get fat? My self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed.

Tea Granny.

Dear Granny: There are no calories in tea. There are definitely calories — heaps of them — in sugar, also some in milk and a good many more in cream.

If you are drinking your tea clear, don't worry about what anybody tells you about it making you fat. Do worry if you use even a teaspoonful of sugar — watch it!

(Has Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so! Address your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Fewer Priests and Nuns Are Leaving Vocations

NEW YORK (AP)— Evidence that fewer Roman Catholic priests and nuns now are leaving their vocations has come with the announcement that an agency for helping them is closing down its operation.

Malcolm Pennington, chairman of the board of Bearings for Re-Establishment, an agency set up eight years ago to help former clergy and nuns make transition to secular life, said it was suspending activities.

"The exodus of priests and religious from the active ministry appears to have tapered off," he said.

"During the last year, for example, individuals contacting Bearings had dropped to less than 30 per month, from a customary rate of over 100 per month with peaks near 400."

The organization, which has aided more than 5,000 former clergy and nuns enter secular careers since its founding in 1960, at one time had 14 offices in eight United States cities and several abroad.

All of these also have been closed, except for one in London.

Pennington said other factors besides the change in departures from religious careers have reduced the problem.

"The decision on the part of individuals to move into the secular world now is a less emotionally charged experience and is more acceptable to the public," he said.

Additionally, many Catholic dioceses, religious communities and Protestant denominations now\"are offering more support and counseling to men and women who are reviewing options and choices in vocation."

As a result of these changed conditions, he said, it was concluded that the purpose for which Bearings was established "has been essentially accomplished."

Subsidiary organizations will continue with career develop-ment and job placement work.

When it began work, Bearings was a desperately needed to give professional, independent help to religious professionals who were taking the traumatic step into the secular world," he said.

This frequently agonizing personal decision amounted to a psychologically wrenching transition for the individuals involved.

But the job of providing the assistance needed now appears to have been accomplished, and the agency "can become a footnote in the history of the church."

God Concerned with World, Religion Belongs in Politics

By Dr. George C. Smyth

In the second century a pagan writer named Celsus attacked Christianity for its exclusiveness. He said "Christians appear to me like a host of bats or ants who come out of their hiding places, or like frogs who sit in a swamp, or worms who hold a meeting in the corner of a manure pile and say to one another, 'God does not trouble Himself with the rest of the world'."

It was an absurd accusation with no foundation in fact. Society flourished and plants and insects emerged from their hiding places and penetrated all areas of man's existence. They were invaded by a menace to public safety, to be crushed and wiped off the face of the earth.

Go most trouble Himself with the rest of the world? Long before the cries of Celsus bossed a beard, followers of Jesus Christ had been dragged before kings and magistrates and sentenced to death as "men who have turned the world upside down" (Acts 17:6). The word "world", appears more than 200 times in the New Testament. Christ made it the theme of His first public prayer in the Upper Room.

The Son of Man came eating and drinking, His first miracle a wedding reception. He mingled with publicans and sinners. Unlike Him, the world was out on evil thing to be reformed before entering the Kingdom of God. Either men brought the world itself into the Kingdom or they did not come at all.

God, in His grace, entered the world, identified Himself with its perishing conditions, and in the death of His Son upon the world's Cross acted to save it. "For God sent the Son into the world, not to condemn the world; but that the world might be saved through Him" (John 3:17).

It was Viscount Melbourne who, after reading a sermon by G. W. E. Russell, made the famous remark, "Sermons have come to a pretty pass when religion is allowed to invade the sphere of private life." The speaker, like too many modern men, achieved a spiritual schizophrenia, a split personality.

Dr. John Wisbe, English theologian, wrote: "Christianity is politics out of religion, as we have seen, politics are unjust. It soon discover that we have kept religion out of politics, and have built the City of Destruction instead of the City of God."

Where the Gospel of Christ has been preached, society has been changed for the better. "Our scheme is to establish a government that will exist in turn the tide of European emigration into this northern hol-low of the American continent, that will strive to develop Su-preme Christian virtues and that will endeavor to maintain Religious Liberty and Civil-ization throughout the land."

The quotation is from Hon. George Mason, framer of Confederation Debates (1865). We have a choice, We have a high ideal. We have a sacred responsibility. On Monday, July 8, vote as you please, vote according to conscience, but VOTE!

Tunnel Blindness Blamed

Goliath Was 'Jobbed'?

NEW YORK (AP) — When David slew Goliath, he more than hit the giant with a physician suggests.

Young David perhaps observed that Goliath had poor eyesight, something that doctors today call "tunnel vision," says Dr. Robert D. Greenblatt.

Tunnel vision means an inability to see anything except that directly in front of you, with no side or lateral vision.

So, the Biblical story, the agile David could have slipped around the 10-foot-tall Philistine, heavily armored, wearing a wide brass helmet, and Goliath never sure where the young Israelite was.

David could choose his shots with his sling.

"Did David's boldness border on youthful irresponsibility and impulsiveness in issuing the challenge to Goliath? It is far more likely that his keen powers of observation disclosed Goliath's peculiar movements," Dr. Greenblatt writes in Interpretation of endocrinology (the study of hormones) at the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta.

"David probably realized that his opponent was forced to turn his entire head . . . to focus his full gaze on an object. . . .

"Perhaps David suspected what we know today: Giants often suffer from lateral (sideways) blindness. Giantism is frequently caused by a tumor of the pituitary gland, the so-called master gland of the body. In the brain, which can affect nerves of the visual process and produce tunnel vision, in which sight is clear only in a straight line.

"David, therefore, would step agilely aside when he had drawn close enough to Goliath," Dr. Greenblatt says in an article based on his book, Search the Scriptures: Modern Medicine and Biblical Personages.

"Then, as his adversary bent-sided, charging his head down to bring the youth within his limited field of vision [And the Philistine came on and drew near unto David . . . and . . . the Philistine looked about and saw David . . . —I Samuel 17: 41-42) David took deadly aim with the slingshot and struck the lone Philistine target, the forehead.

So, says Dr. Greenblatt, David won his victory by superior knowledge, skill and agility, rather than by brute force."

Lutheran Players To Present Show

A touring group of players is about to visit Belleville congregation, ranging from area. The FELEY Players of carpentry and electrical work Lockport, New York, will pre-sent three mini musical productions at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, 516 Victoria Ave., Belleville, on Friday, July 12, at 8 p.m.

The major drama Joseph, is an original play based on the Biblical accounts of Joseph, son of Jacob. The play incorporates film, slides, black light, stage lighting (including black lights), and live action with a cast of 22 persons ranging in age from 4 to over 35. A technical staff of nine gives a total company of 41 persons.

The opening number is a three-minute musical, data-fied Ancel Gavotte and serves simply as a way of licensing up the audience The closing event is a reflection on crucifixion — resurrection built around Terry Jack's Season of the Sun. Approximately 230 slides are used on three screens in addition to live action during the course of the 10-m-nute segment.

The FELEY Players of First English Lutheran Church, Lockport, N.Y., are on tour in Toronto, Belleville, Brockville, Williamsburg and Montreal. They are a facet of the youth ministry of First English Lutheran Church. Their production involves the talents of many members of the of photography and sewing. Even a local magician has been participated in making some of the costumes.

A free-will offering will be received to help meet the expenses of the touring company.

Last year the touring players presented the play Allegry, 13 times in the Niagara Frontier, New York City, Washington, D.C., Easton, Pa., and Spring Grove, Pa. At Christmastime they staged their own production of an original script of Charles Dickens' classic A Christmas Carol. This year will be prepared for cable television.

Kurchak Gets Tough

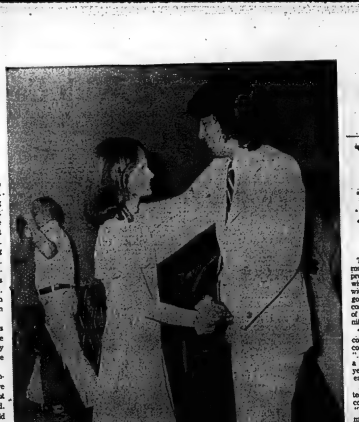
Quinte Liberals wound up their election campaign last night with a rabblerousing rally at Legion Hall that proved their candidate, Marie Kurchak capable of the best old-fashioned political oratory.

In her most hard-hitting speech of the campaign, Mrs. Kurchak accused the Conservatives of "taking us back beyond the dark age, back to the ice age" through their policy of a freeze on prices and wages.

The Trudeau government has done more for the positive self-image of this country than any government before it, she said.

"The small "c" conservatives and a negative self-image made us sell out in the first place," she said. A Liberal government would allow the country to take risks and enable it to buy back Canada, she said.

She asked what the NDP were doing about the multi-national unions that are taking money out of Canada.



"They say they are the party of the little man, but they are doing nothing about it," asserted Mrs. Kurchak.

"These Ottawa guests you hear about . . . said Mrs. Kurchak, "are going to citizens so that the little guys can have a voice and do things the powerful have always done."

Hastings has been kept dark about grant aid, she said, because knowledge means power, and they want to keep people in ignorance.

The Conservatives offer a 90-day band-aid policy with their wage-price freeze, said Mrs. Kurchak as she urged voters to elect a government that "knows how to heal the body politic."

The rally featured the speech of John Murphy and his group from Madoc.

Time Out Together

Marie Kurchak took break in her campaign for the federal Liberal seat in Hastings Friday night by sharing a dance with her husband at the Liberal rally at Legion Hall. Mrs. Kurchak followed her hard-hitting campaign speech with the brief dance to her theme song, Marie, played by John Murphy's group from Madoc.

Driver Found Impaired

A 26-year-old Belleville man, Stan Stewart Woodcock, was fined $175 in provincial court yesterday after he was convicted of impaired driving.

In an incident March 30 in which he drove over the lag of a wooden area had been a passenger in his car and ran into a tree on Dundas Street East.

Court was told yesterday that Woodcock and the woman in his car were leaving the Canadian Hotel on Dundas Street East and were arguing when the woman fell out of the car.

Woodcock's car ran over the woman's leg and proceeded 30 to 40 feet down the laneway onto Dundas Street where it ran into the side of an eastbound vehicle.

At the time of the incident, Woodcock had a breathalyzer reading of 160 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of his blood.

Damage arising from the accident was estimated at $125.

Deaf Urged to Control Their Own Interests

The deaf were challenged Friday to take their fate in their own hands and not let others make decisions for them.

Rev. Robert Rumball, superintendent of the Ontario Mission of the Deaf and longtime worker in their interests, brought the message to the 51st biennial convention of the Ontario Association of the Deaf at Ontario School for the Deaf.

In his keynote speech, Dr. Rumball said the OAD is like a sail boat.

"It isn't the wind that decides where you'll go" he said. "It's the set of your sails.

"I hear that the deaf need hearing people to represent them if they are going to the government. I don't believe that. You can influence and change this provided.

"Pull up your sleeves and make sure people hear you" Dr. Rumball urged.

Later, Dr. Rumball said the deaf for the first time, have a voice in influential circles.

He cited several "exciting changes."

The Canadian Association of the Deaf scholarship fund is defunct, because the government has now assumed responsibility for higher education of the deaf. The deaf have made representation to the department of education and have been heard. They are on the staff at Queen's Park. Deaf counsellors are now employed in schools for the deaf at Picton and Orillia, hospitals for the mentally ill.

"Our post-secondary school educational policy is unique in the world," said Dr. Rumball.

Deaf students now pursuing university degrees are assured of note takers, tutors and interpreters, he said. The program is all inclusive and experimental; the direct result of the influence of the OAD.

Construction Coming

MARMORA — Supplies and equipment for installation of a sewage system in Marmora can be expected to arrive on or about July 8, Clairson Construction Co. has advised village council.

Clairson was awarded the contract for the installation of gravity main sewers, house service connections and manholes on a $1,542,289 tender.

There is no word yet from the Rideau Construction Co. as to when the company expects to begin construction of the pollution control plant south of here, estimated to cost $1,125,000.

Yardmen Get Property For Sports Centre

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Yardmen must begin construction of the proposed Quinte Sports Centre within the next two years — with or without senior government assistance — to comply with the city's terms of sale on 20 acres of Canniton Road property.

The contract of sale — concluded Friday at a special council session — states:

"... commence construction of a sports facility within two years consisting of an enclosed ice surface.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey interrupted the reading of the contract briefly to point out: "We (council) know there is much more than that (referring to the ice surface) but that is all that is included in the agreement.

Early in April Ald. Arthur Keegan — a Yardmen director — warned council if provincial or federal government assistance was not secured, plans for the multi-faceted sports centre would be modified to initially include only an ice surface with a seating capacity of about 5,000. Total cost for the shrunken version would be approximately $2.5 million. Yardmen preferred not to guess at a final, total cost.

The agreement, described by the mayor as mutually acceptable after both sides made slight alterations, provides for the land to be turned back to the city if the construction deadline is not met.

The 20 acres sold to the Yardmen for $20 consisted of what already acquired land, represented a 99-foot frontage on the east side of Camilton Road.

The agreement demands the city be given six months notice in the event the sports complex is to be sold — thereby giving city first option of purchase. Further, the city must not exercise an option to buy the property but may wait to meet any offer. "This is a very important part of the agreement," said Mayor Jeffrey.

Commenting on project funding Yardmen Pres. Brandon said: "If necessary the entire sports complex will be funded locally by the yardmen draw."

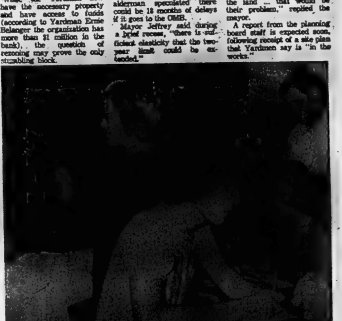
Though saying the draw entirely he said "would be a last resort measure."

No specific figures have yet been made to the provincial and federal governments, he said, "but we intend to."

"We are going to act as quickly as possible to get it going," he said. "We aren't going to go at it piecemeal.

City council passed second resolution in connection with the sports complex, requiring the staff of the Quinte Planning Board to create a suitable by-law to erase existing zoning and to create a specific zone for the centre.

While the Yardmen now have the necessary property and have access to funds (according to Yardman Ernie Belanger the organization has more than $1 million in the bank) the question of rezoning may prove the only stumbling block.



When the rezoning question comes up, a public meeting must be held and a local objection could send the entire affair into the time-consuming hands of the Ontario Municipal Board. One alderman speculated there could be 18 months of delays if it goes to the OMB.

Mayor Jeffrey said during a brief recess, there is not a fickle elasticity that the two-year limit could be extended.

A1d. George Zegouras questioned what Belleville's liability would be if the sports complex ran into serious financial difficulty in the next five years.

"We're only selling them the land . . . that would be their problem," replied the mayor.

A report from the planning board staff is expected soon, following receipt of a site plan that Yardmen say is "in the works."

A Hastings History Tour

PEOPLE Project field workers are busy this week compiling essays and a film library on a sampling of historical sites located in the county. The project — which hopes to produce am ong other things, an excursion map of historical locations — is funded by a $5,000 provincial government grant.

Shown are Lester Procter (left), Rowland Upper (foreground), Linda Top and Brian Armstrong.

Student Project Drafts Historic Map of County

Four university history students are creating a Hastings County road map leading tourists and residents back to the 19th century.

For the next 11 weeks, the group will assemble a multi-faceted information kit earmarking 40 Hastings County historical sites, composing essays on the area's educational, religious, commercial and transportation centres and compiling a photographical library of historic locations.

The project is included in the provincial government's experiment "in a summer spectacular of student employment programs. Locally, the project is named Preserving and Exploring Ontario's Past, A Learning Experience (PEOPLE). University students are making $3.35 an hour and high school students to be employed later in the summer will earn $2.90 per hour working on the project expected to be completed by the end of August. With the exception of the project coordinator the $5,000 scheme has a $3,000 operating budget.

Supervised by Jane Foster, a history graduate of Trent University and project coordinator, approximately 20 sites have been photographed and at least another 12 will come later.

Yesterday essays dealing with the county in general have been completed and existing library resources, though work is still to be completed on the biographies of the individual sites visited.

Once all the material has been gathered, it will be combined in kits to be sent to the county board of education and the ministry of education.

The most widely-circulated piece of information from the project will be an excursion map for Sunday motorists on visiting tourists, pointing to the sites of interest — constructed roughly south of Highway 7.

Project workers supported by the Hastings County Board of Education — say they hope the county grant will be used as field trip resource material in the school system.

Miss Foster said in her conversation with ministry officials: "they haven't been scheduled for cuts. We will happen to the project's needs."

In spite of what happens to the project, Miss Foster says of the real benefits of the scheme is giving students the chance to do the work in the fields with new techniques. The workers will judge the scheme is worthwhile.

Miss Foster could have had a summer job picking strawberries while a male team member could have worked in a reformity project.

Area Teachers Elect Officers

James Cox of Centennial Secondary School has been elected president of District 18 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

District 19 comprises Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties.

Other members of the executive are: past president, Kenzie MacDonald, Prince Edward Collegiate Institute; first vice-president, Terry Murray, Napanee District High School; second vice-president, Harvey Gottfried, PECI; secretary, Gi Taylor, Centennial; treasurer Joseph Ross, Moira Secondary School; heads of area representative, Paul Burd, PECI and provincial executive counsellor, Lloyd Jones, Hastings county board of education.

Road Tenders To Be Called

The Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications will call tenders this week for the reconstruction of Highway 14 from Stirling to Springbrook.

This was the announcement today by Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins who said he had received information from Ministry head Hon. John Rhodes that tenders for grading, drainage, granular base, from the north Stirling limits to Springbrook were being called.

New Pastor Welcomed

REV. DON SHINDELL

Congregational members of Parkdale Baptist Church welcomed their new pastor, Rev. Don Schindell, at an induction service held in the church on Monday, June 17. The service was conducted by Floyd MacInnes. Greetings were brought by Rev. Ken Holland of Havelock, Rev. Ken Quinn of the Quinte Association; and from Rev. S. Tilley of the Alliance Church, Belleville.

The charge to the pastor was delivered by Rev. James Clark of Napanee and to the people by Rev. Erland Wicker of Trenton. The sermon was by Rev. Timothy Sherr, representing the Fellowship Baptist office in Toronto.

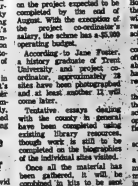
For the past three years Mr. Shindell, his wife and children Ron and David, have been residing at Albert College where he has been serving as compilacis.

Young People Said Tougher

A 17-year-old youth, David Weber, of RR3, Belleville, was found guilty of three charges of wilful damage, carrying a concealed weapon and being intoxicated in a public place when he appeared in provincial court here yesterday.

Weber was arrested by police May 25 after he was seen urinating against the door of the Crystal Hotel on Front Street and breaking the glass in the front door of the hotel.

About 1 a.m., on May 25, Weber left the hotel's beverage room, urinated against the outside wall and kicked and punched the glass out of the front door.



Damage to the door was estimated at $27.

When he was arrested, Weber was found to be carrying a switch blade, a baseball knife with a five-inch steel blade in his jacket pocket.

He told police that he carried the knife for protection, since he was carrying a large sum of cash on his person.

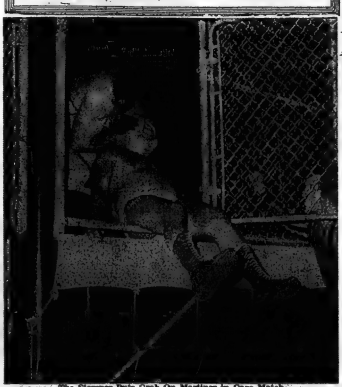
When police searched Weber they found he had $238.39 in cash in the pocket of his shirt.

Judge J. L. Clendenning remanded Weber, out of custody, for sentencing July 15, pending the preparation of a pre-sentence report.

GILLIAN MILLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Miller, Belleville, graduated recently with a Bachelor of Science degree in Biology from Wilfrid Laurier University, and was awarded the Biology Department's award for proficiency. Miss Miller has accepted a position in Ecological research at University of Western Ontario.

Travellers' Information Available

Now that summer's officially here, comes the time for preparing that vacation trip.



And whether it's a motor trip to Vancouver or a camping excursion to Nova Scotia, there's data available to the traveller in planning that trip. This comes from two sources, booth in front of the Quinte Commerce.

A wide variety of travel booklets and maps are available at the chamber's offices at 162 Front Street as well as the newly opened tourist booth in front of the Quinte Mall.

A representative from the National Capital Commission in Ottawa, recently called the city's availability of travel information one of the best stocked in Eastern Ontario.

This service is provided by the Tourist and Convention Bureau of the chamber and local inquiries and request are welcomed and encouraged.

The Stomper Puts Grab On Martinez in Cage Match

Stomper Retains Crown With Cage Win

By ALAN TESWORTH

The Stomper has retained his North American Wrestling Championship Belt. And he did it by escaping the clutches of his challenger at the Memorial Arena last night, Luis Martinez.

The event was the main one on the four bout card at the Arena, and was the Steel Cage Match, set up when the Mexican Style Match between the pair two weeks ago was declared a draw.

Martinez, the favorite of the Belleville fans for the past three bouts he has had in the local ring, has had the upper hand in all three of the matches, although has not come up with the much sought after belt.

Last night's cage bout was the one which was to determine the winner. And again, he happened with The Stomper, Archie Gould, pulling the finishing weapon from his cowboy-style boots.

Martinez had punished the Stomper considerably in the bout, loosing him about at will. In revenge of the blood-spattered bout of two weeks back, keeping the champ in the ring. The winner was the first one to escape the six foot high chain link fence surrounding the ring by way of a small door in one corner of the ring.

Martinez, although not drawing any blood, dragged the champ along the wires of the cage, inflicting bruises on the face of the Stomper. As well, he applied the usual varieties of headlocks, kicks, and punches to the body of the Stomper.

This time there was no escape over the ropes, as he had in the Strap match. He was in the cage, pinned there by an enraged Martinez.

Once again the crowd lent its approval of Martinez by cheering him on, pounding their feet along with the challenger in mockery of the Stomper.

Many times the Champion made it to the door of the cage in an attempt to leave the ring, and win the match but was dragged back by Martinez.

Not once in the match did Martinez, out strictly for revenge of his two previous defeats, try to exit the ring.

But not to be taken, the Stomper reached for his usual secret aid, this week a new method — salt. Gould managed to put Martinez to the floor of the ring, one of the very few times, he did, and took the stinging compound from his right boot, where articles of bloodshed have been lodged in previous bouts.

Martinez recovered from the throw by the Stomper, and was coming back at him when he was greeted by a shower of the salt, which went directly into his eyes, bringing immediate pain to the face area. A temporary blindness also gave the Stomper an opportunity to make his way to the door of the ring, and the retaining of his championship belt, after about 16 minutes in the ring.

However, Vic Rossitard had different ideas, coming from the dressing room, where he was cooling off from a win in a previous bout on the card, chasing the winner back into the ring, taking a couple shots at him before allowing him to leave.

With the chase back into the ring, Rossitari issued a challenge to the Stomper to fight for his belt, in a regular match. The fight will be the main bout on the next card to come to the Arena, two weeks from last night, on July 20th.

In the other matches of the night, Rossitard had little trouble in taking the Wolfman in a bout that lasted only 15 minutes, while Rachel Dubois and Reiko Johnson teamed up to take two falls from Billy the Kid and Jessie Baxter, in the inland tag team bout.

Tony Fartzi fought Chris Toles to a draw in the opener of the evening. The saw-off came after 30 minutes in the ring.

Cobourg Back on Top

Cobourg Tony's regained the leadership in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association, Thursday, shading Belleville United 3-2 as the 10-team grouping reached the half-way mark in the regular schedule.

Tony's jumped one point up on Whitby Hurricane of Trenton as the teams - continue their sizzling battle for first place. The Cobourg squad boasts an 8-1 record for 16 points while Whitby's is 7-1-1 for 15.

In other league action Thursday, Brighton earned a 3-3 draw at Warkworth Institution.

Golden Mile Restaurant Olympics of Belleville and CFB, Trenton played to a 1-1 tie, Wednesday.

United was unbeaten at Cobourg. The Belleville team shot into a 2-0 lead only to have the home side square things before the interval. When Tony's lost the services of Alex Ewert, through expulsion, United had the opportunity of pulling an upset.

But, reduced to a 10-man side, Cobourg managed to pull it off when young Steve Miller shot the only goal of the second half.

Joe Cordiero and Dave Hadley had the early United goals. Ewert and John Van Balen replied for Tony's.

Pullback Steve Ormsby and forward Keith Perry were solid performers for the losers.

At Warkworth, Brighton's talented young star Bruce Mohr fired the goals which earned his team the split in points. His counter early in the second half brought the move but Brighton moved in teams even at 3-3 and completed the scoring in the hard fought match.

Warkworth opened the scoring on Dexter Taylor's clever move but Brighton moved in front on goals by Vince Bastiller and Mike Gerow.

The home team's Lucio Marcoccia took over after that, scoring a pair to make it 3-2 at the interval.

Shades of Olympics

Host Nation Ready For Sunday Cup Final

MUNICH (Reuter) — West German anti-terrorist commandos head a massive security force for Sunday's World Cup final with the memory of the Munich Olympic massacre of Israeli athletes less than two years old.

Brazil and Poland battle for third place today.

Scattered around the Olympic Stadium—when West Germany plays the Netherlands for the Cup Sunday—will be 1,200 uniformed policemen aided by 25 mounted police, 12 police dogs, 48 radio patrol cars and the recently formed anti-terrorist Eleventh Commandos.

Additionally, six helicopters were to hover above the Olympic site to encircle the stadium.

Besides the uniformed men on duty, Europe's best secret service guards have been gathered to watch the safety of heads of state "and celebrities watching the final.

Although details of the security measures have been kept secret, a spokesman for Munich police said the entire area in and around the stadium had been subjected to a minute search to make it secure. This security will be maintained until Sunday."

The man in charge of security is Munich's Franz Haimerl, the same policeman who headed the action against Arab terrorists at the Olympic Village in September, 1972.

Haimerl said a number of anonymous threats had been received and there was "no absolute guarantee" against acts of terrorism. "But we have done everything humanly possible."

The commandos, some of them working in the police squads and others in civilian clothing mingling with spectators and guests of honor, will be on duty for the first time at a major international event since their formation.

Each member of the security force will be within radio contact, each guest of honor will have a guard "whose duty depends on the degree of danger to his person" said a police spokesman.

Football fans will have to submit to police searches of their bags and even suspicion-looking pockets. "Any dangerous object will be confiscated," the police spokesman said.

Munich Becomes Scalpers' Field-day

MUNICH (Reuter) — Soccer World Cup ticket scalpers on Friday were contemplating the fortunes that are coming their way as prices rocketed in advance of Sunday's final between West Germany and Holland.

For $11.80 tickets scalpers were getting $250 and prices are expected to go higher before guest time.

But gone are the days of forlorn little men holding tickets on store corners. Munich's ticket scalpers are more sophisticated.

They use newspaper advertisements simply stating: "World Cup final tickets. Ring—"

Gone too are the days when a buyer could bargain. Today's scalpers have hired experts in psychology and lawyers who smartly rebuke bargain hunters with: "That's the price, sir, if you are not interested don't waste my time."

Dutch supporters, desperate for tickets to boost the 3,000 allotted Dutch final passes, systematically answer all the advertisements offering to be outbid anyone for the merchandise.

One said:

"But we are running into stubborn Germanic nationalism. They would rather sell to Germans. We have hired Germans now to do the negotiating."

Intermediates In Allan Cup?

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Cup hockey playoffs in Eastern Canada will be more competitive in future when the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association approves a formula admitting intermediate A teams to challenge for the trophy.

Larry Belisle, the CAHA's senior convener, said Friday that a meeting to be held soon in Montreal will select the new format in which intermediate champions from Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick will vie for senior honors with the Newfoundland, Thunder Bay and Ontario leagues.

An earlier report suggested that new leagues would spring up in Eastern Canada, reviving memories of the years when senior hockey was just a step below the professionals.

It won't, however, be so elaborate.

Belisle said the CAHA is working out a formula in which winners of intermediate A championships at the divisional level will be able to challenge for the Allan Cup by picking up four additional players.

The runner-up at the intermediate A level will continue a challenge for the Hardy Cup, emblematic of the national intermediate B championship.

If the Ontario Hockey Association senior series continues operating on a regional basis, six leagues will offer challenges to represent Eastern Canada in the Allan Cup final including the other existing senior operations—Thunder Bay and the Newfoundland Senior Hockey League.

The intermediate A challenges will come from the Ottawa and District Hockey League and the New Brunswick league as well as a new league being formed in Quebec.

Contract Insures Brantford Operation

TORONTO (CP) — Brantford's senior hockey team is expected to continue operating despite earlier reports of its demise because of an iron-clad contract between the Brantford arena commission and Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

Larry Belisle, senior convener for the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Friday in a telephone interview from Penetanguishene, Ont., that the original contract between Marlboros and the Brantford commission has been rescinded and a new one is being drawn up.

He said the revamped contract, which "will have no reservation if senior hockey is played in the Brantford Arena," will probably be signed in Toronto on Monday.

The original contract called for the junior team to play 15 home dates at the Brantford Memorial Gardens in the 1974-75 season and prevented any professional, senior, intermediate or junior team from operating out of the rink.

The senior league has been in danger of folding with only Nanaimo, Barrie and Cambridge ready to go. Orillia's new executive had a meeting scheduled with the players Friday night and a new franchise may also be located in Whitby if ice is available.

Excelsiors Edge Leafs

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — Terry Masthra fired four goals Friday to pace Bramalea Excelsiors to a 14-13 victory over Lakeshore Maple Leafs in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game.

Ian Robertson and Don Webster scored two goals each for Bramalea with Murray Gresham, Art Webster, Marty Lake, Brent Service, Ken Archbold and Larry Dobbie adding one each.

Ron Smith had three goals for Lakeshore and Ellis Elwell added a pair. Mike Butler, Dan McEwen, Gary Preiick, Ken Lane, Geoff Nelson, Joe Schoran and Kino Parisi got the others.

KEN ROSEWALL

Dudley's Seven Paces Griffins

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP) — Rochester Griffins, paced by the seven-goal performance of Rick Dudley, defeated Maryland Arrows 22-18 in a National Lacrosse League game Friday night before 3,586 fans.

Dudley's scoring outburst gave him 48 goals for the season to tie with Paul Cicci of Syracuse Stingers as top goal-getters in the league.

Maryland's setback by the league leaders extended their losing streak to five games.

Dave Johnson fired four goals for, Rochester, while Brian Bowman, Jan Magee and Glen Newman added two each. Paul Warden, Rick Bisson, Charlie Henderson, Brian Keegan and Joe Tompson shared singles.

Bill Cogbill scored five goals for Maryland. Paul Suggate, Tom Vann, Ken Henderson, Jerry McKenna and Tony Gotham contributed two goals apiece. Wayne Thompson, Rick McKenna and Kevin Switzer got one goal each.

Faces Connors in Final

Rosewall Gets Another Chance

LONDON (AP) — Ken Rosewall of Australia has a chance today to win the tennis singles title that has eluded him—at Wimbledon for 20 years.

Jimmy Connors, 21, of the United States, who faced Rosewall for the men's singles title at the all-England championships, said of his opponent: "How do you beat a legend?"

Rosewall, 39, is the only player standing in the way of a clique double for Connors and his fiancee, Chris Evert, 19.

Miss Evert was the women's singles title Friday, eliminating Olga Morozova, the first Russian to reach a women's final since 1968, 6-4, 6-4.

Connors was seeded No. 3 and Rosewall No. 9.

But Rosewall — upset topranked John Newcombe of Australia and fourth-seeded Stan Smith of the U.S.' in his bid for only major tennis title he has ever won.

Twenty years ago, Rosewall lost to veteran Jaroslav Drobny in the Wimbledon final. Lew Hoad beat him in 1952 and Newcombe did it in 1970.

The Australian qualified for the finals with one of the greatest comebacks in years. He lost the first two sets to Stan Smith 1-6, 4-6, rallied to win in Newcombe and Tony Roche of Australia. The Australian's hit most of their shots to Connors, apparently in an effort to tire him out, for their fellow countryman, Rosewall, who had no doubles match.

Keen to Play For Team Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs will allow centre Dave Keon to play for Team Canada '74 against Russia.

Keon, one of the top centres in the National Hockey League, has expressed an interest in playing for the team which will be made up basically of players from the World Hockey Association.

Keon scored 25 goals and had 25 assists with the fourth-place Maple Leafs last season.

Harold Ballard, president of the Maple Leafs, says he won't block Keon from playing in the eight-game series this fall.

"First and foremost, I'm a Canadian," said Ballard. "I'm not advocating that the entire Maple Leaf hockey team must jump to the assistance of the WHA, but I want to see Canada win this series. And the WHA will be representing Canada. . . . The Toronto Maple Leaf organization won't stand in his way if Keon can help Team Canada beat the Russians."

NFL Strike Reaches Broad Standoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Miami Dolphin veterans failed Friday to reach a decision on what to do about a player strike during a meeting with leaders of their union.

Miami tight-end Jim Mandich said after meeting officials of the striking National Football League Players Association that he will cross any picket line and will be at camp July 14, the date rookies veterans are scheduled to report.

But Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said in Miami that at least 30 veterans of the Super Bowl-champion Dolphins would picket the opening of that team's training camp Sunday, when 48 rookies and non-regular veterans are expected to report.

Meanwhile, the second picket line of the strike was to be set up today at Sam Houston State College in Huntsville, Tex., site of Houston Oilers' training camp for rookies and free agents. Team officials said 104 players were expected in camp.

"Any rookie too dumb to report to camp is too dumb to play for the Oilers," said Sid Gillman, coach and general manager.

Garvey and other leaders of the players' union met in Miami with the Dolphin veterans Friday night.

Afterward, Mandich said: "Nothing in the meeting made me change my mind about not going along with the strike. I am very tired of the business end of football."

Other veterans, including linebacker Bob Matheson and centre Jim Langer, said they still hadn't decided what to do, while placekicker Garo Yepremian said he will go along with whatever the majority of his team-mates decided.

Garvey said before the meeting that if Miami' veterans planned to take the field in the College all-star game in Chicago July 26, they will have to cross a hefty picket line to do there.

"No special exemption will be granted to the Dolphins for the all-star game," said Garvey.

The NFLPA went on strike Monday over 63 issues, including the right to negotiate with any team a player wishes

Things From A to Z As Expos Split With LA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers are having things their own way from A to Z—from Walter Alston, dean of major league managers, to rookie pitcher Geoff Zahn.

Alston gave Zahn, 27, his first start of the season in the second game of a doubleheader in Montreal Friday night and the lefthander pitched seven innings, allowing only one hit before Mike Marshall came on to preserve the Dodgers' 7-0 triumph. The Expos took the opener 11-6.

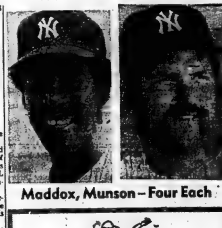
Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals edged Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Philadelphia Phillies flattened San Diego Padres 8-1, Houston Astros whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-1, Chicago Cubs took a pair from Atlanta Braves 4-1 and 3-2, and New York Mets swept San Francisco Giants 5-3 and 2-1.

In the opener, the Dodgers rallied to get by with Al Downing also allowing only one hit and six runs in 3 1-3 innings. Barry Foote later homered off Charlie Hough and Mike Marshall relieved Ken Singleton connected off Jim Brewer.

In the nightcap, as Dodger Willie Davis stroked Zahn for a single in the first inning and that was it for the Expos until Marshall made his 55th appearance of the season and allowed three more hits over the final two innings.

"I was a bit tired," admitted Zahn, who had pitched only 7 1-3 innings all season. "It was kind of my decision and the skipp'r to take me out."

Willie Crawford backed Zahn's pitching with a pair of two-run homers as the Dodgers stretched their lead in the NL West to 10 games over Cincinnati.



Tooch Bitter Jim Dwyer's tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning sparked St. Louis over the Reds.

Del Unser tripled in two runs and Bob Boone hit a three-run homer in Philadelphia's five-run first inning. That was more than enough for Steve Carlton, who snapped a three-game losing streak with a six-hitter over San Diego.

Bill May drove in three runs for Houston with three hits and Larry Dierker fired a four-hitter. May contributed an RBI single to the three-run surge in the first inning against Dock Ellis, singled for a run in the third and scored across another in the seventh.

Andre Thornton hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the ninth to win the nightcap after the Cubs took the opener on the five hit pitching of Bill Bonham and Joe Pepitone's two-run double in the fifth inning.

Ron Reed turned in a pair of run-scoring singles for the Mets in support of Jerry Koosman's six-hit pitching. Schneck drove in an unearned run with a second-inning single and Bud Harrelson and Koosman scored on Bart Barry and singled home the Francisco run in the fourth. Ted Martinez followed with an RBI double for the winning run.

Collect 14 Runs, 20 Hits

Yankees Pound Texas Pitchers

New York Yankees drove the Texas Rangers batty Friday night.

The Yankees got 20 hits off assorted Texas pitching for a 14-2 romp over the Rangers.

Elliott Maddox and Thurman Munson got four hits each off David Clyde and three other Texas pitchers.

In other American League games, Detroit Tigers took a doubleheader from Chicago White Sox 5-4 and 7-4, Milwaukee Brewers beat Minnesota Twins 5-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 4-4, Oakland A's tripped Baltimore Orioles 6-5, and California Angels lost to Cleveland Indians' 7-2. Kansas City Royals and Boston Red Sox were rained out.

Graig Nettles had four RBI for the Yankees and Rudy May, 3-2, hurled a six hitter.

Texas' only scores in the third on Jim Fregosi's ninth homer, a walk to Toby Harrah and Jim Sundberg's double.

Jim Northrup hit his sixth home run this week and Jon Coleman won for the first time since May 15 as Detroit beat Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader.

Norm Cash and Gates Brown each belted two-run homers and Ed Brinkman drove in two runs with a homer and single, leading the Tigers to their second game victory.

Powered by home runs by Dennis Johnson and Jesus Vidarro and aided by a double error by Minnesota the Bateman Sivera Braun, Milwaukee beat the Twins in their first game of the day.

Larry Hisle batted his 12th home run and three singles, leading Minnesota over Milwaukee in the second game.

Reggie Jackson and Bill North each hit two-run homers to power Jim (Catfish) Hunter and Oakland over Baltimore. The victory was the 19th straight for Oakland and put the A's five games ahead of the Kansas City Royals in the AL West.

George Hendrick blasted a two-run homer following a two-out error in the seventh-inning for the first hit of Nolan Ryan and Cleveland went on to victory over California.

Hendrick also singled in a run in Cleveland's five-run inning as the Indians climbed into a tie with Boston for first place in the East.

Ryan, 10-6, who struck out two batters to reach the 2,000 mark in career strikeouts, lost two-hitters last year, struck out 10 batters before being relieved.

Organ's Boot Comes Through Again

EDMONTON (CP) — Gerry Organ kicked two field goals in the final four minutes Friday night as Ottawa Rough Riders rallied to nip Edmonton Eskimos 26-25 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game before 19,321 fans.

Organ's winner was a rouging 33-yarder but only two minutes earlier he lofted one from the Edmonton 38 that bounced off the crossbar and trickled over.

The victory was Ottawa's second in three days, following a 35-6 triumph Wednesday night over Calgary Stampeders. Edmonton was playing its second exhibition game, losing 48-13 Tuesday night to British Columbia Lions.

Hugh Oldham and Rhome Sweet took touchdown passes from Jerry Keeling. Organ converted both and also produced two converts and two other field goals, 16 and 32 yards, a consecutive Ottawa's scoring.

Rimmer Leads Warriors' Win

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Al Rimmer's four goals and six assists lead Brantford Warriors to a 16-12 victory over Fergus Thistles in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Major series game Friday.

Greg Fowlesz also scored four goals for Brantford and Ken Simpson, Jim Park and Gerry Mays added three goals each. Larry Reinbuck had two goals with Bob Yabsas, Mike Bryson, Mike Arnold, Andy Read, and Gary Moore getting the others.

Sneed Leads By Four

MILWAUKEE (AP) "It's a good feeling to be leading by four strokes," Ed Sneed said Friday after three rounds of the $200,000 Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

But Sneed, enjoying one of the largest 54-hole leads of the season on the pro beat, was not without a challenger going into today's last 18 holes.

"I have a number in mind," said Dave Hill, referring to his par score for the last three rounds. "The number is 63."

Hill, trying for his first win of the year, had seven straight birdies Wednesday's opening round, clipped one more shot of par with a 71 Friday and put together a 54-hole total of 205—14 under par on the 7,019-yard course.

Hill, with a 66, was tied for second at 206 with Bob Zender, who had a 68.

Grier Jones' 68 brought him fourth at 207.

Next, at 211, were Tommy Aaron, Lee Trevino, Robert Green, Larry Hinson, Bob Smith and Cesar Sanudo.

Aaron, alone in second after two rounds, blew to a 75. Green and Hinson had bird-ravaged 69s, Trevino 71 and Sanudo 73.

Harvard Leads Henley Charge

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — Rowing crews from Harvard University spearheaded the United States challenge through the second day Friday at Henley Royal Regatta.

Harvard's varsity lightweights looked strong and impressive in sweeping into the quarterfinals of the Thames Challenge Cup for eights with a four-length victory over Scotland's Aberdeen University.

Stroked by Edward Reynolds, the Harvard crew took control at the start and finished in 7:22.

Across air other United States victories on the one-mile, 550-yard River Thames course was the Kirkland House eight from Harvard. Kirkland beat England's Selwyn College in the second round of the Ladies Challenge Plate for heavyweights by one-third of a length in 7:46.

The American eight slipped nearly two lengths back with a mile gone, but stroke Gene Laberre roused his crew and they rallied for victory.

The U.S. was making a particularly strong bid for another of Henley's treasured trophies, the Wyfold Challenge Cup for coxless fours, where three American teams reached the quarter-finals.

They were the Potomac Boat Club of Washington, D.C., the Porcellian Club of Cambridge, Mass., and a crew from Yale University.

Potomac rallied from a poor start and beat England's Norwich Rowing Club easily in 8:13.

Porcellian also had to overcome erratic steering before pulling away from the Dolphin Grasshger Arcge in winning by 1 1-3 lengths in 7:41.

Yale had the toughest test of the three before beating England's Hereford Rowing Club by 2¼ lengths in 8:11.

The biggest surprise was the performance of the Egyptian police crew in the Thames Challenge Cup.

The Egyptians always have been early losers at Henley. But this time they upset the highly-favored Belgian Royal Aegir students' eight with the second fastest time of the day—7:07.

The fastest time of the day was 7:06, by Belgium's crack Antwerp Rowing Club in beating top English crew Leander by two-thirds of a length in 7:06.

The crowd saw the failure again of U.S. champion Jim Dietz in the Diamond Challenge Sculls.

Four times, he has come to Henley determined to win the Diamonds, but each time he has failed.

Dietz, of the New York Athletic Club, lost in the second round, almost subdued in the race by a humiliating five lengths, to Sean Drea, the defending champion from Ireland in 8:28.

B-Ballers to Final

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (CP) — Cuba took the lead with two minutes remaining and held on to defeat Canada 80-79 in the final game of the world amateur basketball tournament qualifying round.

The win gave the Cubans a 5-1 record in Group C, while Canada wound up with two wins and a defeat. The Canadians upset Czechoslovakia 85-75 Thursday night and topped Argentina 90-68 Wednesday.

Canada, Cuba, the United States, Spain, the Soviet Union and Brazil all advanced to the final round. Defending champion Yugoslavia and Puerto Rico, the host country, received byes into the final.

The first game is the final for Canada, will be Monday when the team meets the U.S., which had a 3-4 record in Group B.

In other Friday games, the U.S. whipped Argentina 109-86; Spain beat the Philippines 117-95; Brazil downed the Central African Republic 82-72; the Soviet Union defeated Mexico 96-76; and Czechoslovakia topped Australia 88-82.

Canada trailing by four points late in the game, narrowed it to one. With seven seconds remaining, however, Canada failed to convert a shot from the floor and missed on the rebound.

Phil Tollestrup paced the Canadians with 18 points. Jamie Russell added 17 and Bill Robinson 16.

Canada led 46-42 at the half.

Kroc Offers $10,000 Worth of Appreciation

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Owner Ray Kroc wants to show his appreciation to the fans by awarding a Britain truck on to the San Diego Padres' baseball diamond next Friday.

Inside will be $10,000 in play money to be thrown out to scramblers who will turn it in later for the real thing.

Kroc, whose personal fortune is estimated at $300 million, is happy that home attendance this National League season is near the 901,000 mark.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

The famous radio and television mind-reader of 30 years ago, Dunninger, has written a book in which he tells how his rival mentalists perform their bogus miracles.

All other mind-readers, says Dunninger (in Dunninger's Secrets, written with Walter Gibson), including his current favorite Kreskin, are fakes. Dunninger himself? Well, he's different, he says.

Besides revealing how Kreskin bamboozles audiences with his phony ESP, Dunninger (who during the 1940s and 1950s was as popular as his younger rival is now) takes a few swipes at his friend, the late great Harry Houdini. Dunninger pictures Houdini as a rather shifty vaudeville escape artist whose word was not always to be trusted.

Dunninger and Houdini were friendly rivals during the heyday of stage magic in the 1920s. That was also the era when Houdini boosted sagging box offices by making a name for himself as an exposer of fake mediums (in addition to escaping from anything - handcuffs, straitjackets and jail cells).

But, says Dunninger, Houdini

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Sunday, July 7

Aries (March 21-April 19) Be careful if participating in some form of strenuous sport. You might push yourself beyond your endurance and face aches and pains tomorrow.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you take to heart the remarks of one who envies your accomplishments it will only augur joy needlessly and spoil your day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Remember: A discussion with friends isn't the forum at the United Nations. Neither your views nor theirs will resolve international issues.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) It's sensible to protect what we feel is ours but sometimes we can be overly-possessive and too concerned that others will take advantage.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You are apt to be a shade too stubborn for your own good. If less opinion you take is unyielding, don't expect more from others.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Normally you are not the least bit hesitant about being of service to pals if possible. However, today you'll let the other guy know when he's a nuisance.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't try to make friends who have differing points of view. You'll wind up playing referee to a couple of hotheads.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Bite your tongue so you won't reply in anger when someone who likes to call the shots for everybody instructs you on family management.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be selective as to whom you trust your latest plans. One fa-vorer hasn't your vision. His objections will only annoy you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will be a little miffed by one who is indebted to you but comes up only with excuses instead of what you lent him.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In further your self-interests, beat in mind you can figure ways to get around any obstacles if you use your head.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You won't feel free to enjoy yourself if you've left something partially finished that you should have taken care of.

Insulin Is Not Licence to Gorge

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: "My mother reads your column every day. I hope you can help her.

She is 45 and had major surgery and they found she had diabetes. They put her on two kinds of insulin, regular and U 80 N.P.H.

Now she thinks she can eat anything because she takes insulin. She has gained 35 pounds, eats pie, cake, candy. She drinks an average of 12 bottles of unsweetened pop a day, drinks quart of milk, one quart of grapefruit juice plus two gallons of water.

She can't see half the time, she has itching in the genital region. What will happen to her if she continues this way?

Please explain her future as she reads your articles every day. We love her and want her to live.—Mrs. A.F.S. . . .

Explain her future? What future? The way she's behaving, she hasn't much future, and what there is will be filled with misery.

She's an extreme example of the type of person who won't admit the facts of diabetes. Why this applies particularly to diabetics, I don't know.

Taking insulin doesn't mean she can eat all she wants. It is absolutely vital that she cut down on sugar as in confections, and keep her calories below the insulin can metabolize daily to avoid excessive sugar.

Her gain in weight, that enormous thirst, and her genital itching are classic and unmistakable signs that her diabetes is ranging out of control—because she eats too much.

The trouble with her eye must likely indicate that the disease is damaging her eyes—because diabetics, uncontrolled, does that. She must start sticking to a sane diet and perhaps she can save her eyes.

As to whether I can help her, nobody can help her until she pays some attention to the plain facts.

She won't go to the doctor; I think perhaps you'd better make an appointment for her, then take her to the doctor. Her will, of course, give her a stiff lecture and beg her to stop doing this to herself, and maybe that will have enough impact so she will start saving herself. He should be told about her carelessness.

Diabetes, when out of control, is a terrible disease, and blindness and itching are only the first of more vicious enteries.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For 48 years I have had a fungus or mould infection in jockey itch. I have never consulted a doctor and have depended on home remedies without a great deal of success. Could you recommend a treatment?—E.S. . . .

After 48 years, don't you think it would make sense to see a dermatologist (skin specialist) and find out just what kind of skin condition it is? I certainly decline, sight unseen, to guess at a remedy.

BIRTHS

McGRATH — Pat and Cathy (nee McPherson) are pleased to announce the birth of their daughter, Kelly Ann, on Wednesday morning, June 26, 1974 at Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jim McGrath of Belleville and Mrs. Thomas McPherson of Wooler. Great grandparents are Mrs. Ida Lee of Belleville.

IN MEMORIAM

NELSON — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Fred Nelson, who passed away July 7, 1973.
Time is a thief who takes from us
And leaves us with our memories.
Sadly missed by wife Ethel, daughter Ruth and son-in-law Ken, grandchildren Ken, Jr., Jeffrey and Lisa.

LATCHFORD — In memory of a dear son-in-law and brother-in-law Carl Eugene Latchford, who died July 6, 1973.
Sweet memories are all we have
Dear Carl, those who have met can say,
Of the kind and true friend you were.
No one can be loved as well as you were loved by us.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by wife Mary, daughter Carol and family.

ELLIOTT — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Fred Elliott who passed away July 6, 1970.
Lost but not forgotten.
Lovingly remembered by the family.

HERSHAW — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Lorraine Joanne who passed away July 7, 1972.
Lost a rose of sweet remembrance,
Where thoughts and wishes meet,
We miss that rose so deeply
In the garden of retreat.
For the girl we cannot greet,
You never said goodbye to us,
Perhaps it's just as well,
For we would have cried with sorrow,
To see you go from us,
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And tears flow silently,
What is there left but you dear Lorraine.
No one will ever know,
How much we have loved and suffered,
How much we love and miss you dear,
Lost but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by mother Ethel and brother Terry and sister Ann Marie.

COULTER — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Charles Wesley Coulter who passed away July 7, 1973.
Memories are a treasure,
Always a hand when one was down,
Always a shoulder to cry upon,
Wonderful memories he left us.
Sadly missed by sons and daughters-in-law.

HERSHAW — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather who passed away July 7, 1972.
Sweet memories are a treasure,
Always a hand when one was down,
Always a shoulder to cry upon,
A father who was one of the best,
Memories are what we have left,
May she find in God's garden of rest,
Sadly missed by sisters and brothers.

DON'T MAKE A FOOLISH MISTAKE

such as waiting for mortgage rate to drop before you purchase. Should the rate drop by as much as one per cent, you would save $250.00 per year for five years or $1,250.00. Last year in 18 months the average house in Canada went up about $6,000. In that case you would be $4,260.00 further behind. All trends continue, and it seems likely they will, the same thing can happen year after year, so you don't get caught in the trap — the time to buy a new house is now. Call us for an appointment without obligation to discuss housing for your family.

News Briefs

New Test Suspected

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — The governments of Australia and New Zealand believe the French exploded another nuclear device today at their South Pacific test site, Prime Ministers Gough Whitlam of Australia and Norman Kirk of New Zealand announced. The announcement gave no further details.

Journalist Freed

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanon's leading newspaper columnist, Michel Abu Jawdeh, was freed early today five days after kidnappers seized him on a Beirut street.

Kissinger Sees Wilson

LONDON (AP) — United States Secretary Henry Kissinger flew to London from West Germany today for talks with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and key members of his cabinet on world financial and energy problems and President Nixon's trip to Moscow.

Riot Suspect Held

BANGKOK (AP) — Thai police arrested a young Chinese today and described him as being the instigator of the bloody rioting that killed 28 persons last week in Bangkok's Chinatown. Suthan Kasaiyat, 25, known as the Pear to the Chinese community, was charged with organizing a disturbance, rioting, illegal possession of weapons, destruction of property and attempted murder.

Landlords Responsible

TORONTO (CP) — A North York borough committee on violence "exposed today that apartment landlords in Metropolitan Toronto can be held responsible for violence committed in their garages and other common areas," if a chief decides they did not take proper security measures to protect tenants.

Liner to Tie Up

PARIS (AP) — The French Line announced today that the passenger liner France will be removed from service by the end of the year because the government is withdrawing the subsidy needed to cover operating expenses.

May Cut Speed Limit

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister John Rhodes said today the Ontario government is considering reducing speed limits on provincial expressways that run through urban areas. "There's no doubt that lowering the speed limit in the United States has made a big difference in the number of accidents and fatalities," he said.

VERMILION BAY, Ont. (CP) — Fairly heavy rain and an apparently successful back-burning operation Sunday night has given respite to fears for this northwestern Ontario community threatened by a large forest fire.

Terry Lunny, fire information officer with the provincial resources department in nearby Dryden, said today that "quite favorable wind conditions" also helped control the blaze.

"The situation is looking a lot better today," he said.

Mr. Lunny said almost three inches of rain fell on the immediate area of Dryden with another half an inch falling on the fire base near here. Reason for the heavy rainfall on Dryden was thought to be convection effects of the huge fire which has covered almost 48,000 acres.

Officials still are keeping evacuated residents out of this small tourist community and about 80 Ontario Provincial Police officers are maintaining security in the town which normally contains 550 residents.

The population has dwindled to a handful following evacuation procedures at the height of the fire threat Sunday.

An Emergency Measures Organization spokesman said no accommodation was found in Kenora and Dryden for the evacuees.

Kenora Mayor Jim Davidson said a radio appeal for lodgings there resulted in telephone calls offering lodgings for about 250 persons.

One person came in and said, 'Here are the keys to my house; I'm going to my camp for the weekend and you're welcome to put wherever you want in the house,'" them any spot said.

Ray Riley, deputy regional director for the Ontario ministry of natural resources who is in charge of the fire-fighting effort, said the evacuation went smoothly.

The big worry at the moment is a south wind, which might cause the fire to "crown" — where the fire rushes from tree-to-tree-top he said.

No loss of life or buildings have been reported so far in the fire, although some tourist camps had to be closed.

Insp. A. R. McMartin of the provincial police said the fire was not the only threat.

"Heavy smoke being carried into town could also cause smoke inhalation problems, and that's one of the reasons we carried out the evacuation," he said.

About 375 men were fighting the blaze, using 15 helicopters, two DC-6 aircraft, nine water bombers and bulldozers.

A total of 65 fires covering 150,000 acres were burning Sunday in the northwestern region of Ontario. Eight of them in about 1,000 acres or more were reported out of control, including one near Dryden, where 500 residents in four outlying townships were evacuated Saturday.

In addition to this town on the Trans-Canada Highway, the evacuation area stretched about 20 miles along Highway 17, west of Dryden.

Leo Bernier, Ontario minister of natural resources, has signed an order restricting travel in 1,120 square miles west of Red Lake, also not far from here.

Mr. Bernier, who has been in the fire area for about a week, took a helicopter tour Saturday and said: "We are now into a very serious situation here."

The ministry said help was sent by the Alberta government which supplied three air-mass management supervisors, and from the Quebec government which sent four flying-boat aircraft equipped with fire-mapping devices.

Other help came from the Northwest Territories government.

As fire conditions worsened, provincial police, conservation officers and officials of the provincial resources group asked Dryden-area residents in the townships of Temple, Minaric, Langton and the southern half of Docker Township to leave their homes.

Flames Threaten California Town

WALKER, Calif. (AP) — A forest blaze, fanned and pushed by high winds, raged out of control today, destroying nine residences and forcing the evacuation of this town of 400 persons.

No injuries were reported. The Mono County sheriff's office said the evacuated families have been housed at a school and in homes in Coleville, about eight miles away.

United States Forest Service spokesman said about 1,000 acres of pinon pine and brushland had been burned.

The fire, believed to have been caused by an uncontrolled campfire, was burning on the eastern side of the Sierra Nevada in Toiyabe National Forest.

Hostage Unharmed

'Mixed Up Kids' Persuaded By Psychiatrist to Surrender

MONTREAL (CP) — Two escapees from a maximum-security psychiatric institute surrended to police and a doctor Sunday night after holding a nurse hostage for more than four hours while they confronted police by continually changing demands during roadside negotiations.

A spokesman for Montreal Urban Community police said the two juveniles, aged 16 and 17, were taken to police headquarters for questioning after giving themselves up just before midnight EST. Their names were not released.

Their hostage, Micheline Jacques, 27, was unharmed and in "very good condition," the spokesman said.

The psychiatrist, who treated the pair at the Philippe Pinel Institute, intervened with the aid of two police officers in contact with the youths during fruitless negotiations with police for more than two hours.

Negotiations were conducted with the two, described as "just two kids and not dangerous," through a window of their confiscated car after the vehicle ran out of gas on a road leading both to Montreal International Airport, about two miles away, and the Trans-Canada Highway.

While out of the gas station to police through one window, the other escaped and got out of a broken pair of scissors in Miss Jacques' throat.

The spokesman said: "Their demands were never definitely stated by them. They were just minor-brained demands at best.

He said the demands, which "changed drastically" from moment to moment at one point consisted of a car, $200 and a flight from the airport. No declination was made by the escapees.

Police said the youths grabbed the nurse at about 3:45 p.m. in the hall by with a belt and demanded a car.

They left the institute in a car belonging to the staff and proceeded west in the direction of the airport before being sighted and followed by police officer in a cruiser.

They were permitted to continue when one of the escapees said Constable Marie de Bellefeuille: "If you don't stop following us, we're going to kill the girl."

The getaway car ran out of gas at about 7:20 p.m., shortly after a 15-minute phone call between the youths and police in a service station parking lot.

Police said one youth had been confined before the escape to a charge of rape and the other on a charge of attempted rape. Police said they are considered as to what charges, if any, the two may face now.

It was standard procedure as escapees were two of a group of six prisoners who escaped Saturday from a medium-security federal detention centre located near the psychiatric institute in nearby Laval, north of Montreal.

The six, still at large, were identified as Billy Carleton, 28, serving 20 years for manslaughter; Serge Archambault, 30, serving seven years for armed robbery; Marcel Tremblay, 21, serving 14 years for armed robbery; Yvon Papineau, 21, serving 10 years for criminal negligence; Herman Gaumont, 24, and Michel Dumont, 22, both serving life sentences for murder.

A penitentiaries spokesman said they escaped through underground conduits after digging away from a recreation section in the centre's gymnasium.

DRO Robt. Howe and Clerk Dorothy Purdey Ready

So It's A Dead Election ?

Well, They Are Voting In Belleville Cemetery

By COLIN BRUCE

For 200 Prince Edward — Hastings riding voters, election day meant a trip to the cemetery.

That's not a reflection on the party they are supporting but the location of their polling station — Belleville Cemetery.

Federal clerks have been taking place at the cemetery for a number of years along with the last provincial election and several municipal compulsions.

Tom Purdey — the cemetery's caretaker/ grounds-keeper — says so many ballots have been cast in his polling station that people don't think of it as being a cemetery.

"It's just a place to vote," he said.

"People like it here," said Mr. Purdey. TI's a good, central location for the riding's east end residents, and it's also a good roid with good access," he said.

Mr. Purdey's first election experience was during the war, when he was a deputy returning officer overseas. The next time he got involved in politics was operating a poll at Lindsay's Riverside Cemetery, just before coming to Belleville.

This election, Tom stepped down from poll clerk to have the job taken over by his wife Dorothy. She says it's lot of people don't think anything of voting in the cemetery."

Some people do make humorous remarks noting the poll location, the most memorable one for Mrs. Purdey was when a middle aged gentleman finished casting his ballot and was about ready to leave when he observed, "you'd have a real big poll here if all the residents voted."

Polling booths will close at 8 p.m. sharp this evening.

According to Mrs. Purdey, for most voters, having the polling station at the cemetery has made it easier for them to say they can "drop in on their way to work to cast their ballot".

Election Weather Varies Widely

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unseasonably chilly weather greeted voters heading for polling booths today at opposite ends of the country.

In St. John's, Nfld., it was the coldest July 8 since 1944—the temperature was 35 degrees— and on the West Coast temperatures were slightly below normal with overcast and showery weather.

Temperatures were to range between 65 and 75 in the three Maritime provinces by mid-afternoon when the sun was expected to break through.

Quebec reported mainly sunny weather with cloudy periods and a chance of a thundershower in the late afternoon. Temperatures were expected to remain in the 60s. The turnout of heavy voters ranged from lighter than normal to heavy.

Ontario, similarly, was bathed for the most part in sun as she did so in St. Matthias Church Hall, just before her father, about 9.30 a.m. local time.

Liberals Said Ahead Ten Percentage Points

TORONTO (CP) — A poll commissioned by the CTV television network says the Progressive Conservatives have made gains but still trail the Liberals, and the country appears headed for another minority parliament.

The poll, taken July 1, seven days before the election, and broadcast Sunday night, showed the Liberals with 37.8 per cent of the vote and the Conservatives with 36.1 per cent. The New Democratic Party had 12.5 per cent, Social Credit 1.9 per cent and 6 per cent were undecided.

The undecided figures was the same as a June 19 poll. That poll showed the Liberals with 41 per cent, the Conservatives with 32 per cent, the NDP with 13 per cent and Social Credit with three per cent.

Typhoon Gilda Kills Hundred in Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — Fifty-three persons died and 48 are missing in western and central Japan as a result of the havoc caused by typhoon Gilda, which battered the country for two days, police said today.

In addition, 73 persons were injured, thousands of houses flooded or destroyed and 83 bridges washed away.

Rescue workers, who had toiled through the night, continued to dig through mud and debris in a search for bodies today as the typhoon, the worst to hit Japan this year, moved away over the Sea of Japan.

The fierce winds have been followed by torrential rains moving into central Japan, causing extensive flooding and landslides.

In Shimoka Prefecture, central Japan, landslides killed 18 persons and 28 others are missing, police reported. And in Yokosuka, southwest of Tokyo, one landslide killed six persons. Seven others are missing.

Apart from the human casualties, the grim arithmetic of typhoon Gilda's destructive power was given by today's tally as 403 houses destroyed, 18 washed away by floods, 77,000 houses inundated, 83 bridges destroyed.

There have been a total of 816 landslides. Gilda has been the worst disaster for Japan since an earthquake May 2 killed 30 persons and injured 77 on the Izu peninsula, south of Tokyo.

The bodies of 18 persons were recovered Sunday from the rubble of a landslide which crashed onto a small fishing village on Shodo Island, about 200 miles west of Tokyo. Police said 18 villagers were missing, and six were injured.

In Seoul, South Korea, also hit by the typhoon, the government disaster relief centre said eight persons were killed and six were missing in the southern tip of the country.

The Older the Fiddling...

The older the fiddle the sweeter the tune the old saying says. And this may be what 14-year-old Albert Mosher, or Durrow, Ont., is trying to bear for certain as he tunes in to Stewart Thompson, 60, of Nestleton, who's been a half-century fiddling. They were among long list of contestants at Marmora's annual fiddling contest Saturday night. For details, see page 5.

Near Miss For Cyclist

A seven-year-old Belleville boy received minor injuries Saturday after the bicycle he was driving was involved in a near collision with a car on Sidney Street.

Police said Monday that Steven Smith, 7, of 221 West Moira Street, was injured when he swung out in front of a car driven by Douglas Allan Yates, 41, of 25 Keller Dr., while driving his bicycle south on Sidney Street.

The driver of the car managed to avoid a collision, but the young cyclist was thrown from his bicycle.

The boy did not require hospital treatment and sustained minor bruises.

The accident occurred at 11:45 a.m.

The First Vote

First vote in his own poll today was cast by Jack Ellis, seeking re-election as Conservative MP in Hastings. Mr. Ellis turned up before voting station opened at Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school at 9 p.m. Vote cast. Mr. candidate took off on day-long tour of constituency polls.

PC Policy PM's Target

COBOURG — A dogcatcher couldn't hold office if he changed his mind as often as have the Conservatives on their prices and incomes proposal, Prime Minister Trudeau said here Saturday.

He accused the Conservatives of causing an controls policy — then spending the campaign hedging the proposal with exemptions.

"This is not the way to run a country," said Mr. Trudeau. "You can't concentrate on one problem and say there is one solution — and then spend the rest of the campaign backing away from this solution."

He said this indicated how a Conservative government would operate.

"They'd be adjusting and changing their policies all the time as soon as any body criticized them.

"They'd be bringing things in they haven't thought through and they are forced to explain and change from day to day," charged Mr. Trudeau.

"You couldn't be a dog-catcher if you changed your mind every week about which dog you're trying to catch," he said.

The remark brought laughter and applause from the crowd gathered at Victoria Park here to meet the prime minister as he swung into Conservative — Durham on a bustling whistle tour of riding close to the Toronto region.

His speech, lasting about 20 minutes, reiterated criticisms of the Conservative prices - and - incomes proposal.

Again he likened the plan to snake oil — the bogus remedy for all ailments once a popular cure-all item at rural fairs.

Without detailing the mechanism of the plan, the Conservatives were asking voters to accept it on trust,said Mr. Trudeau.

"I don't think anybody has asked for so much trust since (the movie) The Exorcist was around," quipped Mr. Trudeau.

The only answer to inflation is to increase supplies, not depress the economy, he warned.

Gerald Vance

Former Fire Chief Dead

Retired city fire chief and for many years active in Belleville district community affairs, Gerald Vance died Monday, July 8 in Belleville General Hospital, following a two-year illness.

The former fire chief, who had served on the Belleville Fire Department for 44 years, was in his 77th year.

The funeral will be held Wednesday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with Rev. Alfred Pendlebury officiating at the 2 p.m. service. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

Born at Ameliasburgh in Prince Edward county, Mr. Vance was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Vance and had lived in the Belleville area most of his life. He was affiliated with Holoway Street United Church.

The former fire chief, who was a past president and life member of the Ontario Fire Chief's Association, joined the Belleville Fire Department July 1 in 1921. He rose through department ranks to become assistant fire chief and in September, 1948, was named fire chief. He retired Feb. 2, 1965.

The former fire chief was an honorary life member of the Hastings — Prince Edward Mutual Aid Firefighters' Association, in the founding of which he took a leading part, and was also a life member of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs, and the Association of Fire Fighters, Local 497.

A lover of fine horses, he was past president and life member of the Quinte Riding and Driving Association, the original sponsors of the weekly harness races at the fairgrounds. Mr. Vance was also a life member of the Quinte Exhibition.

He was also an honorary life member of the ANAF, Duke of Edinburgh Unit 381, and a life member of Empire Lodge, AF and AM No. 286.

Aside from his wife, the former Helen Hiscyl, he is survived by sons Lawrence (Joe) Vance, Allen, and Robert (Bob) all of Belleville. He was predeceased by an infant son, Harold and a foster son, Jack Kennedy.

There are 19 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Industry Push Year-round Job'

Summertime is no time to slack off, according to Belleville's industrial commissioner Fred Bennett.

While the harvest of announcements of new industries coming to Belleville took place in the winter, "our participation doesn't stop there," he said.

The commissioner not only helps industry locate in the city, "but carries on with the day-to-day calls and solves problems and arrangements for the new industries," he said. "Once they are here we try to make them feel at home."

About 11 industries decided to locate in Belleville throughout last winter, creating 300 direct jobs in the plants and about 500 "spinoff" jobs in commercial establishments that service the industry.

Mr. Bennett says there would be "no surprises" for the rest of the summer but the coming fall, the commission would be very busy there.

The latest information on
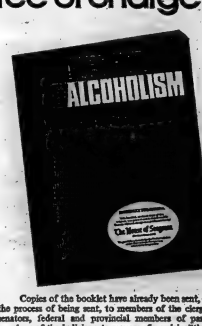
can be yours, free of charge

We have a very important and informative booklet which we think will interest you. And it's free of charge. It's all about the disease of alcoholism. Experts tell us that it's one of the finest things ever written on the subject. But we don't need to be experts to understand it. Its 42 pages are written in simple layman's terms so that we can all clearly grasp its meaning.

It would be great if every thinking Canadian could read this booklet. It's written for everyone, even those who have no problem with alcoholism and just want to learn something about the disease. And, of course, it's also written for those who, through no fault of their own, may be alcoholics and are unable to control the amount or extent of their drinking. Anybody with a friend or relative with this problem or health problem will also find this booklet to be an invaluable source of down-to-earth, factual information.

"Alcohol & Alcoholism — Problems, Programs & Progress" was written by the National Institute of Mental Health and the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, both of the United States. It was published under the auspices of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and was printed originally by the U.S. Government Printing Office.



The booklet firmly establishes that alcoholism is a disease and not a behavioural defect or moral weakness. It makes clear that the problem is not one of drinking but of drunkenness and not of alcohol but of alcoholism. It further recognizes that the cause or causes of alcoholism are not yet known and that as of now there is no known cure for the disease, even though it is often treated successfully and its progress halted.

SUBJECTS COVERED

This immensely readable and informative booklet covers a broad spectrum of subjects. They range from the earliest recorded history of man's consumption of beer, wine and spirits to the most recent and advanced scientific thinking and the never-ending search for new ways to treat problems such subjects as understanding alcohol and its effects, problem drinking and alcoholism, the origins of alcoholism, overcoming alcoholism: diagnosis, treatment and prevention; legislation, organization and action and other related subjects.

PART OF A CONTINUING PROGRAM

Because this booklet is so important and so timely, and because its message is as relevant to Canadians as to citizens of the United States, we believe that it should be widely distributed throughout Canada. We decided, therefore, to do something about it. After distributing 5,000 copies, which we purchased from the U.S. Government, we obtained permission from that Government to print in Canada as many more copies as we require and to arrange for translation to French.

Copies of the booklet have already been sent, or are in the process of being sent, to members of the clergy, to all senators, federal and provincial members of parliament, members of the judiciary, to mayors of municipalities, senior civil servants, all newspapers and magazines, radio and television stations, liquor boards and commissions, labour leaders and union officials, alcoholism commissions, all university and other libraries, educators, all professors of medicine and medical doctors, all lawyers, and scores of other interested persons in every province and territory in Canada.

So far, we have received thousands of letters commending this project. These are gratifying, especially the large numbers from school boards and teachers across the country requesting extra copies for their own personal use. We also have been favoured with hundreds of letters of approval from medical doctors and other scientists, and from medical schools, alcoholism commissions and numerous professional associations.

This is the first time that we've offered this booklet to the general public. And it won't be the last. As many Canadians know, our Company was first in our industry to advocate moderation in its advertising. That was in 1934 and we have continued ever since. The distribution of this booklet, the most extensive of its kind ever undertaken in Canada, is another step in our continuing program directed toward increasing public knowledge of a serious social and health problem.

Marie And The PM

Liberal candidate in Hastings, Marie Kurchak is deep in conversation with Prime Minister Trudeau as they share platform at Cobourg Saturday. The leader's visit to Northumberland-Durham riding was part of last-minute swing around Toronto-centred region before election ended

Prime Minister Almost Makes It to Quinte

COBOURG — The wisdup of Prime Minister Trudeau's election campaign made a swift touchdown on the rim of Quinte campaign country Saturday.

And, with Marie Kurchak, Liberal candidate in Hastings playing a leading role in the brief, but breezy Trudeau visit, it was about the closest contact the Quinte constituencies came to visiting leadership in this election.

Leaders of all three major political parties did not include Hastings and neighboring Prince Edward-Hastings on schedules of the eight-week electoral fight ending today at the polls.

The Trudeau perfume here was aimed at giving an eleventh-hour boost to Allan Beckett, seeking to wrest Northumberland - Durham back into the Liberal fold.

The constituency was won in 1972 by former Ontario cabinet minister Allan Lawrence from Russell Hoozy, now Hastings County judge.

Mrs. Kurchak and Mr. Beckett were the only candidates present and shared speechmaking with the prime minister at a rally that crowded Victoria Park on Lake Ontario.

The Trudeau arrival was part of a weekend push through constituencies in the Toronto-centred Lake Ontario region as the election struggle closed.

His visit lasted little more than an hour — including speeches — after the prime minister's bus rolled up to the park at 1 p.m. Obviously enjoying himself as the long campaign neared its end, Mr. Trudeau spent as much time moving through the crowd — handshaking, exchanging pleasantries—as on the platform.

The mood of the event was as buoyant as the bright summer afternoon and saw Mr. Trudeau in easy rapport with the crowd.

When Mr. Beckett told the rally the prime minister would be returned with 140 seats — enough for a majority — Mr. Trudeau bantered loudly: "More."

Mindful of the inspect Agriculture Minister Whelan has had on rural areas, the prime minister quipped that he'd been afraid of being introduced as "the man Gene Whelan sent to speak to you."

At one point in his speech criticizing price and incomes controls he pulled a Conservative newspaper advertisement from his pocket. A rumpled dollop — floral insignia of the New Democratic Party — fell out of the paper.

As the crowd roared, Mr. Trudeau picked up the diary and retorted wryly: "I don't have to pluck it any more."

Man Apprehended Lighting Garbage

Belleville police have arrested a 21-year-old Canadian man and have charged him with mischief in connection with the setting of a fire in a garbage bin at the back of the Woolworth's Store Saturday morning.

Police Chief Douglas Crobie released the news this morning.

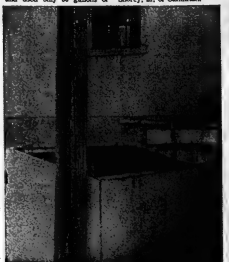
At 3:20 a.m. Saturday two police officers on patrol in the vicinity of the footbridge behind Front Street watched as a man approached the wooden garbage bin at the back of the Woolworth's Store and saw him light a match.

The man then walked away from the bin and seconds later returned.

As the man left the bin for the second time, police said that he watched over his shoulder as flames jumped five to six feet in the air.

He was arrested seconds later and the fire department was called to the scene.

Fire Chief Les Cobbaze said that his firefighters knocked the fire down in a short time and used only 50 gallons of water to quench the blaze.



The fire was the third deliberately set fire in the city in as many weeks, Chief Cobbaze said, and could have caused a considerable amount of damage if the firefighters had not been able to extinguish it within a matter of minutes.

A large window leading to the back of the store was located almost directly above the garbage bin.

The site of Saturday's fire was just three doors south of the building that was destroyed by fire Monday, July 1, when an unknown arsonist slipped inside the 18-inch gap between the Kresge building and the Shana Boutique and set a fire next to a disused freight door.

That fire caused an estimated $200,000 damage and had been burning for nearly five hours before a policeman on foot patrol turned in the alarm.

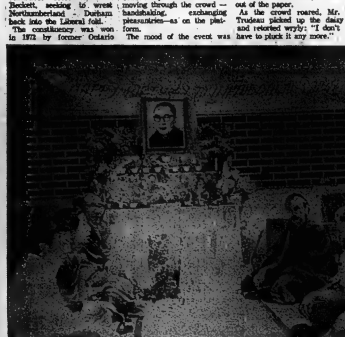
Charged with mischief in connection with Saturday's fire is Richard Douglas Shorey, 21, of Carrollton.

Deliberately Set

Two Belleville policemen watched from the footbridge across the Moira River Saturday morning as a man deliberately set fire to this garbage bin at the rear of F. W. Woolworth's on Front Street. The blaze, the third deliberately set in the city in as many weeks was put out by firefighters from the Moira Street West fire hall in a matter of seconds. Saturday's fire site is just three buildings south of the building that was destroyed by an arsonist on July 1.

Deaf Elect Officers

New officers of the Ontario Association of the Deaf were elected at the association's 41st biennial convention held last Thursday through Sunday at the Ontario School for the Deaf.



They are: president, Nicholas Wojcik of Kingston; vice-president, John Morrison of Toronto; secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Lee of Toronto; treasurer, James Baskerville of Richmond Hill, and directors, Robert Reid of Cambridge, Mrs. Doris Blackley of Georgetown and Arthur Hazlitt of Aurora.

Before the convention closed, members approved a resolution asking for teachers of total communication at schools for the deaf.

At present, the ministry of education approves oral communication and fingerspelling only. The OAD wants sign language included and will request the ministry to change its policy.

Although signing is not officially approved, all students at schools for the deaf learn it from one another and some teachers are skilled in its use.

All communication at the convention was by signing, combined with finger spelling for those words for which there is no sign.

Tibetans Observe Leader's Birthday

The traditional celebration in honor of the birthday of the Dalia Lama was saddened Saturday by the first death in Belleville's Tibetan community. But four lamas knew it was in attendance before the altar erected in the garden of Nechup Rongae for the event. Because the 51 members of Belleville's Tibetan community were in mourning, music and dancing were suspended for the day.

The Good and the Bad

Bill Hockley is in the process of shooting 2,000 feet of film, "depicting both the good and the bad," to be included in a visual, ecological commentary on the Bay of Quinte. PACE, originally cited by Mr. Hockley as local co-ordinators of the project, disclaimed any association with the film this weekend.

Ecological Watchdogs Shoot Film of Quinte

An environmental film dealing with Belleville and the immediate vicinity is being compiled in conjunction with a Toronto group that special film makers refuse to name.

Ecological watchdogs Bill Hockley and Clarence Young spent Sunday filming the Belleville waterfront in a project Mr. Hockley says is co-ordinated locally by PACE — People Against a Contaminated Environment.

Doug Sword, president of the environmental protection group, accompanies the two on their travels Sunday but disclaimed any knowledge of the film later Sunday evening.

The contradiction began when Mr. Hockley referred to the local film in context with a much larger enterprise of the entire Bay of Quinte. Belleville and area would constitute 30 minutes in a complete two hours ecological feature being produced by a Toronto group.

Mr. Hockley and Mr. Young continually refused to name the group, with Mr. Hockley saying it was PACE president Doug Sword "who made the commitment and should name the group."

In his letter to the editor, Mr. Hockley states: "Current-ly Belleville is involved with another organization in producing a series of articles on pollution and the Belleville dump arena."

"Movie scenes have already been shot and many more are to follow," the letter said.

Mr. Sword — later Sunday evening — said "I'd rather see the entire story thrown into the waste paper basket," and that he made "a commitment with the still unnamed Toronto group."

He telephoned this newspaper back moments later to retract the statement and that neither he nor PACE had any "official knowledge of the film." Asked again for the Toronto group's name, "I think Hockley has already said too much," he said. "I would rather see the whole thing squashed," said Mr. Sword. "I don't want to see PACE discredited."

He said he didn't want to be vague, but refused to be explicit as to why he retract-ed his statement of commitment. "I don't want to see PACE get laughed out of town."

Explaining why the two filmmakers might use the PACE name, "sometimes people use my name because they can't get the attention on their own hook," said Mr. Sword.

In a third telephone conversation with this paper Mr. Sword said he wanted "PACE disassociated with the entire thing."

As far as the actual film goes, cameraman Bill Hockley has shot more than 400 feet and anticipates another 1,600 feet (two hours) will be shot before the film is sent to Toronto for editing and inking.

In a letter to this paper's editor, Mr. Hockley did not mention the film was being handled by a Toronto group — but that it would be given a showing for city council. "This has been tentatively agreed to," he said Sunday.

When queried, Mr. Hockley said he hoped the edited version would be release by the Toronto group, though it would not be complete with titles.

"City council will be assured of the premiere showing," he wrote in his letter.

The sponsoring group is paying no salaries for the filmin'g but is supplying the film, Mr. Hockley said.

He says "the complete film of the entire Bay of Quinte — with the half-hour Belleville portion — will be shown in a caravan that will tour around Ontario."

"It (film and caravan) is being used as a lobby against the ministry of the environment," he said.

Commenting on the Toronto pundonos: "We want the good and the bad."

Madoc Funeral Home Sold

The Mackenzie Funeral Home at Madoc, under the same ownership for the past 20 years, has been sold.

The new owner is Jim Daniels, of Picton, who took over as the new funeral director on July 1. The former owner, Angus Mackenzie, will continue on for a short time in a part-time capacity.

Mr. Daniels was born at Stouffville, Ont., and started his apprenticeship with the Ward Funeral Home in Weston, graduating in 1968. He continued with the Ward Funeral Home until 1973 when he moved in Picton to work for the Hicks Funeral Home.

Mr. Daniels and his wife Sharon have two children, Christopher, 5½ years and Jane, two months.

Communism in Canada

The entry of the Communist party into the election campaign is a reminder to Canadians that this alien system, given it is done not enjoy widespread support, is in there fighting.

It is not just the concept of total State control that would make the principles of Communism unacceptable to the Western observer, although that would be bad enough.

Rather it is the whole range of totalitarian practice which, given the example of the Soviet world since the 1917 revolution, would make of our society a place where personal freedom is no more.

The pattern is the same everywhere Communism holds sway: the State is in control, freedom of speech and of worship are denied. There are the pogroms and the labor camps.

We seem to recall a couple of books on this theme being published in Canada in the wake of the FLQ crisis. Richard Rohmer, if memory serves, is the author of one. Both took as their theme the typical pattern of a Communist takeover, the elimination of prominent citizens and of all opposition to the empirical needs of the State.

A sinister example from distant Guyon (now called Sri Lanka) has come our way. A tea plantation manager, who has fled the economic and political uncertainties of his native land to settle with his family in Canada, told us such an incident that occurred before he left home. He was having a friendly drink with a local Communist when the latter, burning serious, said: "You know if we should ever power, it would give me the greatest pleasure to see you swinging from the nearest tree . . . but of course, only after we had made maximum use of you."

This is the kind of thinking Canadians must guard against. It represents in a nutshell the way the Communists operate.

Reflected Glory

A Bellevillian a winner at Wimbledon! We are referring of course to the Illinois Belleville and to Jim Connors, demonstrably the hottest of the up-and-coming young men of the tennis world.

Many had felt that Australian Ken Rosewall, even at 39, would pull it off. A veteran of previous finals going back to 1954, Rosewall had already beaten three-time champion John Newcombe; he had done so with almost indecent ease, but as it turned out that was his weak . . .

Connors, with the power game of youth, beat the Aussie veteran in straight sets. Besides, how could he dare lose when his fiancee, Gloria Evert, had just won the women's singles.

It was a strange (Wimbledon in many ways. More than a few champions fell by the wayside before this onslaught of youth. There were overtones of politics too, as there were last year when most of the top players stayed away. Bronnie Goodagong, along with Connors, had been banned from both the French and Italian championships because she is a member of the World Team Tennis circuit. She was said to be upset in consequence and playing below par at Wimbledon.

Tennis these days is becoming more and more political as well as public, and soon interesting all the time.

Keeping Fit

Enos David of the Hastings and Prince Edward board of health puts out an interesting letter for the August edition of Ontario Boards of Health. It is circulated to the boards and other interested parties around the province.

A strong believer in preventive medicine, Mr. David in a recent issue quoted from a federal paper.

"Vast sums," it points out, "are being spent treating diseases that could have been prevented in the first place. . ."

There is also a reference to a statement by Health Minister Lalonde that Canadians are eating, smoking, and drinking a lot more than is good for them.

An early grave may be the fate of many unless they heed the calls for more attention to diet, more exercise and less of over-indulgence and the sedentary life.

Economic Growth And The Dilemma Posed by Inflation

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some economic forecasters say American wages will continue to rise and that pressures to restrain the rising inflation rate may place a damper on real economic growth.

For the next few months at least, American interest rates will likely remain high although there is some indication they may ease before the end of the year.

Many countries including Canada are watching American economic trends with deep concern. A lack of growth in the American economy can have a major impact on world trade. High American interest rates act as a magnet to the Western world that competition for investment funds has been intensified and that countries which may seek to relieve their economies by reducing their own national interest rates will have to delay their planning.

What is clear from American developments is the U.S. economy will experience only slight growth in the coming months.

Economists are worried over the second rate of inflation but are divided on the most effective ways of dealing with it.

Treasury Secretary William Simon, challenging predictions that inflation will remain at about five per cent a year for the next decade, predicts it will hit 7.5 per cent by year's end and may go higher next year unless the government balances its books and builds up budget surpluses.

Through such surpluses, the government would be able to reduce public borrowing, thereby making more funds available to consumer and industrial borrowers.

Budget director Roy Ash calls for cuts in government spending to provide an example for general restraint in public and private expenditures. But he thinks it is too early to start thinking of building budget surpluses.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, says the outlook for somewhat slower economic growth than had been forecast for the second half of 1974 is causing the administration some concern.

U.S. workers will recover some of their lost buying power in the coming months, he predicts, but warns that any relaxation in wages would cause a more rapid increase in inflation — "an impairment of the recovery of the economy."

Stein says the cautioning depressed state of the housing industry is one factor contributing to a slowdown in the rate of economic growth.

"What is this is the steady increase in prime loading rate, an increase which analysts say is prompted by inflation, heavy corporate borrowing and tight-money moves by the Federal Reserve Board, the country's central bank.

The board has sought to curb credit in an effort to slow inflation.

Analysts say there was a slight decline in inflation recently, an occasional easing of the board's tight-money policy and an apparent decision by some corporations to postpone capital expansion—thereby easing loan demand.

However, the prime, which was at a 1974 low of 8¼ per cent last March, hit 11¾ last month, after hovering for a month around 11¼ per cent.

Some analysts—who once predicted that the rate would soon go beyond 10 per cent—now are saying it probably will hit 12 per cent before dropping back to about nine per cent by the end of the year.

"You're nothing but lackeys of U.S. imperialist interests, kowtowing to Washington's . . ."

Life And Times Of Japan's Modern Generation

Japan Report

Last year, a total of 1,071,00 couples married in Japan, according to a survey by the Health and Welfare Ministry. In what ages do Japanese men and women marry most? Do wives also have jobs? What about the housing situation for newly weds? How many children do they want? To find the answers to these and other aspects of the matrimonial situation in Japan and to estimate the future trends of births in Japan, the ministry conducted a "Survey on the Economic Aspects of Vital Statistics (Marriages) for 1973" and recently published its findings. Following is a gist of the survey:

(The survey dealt only with the first marriages for both husbands and wives, and covered a total of 4,633 couples who registered their marriage on 1973.)

Age: The average age is 27 for husbands and 24 years and three months for wives.

Type of marriage: In Japan, there are two types of marriage, namely, "miai-bakon" (arranged match) and love match. The latter accounted for 22.8 per cent of the total. Of the love marriages, about 60 per cent grew out of "contacts at work or in connection with work."

In the arranged marriage, a man or a woman who wishes to marry is first introduced to a woman or a man who also wants to marry through the good offices of parents, relations, acquaintances, etc. If the man and woman like each other and each other find each other likable, their marriage is formally agreed upon. This is generally called "miai-bekkon." Usually, after the formal introduction, the couple have repeated dates, going to the movies and perhaps dancing, for instance, and then marry by mutual consent after being fully acquainted with each other's character.

Wives holding jobs: Of first-marriage couples, 41.8 per cent of both husbands and wives were working for a living at the time of their marriage. But the higher the husband's income, the lower the ratio. Among those couples in which husbands earn 50 per cent more than the average monthly wage, the ratio of job-holding wives is only 19.4 per cent.

Housing: Of the total married couples, 42.8 per cent live in rented private houses or apartments, while 34.2 per cent live in houses of their own. The remainder live in rented houses and apartments operated by the Japan Housing Corporation and other public corporations and organizations, company houses, etc. Of the rented dwelling rooms, 64 per cent of the total have a floor space of 10 tatami mats or less.

Family makeup: 79.9 per cent of the couples live alone, while 13.5 per cent live with their parents (in many cases, these are the husband's parents). The remaining 13.5 per cent live with various combinations of family members.

Number of children desired. The largest proportion of husbands desire to have two children, while in the case of wives, those wishing to have two children rank first. The ratio of those wishing to have two or three children is more than 90 per cent for both husbands and wives. Only 1.6 per cent of husbands and 2.4 per cent of wives replied they do not want children.

Those couples wishing to have children were asked how they would like to live after their children get married in the future. The answer "We want to live near our married children" accounted for the largest proportion of husbands and wives —that is, 30.7 per cent and 27.2 per cent, respectively.

Impaired Drivers Are a Growing Menace

Brockville Recorder and Times

In recent days there was comment on this page about the growing incidence of traffic offences, especially impaired driving in Brockville. The number of charges laid by local police, not including those laid by the Ontario Provincial Police here, is up 15 per cent this year to date. The total in the area could easily be 20 per cent. It has been the position of this newspaper for years that drivers charged with impairment, especially some less serious ones, are treated too leniently, that the system of licence suspensions is a mess too. Deputy Attorney General Provo Cavilla seems to support that position now.

Speaking in Toronto he said chronically bad drivers should have their licences suspended indefinitely. "A few years ago, we used to remove the licences plates from cars of habitual drivers. Maybe we should consider bringing that practice back somehow in to the Highway Traffic Act".

Drivers shouldn't be any doubt in his mind as to the necessity of doing that and many more things to make sure Ontario's highways are not the playgrounds of the drunk behind the wheel.

Looking at Ontario's record last year in the latest year of complete statistics) one quarter of fatal accidents involved drivers who had been drinking. In that year 8,121 drivers who were involved in 6,709 who had been drinking, a total of 26,930 in all, were involved in accidents. On a national scale it is estimated that 39 per cent of all drivers involved in fatal accidents have been drinking.

The situation is one that has been continually gaining worse in the province, indeed, and the courts get continually softer in their attitude towards the drinking driver. Indeed, the situation has become so grave that there is a growing movement to require the courts to suspend licences of all impaired drivers for that first offence. There was a second chance to drink and drive, and possibly kill, again. The judge should also be given the authority to impound the car and have the licence plates seized.

The Gossip Mills Of The Movie Magazines

By JAY NEWQUIST
In The Montreal Gazette

Of course you can't say that Sonny and Cher were divvying up their California community property, but Liz is making late-night phone calls to an erased car salesman and that Dead Arnaz Jr. is spitsville with Lisa Minnelli and consoling himself with a Jurassic Season ticket.

The grist from Hollywood's broomclosets drops on your newsstands in monthly movie magazines and no one knows better who is doing what to whom than the 285,000 readers who boddle over a Diet Pepsi with Rona Barrett's Hollywood or, sniffily, Photo Hollywood and Movie Life, Cosmopolay and Movie Stars.

And the stars, they read and grumble and suffer the embarrassment of publicity in a rare as Raquel Welch's chances of drowning. Sure the stories are largely based on the truth — or just merely loose — but Rona Barrett makes money and ruin a budding screen career went out with Hedda and Louella.

The shock of movie magazines may be gone with their power to cripple careers, but Brickie and Estelle would be pleased about today's bumper crop of screen sags. What Photo Hollywood et al have done is to evolve with the times, replacing the moral lecture with an imaginative knack for bizarre entertainment, taking the fine line of truth and burying it effortlessly into illusion.

Yes, sex and the stars may still be the topics of note, but the tone has changed and the stories so misleading that movie magazines have become an intolerably sleazy chasm.

Politics And Human Nature

By DON O'BEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The game of politics doesn't change and it's really rather foolish to think that it will—radically or swiftly.

It's an occupation that gets its guts from human nature—the wooing, winning and pleasing of humans!

Practically, we really can't expect it to change much more than human nature itself does.

And we all know how much this happens.

This particular piece of sagebrush philosophy is offered because of two recent events.

One was the controversy that surrounded federal Labor Minister John Munro for allegedly hagding out some patronage.

The second was a debate in the house here during the sessionettes, when Dr. Stephen Shulman indignantly alleged that government members were handing out government cheques for hospitals, homes for the aged or other government "good works" in their ridings.

In both cases there were in some quarters outbursts of indignation.

Tut, tut, this is terrible.

Idealists were shocked.

The fact of life, however, is that, "patronage" always has been and probably always will be a part of politics.

It may shock some people. Idealistically you might even say it is wrong. Though there are those who contend that it is essential for party organization). In recent years there has tended to be less of it and this trend may continue.

But you don't see it disappearing entirely.

There will always be the jobs in liquor stores, bricks in the levers, contracts for advertising and public relations agencies and an array of other government jobs and contracts for which there no firm or obvious criteria for making appointments.

As of now these are normally given to political friends or workers.

Should it is not to be expected that matters will be any other way.

After all it's only human to be good to one's (criends!

City's 'No' To Beer Garden

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

(1) No beer garden for Belleville sidewalk sales. Why? Aldermen Jos Cox says it would be detrimental to the city. Why? Alcohol has been involved in traffic fatalities in the city last year.

(2) Alderman John Stock says situation could get out of hand! What makes him so sure — do you have to let someone drink himself under the table in a public place?

Having travelled to several European countries over the past three years, I and my companions were welcomed the opportunity to sit down at a sidewalk cafe to have a beer with our lunch in the afternoon. Europeans are accustomed to drinking in this fashion although do not seem to get out of hand'. We in our country have been brought up in a society with degrading conditions as far as our drinking habits are concerned. The so-called 'beer parlors' of the past and drivers and cars are under the most deplorable conditions certain hours, no food allowed, no entertain dancing and no control over the type of beverage served over the away.

Signing your name and address when buying liquor, making one feel like a very undesirable citizen. The prohibition years were terrible; liquor was always available but under degrading conditions and encouraged our young ones and older people to break in cars on sidecards, in speakeasies. Also having to drink in a not very civilized way, just gulp it down in a hurry so that one can get caught and this had a most detrimental effect. When you are in Europe you don't see this behaviour.

I don't think that beer gardens or sidewalk cafes will increase traffic accidents in the city. The number of them are caused by people trying to get home after the bars close or by going home rush hour. People will drive after drinking anyway. I have noticed that the more affluent people become, the more they drink — but only because they have not learned to drink in a civilized way as in our primitive laws.

Yes, I've heard about the alcoholism in France; that is in a country with an entirely different attitude to alcohol from ours. I have just returned from Italy where I travelled where vineyards abound and we could not have wine with meals as a matter of course. I did not see people reeling about the streets, nor any rush hour accidents.

If our young people are going to drink more instead of smoking marijuana I hope they can learn to handle it by being allowed to use it in a normal way without feeling that they are doing something daring. All they know about social drinking is what they have learned from their parents — who learned to drink under our restrictive taboos that encouraged people to drink to excess.

I do not like to see people drink but I know more than you do. Alcohol at times is beneficial, better a drink of sherry or beer to sleep on than barbiturates if you have to have sleeping pills. Alcohol in all its forms has been with us since the days of the Pharaohs and have been able to trace its traffic fatalities in the city last year.

Big Marmora Contest

Fiddlers Play The Night Away

MARMORA — Nimble fingers and feet kept the village arena reverberating here Saturday night.

The event: The sixth annual oldtime fiddle and stepdance contest that drew 60 contestants R ran well past midnight.

As a result, organizers are now viewing the possibility of turning the production into a two-day program.

Close to 50 fiddlers from around Ontario turned up for the competition and the winners ranged from a 10-year-old youngster to a 67-year-old woman.

But growing in significance has been the stepdancing contest. Sucli response was indicated last year that show sponsors " can now visualize it as a two-day event," said Norm Post, one of the organizers.

The contest is a joint venture of the Marmora Agricultural Society and the Cross Country Jamboree.

Mr. Post, leader of the Singing Post Family, said the the competition was the keenest since the evented. He estimated a crew of 1,500 to the arena during the night.

Most anticipated win of the night went to Harlan Elder, of Baltimore, Ont.

For the third consecutive year he fiddled his way to the top prize in the amateur class. Mr. Elder now gets to keep the stamp trophy but, in turn, he has donated a prize for next year's competition. Mr. Post said this will be awarded to a class of older fiddlers.

Bruce Elliott, 18, of Frankford was second in the amateur fiddler Audrey Glennay, Campbellford, third and George Sisson, Toronto fourth place.

Professional class winner was Gerald Elliott, Pickering, followed by Peter Dawson, Pembroke and Donald Reed, Badhurst.

Winners in the children's class were Ricky Cormier 15, Bay Ridges; Karen Reed, 12 and Robert Reed, 10, Sudbury.

Stepdance winners: Under 16— Karen Grey, Susan McKetty, Beverley Mohon, all of Perth; Over 16— Debby McKetty, Perth; Earl Rivers, Belleville, Clarence Loffman, Marmora.

Motorbike Collides With Truck

GREENBUSH — A Prince Edward County man was taken to Kingston hospital Saturday after his motorcycle collided with a half-ton truck on county road eight here.

Injured was Robert McKinnie, 30, R. R. Picton, who fingers were severely hurt when his motorcycle, travelled in a truck driven by Beacher Struthers, 48, RR 2, Picton.

A passenger on the motorcycle, Ronald Nelson, 29, RR 2, Picton, was admitted to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with cuts, bruises and a possible back injury.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $450, while damage to the truck totalled $50.

Brakeline Blamed In Car Crash

TRENTON — A broken brakeline was blamed by police for an accident in which a damp truck careened off the Wooler Rd. and into a ditch, four miles northwest of here Saturday.

Driver George Roscoe Murray, 36, RR 4 Trenton, received minor injuries when he jumped from the cab of the truck. He was treated and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Provincial police at Brighton said the truck was travelling downhill in first gear when Murray applied the brakes.

Police say the brakeline broke, sending the northbound truck into the ditch. It travelled for 77 feet before stopping, undamaged.

Murray jumped from the truck when it overturned in the ditch.

Car Rolls, Man Escapes

BRIGHTON — A Prince Edward County man escaped injury Sunday when his car left a township road, travelled 200 feet in a ditch, and rolled.

Police were called at 8 a.m. at Cedardale Beach.

Brighton provincial police said Gysbert Korver, 26, RR1, Consecon, complained of a steering failure following the mishap. He was taken to hospital for treatment by private vehicle.

The Korver car was northbound at the time of the mishap.

Police estimate damage at $500.

Damage $1,200

TRENTON — Both drivers escaped injury in a two-car collision that caused $1,200 damage on Dundas Street East, here Friday.

Police said a car driven by John James Styles, 61, RR4, Brighton, collided with one driven by Arthur Haines, 67, 62 Ryan Street.

Damage to the Haines vehicle was estimated at $700 and to the Styles vehicle $500.

Lots O' Luck

EAST LAKE — If finding a horseless Hibernian good luck, Ken Marriott of East Lake can expect his fortunes to quadruple.

Last weekend the farmer found not just the shoes but the complete pony. He reported his discovery to the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police. The pony, described as light brown with black mane, tail and legs will be pastured at his farm until the owner comes forward.

Outlet Quiet On Weekend

OUTLET — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police today reported a quiet weekend at Outlet Provincial Park.

Four persons were charged with liquor violations at the park and several liquor seizures were made.

Early Sunday morning, several persons were evicted from two campsites as the result of parties causing a disturbance.

He Kept Up a Winning End

In two-man canoe race Philip Spencer kept his end of the team effort up to help win first Campbellford-Frankford canoe race on weekend. The teammate was fellow Trenton resident John Hallett. Both are part of Frankford summer carnival to raise funds for recreation projects.

Frankford Summer Carnival

Trenton Team Wins Canoe Race

FRANKFORD — Just after noon here Saturday, two canoeists, clipping their paddles into the Trent Canal, pulled in at the finish line of the first Campbellford-Frankford canoe race.

Philip Spencer, Carrying Place, and John Hallett, Trenton, had just won their first canoe race this year. At the same time, the two young men heralded the beginning of what organizers hope will be an annual event.

The estimated 36-mile race through five portages was held by the village recreation committee in conjunct'on with its first summer carnival.

In all, 16 two-man canoes competed in the open class race. Few could be called better than amateurs at the sport, but all appeared game.

The two winners, prescribed with a trophy and a $75 cash prize, finished the course in three hours and 57 minutes, 30 minutes ahead of the second-place canoe.

"We didn't get much of a push during the race," said Mr. Hallett, referring to competition. The two, racing in a borrowed shell, led the race from the Campbellford starting line.

Runnerup Kirk Parsons of Stockdale, and Rick Phillips of Glen Ross gained a second.

Both thought of their second-place finish as a considerable accomplishment.

Picton's Regent

Two Hurt in Prince Edward

PICTON — Two Prince Edward teenagers were injured Saturday in a one-car accident on the Ridge Road about 1.5 miles west of county road 13.

Driver of the car, Joseph Brunet, 19, of Hillier, was admitted to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with face and hand cuts. A passenger in the vehicle, James Johnston, 18, RR2, Picton, also was admitted to hospital with back injuries and head cuts.

The 1969 model car in which the youths were riding was completely demolished.

$2,000 Grant To Establish Crowe River Canoe Route

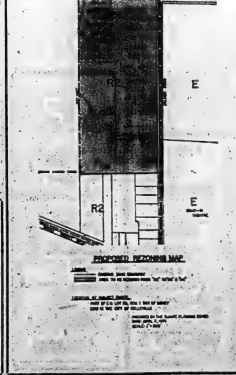
A provincial grant of $2,000 to the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority for the establishment of the Crowe River Canoe Route, has been approved by the natural resources ministry.

The Authority's purpose in establishing the route would be to facilitate public use by canoe of extensive water-based recreational facilities of the Crowe Watershed. It would also help meet growing demand for such facilities for the major population centres.

The proposed project will include mapping of outstanding landscape features, navigable reaches, public and private access points to the water, locating, marking and developing necessary portages and stopover points, including camp sites.

Areas of special interest such as dams and mills, abandoned mines and related historic sites will also be mapped. There will be minor channel improvements to improve access and navigability. All member municipalities will bear the Authority's share of the cost.

Toads Escape To Worry Aussies



DARWIN, Australia (AP) — Five escaped sugar cane toads will have a special request played for them this week over radio stations in this tropical North Australian city.

The "request" will be a sample of the toads' mating call, taped by a university professor in the hope that the five toads, all dangerous to animals, will be caught once people recognize the toads' distinctive night-time sound.

The professor and officials of the northern territory wildlife department will tour the suburbs of this town of 50,000 persons playing the call from tape recorders in an effort to lure the toads into the open.

What began as a chuckle three weeks ago has become a serious matter.

The toads are known as "walking vacuum cleaners," capable of eating anything from cigarette butts to table tennis balls.

Theatre Needs Patrons For Summer Openings

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — Picton's only theatre, the Regent, would open its doors tomorrow if there was enough response.

According to Louise Cook, owner of the theatre, there is a lack of support locally. It just wasn't worthwhile to open the theatre for the summer months, which has been her custom in recent years.

During past summers, the theatre has received good support from vacationing tourists. But, when left, with local residents during the off season, it proves too costly to operate.

Miss Cook attributes the drop in attendance to proximity of other theatres in Belleville and Kingston.

"Today," commente Miss Cook, "there is a great demand for presentations that one won't otherwise see on the television screen. A typical example is a drive-in theatre's riverslessmost of "five sex films".

Miss Cook says theatre operation is a type of business completely different from any other. It is always open to constantly-changing public whims or fancy. Lack of public support has, for many years, made profitable operation of the Regent almost an impossibility. But, in spite of declining attendance, Miss Cook has continued to carry on the theatre. According to business records at the theatre, the theatre has always earned one of the finest ratings in the province.

Built in 1921 by Miss Cook's father, the late George Cook, the Regent was the envy of larger centres, equipped with facilities for the presentation of arts in many forms. When movies became vocal, the Regent was still out in front keeping up with progress.

"If I felt there would be a steady response. I would, and can, open in a minute," said Miss Cook. "We have it — just sitting there — just waiting to be used, but it is up to the public."

It was the second time they had been in a canoe together. The first time was Friday, when they reeled on to practice stroking.

A rented canoe took them to the finish line a scant four minutes ahead of Trenton's Vince Brabson and Jim Stevie.

After the race, Mr. Parsons said their inexperience showed. Lack of ropes at the ends of the canoe made pulling the craft up the sides of the canal difficult. It cost them time.

What pulled them through, he said was the good condition both are in.

Both men are bricklayers in business together.

Quinte Cuisine

Kerrta Myyra, Finnish artist living in the Tweed area, has many interests besides her painting and music. Like her husband and son who run a catering service, she enjoys cooking, and likes to have fresh baking to serve with afternoon tea. This recipe for popovers is one that she "improved" from the original, by discovering that beating the muffin pan first makes all the difference between a mediocre popover and an unforgettable one.

Popovers

2 cups milk
4 eggs
2 cups flour
salt

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees

Stir the eggs and milk together, and add the flour and salt and stir again. Do not beat the eggs or mix the batter too much or you'll get muffins instead of popovers.

Put your well-greased muffin pan in the oven, until it is very hot and the grease is bubbling in the cups. Fill each cup close to the top, so that the popovers turn out nice and high.

Quickly put the pan in the oven, and bake the popovers for about half an hour. Then turn off the oven, and leave the popovers in the oven until cool.

Serve immediately; with jam they're especially good.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with other readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McLean

McLean — Crawford

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of the marriage of Helen Jean Crawford and Richard John McLean on June 1.

Helen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Crawford, was given by her father in marriage. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McLean.

The bride wore an organza gown with long puff, wide puffed sleeves. The detached chapel train was edged with scalloped swiss lace. The fullet style headpiece was equipped with an elbow length veil. Her attire was complimented by a bouquet consisting of white daisies, baby pink roses, carnations, ivy and baby's breath.

Matron of honor, Darlene Crawford wore a blue floral, sateen floor length gown with short puff sleeves. She carried a wicker basket of yellow daisies and wore a white picture hat.

The brides attendants, Elizabeth McLean and Ann McLean, wore fashions identical to the matron's except in mauve.

Jennifer Lee Crawford, flower girl, matched the matron's.

Richard, had brother Don McLean as his best man. Ushers were Norman Crawford, bride's brother and David McLean, grooms brother.

The reception was held at Club Caiaro after which the wedding couple left for White Face Mountain, New York. They now reside at 58½ North Park Gardens, Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. JACK HARRISON

Golden Anniversary

A surprise party held June 22 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rushnell of RR 5, Belleville marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harrison.

Residents of Gravesend, England, the Harrisons' trip to Canada was an anniversary gift from their two sons Eric and John Harrison.

Mrs. Harrison is the former Ann Bishop, sister of the late George Bishop who was a Belleville resident.

The party for the celebrating couple was hosted by their nephew and his wife, Don and Thelma Bishop.

Present at the occasion were family and friends. The Harrisons have seven grandchildren to visit in Canada.

On June 28, the date of their wedding 50 years ago in Northleet, England, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison received messages of congratulations from several Canadian government officials, and from friends and relatives in England.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. McCulloch Massassaga Road, RR 7 Belleville wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Martha Marion Ethel to Terance Arthur Danks of Whitehorse Yukon Territories. Marriage to take place Saturday July 13.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Miller are pleased to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Janice Anne, to James Charles Spinks, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Spinks. The marriage will take place August 2 at St. Columba Presbyterian Church, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sills

Sills — Finkle

Carolyn Joy Finkle and William Bruce Sills exchanged wedding vows June 8 at Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Finkle, Foxboro; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Donald Sills, Roslin.

Rev. A. Parsons officiated.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a chiffon gown with appliqued lace which featured a chapel length train. She carried pink sweetheart roses, carnations and Baby's breath. A juliet cap caught her illusion veil.

Karen Oddie, matron of honor, wore an ice pink gown with floral pattern and wore matching flowers in her hair. She carried bafton mums, carnations and purple staus with white streamers.

Other attendants. Cathy Dier and Linda Richardson, cousins of the bride, were identically attired.

Roscoe Morgan was groomsman at the wedding and he was assisted by Keith Sills and Grant Sills, brothers of the groom.

After a wedding reception at the church halls, the couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls.

They will reside in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carisse

Carisse — Kuklis

A double-ring ceremony June 8 joined in marriage Karin Anne Shawna Kuklis and Anthony Kuklis of Trenton and Peter Graham Carisse, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Carisse of Ottawa.

Rev. D.J. Ryan performed the ceremony in St. Peter's Church in Trenton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk organza, simple-styled with silk organza blossoms outlining the neckline and hem which fell to a chapel-length train. The triple-layered illusion veil was held a half a crown of silk blossoms which matched the neckline edging on the gown. The bride carried a bouquet of pale green and yellow cymbidium orchids, baby's breath, and traditional sprigs of rosemary and myrtle.

Mrs. Joseph Bunting of Trenton was matron of honor in pink gradiola. The gown featured short puffed sleeves, a wedding ring collar edged with eyelet, and an eyelet apron. She wore a braided picture hat with a cluster of daisies pinned to it, and carried a nosegay of daisies, pink roses and baby's breath.

Margaret Lawson and Marie Clairmont of London were bridesmaids, dressed identically to the matron of honor.

The flower girl, Donna Marie Deme of Frankford, wore a gown like the other attendants and carried a basket of daisies, pink carnations and baby's breath.

The groom's best man was Richard Davies of Mississauga. The ushers were Leonard Koerner of Trenton and Martin Kuklis, the bride's brother.

After a dinner and dance at the Batawa Community Centre, the bride and groom were preceded by piper Jim Thompson as they left on their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Carisse now live in Ottawa.

JANE ELIZABETH MCCOY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.K. McCoy of Belleville graduated from St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston on Friday June 28, 1974. Jane is a former graduate of Nicholson Catholic College and has accepted a position at the Sarnor Hospital in St. Catharines.

CYNTHIA LOUISE SPENCER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Spencer, Belleville graduated from Kingston General Hospital School of Nursing on June 28. She will be taking a nursing position in Victoria, B.C. Cindy is a former graduate of Centennial Secondary School.

BONNIE LEE ROWE daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rowe of Plainfield, Ont. recently graduated from the Edith Cavell School of Nursing Belleville. Bonnie has accepted a position at the Belleville General Hospital and is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School.

New Canadian Children's Magazine Aims to Fill Educational Gap

EDMONTON (CP) — An Edmonton woman has decided to take matters into her own hands and fill a gap that she says has existed long enough.

"Like everyone else, I complained for a long time about the lack of Canadian material for children," said Evelyn Samuel, a teacher at L. Y. Cairns vocational school.

"Finally I realized that somebody had to do something, and why shouldn't it be me?"

The "something" is a Canadian magazine for Canadian children.

"Some of my friends think I am mad because I have no experience with running a publishing unit but I'm not saying I have wanted to do for a long time.

"I want my children to know about Canada. My Grade 3 child knows all about Japan but not about Canada because the curriculum is not set up that way.

"Most children's magazines are American and they expose our children to American history and the American way of life. So where can our children find out about their own country?"

Mrs. Samuel said she wants to produce a "lively, interesting and informative magazine for children showing the diversity of life in Canada."

Her ideas range from well-researched stories on flora and fauna, geography, historical incidental and profiles on Canadian heroes, to fiction, poetry, learning games for crossword puzzles and Canada foods.

"There really is a lot of material all over the place—in minds, on tapes and in archives. It's just not available to everyone."

Mrs. Samuel said she hopes children also will contribute to the magazine.

"I think it would be good for them to get out into their town and interview people and learn about the goodness of where they live and who they are."

She has been working on the magazine since Feb. 18 and manuscripts and illustrations have been rolling in. "Many people have offered to help with the magazine and I hope they will. We will get out at least one issue in September.

"I have received quite a bit of fiction and poetry. What I really need now are more non-fiction stories."

However, the project is not without problems.

"The whole thing is still really germinal," she said. "We don't have any money and all the people helping me are doing it for free."

Mrs. Samuel hopes to get a grant or loan to publish at least the first issue. Initially, the magazine will be a quarterly—"if it makes it past the first issue."

She has decided I don't want to be sponsored by a religious group, a multination because I don't want someone saying this is the way the magazine will be because they control the purse strings."

Once the magazine is published, there is the problem of distribution.

"I am sure most of the major magazine distributing companies will refuse to distribute it for us until it proves itself," she said.

The Big Tops For Summer !

HATSHEPSUT
By Evelyn Wells

Until recently only a few professional historians knew of the existence of Queen Hatshepsut of Egypt although her reign was the brightest in Egyptian history. She reigned over the united kingdoms of Upper and Lower Egypt 3500 years ago.

From her earliest days she was treated by her father as more a boy than a girl daughter. He allowed her to wear boy's clothing and encouraged her to take part in the sports and hunting pastimes of the court. When Hatshepsut's two younger brothers and an older brother died, her father gave her the title of Crown Prince, an unheard-of innovation.

According to the author the records are very confusing. In some she is referred to as "she" and in others as "he" but always described as being very beautiful.

The history of Egypt is told in her temples and tombs where the events in the life of each ruler and his or her minor dignitaries were faithfully recorded. The Egyptians believed that life continued after death in much the same form as it did in life; therefore every provision was made for the comfort and well-being of the departed. Tombs have been found to contain everything from jewellery to food and furniture.

While still a robust teenager Hatshepsut ordered her burial site in the Valley of the Kings beside her father. A town of artisans and labourers grew up nearby several generations spent their lives building, carving, and inscribing the history of the Eighteenth Dynasty.

Hatshepsut's coronation as Queen of Egypt on the death of her mother is recorded on a sphinx at Karnak across the Nile from the Valley of the Kings. When her first official act she was the first woman to rule Egypt alone but for the rest of her life had to compete against male relatives who tried to wrest the throne from her.

When Hatshepsut finally decided to marry, she chose according to tradition her half-brother who appeared to have been a lesser character than she.

Based on painstaking research, the author gives a vivid picture of this unique woman, her loves, hates, ambitions and intrigue. She gave seventeen years of peace and prosperity to her people and has been called by our noted Egyptologist, "the first great woman in history."

This book is available in the Canby Library.

Evelyn Samuel of Edmonton reads over a dummy copy for a magazine for Canadian children which she hopes to start publishing soon. Mrs. Samuel decided to start the magazine after noticing a lack of Canadian material for children.

Wedding Gifts Change With New Lifestyles

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of today's brides may wear blue jeans and carry field flowers. Most brides, however, will wind down the aisle in yards of silk and lace, with fresh carnations to rule when a girl marries.

Whatever the ceremony, the contemporary bride is a different woman from her mother.

Bridal registries and gift-giving services are noting trends that reflect these differences.

Wedding gifts, they report, are compact, mobile and easy to care for. Small electrical appliances, audio-visual equipment and items are high on the list of preferences. Silver seems to be the one link to tradition.

A recent Modern Bride magazine report said 31 per cent of today's brides have completed college. The survey showed that 76 per cent are employed and their age is 20.8 years. These women, it said, better educated, career-oriented, more mature women whose lifestyle requires more time away from home.

The gift for the bride must also fit into a shrinking environment. E. B. Weiss, advertising Age social survey expert, reported that 80 per cent of young adults will be living in apartments by 1980. With fewer rooms, living space must be flexible, converting from dining to eating to entertaining and study with the push of a button.

And not only is the newlywed most growing smaller, it also is becoming more often. Young marrieds move for business, the second home and pleasure. Their second home may be in a foreign country. Their possessions must be mobile.

How to choose a bridal gift for this educated, employed new Mrs. with a yen to travel?

Tish Baldrige, consultant to GiftAmerica, said:

"You should do a little research on how the future bride intends to live. Will she do any formal entertaining or is it going to be all her feet back-to-nature?

Secondly, if you select a wonderfully practical gift, like an electric blender or clock-radio, remember to enclose a handwritten note saying the gift comes with your love and the strength."

Cheating Organized

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Cheating on examination to become registered nurses is organized, a state of the United States, a California official says.

Michael Bagley, executive secretary of the California State Board of Vocational Nurse and Nurse Registration, said a VD-like ring is being made to stamp out the cheating, "but it has gone to the point where as far as security is concerned, we seem to be going through a ruthless exercise."

Bagley said in an interview, that New York officials estimate 30 per cent of the repeaters who finally pass the test have done so by cheating.

The cheating involves the uniform examination given by all states at vocational times throughout the year, Bagley said.

BOSTON (AP) — Civitan International has become the first major service organization to lift its men-only rule, following a stormy session at the group's annual meeting here Wednesday.

The move to admit women to the 76-year-old club came on a 276 to 205 vote.

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — Deborah Dorthbach, the pregnant American nurse who raped 26 days as a captive of Ethiopian guerrillas, has returned to her parents' home here.

Mrs. Dorthbach, 31, said she was glad "good night's sleep" following her arrival Tuesday in New York, and added that she and her missionary husband planned to return to Ethiopia next summer after the translation seminary school.

"I feel that it was to tell our story to glorify God, to tell how God save me, not my own strength."

Ann Landers

Mindless Buying Worries Wife

Dear Ann Landers: My husband spends money like it was going out of style. He buys anything he wants, no matter what the cost. If it's another gun for $250, fine and dandy. A third camera for $150 is OK too. He thinks nothing of paying $40 for a pair of shoes. I won't tell you what his suits cost. You'd get sick.

His closets are jammed, yet he keeps buying, buying. This man makes $20,000 a year, and he's no kid. He's 53 years old.

When I ask him why he continues this mindless buying, he says, "Because I never had anything when I was a kid and now I can have whatever I want.

We are always broke and the bills are stacked all over the place.

The doctor says that's why I have week-long headaches and high blood pressure. Do you think I can change him or should I just give up? We've been married five years. Unsold In Illinois

Dear Busted: You say he's a mindless buying, buying. Well, I have news for you. He IS a kid. Forget about changing him. No way.

Now that you have an opinion from your doctor, I suggest you get one from your lawyer. Your sister contains too many unanswered questions, such as—do you work? Do you have money from a previous marriage? Do you get an allowance? This can tell you: no man is worth week-long headaches and high blood pressure.

Dear Ann Landers: With all your readers can't you find some help for us.

Our 16-year-old son is a problem. He refuses to attend school. He rejects all efforts to get him to a counselor. He says, "Every thing is just fine."

Outside the home he is bright, outgoing, charming and does right attractive. The minute he walks through the door he's a different person—sullen, disrespectful, unco-operative, self-ish, inconsiderate, hateful and mean.

We have evidence that he is breaking the law. I won't go into detail but what he is doing could have serious repercussions. His considers the law no threat. Such attitudes stupid and refuses to listen when we tell him he could get into serious trouble.

This boy is making our lives a living hell. There is no peace of mind from day to day. He is laughs when we warn him to keep within the law. He says we are squares and that he can handle his own life. We need help and we need it now. Please, Ann, guide us.—Desperate Parents

Dear Parents: It's only a guess, but I suspect your son is smoking pot. This might sound loony to you, but I suggest that you and your husband go for counselling and learn how to handle your anxieties about the boy. It may be that your overreacting may be compelling him to defy you. Ask your family doctor to recommend a counsellor, or the county or state mental health society can help you.

Dear Ann Landers: I read somewhere that a tattoo can be removed by rubbing salt on it, but it should be done under a doctor's supervision.

I had some tattoo work done on my arms when I was young and foolish and now I want to get rid of it.

Please tell me if common table salt is used and what kind a doctor should do it.—Dumb Past

Dear D.P.: A tattoo can be removed by applying table salt to that area (it should be done by a dermatologist), but the more modern approach, dermabrasion—a fast-rotating sand-covered wheel—produces neater results.

Successful Living

Concerned Wife Requires Advice

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Every few weeks my husband seems to like an argument and if he don't see eye to eye with him he will tear my family apart for no reason, even my mother. . . .

At one time, years ago, I tried to get even with him by finding fault with his family but realize how silly that was.

He has to handle all the business, even the small bills. I really feel quite useless at times. When I took in a boarder, which gives me company and it is easier to cook for more, he worried about the food I was doing and the money.

Am I doing or not doing what I should? — Concerned

Dear Concerned: Hasn't he found out yet that marriage is a partnership?

Arguing years often sharpen undesirable traits. And people who have worked at becoming tolerant and loving, soften. But determining bodies do take their toll; and some folk rebel against their own limitations.

It surely does no good to retaliate. Far better to honor him out of it in saying,

"We both know Mother has a temper but you love her as much as I do in spite of them!" Or, "Betty does come on a bit strong at times, but we've had many good ti, us over the years. Remember the time she helped us out . . ."

You do need to know as much about family affairs as your husband; otherwise one of these days you may be left in an awful fix. But most important is that you keep communications open now; make a bid for an accepting, helping partner.

Hamel Won't Announce Number of Spoiled Ballots

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, said Sunday the Chief Electoral Officer has turned down his request that the number of spoiled ballots be announced along with candidates' vote tallies and other election results tonight.

Mr. Levesque sent a telegram to Jean-Marc Hamel last week, asking for an easing that election officials release figures for spoiled ballots the night of the election.

Mr. Levesque said Mr. Hamel replied in a telegram he would not change instructions already issued to local returning officers.

Mr. Levesque said the telegram stated "as far as results issued to the media on election night go, they concern only the results obtained by the various candidates."

Mr. Levesque sa'd the decision is "sad, from a democratic point of view.

"We will do what is possible to calculate the trends on election night, and we hope the media will do the same," he said.

The Parti Quebecois has called on its supporters to spoil ballots in the election.

Mr. Levesque said it is only after several months that such ballots are usually counted

Choir from Caledonia Competes at Eisteddfod

TORONTO (CP) — The Chorsiaires, a 22 member choir from Caledonia, Ont., 17 miles southwest of Hamilton, were Canada's unofficial representative to the 28th annual International Music Eisteddfod at Llangollen, Wales, which ended Saturday.

The choir, under direction of George Shippey, was the only Canadian entry in the five-day festival, which attracts about 200 choral groups annually from each ensemble to perform three petition.

20 to 30 countries to compete in selections. Two are chosen, by traditional and ethnic folk arts.

Results of the competitions likely will be announced this week.

Officials say that since the Eisteddfod was first presented on an international basis in 1947 more than 5,000 choirs and folk dance groups from more than 50 countries have participated.

The choral competition allows each ensemble to perform three selected in the country — gospel song, "He Is There for the individual group.

The Chorsiaires, whose basically spiritual sound has been recorded twice with a third album scheduled for September, will be among the contestants.

Belleville League 99 Takes B Title

Kingston Club Golden Bat Champion

By MIKE BRADSHAW

With 20 teams from across the province in a tournament, the chances of an area club winning a championship are slim.

But, with the Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament there was not just one area team with a championship. There were two.

Kingston Lions captured the Grand Championship of the weekend tourney and won the 'A' Championship as well.

The Lions took the Golden Bat by defeating Belleville League 99 in the grand championship game.

The 'B' crown won the 'B' Championship giving birth to the first Golden Bat Championship between two area teams.

"It's a great feeling," said Kingston coach, Don Senior. "This is a breathless, competitive tournament and the winner has to be good to be number one."

"We had some of the toughest competition in the three days," he said, "and it wasn't easy beating any of them."

Friday night, Kingston started their quest for the title to the Golden Bat by pumping Thurlow Ridge Thunder downed Legion 34 6-1 and North York 3-3, Sunday, they won the 'A' Championship upending Brampton 6-3 before beating Belleville 5-4 in the Grand Championship game.

The Belleville club had a tough row to hoe all weekend. After losing their first game Friday night to Legion 31 of Toronto 11-3, the locals picked up their socks and shut out Thurlow Saturday 7-0 and then edged Cobourg 4-3 the same afternoon. Sunday, Belleville scored six times in the final three innings to defeat High Park, Toronto, 6-5 and win the 'B' Championship.

Unfortunately for Belleville, they fell into somewhat of a slump in the early going of the Golden Bat Game.

"We made a few mistakes," said Legion coach, Bob Bezoy, "I wouldn't mind being able to take those first couple of innings back. Maybe just the first inning, and wipe them off the scoreboard."

"I can't say anything though, except that I'm very proud of how the boys played this weekend and the showing they made," he said.

The 1974 Belleville Bantam team is only the second local squad in the six-year history of the tournament to win a championship. But, a local bantam team has never won an 'A' or a Grand Championship.

Kingston scored three runs in the first inning against the Legion and added their first run in the second inning. It wasn't all pitching as both scored the champs runs it was simply by chance Bezoy's club were 6-run in the first two innings.

The Champs got two more in the third inning on a walk and a home run from Rossy Skeggs.

Belleville blanked Kingston over the remaining five innings, but only managed to score four runs, two in the second and two more in the fifth.

Skeggs was the hero of the game as he collected four RBI's, scored a run himself and came on in relief in the fifth inning to stave off the Belleville rally.

Skeggs took over pitching duties from Kevin Scott as the pair combined for eight strikeouts and three walks while giving up five hits enroute to the win.

Peter Hall and Gary Stapley were the losing pitchers for the locals, with Shiela Smith, Judy Pulis, and Penny Hughes each adding one.

In their second match of the tourney, the Yardmen came up against the Parma-entertain of the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League, taking it 13 with the help of league partners.

Sandra Claus fired the victory, fanning five and walking six. She was credited for six hits. Sandra Fleming was touched for 17 hits in taking the loss, striking out two and walking three.

For BYDF, it was Claus with three doubles, Judy Pulis with two singles, and Lynn Donna Preston three singles leading the way.

Sue Hughes, Joan Baby, and Roseanne Chapman each had a double for the Parmaettes, with other safeties going to Centennial Park, and Bonnie Baley, Brenda Hayes, and Bev Carriere.

The Yardmen were eliminated from any further play with a 5-2 loss to the host Richmond Hill team in their Saturday game. Sue Morton was back on the rubber, striking out two and walking two. She was touched for seven hits, only one extra base.

Elaine Bay was the winning hurler, firing an eight hitter, fanning nine and walking five.

Morton had a triple and single to pace BYBF, with Carol McFarlane adding a double and single. Mary Reid had a double, with one hit each going to Sheila Smith, Judy Pulis, and Donna Lacas.

Tuesday night, the Yardmen travel to Cobourg to meet Cobourg Juveniles in an exhibition contest. Game time is 8 p.m. at Cobourg's Donegan Park.

Kinsmen Squirts Split

The Belleville Kinsmen, in a pair of warmup games for their upcoming tournament this weekend, split a pair of exhibition encounters with Napanee Monday, in games played Thursday and Sunday.

In the Thursday match, Napanee Ryan's Color and Sound knocked the home club a 28 margin, in an exciting game played at King Edward Park.

Judy Coddan on the Napanee rubber allowed only two Belleville hits, while striking 18 batters and walking none.

Sean Mcdonald absorbed the loss, firing a five-hitter.

Gary Sirman and Scott Thompson had two singles each for the winners, with Kevin Bartlett adding the fifth.

Bradley Gray and Allan Thompson were the only Belleville batters to touch Coddan, both connecting for singles.

Sunday, in the return game in Napanee, the home team batted Belleville 11-4, but didn't came out on the short end of a 5-4 score.

Thompson fired the win for Belleville, striking out five batters. Gilchrist took on the Napanee rubber once again, fanning 10 in the six-hit loss.

Terry Miller was the big gun for the locals with three hits, with a home run and single while Greg Denard and Mona-ghan each managed a safety.

Sirman had a double and two singles for the losers, with Greg Howitt adding a pair of base hits.

Game 1 To Rollins

Rollins Construction edged Devoin Motors 5-3 in their first game of a three game set to determine OASA classifications for the two teams, for the upcoming season, in a game played at the Alemite Saturday night.

Ted Walke got credit for the win for the Constructionmen, with relief help from Jim Cain. Don Holloway took the loss for Devoin.

BYBF Bows Out To Richmond Hill

The Belleville Yardmen Ladies Softball team made it to the Semi-final round of the Richmond Hill Ladies Softball Tournament on the weekend, winnings one of three games they played.

In the first contest, Lakefield took a 3-1 decision from the Yardmen to drop them to the B side of the bonspiel. See Morton was on the mound for the contest, allowing seven hits. She struck out six and walked four.

Karen Cleeghorn picked up the win for Lakefield, striking out one, walking one, and giving up nine hits.

Donna Preston, Donna Lacas, and Morton each had two hits for the locals, with Shiela Smith, Judy Pulis, and Penny Hughes each adding one.

Sandra Claus fired the victory, fanning five and walking six. She was credited for six hits. Sandra Fleming was touched for 17 hits in taking the loss, striking out two and walking three.

Crowded At the Top In SHBL

Lalla doubled the score on Reid, 6-2, in a Sunday game in the South Hastings Baseball League, to move back into a first place tie with Melrose and Plane's, in the six team loop.

The win gives Lalla 19 points in the standings, and is in 13 games, while Melrose and Plane's have the same record in 12 games.

It was the first game pitched in over two seasons for the winning hurler, Bob Lalla, who played a solid five hitter. He struck out six batters, walking five.

Larry Coffey was nicked for seven hits in defeat, striking out two and issuing one base on balls. He hit two batters.

Wayne Harrison and Dale Tumeon each had a double and single to pace the winners. Scott added a triple to his own cause, Kirk Short and Reg Abrams rounded out the attack with singles.

For the losing Reid squad, in last place in the league with only two wins in 13 tries, it was Carol Milligan with a home run and single. Peter Walsh, Pete Enright, and Gerald Brennan each had a base hit.

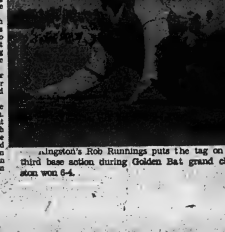
Branch 110 Zone F 2 Champion

TRENTON — For the second straight year, Trenton Branch 110 has captured the Zone F2 Royal Canadian Legion provincial softball title.

Playing here Saturday at Centennial Park, the Branch 110 team walked until the late innings to take a 9-5 decision from Cobourg's representative.

Trailing 5-3 after four and one-half innings, Trenton rallied for a run in the bottom of the fifth to square things. Pete Hassenaar led Dicrescenzo's two-run homer in the sixth with a double and a four-run ninth inning rally which saw the locals collect a home side.

Terry Hasler picked up the win, taking over from starter Kevin Patrick. Between them, the pitchers allowed only four base hits. They fanned six and walked seven.



Gord Sharpe took the loss. Touched for six hits, he struck out three and walked only one.

Patrick had three singles, one a perfectly executed bunt on a squeeze play with Dave Doug Fenster score the tying run in the fifth to lead the Trenton hitters.

Catcher Curtis Smith checked in with two singles and Dave Pavette, Dicrescenzo and Hassenaar had his timely, circuit blast while Rick Prudhome and Gord Howard each supplied one single.

Pete Lorenz had a triple for the losers with singles for Shawn Turland, Sharpe and Steve Carleton.

Trenton qualified for the District playoffs with the winner of the series will be played at Trenton this weekend. Branch 110 will also host the provincial playoffs, scheduled for August, since the Trenton representatives made a clean sweep of all the hosters in 1973.

Kingston's Rob Runnings puts the tag on Belleville's Ken Revoy in third base action during Golden Bat grand championship game. Kingston won 6-4.

Penalty Shots Decide It

Olympics Edged 7-6

The Belleville Olympics were outscored 3-1 in penalty shots after 135 minutes of regular play in their game with Peterborough Vienan in an Ontario Cup game Sunday and lost the match, 7-6.

The game had been tied 3-3 after the regular 90 minute s of play, with another 45 minutes of scoreless action added on. The teams then went into the tie-breaking shots, under the International Soccer Federation (FIFA) rule. Each team took seven shots.

Vimar's Al Lupton opened the scoring in the game with only two minutes elapsed, scoring from a scramble after taking a pass from Alex Greaves.

Bobby Watson knotted the score in the 35th minute, heading in a cross from Ernie Brown.

In the 65th minute, Lupton tallied his second of the game, firing in a rebound off the post after Neil Aldworth had missed the mark.

A last minute tally by Belleville's Nick DeGrosse forced the contest to the extra time. Despite the ninth round of the sloppy Peterborough defense to slip the ball past Vimar goaltender Nick Cervaggio.

In the penalty shots, the Olympics connected on the first two. Peter Hillier and Charlie Westerveld counted goals for the locals. John Campbell and Aldworth failed their marks for Vimar. Zolten Vigh in the Belleville net made an outstanding stop on Aldworth.

Alex Graham counted his second goal of the game, after Olympics' Dave Fundic had missed his chance.

Sandy Dashert and Lupton then exchanged markers. Vigh then needed his net to take a shot, firing the ball high, with Vimar's John Hertings tripp the score at five each.

In the sixth round of the free shots, Tom Maxwell of Vimar and Jerry Brewer of Vimar traded goals.

Cervaggio then came out of his goal to score the

WORLD MARK BEATEN

WEST BERLIN (AP) — Anne Kevin Schutz, a 19-year-old East German, set a world swimming record of two and-a-half seconds for the women's 200-metre breaststroke Saturday. Miss Schutz broke the mark of 3:28.3 set by Catie Ball of the United States in 1968.

Dave Blakely Stops Keene

After losing to Whitby 8-3 Thursday, Thurlow's Plaza's Concrete Peewees bounced back to thump Keene 12-0 Saturday in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association action.

Dave Blakely fanned 15 Keene batters enroute to his no-hit shutout.

Big hitters for Thurlow were Dave, Orch with a triple, Blakely with a triple and a double and Doug Yeske with a triple, double and a single.

Moore and Ruttan Lead

By CECIL S. PAUL

Howard Moore of Campbellcroft and Bob Ruttan of Belleville took over top spot in the point standing in their individual classes Saturday afternoon at Brighton Speedway's big one-liner mile dirt oval.

The six cylinder stock class has been a runaway for Greg Anderson of Trenton as he took over the lead last week with seven wins to his credit. Bob Ruttan of Belleville was running in second but on the week end it was a different story.

Anderson ran into problems and failed to finish in the money. Moore picked up a win in his qualifier and came back in the feature to finish in the stock Feature to give him a total of 200 for the night enough to put him 25 points in front of Anderson in the solid grip on first place.

Wayne Foster of Newcastle has been on a tear and he just had to be took a big jump in the point standings as he doubled six class and earned 100 points to move into third in the current season. Wayne had a win in his qualifier and was running in third place in the feature when a seven laps still to go. Ross O'Hara of Trenton had run second in his qualifier and was looking for a win in the Feature with Ron Herrington right behind him at the half way mark.

As the cars came out of number four turn, O'Hara came across the line first in the front of Herrington, who was making a bid down the inside. Both cars went into the infield while Foster, always in control, swept by on the inside light to the wall and took over the lead.

Bob Herrington and Doug Davis needed big wins to get in touch with Foster but it was the other way around as Foster now has 415 points. 75 in front of second place Herrington and Davis dropped out of sight place at Bob Gibson of Oshawa, a rookie driver two years ago, earned two seconds to give him 60 points and put him ahead of Davis by 15 points.

The big battle is not just for second for the Ken's Share of the Carling's Red Cap Point Awards which is a total of $1500.00 this season with the top drivers getting a share.

In the second race of the night, it was a real thriller as Howard Kingsley and Ron Bowers, both of Oshawa, exchanged the lead between the last lap but tangled with a Belleville newcomer to stock car racing. They had a bit of a mechanical problem coming out of number three turn. It is hard to say, as they had lost it. For Ross Buchanan black-flagged both of them and they had to go to the pits. Kingsley came back in the feature to finish in the second checkered flag of the year.

Ruttan has had a slight's racing. 45 points down on Howard Moore of Campbellcroft. Danny finished fifth in his qualifier and took a near last ride in the feature with Ron Herrington right behind him at the half way mark.

Former Mate Chills Expos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You really have to hand it to Mike Marshall, at least that's just what Walt Alston has been doing all year.

The dean of major league relief pitchers again headed the ball in the dean of major league relief pitchers again Sunday, and Marshall came through with his usual consistency.

Appearing in his 29th and 57th games this season, Marshall recorded his 13th and 19th saves as Los Angeles Dodgers took a doubleheader from Montreal Expos—4-1 an 5-3.

Marshall recently set a record by appearing in 13 straight games.

"That the man is trying to get a bit off me and the other club is trying to beat me is the only incentive I need to do my best," Marshall said.

He dispatched his former team-mates Sunday with cool professionalism. Marshall was traded from the Expos to the Dodgers last winter for centre fielder Willie Davis.

"I didn't feel any little extra desire to beat them," Marshall said. "To me they are just another ballclub . . . that's it."

In the other National League games, Cincinnati Reds whipped Atlanta Braves 4-3, Philadelphia Phillies stopped San Diego Padres 8-3, New York Mets defeated San Francisco Giants 6-0, Pittsburgh Pirates turned back Houston Astros 6-4 in 10 innings, Chicago Cubs clouted Reds took a doubleheader from St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1, and 11-2.

Montreal hammered the Dodgers 6-1 on Saturday while Philadelphia topped San Diego 6-5, Houston defeated Pittsburgh 1-0, Atlanta edged Chicago 3-2 in 10 innings, San Francisco checked New York 5-2, and St. Louis beat Cincinnati 7-3.

Marshall came into a no-out, bases-loaded situation in the seventh inning of the nightcap and allowed just one run to score. Marshall later gave up a two-run homer to Davis in the eighth inning before nailing down the second game.

Earlier, Marshall came in the eighth inning of the opener to wrap up Tommy John's 13th victory of the baseball season.

In the second game, the Dodgers took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on run-scoring hits by Bill Buckner and Ron Cey. Cey's single drove in a Dodger run in the third, and Los Angeles made it 4-0, the eventual winning run, on Dave Lopes' RBI bouncer in the sixth.

Lopes' ground ball triggered a brief free-for-all when Dodger runner Rick Auerbach collided with Montreal shortstop Tim Foli at second base. Both benches emptied and there were a few pushes and shoves, but no one was ejected.

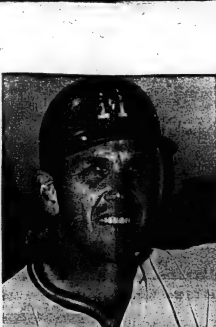
Doug Rau, 7-5, was the winner for the Dodgers.

Rick Monday blasted a two-run homer in the seventh inning to power Chicago over Atlanta despite Hank Aaron's 755th career homer.

Aaron's homer, his 13th of the season and 50th off Chicago pitching in Wrigley Field, came in his 12th at-bat and 3,041st game in the fourth inning.

Philadelphia scored nine runs in the first four innings and Jim Lonborg coasted to his 11th victory of the season with an easy decision over San Diego.

Tom Seaver allowed two hits in five innings before aggravating a lingering injury and Bob Apodaca completed New York's seventh victory over San Francisco.



It was the third consecutive triumph for Seaver and evened his record at 8-4. He walked five and struck out one before the strained sciatic nerve in his left hip forced him out of the game.

San Francisco starter Ron Bryant, a 24-game winner a year ago, failed to last the first inning when the Mets scored all their runs. He suffered his seventh defeat against eight and record fell to 2-11.

Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer in the 10th inning started Houston-Pittsburgh. Richie Zisk knocked in three runs with a pair of home runs as the Pirates built a 4-0 lead after five innings but the Astros tied it in the eighth and won in the seventh and two in the ninth.

Cesar Geronimo drove in two runs with a double and tie-breaking homer to lead Cincinnati over St. Louis in the first game of their doubleheader. Jack Clusserp hit the first grand-slam home run of his career and Don Gullett pitched his second straight complete game.

Tommy Helms' second-game victory.

Don Money – On the Ball

Flawless Effort For 78 Games

Money of Milwaukee Brewers handled five chances without an error in Sunday's American League baseball doubleheader against Minnesota Twins. Richie Zisk knocked in three runs with a pair of home runs as the Pirates built a 4-0 lead after five innings but the Astros tied it with two runs in the seventh and two in the ninth.

Cesar Geronimo drove in two runs with a double and tie-breaking homer to lead Cincinnati over St. Louis in the first game of their doubleheader. Jack Clusserp hit the first grand-slam home run of his career and Don Gullett pitched his second straight complete game.

Tommy Helms' second-game victory.

Money has not made an error in 78 games. Rico Petrocelli of Boston Red Sox held the old mark of 77 from June 8 through August 30, 1972.

The major-league record for consecutive errorless games by a third baseman spanning more than one season is 97 by Jim Ray Hart of San Francisco Giants from July 29, 1965, through April 29, 1968.

Trip to Minors Pays Dividends

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Being sent to the minors was a good thing for Bart Johnson, but his return to major league baseball might be even better for Chicago White Sox.

"I was disappointed, but it was probably the best thing that happened to me because I wouldn't have been used much and you can't develop consistency that way," Johnson said Sunday of his banishment to the minors after spending two full American League seasons and parts of three others with the White Sox.

"He could be the man we need to go all the way," manager Chuck Tanner said after Johnson, a 6-foot-5 right-hander who was recalled Friday, threw a two-hitter and beat Detroit Tigers 3-1.

Elsewhere Sunday, Cleveland Indians trimmed California Angels 6-2, Boston Red Sox snapped a five-game losing streak by defeating Kansas City 5-3 after the Royals took the doubleheader opener 4-3 in 10 innings, Baltimore Orioles beat Oakland A's 4-1, Milwaukee Brewers downed Minnesota Twins 7-5 but dropped the nightcap 5-3 in 11 innings, and Texas Rangers edged New York Yankees 2-1.

In Saturday's games, Baltimore blanked the World Series champion A's 3-0, Milwaukee downed Minnesota 3-0, Kansas City topped Boston 5-3, Chicago edged Detroit 9-8, New York whipped Texas 8-3 and Cleveland got by California 1-0.

Johnson allowed a home run to Norm Cash in the second inning, struck out nine and received relief strikes in the ninth from Mickey Stanley singled in the ninth.

"I wasn't surprised," said Johnson. "I've been throwing like that for a month."

The surprising part is that Johnson is pitching at all after

West Germany Dons the Crown

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — It took Helmut Schoen, coach of the West Germany team, and Franz Beckenbauer to arrived at the top of the international soccer world.

His team beat the Netherlands 2-1 Sunday to gain their first World Cup championship over 20 years.

Schoen, who led his team to the round-robin spot in England in 1966 and third place in Mexico in 1970, and Beckenbauer, a defrog ruling head his advantages.

He said the Dutch "regarded themselves as favorites even before the final was played."

"They always said that a soccer game lasts 90 minutes and that even the strongest team of the preliminary rounds will have to prove they are the best during those 90 minutes."

What Schoen called "fighting spirit and the will to win" overcame what had been called the soccer wave of the future as played by the Netherlands.

That wave looked overpowering in the first minute when Johan Cruyff, the Dutch superstar, Neeskens send his Dutch team into the lead on a penalty kick.

Then, 24 minutes later, Paul Breitner tied the score, also on a kick.

The West Germans won when Gerd Mueller took a pass from Rainer Bonhof and turned the ball home on a right-footed kick from 16 yards out.

"During half an hour in the first half, the Germans profited from a weak phase in the Dutch play, and at halftime I felt 2-1 was a just result," said Schoen.

Coach Sepp Maier and Bertie Vogts shadowed Dutch superstar Johnan Cruyff, treated time and again by the Dutch in the second half.

Cruyff, frustrated in his own attempts to score, twice set up Johnnie Rep in the closing minutes. Both times Rep's shot flashed wide of the goal.

Maier made two big saves. The first came with about 20 minutes remaining when the German goalie blocked a Neeskens shot, and a minute later he pulled down a fierce 25-yard drive by Theo de Jong.

Despite his victory, Schoen said the final game was disappointing and blamed the play on the stress of the tournament. Each team had played six games which drained much of their stamina.

"That is why I am very sleepy. I had about the plans to have 20 or more teams participate in the next World Cup Tournament," Schoen said. "We must realize that so many games in such a short time might de-mand too much physically even from professional soccer players."

For the next World Cup in Argentina in 1978, the Dutch will have difficulty getting their highly-rated team back together again.

Two of the team are in their 30s and five more will be well past that age by 1978.

Moreover, Hollands' stars are emigrating one by one in imitation of Cruyff who plays for Barcelona where he is reputed to have an income of $1,000 a day. Neeskens and Wim Suurbier are reported ready to leave for Spain.

Sunday's game was played amid severe security measures—there were 2,000 security police in Olympic Stadium.

Among the famous personages watching the final were U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, Prussian Walter Scheel and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany. Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands and Prince Rainer and Princess Grace of Monaco.

Poland took third place in the tournament with a 1-0 victory Saturday over Brazil, the defending champion.

Duplicates Fiance's Feat

Connors Whips Rosewall

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy Connors, the 21-year-old Wimbledon singles champion and his fiance, Chris Evert, 18, the women's champion. And the young age of the United States women could make the end of a tennis era.

Behind Connors, almost forgotten behind a crowd of photographers and officials congratulating the 5-foot-10-inch, stood despondent Ken Rosewall, 39, the Australian who had dreamed of winning the all-England crown had been shattered a fourth time.

Rosewall, winner of every major tennis championship has been coming here, except for the years when professionals were barred, since 1952, the year Connors was born. Connors defied this a legend, and asked: "How do you play a legend?"

He showed how Saturday, winning 6-1, 6-1, 6-4 in 89 minutes in a match that could prove the end of the old brigade.

Rosewall said as much when asked how Connors compared with Rod Laver, the Australian who is the biggest money-earner in tennis-history.

Laver, like Connors, first won Wimbledon at 21, then went on to dominate world tennis for more than a decade.

"Everyone knows what Rod has been as a legend," Rosewall. "Jimmy has got his whole future in front of him. He could do anything."

Ed Sneed An Easy Winner

BELMAWDDER (AP) — "Fortunately," Ed Sneed observed, "no one made it 31. Not even me.

"I'm just real glad nobody got hot on the back nine."

Sneed did, and his victory in the Milwaukee open golf tournament was easy.

He led by as many as six shots in Saturday's third round, then on the 324-yard sixth hole.

Sneed, the only previous victory in a six-year pro career came last fall in the Kaiser Classic, was with a 69 and 12 under par.

"The eagle was the turning point," said Sneed, who hit a long-iron second shot six feet from the cup. "That made me feel like I really had it going."

"He played the best and he deserved to win," said Grier Jones, runner-up with a 71 for 283. "It's tough to lead all four rounds."

Hockey Plans Global League

LONDON (Reuter) — Representatives of eight countries gather here next weekend to start building the world's first global ice hockey league.

They will begin by forming an eight-team European league which will begin play in September.

Visionaries see this as the core of a continent-spanning competition which, within a decade, will link teams in Asia, Europe and North America, involving such improbable entrants as Singapore, South Australia and Iran.

Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden are expected to play a dominant part.

Canada, long a pacesetter in developing hockey, will provide a manpower pool to strengthen weaker teams.

If the global league materializes, it will mark a breakthrough in a long and bitter stalemate over the definition of amateur status in international hockey.

And it will realize a 40-year-old dream for controversial John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, a sports promoter who became a top decision-maker in world hockey without lacing up a skate.

"A world hockey league will be something absolutely new in sport, a really breathtaking development," Ahearne, 74, told reporters in London.

As president of the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), Ahearne has long held international hockey in the holy low of his hand.

He has applied a rigid definition of amateur to prevent North America's top players from competing in league games abroad, thus infuriating Canadian hockey officials interested in global play.

One embittered Canadian threw a punch at Ahearne in a Stockholm hotel, but Ahearne ducked.

Now North America seems to have made its peace with Ahearne.

An arrangement has clearly been reached between Ahearne and Bruce Norris, 50, the millionaire president of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League who is putting his bankroll behind world hockey plans.

Norris, who also heads a worldwide cattle and grain organization, has received hockey in Britain by importing 13 Canadians, a couple of Americans and a Swede to form a team here called London Lions.

He is losing money on the operation, but the Lions will be a hockey team in the European league expected to be formed next weekend.

The Norris design for world hockey is being masterminded from an office near London's Piccadilly by his righthand man, Joe Bosch, who sees the winter sport as long overdue for expansion.

"It's a fast-moving, spectacular game, and the rules are uniform enough to make it international adaptable," he said.

"It's bound to grow fast."

The eight countries who will send delegates to meetings here July 12-13 are Belgium, Czechoslovakia, England, Finland, Iceland, Sweden, Switzerland and West Germany.

24 Hits, Only 9 Runs

The Public Utilities and Stewart Warner pounded out 24 hits in their Industrial softball League game at the Ahearne last night but could come up with a total of only nine runs for their efforts.

The teams managed to leave a total of 18 runners stranded on the baselines with the Warnermen coming up with a 6-3 victory.

The winners had 14 of the 24 hits in their lineup with Rod Bennett, Steve Beare, Dominic Lentini, Jim Henn, and Paul Generoux. Bennett's pair included a triple, while all the others were singles. Checking in with one base hit each were Dave Marvin, Eric Powell, Jim Merbell, and Skip Rollins.

John Bowen had two singles to pace the PUC attack, with one hit apiece to Randy VanNorman, Steve Ethier, Wilson Bolduc, Dan Slade, Larry Mann, Dave Middleton, Manley Ryc, and Ron Archer.

Marvin threw the win on the Warner mound, nicked for ten hits. He struck out six batters, walking only one.

VanNorman started for the losers, lasting four and two thirds innings before giving way to Bolduc. VanNorman gave up all six Warner runs, allowing 11 of the 14 hits. He struck out one and walked one.

Bolduc fanned one and walked one in his two and a third innings, backed for three hits.

In the other game played in the league at the Alemite last night The Quinte Hotel Lenders left ten men on base, but still scored 15 runs as they romped over UIC by a 15-4 margin.

Mark Sheridan fired the win for the Lenders, allowing eight hits. He struck out eight and walked none in recording the victory, the 13th of the season for the leaders in the West division.

Joe Scanlan went the route for the losers, giving up 15 hits. He fanned six and walked three. Five errors by his teammates did not help matters any.

Cliff Hineman had a pair of doubles and two singles to pace the Lenders' attack, with Sheridan punching three safeties to help his own cause. John Maloney had a double and single, with Bob Birch collecting a three base hit. Bob Wilkes and Norm Tetlock each had two singles, with Herm Vandasien and Craig Webb each adding one.

For the UIC, it was Ron Emsbury leading the way with a triple. Jim Clark and Scanlan each had two base hits, with others going to Bill Healy, Ron Jury, and Mike Terrad.

Marchen Lifts Arrows

LANDOVER, Md. (CP) — Allan had three goals while Bill Cogbill registered seven assists to pace Maryland on offence, Saggar now has 51 goals this season, the most in the NLL.

Rick Bonnely had three goals for Montreal with Jim Lynch, Bill Sheehan, Gordon Floyd, Dave Litsenberger and Gord Guinchak getting two each.

Lynch and Floyd had four assists while Litsenberger assisted on three goals.

Team captain John Davis had a goal and three assists to run his point total to 101. Bill Bradley, Dale McKenzie and goaltender Don Crocker also scored for Montreal. Crocker's goal in the first period was the first by a goalie in the new league.

The win was the first for the Arrows in seven games and only their third in their last 13 outings. Their last win was a 21-19 triumph over Montreal June 19.

League play resumes Tuesday with Rochester Griffins in Toronto to play the Tomahawks and Philadelphia Wings at home to Syracuse Singers.

Dan Walker Paces Warriors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rexdale Warriors got a six-goal effort from Dan Walker and three goals each from four other players in dumping St. Catharines Legionnaires 20-7 in one of two Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A games Sunday.

First-place Peterborough PCOs remained undefeated with a 10-4 win at Etobicoke PCOs in the other contest.

Phil Swain, Bill Baldho, Scott Newton and Gord Kack had the three-goal performances for the Warriors with Steve Self adding a pair. Bill Nugent, Dave Hunley, Kirk McKenzie and Bill Murdoch got the others.

Oliver Gets Can-Am Win

facing little challenge, led from The team-mates dominated start to finish Sunday to capture his second straight Canadian-American Challenge Cup series race of the 1974 season.

Oliver coasted in a half-minute victory over George Follmer, of the United States.

the 44-lap event at the 2.52-m Road Atlanta race course. They had lapped the field by the 20th lap and appeared headed for a close finish until Follmer, a recently experienced handling difficulties that forced him well off the pace.

The victory was worth $15,000 for Oliver, who also won the 27-lap opening heat.

Oliver, who won the first of seven series races at Mosport, Ont., three weeks ago when another blew a tire while leading the heat, averaged 116.9 miles-an-hour over the hilly, 13-turn course. The race was run in hot, humid weather.

Third-place finisher, two laps behind the winner, was Lothar Motschenbacher in a McLaren, and fourth was Herbert Mueller in a Ferrari.

The intense heat took its toll as only eight cars (from the original 20-car field were running at the end of the day.

Peterson Leads Field

DIJON, France (AP) — Sweden's Ronnie Peterson outdrove Austrian Niki Lauda to win Sunday's French Grand Prix auto race.

Lauda and his Ferrari team mate, Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland, roared home second and third to move into the top two spots in the 1974 world driver's championship.

Peterson was clocked in one hour, 21 minutes, 55.03 seconds for the 196-mile race, an average speed of 119.35 miles an hour. Lauda's time was 1:22.15.38, with Regazzoni about seven seconds further back.

Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi led his McLaren engine break up midway through the 80 laps around the short, 2.65-mile circuit before Dijon officials, despite falling out of the race, Fittipaldi retained third place in the chase for the driving title.

A starting-line accident eliminated Tom Pryce and James Hunt, both from Britain, and Argentina's Carlos Reutemann.

The cars were demolished but the drivers escaped injury.

Lauda now leads the drivers' title chase with 36 points. Regazzoni has 32, Fittipaldi 21 and South Africa's Jody Scheckter 20 for fourth. Peterson has 19 points.

Childress Top Man In 200

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Richard Childress escaped a late collision with Cale Yarborough unharmed and went on to win the Metrolina 200 Grand National stock car race Sunday.

With two laps to go, Childress took the lead from Yarborough and Walter Ballard and won the 200-mile race under a caution flag.

Yarborough led until he ran out of gas and yielded to Ballard in the 183rd lap, was back in the running with two laps left, then collided with Ballard.

Yarborough regained the lead, but in the third turn Childress collided with Yarborough and both went into a spin. Childress spun completely around, took over the lead and beat Yarborough to the finish for the $1,400 prize.

Ballard came in second and Yarborough finished third.

In Selecting Parliament Canadians Will Show How They Think Inflation Should Be Handled

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians select their 30th Parliament today, but besides choosing a government they will decide how they feel the problem of inflation should be tackled.

Inflation has been the central issue in the six-week campaign and many observers feel the party stands on this issue will decide who will form the next government.

The Progressive Conservatives have advocated income and price controls, a wage-price freeze of sixty months, but the other three major parties have rejected this proposal and have put forth their own solutions.

The polls indicate a tight vote and most observers predict the election will leave the country with its ninth minority government since Confederation wedded the country 107 years ago.

Weather for voting day is expected to be warm and sunny with possible showers over Northern Ontario and the Prairies.

But the fine weather forecast, combined with a long election campaign, described by some as dull, might tempt many of the 11.6 million eligible voters to forsake polling booths for summer outings.

The polls have given the governing Liberals, under Pierre Trudeau, a slight edge over Robert Stanfield's Progressive Conservatives.

The outcome remains unpredictable. Polling stations open at 9 a.m. local daylight time and close at 8 p.m. and voters' dates from which to choose.

Most candidates are running for one of the six official parties, but others are on the ballot as independents or members of parties too new to be registered officially.

Political analysts doubt that either of the two major parties will capture a clear majority of the country's 264 seats, a situation that once again might give the New Democrat or Social Credit Party sway over the next Parliament's future.

After the October, 1972, election the standing was:

Liberal 109
Conservative 107
New Democrat 31
Social Credit 15
Independent 2

When Parliament was dissolved May 8 after the government was defeated on its spending estimates, Conservative opposition dropped to 106. Two Conservatives MPs died during the 14-week campaign, and independent Quebecer Roch Lasalle resigned. Conservatives won in February.

The parties' stage at the election probably will be won or lost in Ontario, particularly the battle for seats in the province's region, and that there might be significant swings in British Columbia voting patterns.

The Atlantic provinces are expected to remain basically Conservative in backing Mr. Stanfield, 60, a native of Truro, N.S.

Quebec is expected to remain the Liberal fortress behind Mr. Trudeau, 54, of Montreal.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan might produce a NDP-Conservative mix with a smattering of Liberals again and Alberta is expected to remain staunchly Conservative.

But 38-seat Ontario, which shattered hopes of a Liberal sweep in the 1972 election, appears up for grabs.

Only British Columbia, which cut to four from 15 the number of Liberal MPs in 1972 while boosting both Conservative and NDP representation, also is considered fair game by all parties.

Both major parties have a full slate of candidates in the province's search for at least 133 seats that will give them a majority in the Commons. The NDP has 323 candidates and Social Credit 132, most of them in Quebec, Ontario and the Prairies. The Communist Party is running 79 candidates and the more militant Communists, the Marxist-Leninists, are fielding 104.

The over-riding issue in the campaign has been inflation, and the electors are expected to show whether they wish to punish or accept the prime minister and his party for their methods of handling rising costs.

The Liberals have proposed fighting inflation by two methods—increasing supplies of goods and by subsidizing those most hurt by price increases.

Their May 6 budget proposed cutting selected taxes for everage citizens, increasing corporate taxes and providing farmers, fishermen and others with production incentives.

Mr. Trudeau has promised to reintroduce an expanded version of the budget, if re-elected. His alternative, Mr. Stanfield has staked his future on a 90-day freeze followed by an 18-month period of flexible controls.

Both leaders have attacked the other's proposals with a vengeance. Mr. Trudeau has said he Conservatives proposals would mean more choice, farm products from the freeze, leaving nothing left to control but wages.

Mr. Stanfield argues that his 90-day freeze would kill inflation psychology and help curb rising prices.

Mr. Trudeau also has said his party would institute a similar freeze if inflation went out of control, but insists it has not reached that stage.

The campaign by NDP Leader David Lewis has been more of a follow-up to the successful corporate welfare bums theme that helped boost his party's representation in the last Parliament to 31 from 22 seats.

He says that corporations, aided by either of the major parties, pay less than their fair share of taxes, leaving average citizens with a heavier burden.

An NDP government would change this with higher taxes, a two-price system for some basic commodities and a national prices review board with power to stop and roll back unjustified price increases.

Social Credit, and its leader Real Caouette, continue to advocate their economic theory: that the economy can be fired and cooled through the issuance of more or less money from the Bank of Canada.

Nearly all forecasters have predicted a drop in Social Credit strength, though Mr. Caouette has talked of holding the effective balance of power as his party did in the early 1960s, when John Diefenbaker led a Conservative government.

Should another minority government be elected, the next Parliament's future is a murky one.

None of the other parties support the Conservative's income-and-prices-control proposals, but Mr. Stanfield has said they'll either have to support "or face the consequences," or a Conservative minority is elected.

But another Liberal minority might open the door for a coalition government, probably of Liberals and New Democrats.

Do-it-yourself Guide To Election Analysis

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Here are some guides for do-it-yourself election analysts who plan to follow the returns in the federal election tonight.

First returns come from the Atlantic provinces, but these don't necessarily indicate the national trend.

There are 22 seats in those four provinces, 22 of which were won by the Progressive Conservatives in the October, 1972, election. The Liberals took the other 10.

A Conservative trend in the Atlantic provinces might mean little national trend, but even a couple of Liberal gains there might be a tip that there is a national trend to that party.

Interesting returns will come from Brevon-East Richmond, is where Andy Hogan, a Roman Catholic priest, is running for the New Democratic Party. If elected, he will be the first Roman Catholic priest to enter the Commons and the first New Democrat member of Ontario in more than 10 years.

Saskatoon constituency will provide an interesting battle. The lead Conservative candidate is Mayor Leonard Jones and his candidacy in the Commons was rejected by Leader Robert Stanfield because of the mayor's opposition to the Official Languages Act. Mr. Jones is running as an independent against Charles Thomas, the Conservative party candidate. Also Liberal, New Democrat and Social Credit contenders.

Quebec is the Liberal fortress and that party cannot gain on much there. Substantial Conservative gains there likely would mean a national victory for that party.

Watch closely the Social Credit vote. Any erosion of support for that party will mean possible gains for the Liberals or the Conservatives.

The Liberals won 58 Quebec seats in the last election, the Social Credit 15 and the Conservatives only two. There was one independent elected—Roch LaSalle of Joliette and he since has returned to the Conservatives.

Another possible trend indicator in Quebec is how the three chief Conservative incumbents fare. Claude Wagner in St. Hyacinthe and Herward Grafftey in Brome-Missisquoi are considered important figures in the party and if they falter in the voting, the Conservatives could be in trouble.

Ontario is the province which observers say might decide the election. Here the ridings to watch are those held by Liberal cabinet ministers—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp in Toronto Eglinton, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan in Essex-Windsor, Labor Minister John Munro in Hamilton East, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald in Toronto Rosedale, Finance Minister John Turner in Ottawa-Carleton and Defence Minister Robert Stanbury in York-Scarborough.

Should some of these ministers start to fall, the Liberals might be in severe political difficulty.

The New Democrat vote will be important in Ontario. Watch those party gains from any NDP losses or which party suffers losses to an independent.

Ontario standing after the election: Conservatives 38, Liberal 36, NDP 11, independent 1.

The Prairies probably are less complicated. Liberal support there has not been great and gains for that party would indicate acceptance of the Liberals in an area where resistance to them has been strongest.

Alberta is solid Conservative and not much change is expected there, but there might be movement in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. However, most observers do not expect the Prairies to have any drastic impact on the trends.

There are 45 seats on the Prairies, two less than by the Conservatives compared with eight for the NDP and three for the Liberals.

British Columbia might provide the most excitement of the night. Conservatives have gains in other parts of the country's two and three veteran New Democrat MPs have retired and the Liberals and Conservatives have been going all out to take the seats. There also is the Social Credit vote which six seats might go any way.

There has been talk in B.C. of an anti-NDP backlash resulting from the policies of the provincial NDP government.

The seats in which New Democrats have retired are Surrey-White Rock, Vancouver South and Vancouver-Kingsway. If there are NDP losses, watch which party takes them.

If the election is a saw-off when the B.C. polls close, the party which does the best in B.C. will win the election.

The standing after the 1972 vote: NDP 11, PC eight, Liberal four.

PM's Home Not in Riding

All Leaders but Trudeau Will Vote for Themselves

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three of the four national party leaders will vote for themselves today but Prime Minister Trudeau will be supporting another candidate.

The prime minister will vote in Ottawa Centre, the riding that encompasses his Sussex Drive residence. He will vote for Jean Robert Gauthier, the Liberal MP for the riding in the last Parliament.

The other leaders will vote in their home constituencies—Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield in Halifax, David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, in the Toronto area riding of York South and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette in the Quebec riding of Temiscamingue.

Under the Canada Election Act, members of Parliament have the option of voting in their own constituencies or the riding they reside in while in Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau is to vote about 9 a.m. EDT at a polling station a few blocks from his Ottawa home, then head for Montreal to visit his Liberal party headquarters and the party headquarters for his own riding of Montreal Mount Royal. He will have lunch with workers and visit polls in the riding before returning to Ottawa late in the day.

The prime minister will be at home when the first returns are reported and will move later to the downtown Chateau Laurier Hotel where a special election night suite has been rented by Liberal organizers.

A spokesman said Sunday that Mr. Trudeau will make a statement to news media representatives as soon as the election results become clear.

Mr. Stanfield flew home to Halifax Sunday and will stay at the midtown Lord Nelson Hotel.

A spokesman said Mr. Stanfield will wait for the first returns in his hotel but will go later to Conservative headquarters in his riding. When he returns to Ottawa will depend on the outcome of the election, the spokesman said.

Mr. Lewis, staying at a hotel near Highway 401 in north Toronto, will vote at a polling station in a York South high school and visit a number of other polls immediately afterward.

Tradeau and Stanfield Join Picnickers at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The two chief opponents in today's election battle ended their campaigns Sunday on the same front, among thousands of new Canadians attending an annual ethnic picnic on Centre Island here.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield made brief appearances on the island, but the former was cheered while the latter was booed.

Mr. Stanfield's appearance, sandwiched between a rock concert and a tug-of-war boating contest, followed that of the prime minister's and the crowd generally was more interested in other events than politics.

Mr. Trudeau was accompanied by his wife Margaret—dressed in an ankle-length summer dress and wide floppy hat—and the two had little of the crowd, shook hands and stopped from time to time to watch various ethnic dances.

In two encounters Mrs. Trudeau addressed the audience at the invitation of her husband saying that her idea of Canada is "a pangchi, loving country."

"Let's take it, a people's poll," Mr. Robert Stanfield invited an election rally in Vancouver Saturday night.

"You lose," cried a voice from the crowd estimated at 5,000 persons who attended the outdoor meeting held at Kitsilano park near downtown Vancouver. It was one of the largest turnouts for a Stanfield rally since the campaign began.

The prime minister also had a rough time with a heckler in Peterborough on Saturday, turning over his microphone to the heckler-hanged heckler, then returning to blast the Progressive Conservatives for entering the election campaign "without any ideas."

An estimated 2,000 people was crowded in a Peterborough park to cheer and jeer Mr. Trudeau as the prime minister when a heckler kept interrupting him.

"Come on, come on," Mr. Trudeau said. "Take the microphone and say your piece." A middle-aged man who identified himself as Fred Edwards talked about the Americans cutting off energy exports to Taiwan, while at the same time the Canadian government was bringing in more immigrants from mainland China. And then he criticized the prime minister for not joining the army during the Second World War.

"I would like to know where he was during the war," said Mr. Edwards. "He was not man enough to become an officer.

The prime minister ignored the remark when he returned to the microphone. Instead, he blasted the Conservatives for seeking the election while not being prepared for the campaign with new ideas.

4 BEDROOMS 70' LOT WEST SIDE

We are just starting a new Chatsau model which is one of the most popular of the layer houses. Make it your house now! You may then make modifications to suit your requirements and pick all the finishes and colors. This model features a 20 x 12 family room with fireplace and patio doors. There is a separate dining room.

EAST SIDE 2 STOREY FIREPLACE

now nearing completion. This, the ever popular Milford model offers the most home for the least money. Kitchen is very large with lots of cupboards. Separate dining room.

DON'T MAKE A FOOLISH MISTAKE

such as waiting for mortgage rates to drop before you purchase. Should the rate drop by as much as one per cent, you would save $350.00 per year for five years or $1,750.00. Last year in 12 months the average house in Canada went up about $6,000. Is that case you would by $1,250.00 further behind. If trends continue, and it seems likely they will, the same thing can happen year after year, so don't get caught in the trap — the time to buy a new house is now. Call us for a appointment without obligation to discuss housing for your family.

Shock Stops Boy's Breath

A nine-year-old Ajax, Ont. boy was rushed to Belleville General Hospital late Saturday morning after he received an electrical shock that injured his respiratory system while swimming near a conduit pipe at the rear of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Police said today that Brandon Roberts, 9, of Ajax was swimming at the rear of the yacht club around 11.32 a.m. when he touched his chest against the side of a conduit pipe that carried electrical power to the yacht basin.

The boy received an electrical shock and his respiratory system stopped functioning.

He was rushed to hospital by ambulance and revived.

Police say they do not believe there will be any other side effects as a result of the incident. The boy was released from hospital Saturday afternoon.

Mother, Daughter Hurt

GLENORA — A one-car accident on Lake-On-The-Mountain Road last Saturday evening resulted in injuries to a local woman and her daughter.

Driver of the car, Charlotte Troyvelnick, 32, of RR4, Picton, received a forehead cut while her 11-year-old daughter Shirley, fractured her right leg.

Damage to the car was estimated at $600. The accident occurred at approximately 8:45 p.m. on county road seven near county road 25.

Office Robbed

Thieves stole $150 to $200 worth of goods from the offices of Belleville Auto Electric sometime Saturday morning or late Friday night.

Police reported Monday that the owners of the office discovered that thieves had broken into their offices when they returned to work at 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

Stolen were: a cassette tape recorder, five radios, jackets, and while in color, pens, pencils and gift sets, a key case, and a number of batteries.

Entry was gained to the building by removing the glass from a window in the west side of a garage.

Watches Stolen

Belleville police are investigating a break and grab incident that netted thieves some $125 worth of men's and ladies' watches sometime Saturday morning.

Police reported Monday that thieves broke a window in the front of the T and J Variety Store at 256 Front Street sometime before 10:00 a.m. Saturday and stole five men's Timex watches and one ladies' watch.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during the weekend:

Saturday, July 6, 3:30 a.m. — fire in a garbage bin at the rear of P.W. Woolworth's store on Front Street, fire deliberately set, damage minor.

Sunday, July 7, 3:38 p.m. — grease fire in oven at 171 Foster Ave, minor damage.

Blind Hold Annual Picnic

The annual Quinte White Cane Club picnic was held July 6 at the recreation centre on Pinnacle St. with special guests Ernie Philpott, field secretary for the blind from Kingston and Belleville aldercan, Jean Smith.

Maude Hallett directed the program and Doug Burns played the bagpipes. David Globe played the guitar for the sing-song and Martha Boonhower was in charge of the refreshments.

Veterans Sponsor Citizenship Course

By HOWARD KOKESH

Youths of today — citizens of tomorrow is the theme of a last minute increase in training program sponsored by Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans units across Ontario to be held at RMC Kingston commencing Sunday July 28.

The sponsoring ANAF units pay the $25 registration fee for the course and the transportation costs to and from RMC. A few vacancies still exist for the program, due to a last minute increase in space availability at RMC and any youths 15 to 17 yrs old, interested in attending are asked to contact Youth Development Chairman, Stan Melbourne at 968-8423 after 5 p.m.

During the week long program, boys enrolled in the citizenship course will receive instruction from members of various municipal, provincial and federal governments. Guest speakers from various law enforcement agencies, the judiciary and th military will address the boys also.

The Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans realize that the future of Canada lies in the youth of the country and have embarked on a program designed to assist the youth to accept this challenge of leadership. The one hundred boys in attendance will learn by doing and participating in a system of classroom elections as parliamentary sessions.

Bright sunny skies and warm weather greeted the members and their families at the annual picnic at Mohawk Beach, Shannonville on Sunday. Participation in the various races and contests by the members was only overshadowed by the amount of free ice cream and pop consumed by the children. The annual visit of the old sailor, which has now become a tradition, was also thoroughly enjoyed.

Mrs. Wetland Art and Edna Hobbs leave by air for a two-month vacation in England to visit their two married sons. They will be spending one week at Heathrow and one week at Liphook and also have an invitation to visit Lord Tweedsmuir during their stay in the old country. Art says he taken him 62 years of residency, 10 years of active and 12 years of militia service to finally receive his papers as a Canadian citizen on June 1, 1974. The members wish them well on their visit and a safe return on August 5th.

Lieutenant Governor Pauline McGibb presents the Ontario Medal for Good Citizenship to Stephen Choma of Belleville while Shaun MacGrath, chairman of the selection committee looks on. The presentation took place in the Bay of Quinte Room, Queen's Park, Mr. Choma is founder of the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra which raises money for service club charities. He was one of 19 Ontario citizens to receive the medal. (Toronto Bureau Photo)

Dinner/concert chairman Cliff Osterkirk has hooked Jim Jay in the lower loage on Friday July 12 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The Chairman would be interested in knowing your reaction to entertainment during the summer months in the lower lounge.

Sick comrades in hospital are: Jim Wilkinson — room 209, Trenton Memorial Hospital; John Kosik, room 452 and Fred Telford room 507 Belleville General Hospital while Hap Chartres is in Queens Self Care Unit 25.

Sam's Sermon: Nowadays pedestrians walk around as if they owned the streets and motorists drive around as if hey owned their cars.

Youth Charged After Search

Belleville police have charged a 17-year-old Belleville youth with possession of stolen goods after someone stole an eight-track stereo, an FM radio and cigarettes from the rear patio of the Shana Boutique on Front Street Saturday.

Charged is John Francis Collingridge, 17, of 352 Front Street.

Collingridge was arrested after police executed a search warrant at his home shortly after the theft was discovered.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby.

Oswald: "One of the standard defenses against artificial bids is the double to show that you have strength in that suit. This is a really dangerous toy in that there are occasions when it may become crazy against the user."

Jim: "You must have been playing some serious bridge lately. I'll bet you have some rubber bridge hand as an example.

Oswald: "As a matter of fact, I have. I was playing at the Regency Club with John Nau, one of the great players of the Thirties. We play natural, simple bidding so after I opened with a heart and raise spades, Johnny got right into Blackwood."

Jim: "So when you bid five hearts to show two aces East tried to open his mouth and cry 'foul.' I suppose you bid six diamonds to show one king. It was easy for Johnny to decide that it was the king of diamonds and bid the grand slam."

Oswald: "The double was right also. East should not expect to collect any heart tricks against a grand contract so there was no reason for him to ask for a heart lead."

To Your Good Health

Less That's Done The Better---Often

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: People have been warned not to move accident victims themselves. If I've seen a case, I believe where they should have been told (ast). Doesn't the same apply in case of a stroke?

My husband had a stroke. I called the doctor and an ambulance was reassured him but left him lying there for the ambulance to handle.

Of course the fact that he weighs twice as much as I do had something to do with my good judgment. At any rate he was recovering and home four days.

Isn't it a mistake to pick up the victim and seat him on a chair, as they did to someone I knew? Maybe she would have died anyway, but I don't think that moving he helped. Doctors seem to think we "must do something" — Linda.

You are entirely right. True, it's a human desire to want to "do something," but within certain limits the less you do the better. Doing something seldom helps, but often does serious harm.

For either an injured or a stroke victim, the collar should be loosened, the head turned to one side to avoid "swallowing the tongue" and obstructing the airway, and possibly the head may be raised on a pillow.

But that's about all except, of course, if the victim should fall against a fire place, a radiator, stove, or such hazard, move him gently.

Other than that, wait for the doctor to decide what to do. Because there is little to be done immediately for a stroke victim except exactly what you did. Getting him up on a chair is totally pointless. He's better off lying down and being kept calm.

In violent accidents, pressure ought to be applied to stop heavy bleeding and, if you know what you are doing, a tourniquet may be needed, but many tourniquets can do more damage than good. And if there are bone fractures, by all means, the least movement possible.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 18 and have tried different advertised products to make my hair grow. Is there any special cream or medicine to make it grow? I'm fed up with these advertisements. I've tried everything! You name it. I've tried it. — L.F.

Most of us have a "natural length" to which hairs reach and, when they break off and new ones start to grow. I'm sorry, but I just don't know of any way to change this. But the great number of phony "miracles" advertised would indicate that a lot of people keep hoping.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read in your column about the hairless chest. I am married to a man whose chest is "bald." He was being teased by a bunch of hairy friends and he was my plea to me to put a stop to it. I simply said, "Hair ecstasy male can grow hair on his chest but it takes a real man to keep it torn off!" Perhaps this could be of use to other barrel-chested men. — D.J.S.

Consider the idea passed on.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 64 and have diverticulosis. My doctor has me on a bland diet and medication. I got up at 4:30 this morning with cramps. The longer I lie the worse it gets. After I eat and walk around I'm O.K. right. I would like to know why I get cramps early in the morning and not during the day. — Mrs. I. M.

An accumulation of stool and gas in the colon could cause morning cramps. The apparent reason for being free from discomfort for the rest of day is that your morning bowel movement relieves the pressure and distension in the colon.

Perhaps you could alter your eating habits slightly, for example avoid heavy evening meals or late night snacking, if those are what you eat.

Begin Bell Centennial Celebration

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of Alexander Graham Bell's invention of the telephone here began officially Sunday with a three-hour parade.

Police estimated that the parade, with 196 entries including floats, antique vehicles and bands, attracted about 50,000 spectators.

The centennial celebrations during the weekend will have local artists and craftsmen a chance to display their work.

Other weekend events included a band concert, a street dance, and an on-street performance of a musical, Thank You Mr. Bell.

Celebrations which began July 1, will continue throughout the month.

Libel Alleged

TORONTO (CP) — Basil Clark, Progressive Conservative candidate in Scarborough West, said Sunday he intends to launch a libel suit against a group lobbying against seal hunting.

In a full-page advertisement in The Sun, Mr. Clark denies a charge made in another full-page advertisement that he and several other Toronto area candidates "were supposed to do a thing to stop the clubbing of baby seals."

Mr. Clark said the advertisement in The Sun, and a similar full-page ad in Saturday's edition of The Star were placed without his knowledge by the International Fund for Animal Welfare, the seal lobby with headquarters in Fredericton.

Dean to Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House of Representatives Judiciary committee is entering what Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem.-N.J.) hopes will be the final week of its impeachment inquiry with John Dean as a key witness.

Dean, whose Senate testimony a year ago linking President Nixon to the Watergate cover-up helped start the march of events that led to the impeachment proceedings, is due to appear before the committee Tuesday or Wednesday.

Frederick LaRue, a former official in Nixon's re-election committee, continues his testimony today.

Nixon Home

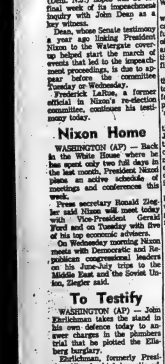
WASHINGTON (AP) — Back in the White House where he has spent only two full days in the last month, President Nixon plans a series of cabinet meetings and conferences this week.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon will meet today with Vice-President Gerald Ford and on Tuesday with five of his top economic advisers.

On Wednesday morning Nixon meets with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders on his June-July trips to the Middle East and the Soviet Union, Ziegler said.

To Testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman takes the stand in his own defence today to answer charges in the plumbers trial that he plotted the Ellsberg burglary.



Ehrlichman, formerly President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, and three others are accused of violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding by conspiring to break into his office on Sept. 3, 1971. At the time, Fielding was treating Daniel Ellsberg, who leaked the Pentagon papers to the press.

Toll Lower

CHICAGO (AP) — Lowered speed limits are responsible for reducing the July 4 Independence Day holiday traffic death toll in the United States by almost one-third, a survey of law-enforcement and safety officials indicates.

While officials in some states reported somewhat less traffic than normal during the 102-hour holiday period, most of them questioned pointed to the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit as the major factor in reduced highway deaths.

Court Considers Nixon's Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is grappling at last with the issues of Watergate in a case prompting fundamental questions about the powers of the presidency.

White House lawyer James St. Clair and Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski were due to argue before the court today on President Nixon's claim that he has a right to withhold potential Watergate evidence.

"The precise issue of the absoluteness of executive privilege, as applied to presidential communications, has never been squarely confronted and definitively resolved by this court," St. Clair said in a brief.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler on Sunday again declined to comment on whether Nixon would abide by a Supreme Court decision against him.

Under review is an order by U.S. District Judge John Sirica directing Nixon to produce tapes and documents concerning 64 presidential conversations for possible use in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Jaworski said the material was needed as evidence because the disclosures dealt with future testimony of White House officials and campaign aides and with how to handle executive clemency and other benefits for Watergate defendants.

St. Clair has told the court that if Sirica's ruling is allowed to stand, "it could no longer fairly be contended that the president of the United States is master in his own house."

But the American Civil Liberties Union, in a brief supporting Jaworski, said "it is equally true that if the special prosecutor cannot obtain evidence necessary and material to a criminal proceeding . . . the judicial branch is not master in its house."

Eight sides discussed in their briefs the landmark 1952 case in which the court struck down government seizure of steel mills, an action the late President Harry Truman had said he must take to ensure continued production for the Korean War.

"The touchstone of that holding was that President Truman's action . . . exceeded all express and inherent powers of the presidency," St. Clair said. "In contrast, President Nixon's action . . . is based squarely on the Constitution."

Jaworski argued that the Truman case demonstrated that the courts have "final authority to determine whether even the highest executive officials are acting in accordance with the Constitution."

The Supreme Court was expected to receive a Watergate case for review last year in a case brought by the first Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox. Sirica and then the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Cox's position that a federal grand jury investigating cover-up charges was entitled to the White House tapes. Nixon had Cox fired, but then turned over the tapes instead of going to trial in the Supreme Court.

The Committee led to the House of Representatives Judiciary committee's impeachment inquiry. St. Clair said in his brief that the two presidential tapes and documents related to Nixon's knowledge and material bearing on whether he (Nixon) is implicated.

The Judiciary committee, meanwhile, is beginning what Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem.-N.J.) hopes will be the last week of its impeachment inquiry.

Elsewhere in Washington, former Nixon aide John Ehrlichman was expected to take the stand in his own defence in the plumbers trial.

The Supreme Court was asked to review whether Ehrlichman's order violated the 4th amendment, and whether the Watergate grand jury exceeded its authority in naming the president as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Andy Williams Tells How He Was Swindled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't know anyone in show business who has enough financial knowledge to make wise investments. He simply have to take other people's advice. And this time we all were duped."

Singer Andy Williams was speaking of his $538,000 investment in an oil swindle that lost millions for entertainment and business world figures.

He pointed out the financial vulnerability of stars who make big money.

"When a performer made a big bundle and faced paying 80 per cent in taxes, he got frantic," said Williams. "He never knew when the money would stop coming in.

"Naturally, he looked for ways to keep some of the money."

Williams was speaking of investments before the tax was limited to 50 per cent of earned income. Then, the business agents and financial advisers of the stars recommended tax shelters.

One of the most attractive of the such investments seemed to be the Home-Stake Production Co. of Tulsa, Okla.

Late last month, the Home-Stake was reported to be an elaborate swindle. Its list of investors included Jack Benny ($300,000), Lisa Minnelli ($231,000), Bob Dylan ($70,000) and Barbra Streisand ($28,500).

Most of the victims had never seen the oil wells that were supposed to save their highly taxable earnings. The stars relied on the advice of their investment counsellors.

"My people looked into it thoroughly, even made trips to oil fields in Caracas," says ballad singer Bobby Gentry, who invested $96,000 in Home-Stake.

"An independent accounting firm even made a report on the company. It was a highly sophisticated operation.

"How do you guard against being taken again? How indeed? Everyone believed in it."

It was brought into the deal by Wall Street's much-heralded career, the fastest brain in the East," cracked comedienne Phyllis Diller. "He always investigates all my investments, but this one fooled him."

Miss Diller could joke about the experience, since hers was one of the smaller investments — $9,100. She cracked:

"I've been ripped off so often—in my dressing room, at home, in hotels—that I actually belong to the Thief of a Month Club. I've lost four fur coats, the last one at a Beverly Hills beauty salon.

"Somebody even stole our watches."

M-A-S-H star Alan Alda could not view the swindle humorously, having dropped $16,000.

"I'm too angry to comment; the only words I have are four-letter ones," he said.

"I went into the investment, not because it was a speculative thing, but because it was described to me as being extremely safe. I'm really sore.

"It's going to take me a lot of time to salvage what I've lost. I'll have to work harder now.

"I'm told this was a classical swindle. That doesn't make it any easier. I'm not used to being conned—except by people I vote for."

Today's Parents Better Than in Past Says Spock

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock says his parents, with the best of intentions, intimidated him and he is glad the present generation cannot be intimidated.

But "I don't agree that the family unit is in danger," said the pediatrician, who was raised here. . .

"I grew up afraid of parents, teachers, barking dogs and bullies," he said in an interview.

"I had a sense of guilt all the time and yet my mother was more liberal than her mother."

Spock, who grew up in a large family with aunts, uncles, cousins and grandparents nearby, said this lifestyle has disappeared.

But the family unit is not in danger, he said.

"Obviously, more people are living together without marriage and there is nothing wrong in this," he said.

"There are a fair number who have decided they don't want to have children.

"In the past, family pressures and sibling competition made couples feel they had to have children, that there was something wrong with them if they didn't.

"We have discovered that children who are not wanted don't do very well."

Today's family has different problems and must search for solutions, Spock said.

He said he sees a tendency for families to keep more to themselves, living in separate houses on separate lots without companionship.

Young people are experimenting with ways to find companionship by living in communes, and strides develop in these situations, he said.

Spock said young persons today, who "can't be intimidated," have different characteristics than children of he past.

He said today's parents, influenced by educationist John Dewey, psychoanalyst Sigmund Freud and perhaps himself, have learned that love is more important than punishment in creating good character.

"Children by themselves want to grow up to be like their parents. Parents don't have to pressure them into it.

"Parents learned to have trust in their children and they didn't have to intimidate them."

Change in Day-care Protested

OTTAWA (CP) — About 200 people, mostly women and children, demonstrated Saturday on Parliament Hill to protest the Ontario government's decision to change policies dealing with day-care services.

Placard-carrying members of the Ottawa-Carleton Day-Care Association and other concerned citizens took part in the peaceful demonstration that lasted about two hours.

Last month, Margaret Birch, provincial social development secretary, told the legislature the government has ruled out a free province-wide universal day-care service.

She also announced existing standards for centres, such as fire regulations, will be relaxed.

Other regulation changes include increase child-to-staff ratios and removal of formal qualifications for staff in after-school programs for the six to nine-year-olds.

The Ottawa-Carleton association said in a release the proposed changes would affect the quality of present day-care services.

"The higher ratio of children to staff, the lessening of regulations dealing with fire safety, will present a quality of daycare which can only be custodial at best and may well be hazardous to the emotional and physical health of children."

Ford to Change To 1975 Models Without Closing

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. will begin phasing in production of 1975-model cars and trucks July 16, with almost all its lines set to produce new models by Sept. 16, the company said.

Ford's Wixom, Mich., assembly plan, which makes Thunderbirds, Lincoln Continentals and Mark IVs, will be the first to turn out new vehicles, the company said.

Ford said all but two of its 25 assembly plants will change over to new-model production without losing a day's output by ending 1974 production on a Friday and starting out for the 1975 run the following Monday.

The Mahwah, N.J., plant will be shut for a month and the Wayne, Mich., plant will be down 17 days to convert to production of Ford's new luxury coupe—the Ford Granada and Mercury Monarch. Both will close Friday.

General Motors began plant changeovers in late June for 1975 model production June 21, with output to resume beginning Aug. 12.

Liberals Triumph, Get Clear Majority

Victor Votes

Prime Minister Trudeau voted in Ottawa before flying to his home riding in Montreal, Monday, then returned to Ottawa where he received news of his party's election triumph..

News Briefs

Ports Shelled

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israeli navy shelled three ports on southern Lebanon, striking more than a score of fishing boats in retaliation for the palestinian guerrilla raid by sea two weeks ago on Nahariya. The Israeli military command said it had "numerous indications" that the terrorists were preparing more seaborne attacks.

Doctors Revolt

LONDON (Reuter) — Some British doctors have taken the first step towards setting up a rival scheme to the country's free National Health Service, engaged by budget cuts and internal dissent. An emergency meeting Monday of a group representing about 4,000 hospital consultants and specialists voted overwhelmingly to call a conference to create an alternative service.

Million Sought

EDMONTON (CP) — The Metis Association of Alberta has launched a campaign to raise $1 million in three years for the post-secondary education of Metis and non-status Indians.

TORONTO (CP) — The governing Liberal party, driven to the brink of defeat in 1972, smashed back Monday with a surprise majority election victory that cut Progressive Conservative strength and left the New Democratic Party battered and adrift with a defeated leader.

Contradicting the pollsters and political analysts, the Liberals scored gains in seven of 10 provinces and gave Prime Minister Trudeau a unique comeback. No other prime minister ever fell to a minority position in Parliament and won another majority without first being out of office.

The final result:

	1974	1972
Lib	141	109
PC	95	107
NDP	16	13
SC	11	15
Ind	1	2
Total	264	246

On election night it had appeared that Drummond, Que. was retained by Social Credit. But a late recheck of poll totals gave the seat to the Liberals.

The outcome left open the possibility of leadership changes in the NDP and Conservative parties.

The trend toward the Liberals started with the first returns from Newfoundland, picked up steam with an increased Liberal landslide in Quebec and a majority was indicated when the results flowed in from Ontario, where NDP Leader David Lewis went down to personal defeat in Toronto York South.

But not until final results were reported from British Columbia did the Liberal majority become definite. The party doubled its strength to eight of 23 seats in B.C., finishing it past the magic number of 133 that constitutes a majority in the 264-seat Commons.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield won personal re-election in Halifax, but disappointment showed on his face when he spoke before television cameras late in the evening. He congratulated Conservative candidates and workers but expressed regret at the outcome.

Beaten twice before by Mr. Trudeau—in 1968 and 1972—the 59-year-old Opposition leader refused to indicate whether he will step down and open the way for a Conservative leadership convention.

"I will have to talk with officials of the caucus and leaders of the party," he said.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who received a massive personal majority in Montreal Mount Royal, said Canada elected a strong government in uncertain times and had shown confidence in the future.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, who campaigned under predictions that his party was collapsing, was re-elected in his Quebec riding of Typicanoonge and saw his party hold all but three of the 15 seats it won in 1972. But Social Credit candidates again failed to make a breakthrough outside the party's Quebec power base.

Liberal candidates took one seat from the Conservatives in each of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick—where Conservative House Leader Tom Bell suffered a narrow defeat in Saint John-Lancaster.

The Liberals also tightened their traditional stranglehold on Quebec by boosting its total to 56 their share of the province's 74 seats. All three gains were from Social Credit. The Conservatives increased their Quebec popular vote but won only three ridings, the number they had when Parliament was dissolved May 8.

In Ontario, the Liberals won 60 of 88 seats, taking three from the NDP and wiping out seat after seat won by the Conservatives in 1972. The Conservatives dropped to 24 seats from 40 in Ontario, losing heavily in Tuesday-no ridings and giving up some seats in traditionally-strong Conservative rural ridings.

Paul Hellyer, the former Liberal cabinet minister who joined the Conservatives and in 1972, was defeated by Liberal Aileen Nicholson in Toronto Trinity. She is one of a record nine women elected to Parliament.

Former Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin was thumped by Sasha Sculthorpe Hugh Faulkner in Peterborough and Fern Guindon, the Ontario Labor minister who resigned to run in the election, was defeated by former Cornwall, Ont., mayor Ed Lumley in Stormont-Dundas.

CBC parliamentary reporter Ron Collister was trounced by Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury in Toronto's York-Scarborough.

All 26 cabinet ministers except Environment Minister Jack Davis were returned. Mr. Davis was beaten by Conservative Ron Huntington in Capilano.

The Liberals held the two Manitoba seats they had at dissolution, with Defence Minister James Richardson taking Winnipeg South and Joseph Guay retaining St. Boniface. The lone change came in Selkirk where New Democrat Doug Rowland, considered a potential leadership candidate, was defeated by a Conservative.

The Liberals gained two in Saskatchewan, taking Assiniboia from New Democrat Bill Knight and Battleford-Kindersley from Conservative Norval Horner, brother of maverick Alberta Conservative Peter Horner who won another landslide victory in Crowfoot.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker was returned for a record 13th time in Prince Albert.

The Conservatives again swept all 19 Alberta seats, thwarting all Liberal attempts in the country-wide province. Dan often has clashed with Ottawa over federal oil policies.

The NDP suffered its worst losses in B.C., dropping a total of nine seats to Conservatives and Liberals. The Liberals doubled their B.C. total to eight seats while the Conservatives went to 13 from eight.

Defeated NDP members included veterans Frank Howard in Skeena and Ran Harding in Kootenay West. T.C. Douglas was re-elected in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands. The only other surviving B.C. New Democrat was Stuart Leggat in New Westminster.

Jobless Number Plunges

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment rate fell to 4.9 per cent in June, its lowest level in more than four years, Statistics Canada reported today.

Jobless rates and employment levels showed the best improvements on the Prairies while a double-digit unemployment rate remained only in the Atlantic region.

The June drop in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment level was a whopping six-tenths of a percentage point. There has not been an improvement that large in one month since October, 1966.

Regionally, the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were 10.3 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, 6.4 per cent in Quebec, 3.6 per cent in Ontario, 3.7 per cent in the Prairie provinces and 5.3 per cent in British Columbia.

Ellis Wins

Jack Ellis is secure for another term as Conservative MP for Hastings.

But the majority Mr. Ellis had in 1972 in his first Federal election plunged with national Conservative fortunes.

His victory was hedged by several factors:

— Marie Kurchak, Liberal newcomer, 28, youngest candidate and first woman to run in Hastings, entered the riding to increase her party's vote over 1972.

— In Belleville, where Mr. Ellis once was mayor, Mrs. Kurchak sharply increased the number of polls won by the Liberals in 1972.

Totals, with 1972 party votes in brackets:

Ellis 14,806 (18,479); Kurchak 12,380 (11,461); Sandera 2,267

Hees Romps

TRENTON — Prince Edward-Hastings incumbent George Hees is back — but little attention accompanied his 7,808-vote majority victory last night.

The "we knew he'd win all the time" theme of the team of party faithfuls changed swiftly election night to a sombre disappointment as the Tories faded nationally, wiping out the reason for a drive to get Mr. Hees the biggest majority ever as a senior cabinet post would be assured in a PC government.

"We have a good majority here, but everything the way the rest of the country has gone," said Mr. Hees to a packed Trenton Chamber Club. His comment brought the only cheer of the night.

90-year PC Hold

NAPANEE — Douglas Alkenbrack was returned to office in the traditionally Tory riding of Frontenac-Lennox and Addington Monday night while Liberal Grace Stalker and New Democrat Dud Aiken were forced to contest themselves with cutting his plurality to less than half his 1972 margin.

Both first-time candidates, Stalker and Aiken received 19,908 and 4,152 votes respectively to Alkenbrack's 14,182.

Alkenbrack, 62, who has won election in the riding six times since 1962, had a plurality of 7,387 votes in the last election.

The 130-mile-long riding has sealed a Progressive Conservative stronghold for more than 90 years. There are 40,537 voters in Frontenac-Lennox and Addington, only 29,242 of whom, or about 72 per cent, went to the polls Monday.

Lawrence Returned

PORT HOPE — Two hours after the polls closed Liberal Allan Bechtel pushed his way through a boater wearing crowd in the Legion Hall in Port Hope and shook Allan Lawrence's hand conceding victory to his PC opponent in Northumberland Durham.

Two and a half hours later, the district returning officer announced that Mr. Lawrence had received 18,829 votes.

Mr. Bechtel, polled 14,885 votes, while the New Democratic candidate Ross Walker received 7,136.

Mr. Stanfield's leadership of the Progressive Conservatives is in question now and some political commentators have marked Allan Lawrence as a possible successor.

The former provincial cabinet minister is only 47 and has won two federal elections with relatively large pluralities. He also figured prominently in the 1971 provincial Conservative leadership campaign.

Liberals Protest Election Day Ad

TRENTON — Prince Edward — Hastings Liberal candidate George Cunningham, in the middle of election confusion, Monday night charged incumbent PC George Hees with breaches of the Election Act.

Mr. Cunningham made the charge after a party worker brought to his attention a full column advertisement in the Monday edition of a local weekly newspaper.

"It is our understanding that the advertisement be placed on the day of an election," said Mr. Cunningham.

"I'm not conceding or doing anything until our lawyers have had a chance to go over the legal grounds," said Mr. Cunningham.

The matter has been turned over to Toronto ...Liberal party headquarters.

Liberal spokesmen here say the violation — if it is one — is "just an offence and wouldn't mean a by-election could be in the offing."

Doug Whitley, PC campaign manager, believes the practice to be perfectly legitimate".

Changing Over

The Rotary Club of Belleville elected a new executive with Rob Graham taking over the presidency from Glynn Reynolds. Mr. Graham, left, is accepting the position pledged to carry on the Rotary tradition of community involvement...

Berton Selected For Peace Award

TWEED — Pierre Berton writer and TV personality, has been named Man-of-the-year and granted the peace award, given annually by the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park.

The award is given to people who have made outstanding contributions to Canadian unity and world peace. The award will be presented on Mr. Berton at the 8th annual Peace Park Festival, to be held July 13 at 2 p.m. at the park, on Highway 7 between Madoc and Belleville.

Former award winners were Robert Kubaby, Dominion president of the Royal Canadian Legion; Judge J.C. Anderson, Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian radio-Television Commission; Hon. John Robarts, then premier of Ontario and Stanley Knowles, MP.

Friends of the Peace Park awards are given to local citizens who have assisted the park since it opened in 1967. This year's winners are Les Rawlings, manager, Bank of Montreal; Jack Nolan, Mrs. Alice Reavie and Irene Jones.

An arts, crafts and hobby show will also be held during the Peace Festival.

Meetings Planned On Centennial

The first of three public meeting to discuss the planning of Belleville's centennial in 1978 has been scheduled for Sept. 30 at Bayview Secondary School.

The location and exact time will be announced at a later date.

For the past few months a steering committee headed by Mayor Garnet Rollins, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has been holding regular meetings to discuss the proper way to go about handling the city's centennial.

Early in June the committee consisting of representatives of the city as industry, business, recreation the arts, school and civic administration heard a report from Dominion Public Relations Ltd. of Belleville's centennial in 1978 has been received by Mayor Rollins.

The report recommended that the Chamber of Commerce, the Belleville Centennial Committee and the Belleville Public School Board each appoint two members to a joint committee to meet with the consultants.

Among the suggestions the two were to those attending were the necessity of planning early for the 1978 celebration, importance of having a wide variety of activities and of involving as many people as possible in the festivities.

Future public meetings will be announced at time goes by.

Hees Machine Effective As National Tide Turns

By COLIN BRUCE

TRENTON — Per George Hees, election night brought relief, satisfaction and disappointment.

Locally, Mr. Hees was a strong winner. Though not as impressive a victor as in his 8,855-vote landslide in 1972, he and his party machinery captured 21,497 votes or 54 per cent of the ballots cast.

True to form, he worked his way through the campaign office crowds, shaking hands and joking with old friends . . . but he was looking for a personal and a national margin that didn't materialize.

Both goals suffered through a common ailment, the unpredictable nature of the voter.

Locally Mr. Hees wanted to increase his majority. While it slipped 3,000 votes, he told a Trenton Country Club crowd he was pleased. "We've got a good majority."

During the evening Mr. Hees spent most of his time listening to poll returns and following the nationals in a small office, of the main committee room.

"We've got an extremely good majority . . . considering the way the rest of the country has gone," he said.

Waiting in the campaign quarters Mr. Hees said "the strain is over".

"It's a tiring thing and I'm glad it's finished," he said, referring to a campaign he felt could be condensed from six to four weeks and made more economical.

The national loss comes as a tough blow to the PC incumbent who was called on as a national campaigner as well as handling his local commitments.

The first real sign of election loss Mr. Hees had last night was upon hearing the news that New Democratic Leader David Lewis had lost his Metro Toronto seat.

Mr. Hees found that situation "incredible".

"I've nothing to say at the moment," Mr. Hees said as the Liberal trend began showing itself. "I'm very disappointed so far nationally."

The next comments he made were at the country club where he spoke only briefly and continued on his rounds shaking outstretched hands.

In the hurly-burly of post-election confusion, Mr. Hees had little time to comment in depth on the election results.

Winners

George Hees' campaign manager, Doug Whitley, above, was confident as poll-by-poll results rolled in. Early in the evening the successful candidate, left, expressed his gratitude to workers in his cause and accepted their congratulations as it became obvious that he would again represent Prince Edward - Hastings in the House of Commons.

Hees Total Smaller But Wins

TRENTON — For the past two elections Trenton insurance agent Doug Whitley has manned the campaign helm for Prince Edward — Hastings PC candidate George Hees.

He's watched the Hees margin climb, beginning in 1968 when he out-stepped Georges Cunningham by 3,000 votes. Four years later the Hees campaign moved 8,000 votes ahead of the field.

"This election we wanted to get a 12,000-vote spread," said Mr. Whitley shortly before the voting returns began pouring in. But the wave turned on the Conservatives this time in favor of David Lewis and left the majority of 72 was cut, by Mr. Cunningham crowing within 7,000 ballots.

"The goal of this election was to increase our majority to 12,000 . . . something that would put George in good position for a top federal cabinet post . . . possibly national defence or trade and commerce," said Mr. Whitley.

One of Mr. Whitley's major duties in the past six weeks has been the executive management of the Hees campaign calendar.

"I haven't been trying to tell the riding officials how to work . . . They've been winning elections for the Tories for a long time," said Mr. Whitley.

"We (riding association) just polished things at election," he said. "George has more to teach about campaigning than he has to learn.

"We worked hard and we had a great response," said Mr. Whitley.

Victory Marred By Tory Collapse

TRENTON Progressive Conservative party faithfuls in Prince Edward — Hastings stood quietly for the most part election night, as election results unfolded the way everyone knew they would.

Once the cream run out coffee stopped flowing, smokers headed for the doorways of the small Quinte Street office, escaping the clammy, uncomfortable din of the headquarters.

Poll after poll came in showing George Hees still the riding's choice.

In spite of the strong local victory, melancholy set over the crowd as it watched the national statistics showing the weak party showing across the country.

Early in the evening, when Newfoundland's polls began arriving, followed closely by the results from the Maritimes and Quebec, local Tories shrugged off Liberal supremacy in their anticipated strong area.

The stronger the Liberals looked, the quieter the Hees campaign quarters became. By 10:30 — still with a handful of polls to come in — the committee rooms were bare, save for the coffee cups and scraps of paper covering the floor.

Last to leave the office were the campaign chairman and headquarters manager who manned telephones in an air conditioned room off the main room.

The entire show, lock, stock and barrel transferred itself to the Trenton Country Club where Liberal supporters of Hees would thank his workers and those who voted for him and make some explanation for the Liberal majority.

The first and only cheer of the night came when Mr. Hees entered the upper room of the country club — already busier than the campaign office — and shook hands by followers.

Last night it was bittersweet for the PCs of Prince Edward — Hastings, — a riding that has had considerable, saddened at the prospects of four years of Liberalism.

Happy Losers

The taste of defeat wasn't bitter for George Cunningham, Liberal hopeful in Prince Edward. - Hastings, and his campaign manager and wife Anna. They narrowed George Hees' winning margin this time and watched jubilantly as fellow Liberals swept to a majority in Parliament.

Winning While Losing Sparks Liberal Hopes

By COLIN BRUCE

TRENTON — George Cunningham — a three time loser for the Prince Edward — Hastings Liberal Association.

— said Monday night he would accept nomination in the next election.

Mr. Cunningham, a geography teacher at Trenton High School, lost by an increasing margin between 1968 and 1972, dropping the last election by 9,800 votes.

Early Monday he refused to comment whether he would seek the riding and for a fourth time, saying he wanted to see how the election turned out.

As the results rolled in from the riding's 194 polls, Mr. Cunningham began showing signs of strain though the vote was strongly in favor of the PC incumbent, George Hees.

He said there would have to be a "substantial increase in the Liberal vote before he would consider accepting the nomination."

When it was evident the Liberals would slice 2,000 votes from Mr. Hees' comfortable majority, Mr. Cunningham said he'd run again.

Drawing on the strength of Liberal Agriculture minister Eugene Whelan, Mr. Cunningham plugged throughout his campaign the need for a fair, financial return for the hours worked by the farmer.

"It is the rural area where I will get my strength," said Mr. Cunningham. "I've got to have the rural vote."

He says a major problem for his party is "a general public apathy".

"People hate to be bothered with an election during the holiday period," he said.

"If I hadn't made gains in the riding, I would have been absolutely crazy to run again," he said.

Mr. Cunningham tried a new approach in his campaign this time around, winning only moderate success.

Rather than attempting to "hit all the parades and hypocrisy all around he riding," he picked the week Liberal polling areas and knocked on every door.

"Where I lost four to one last time, I lost two to one Monday night."

When his wife and campaign manager, Rena was told Mr. Cunningham would accept another nomination, all she could say was, "He would!"

It's All Over Now

The New Democratic Party picked up vote support in Prince Edward — Hastings riding in Monday's election but candidate Hayley Gottfried still came in a low third in the traditionally Tory riding. Above, the NDP candidate and his wife Lynne accept defeat, although there was a 600-vote party gain over the last election.

Gottfried Happy in Defeat

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON — Defeated last night in his bid for election in the riding of Prince Edward Hastings, federal candidate for the New Democratic Party Harvey Gottfried retains optimism for development of a strong riding organization here.

"We are increasing the vote substantially - in Prince Edward County and we are very pleased with that," he observed.

Party gains were noted by the candidate both in town and rural ridings.

"Now now I can do some real thinking," he a sid.

"We had only 10 per cent of the vote last time and could probably expect only an increase in the vote this time."

"We are very, very pleased with it," smiled the defeated candidate.

Asked why he felt his party this time had made inroads in a traditionally Tory riding, Mr. Gottfried attributed success to "a lot of work".

"It was a lot of hard work, a lot of convincing and a lot of talking to the voters," interjected his campaign manager Richard Sutton.

Mr. Gottfried said that he had knocked on approximately 12,000 doors in the riding during his campaign and felt that he had gained both Liberal and Conservative support.

"I'm extremely grateful to my supporters," he added.

The candidate commented that he felt the voters' disillusionment with both the opposition parties helped to spell added votes for the NDP.

The NDP has realistic policies," he stated.

Undaunted by his defeat, Harvey Gottfried, a 32-year-old physics teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute said that he would probably seek his party's nomination a second time as a candidate in the Prince Edward - Hastings riding.

Mr. Gottfried offered congratulations to victorious Progressive Conservative candidate George Hees last night and added that he would concede the election as soon as he could reach the winner.

"I am sure he will continue to represent Prince Edward — Hastings well," he said.

Gain Elates Campaign Team

PICTON — Richard Sutton, campaign manager for Harvey Gottfried, Federal candidate for the New Democratic Party for the Prince Edward — Hastings riding expressed optimism last night for the future of the Party.

"Despite from the early returns, it was a tremendous push forward," commented Mr. Sutton, who experienced his first year as campaign manager for the NDP.

Support came, said the campaign manager, from a small businessmen, professionals, professional people, workers and farmers to name just a few. Campaign workers were youth oriented who gained considerable experience during the recent campaign.

"We are very disappointed," added Mr. Sutton, "but we have a David Lewis" to meet and are very concerned over the possibility of a Liberal majority, because the New Democratic Party had very positive ideas. Many people in Canada are just now beginning to realize the value of our ideas."

NDP Workers Like Upswing in Vote

By TERRY SPRAGUE

PICTON — An air of jubilation predominated in the New Democratic Party committee room in Picton last night as results from the various polls flowed in.

Shouts and cheers filled the room when the first poll showed Harvey Gottfried for the NDP as compared to the Conservatives.

One example was 84 votes from poll 15 where there had been 5 in the last election. Although the poll boundaries had changed somewhat this year, the upsurge was noteworthy.

Here cheers cascaded from the committee room when the NDP won a poll at Prince Edward Heights.

Harvey Gottfried, federal candidate for the New Democratic Party in the Prince Edward - Hastings riding, found that his own poll had shot up from the last election's 12 votes to 64.

Campaign workers for Harvey Gottfried expressed satisfaction with many polls throughout the riding showing a substantial gain in voter interest. Much of this year's success was attributed to mixed emotions over the sign and post accompaniment of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties, thereby prompting many voters to vote NDP.

In the 1972 election, New Democratic Party candidate Richard Laing polled a total of 3,178 votes. This year, NDP candidate, Harvey Gottfried polled 3,794 votes.

Burgess Will Run In Next Election

By BOB HUGGAN

As the polls closed last night in Prince Edward — Hastings, independent candidate Bryan Burgess' busy illustrating his independence. He was free to smile!

"That's how I've spent election day," said Burgess. "I figured there was no point in getting excited."

Burgess had estimated that he'd either get five or 10 votes — or he'd win!

Despite the fact that he'd spent no money on advertising of any kind, and had erected no signs — not even on his own property — he thought he had a good chance of getting his message over.

The campaign workers were youth oriented who gained considerable experience during the recent campaign.

"That the only hope for Canada is a Parliament made of independent members," says Burgess. "Nationalism began with government by independents. There were no parties originally.

"Even George Washington didn't believe in parties. And you can see what the party system has done to the United States."

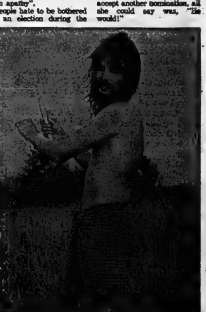
Burgess said that he tried to convince the voters in his party not to vote for a candidate who would simply be a "Yes man" for a party in Ottawa. Instead he suggested, they should vote for a man who would be responsible only to the people of his riding.

As the early results began to come in over the radio in Burgess' home — he had no campaign headquarters, no staff — and it was obvious that he'd lost, Burgess' family and friends began to arrive. With all polls counted, his total was 276.

"I want more people to be aware that there is an alternative to the established parties."

Burgess said that he first became interested in standing when young hitch-hikers he picked up told him they weren't going to vote because there was nobody they could vote for.

"I decided that I would have to give them someone they could honestly select as their candidate."



The biggest disappointment of the campaign in Prince Edward — Hastings, as far as Burgess is concerned, was that his pollsters weren't mentioned.

"Put one third of this riding is affected by polluted water," he added. "I'd like to know what happened to the supposed Great Lakes cleanup."

During the campaign, Burgess said that what he was really doing was applying for a job, that his application has been rejected, so has no real definite plans for the future until the next election.

"So I've got lots of ideas," he said. "Several good short stories should come out of my election experiences, and I plan to farm some of my 80 acres next year.

"Oh, and I might just try to get someone to produce a new kite-flying control I've invented . . ."

Flying High

Though the number of votes he polled was low, Bryan Burgess' spirits were as high as the kite he was flying when polls closed last night. Burgess, Independent candidate for Prince Edward - Hastings said he'd begin campaigning immediately for the next election if not more than 200 votes in this one, He received 276.

Better Showing Pleases Manager

TRENTON — Two years ago Liberal candidate George Cunningham was swamped when PC George Hees walked off with a 9,800 vote majority.

This year the Liberals pulled within 7,000 votes, the fulfillment of one of Rena Cunningham's election goals.

"I sometimes feel it's tougher to sit at home and listen to all the guff you hear and read about your husband than it is to get into the action," she said, acting as her husband's campaign manager.

This spring marked Mrs. Cunningham's first election experience and she is blunt in saying "a lot of Prince Edward - Hastings Liberals have a defeatist, apathetic attitude."

"It's tough in a traditionally Tory riding," she said. "It gets rough and it gets down ward — Hastings said he'd begin campaigning immediately for the next election if not more than 200 votes in this one, He received 276.

the incentive."

In quiting her husband's campaign, she noted a stronger, more permanent Liberal organization must be set up in the riding. "We have to get the people stirred up."

A new candidate shouldn't have to scratch from the bottom up to fill organization posts," she said.

Mrs. Cunningham charged the Liberal approach slightly in her election having her husband returned to polling areas rather than attempting to keep control at the committee rooms.

Polls that Mr. Cunningham dropped four to one last time, he dropped two to one this election.

"We didn't expect it - we, we wanted to grow," she said.

There's always something you'd do differently — something you'd do more of," said Mrs. Cunningham.

A Liberal Majority

Once again Canada has elected a majority government and it remains for the next four years to determine where this will lead us.

Given the record of the Trudeau government thus far, and especially this last time around, the result is surprising enough. But it IS a majority government, and more important perhaps, to the extent that it has been in office for six years, it is an experienced government.

Unhappily, this does not mean necessarily that we are in the best of hands. One of the prime causes of domestic inflation has been the extravagance of this very government, Voters, moreover, by indicating that this concerns them scarcely at all, may find they will have to pay for it later on. Unless of course, the government itself decides to draw rein and effect some form of price and income control.

For the moment though the Conservatives to a large extent may blame pious for such a program for their defeat.

It has been a personal triumph for a rejuvenated Pierre Trudeau. For Robert Stanfield and his Conservatives it has been a disappointment just when it seemed as if they had something going for them. For a defeated David Lewis of the New Democratic Party it was a poignant farewell to a long and dedicated career. The balance of power held by the NDP kept the Liberals in office for the past 18 months, then helped defeat them, only to have them rise phoenix-like from the ashes to this new and significant victory. For Real Caouette and the Creditistes in Quebec it was an affirmation of surprising strength at a time when the party and its leader were believed to be in decline.

The Liberals still have much to learn of prudence and wisdom in the resolution of the problems facing the country. Inflation was the main election issue, although it must be acknowledged there are indeed other problems too. The best we can hope for over the next four years is a more mature government and an electorate that becomes more attuned to all the country's concerns.

Averting Tragedy

As invariably happens, last weekend in the Quinte area brought a crop of mishaps of one kind or another,

At the same time it is encouraging when vigilance prevents potential tragedy. There were at least two such occurrences in recent days.

One was in the nature of a freak accident, a nine-year-old Ajax boy receiving an electric shock while swimming near a conduit pipe carrying electric power to the Belleville yacht club basin. The youngster was taken to hospital and revived.

Then there was the potential fire disaster on Front Street that was averted by good police work. Two officers on patrol in the area of the footbridge arrested a man who allegedly placed a lighted match to a wooden garbage can behind a store. If the fire had gained hold, this would have been the second blaze in the downtown area within a short time.

Still on this theme of preventive measures, we hope Ontario transport minister John Rhodes follows through with a government plan under consideration that would reduce speed limits on provincial expressways running through urban areas.

Experience in the United States has shown that this reduces accidents and fatalities.

One last pointer in this context. The Intelligencer in its recent Summer supplement ran a centrefold on water safety. Sponsored by service clubs and other community organizations, the advice contained therein could save someone's life.

Carelessness costs hundreds of lives every year in the water and on the highways. Attention to rules of safety on the other hand could help prevent some of these fatalities at least.

A World in Economic Trouble

Is Science Council Of Canada Espousing 'Zero Growth?'

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Ah, the ways of science!
The world is in the deepest economic trouble in 40 years—and some of Canada's top scientist-bureaucrats want to drop everything and study the "problem" of too much economic growth.

The Science Council of Canada, in its recently published annual report, has announced its intention of undertaking a major inquiry into the limits of growth.

From the way the council states the question, it appears close to having decided already that growth ought to be stopped.

In the past few years, "zero growth" has become something of a fad among the intellectuals, who fancy themselves as forming the avant-garde.

The fad started with the publication of a report—The Limits of Growth—by a study group at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It forecast world economic collapse in the first half of the 21st century unless the growth of population and economics was halted as soon as possible.

The theory has caught on with authors, educationists and other individuals whose special concerns range from environmental conservation to the destruction of capitalism.

Whatever their orientation—they tend to see in Western society a mindless pursuit of material growth and ever-exploitation of the earth's resources.

But who is really being intellectual? It could well be the people who accept the MIT gloom-and-doom scenario without looking at the supporting evidence.

According to another group of academic researchers at the University of Sussex, the MIT forecasters made extremely conservative estimates of the world's oil reserves, the potential for greater farm production, and the significance of technological advances.

Have the prospects of zero growth really explored the implications of the course they suggest?

Let's say that all the economists of the world could be frozen at once tomorrow. No more growth, no more real raises—just the same thing, day after day, in perpetuity.

That might be pleasant for those who have it made — especially so, perhaps, for scientists who could then carry out their research without all those complications that are always being introduced by the unpredictable things people do.

Not so pleasant, though, for the have-nots. Not having a car, a TV or decent housing is not nearly as uplifting as the anti-materialists might think.

Some kinds of economic growth may indeed be undesirable.

If so, democratic governments have the means at their disposal to encourage growth in those areas that enhance the quality and dignity of human life.

Today, with worldwide inflation soaring, demand declining, and a recession threatening—if not already under way—it is a waste of time and money for scientists to pursue a discredited intellectual fad.

The world needs a real annual increase in Gross National Product is not just a statistic. It means more jobs, more goods, more happiness and fulfillment in the lives of millions of people.

And what's wrong with economic growth, only or without the help of the science council, would mean a greater measure of poverty, despair and family strife.

Let's keep our glorious growth.

The Soviet Army occupation forces present notwithstanding, the external changes in the Eastern European countries have been substantial in the last decade.

The exception is tragic, down-trodden Czechoslovakia, under the heel of that country's hard Stalinist leaders. But in Romania and Hungary, there are permitting relations with the West, West European goods to come in, Romanian and Hungarian tourists to go out, is now about 10 years old.

Some say this kind of change has been most noticeable in Hungary, probably because all comparisons are made with 1956 when the country rose in bitter and unsuccessful revolt against the Russians.

Many of the freedom fighters who fled illegally into Switzerland as the anti-Soviet revolt was being crushed, have been back more than once.

If there were an inherent personal danger for them in going home, the Hungarians not made use of their own questionaire when applying for a visa which asks when you last left Hungary and under what circumstances.

Western music and customs, which add the inevitable Magyar joie de vivre, fine food and country hospitality, have boosted the hard currency earnings of the Hungarian Communist government.

Perhaps the most unpredictable tourists to go out, is now the Hungarian Communist leader installed by the Russians in 1956, Janos Kadar, rules with a light hand, avoidance of brutal secret police methods, open borders and a more-or-less laissez faire economic policy, as much as you can call it that within a Marxist economic system.

For Mr. Kadar and his so-called "moderate" economic planners, all this has paid off handsomely, even though the thick-headed Russian military leaders in the country probably privately resent the changes.

But presumably they have been told by their military masters in Moscow that detente is the order of the day in East-West relations and to let him, which they do.

Trying to find a Russian soldier in uniform in Budapest is like trying to find a U.S. one in downtown Tokyo. The word is out in both places, the locals don't like the foreign troops, so keep a low profile.

To what extent has the thaw really penetrated in Hungary, in spite of the open measures of relaxation? Who can really tell? At anytime in a Marxist system someone can turn the clock back overnight, even at the risk of another Czechoslovak uprising of 1968 or another Hungarian one like 1956.

If we scan the Eastern European countries in the Soviet bloc the order of so-called "liberalizing" of the system could look like this.

Romania comes first with her almost-bad-not-quite nothing of Moscow in public on almost any issue. Poland and Czechoslowkia, in the long era of the Gomulka-Gierek regime and the Novotny-Husak period of 1968 or another Hungarian one like 1956.

Just Too Many Tories To Suit Grace Stalker

By SHARON ARBIART
Staff Reporter

Frontenac - Lennox — Addington voters turned down the "different kind of choice" Grace Stalker, Liberal, says she offered them Monday when they rejected Progressive Conservative Douglas Alkenbrack of Parliament to continue more than 90 years of Tory rule in the riding.

Mrs. Stalker, 56, a hometown candidate and experienced campaigner, expressed disappointment Monday night at her loss by 3,000 votes.

There are just too damned many Conservatives," she said in a telephone interview. "I'd like to have done better but in the time at my disposal we did the best we could."

Mrs. Stalker, who says she felt she "ran a good campaign" with lots of workers and lots of enthusiasm" led the polls in Lennox and Addington and Ernestville as well as two of three polls in the home township, South Fredericksburg.

Napanee recaptured a "hide-bound Tory stronghold" she said.

The candidate, currently one of two women directors of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and a representative to the Consumers' Association of Canada from the OFA, began her campaign in the 130-800 long riding on the premise "no Liberal woman candidate has ever been defeated in the riding".

But the fighting stand and an endless round of stumping with the aid of the enthusiastic Liberal campaign organization weren't enough to swing the riding to the Liberals despite the national party sweep.

However, Mrs. Stalker drew more votes than the 9,256 votes Peter MacKinnon who carried the Liberal banner in 1972 received.

Mrs. Stalker attributes the increased Liberal vote to a change in the composition of the riding's nearly 40,000 voters.

"We have more young mobile people now, not tied to a voting pattern. As I knocked on doors I found a lot of people who weren't voting a certain way just because their parents did."

Early Monday, Mrs. Stalker expressed satisfaction with her efforts in the federal office for the first time.

"I think I've done all I can," she said, adding that she based her campaign on "a need for change".

"This riding has been Conservative for 90 years and voting taken for granted. The system isn't serviced as it should be," she said.

"We need a Liberal in a Liberal government."

After the votes were tabulated Monday night, Mrs. Stalker said that while nationally "the people showed awfully good sense", Frontenac, Lennox — Addington is "once again the forgotten land".

Stanfield Pill Too Bitter: Alkenbrack

By ISABEL HUGGAN
Staff Reporter

"I'd have to say it's pretty happy right now," said Conservative Douglas Alkenbrack last night on arrival at his campaign headquarters in Napanee.

Returned to office as Member of Parliament for the riding of Frontenac — Lennox and Addington for the sixth time since he took office in 1962, Mr. Alkenbrack won the election with a majority of more than 3,000 votes over Liberal Grace Stalker.

Although the Conservative party lost ground on the national scene, Mr. Alkenbrack won by a healthy margin.

"I think my victory can be explained by saying that people know I've served the riding efficiently," Mr. Alkenbrack said in a telephone interview.

"I have looked after the interests of the little man. I'm a Conservative, yes, but in all sincerity I can say that first and foremost I'm a constituency man. And I think that's why people voted for me again."

During his campaign Mr. Alkenbrack based his platform heavily on national issues, following Robert Stanfield's lead in the fight against inflation.

"I've seen many of my constituents hurting badly about the rising cost of living.

"I think Stanfield is on the right track, but it looks as if his medicine was just too bitter for people to swallow.

"It may mean that we have to look for different leadership in the party now."

Since the Liberal party has been given a mandate to govern the country "it's high time they did something," Mr. Alkenbrack said.

He intends to continue his fight against the prices re-forms instituted by the federal government in his riding, although this was not a key issue in his campaign.

Nevertheless, he is set to battle the pilot plan for industrial work at Joyceville Penitentiary, and the accompanying scheme to pay prisoner-workers a minimum wage for assembly-line labor.

"This kind of unfair competition to outside businesses shouldn't be allowed," said Mr. Alkenbrack.

"People have enough trouble with inflation without paying tax to subsidize payment of prisoners.

"I also think that payment will lessen the deterrent intention of the law. Rehabilitation can go on without payment — it's a matter of training, not reward."

In the largely rural riding of Frontenac—Lennox and Addington, long Conservative stronghold, Mr. Alkenbrack spent much of his campaign travelling from one small centre to another, strengthening his direct contact with the constituents.

He also directed more attention to the young voters in the 18-25 year-old age-bracket, stressing the value of the Young Progressive Conservative organization as a political force.

A member of the party himself since the age of 18, Mr. Alkenbrack has a long history of political activity prior to his parliamentary career. As Napanee councillor, deputy reeve, reeve and mayor, he served the area in which he has lived all his life.

Born in Rydal Bank, 53 years ago, Douglas Alkenbrack still owns the family farm in Richmond Township and lives in Napanee with his wife Nan. His son Doug is a Napanee physician, and his daughter Eleanor Jeanne lives in nearby Kingston.

Mr. Alkenbrack said last night his immediate plans were "to go to my home and have a good night's sleep" and then to resume his representation of those people who are his special concern — the farmer, the small business man, the older citizens and the veterans, as well as all the other constituents who need his assistance.

Bill Kurchak Would Like Time to Get Acquainted

The Liberal campaign in Hastings was a team effort — with Bill Kurchak acting as campaign manager for his wife Marie.

If he had it to do over again, he would change two things. He'd like to have had more time to get acquainted with the riding and its people, and he'd hit the issues harder.

"I'm not disappointed, because we worked hard," he said of his wife's defeat. "I did like under dog races."

The Quinte area is in a state of flux now, Mr. Kurchak feels.

"The whole Liberal thing is being revised here."

He said he was elated at the Liberal majority across Canada. "My father has a majority government than Marie in a minority government."

The next election is so far away, Mr. Kurchak said, that he had no idea how he would run a future campaign.

He said he feels sorry for eastern Ontario.

"Eastern Ontario is locked in with opposition members for four years. They are ineffectual in doing things for their ridings."

Kurchak made quite a dint in it," he remarked to his wife when they first met after the returns were in.

He is a newcomer to an area. Mr. Kurchak said "There's no better way than campaigning to meet the people you're going to live among for the rest of your life."

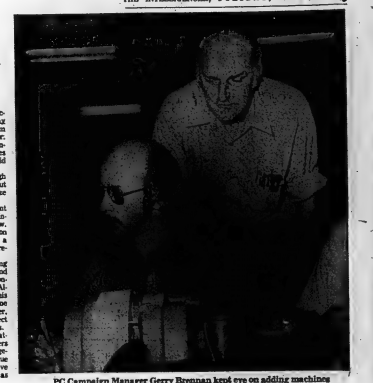
Canine Scrutineer Puts Bite on Voter

There's always time for a personal problem — even on election day.

In mid-afternoon Monday, as the voting bustle grs bubbling a man presented himself with a personal problem at the Ellis campaign headquarters on Front St.

He'd gone to vote at his East Hill polling station on a private residence — and been nipped as a trespasser by the household dog.

Conservative organizer Fred Deacon phoned the owner at work, decided that the dog had anti-rabies shots. But as a precaution, Mr. Deacon took the man for a hospital emergency checkup.



Grits Cheer Their Gains

TRENTON' — Prince Edward — Hastings Liberals knew what they were up against Monday night when the riding's 48,000 voters were herded to the polls.

While most put on a brave front, they still remembered the shellacking their candidate received in the last election dropping 9,000 votes behind PC George Hees.

In contrast to the Progressive Conservatives, the Liberals had something to cheer about. The Liberals were tabling the returns of local Liberal candidate, George Cunningham, was making strides in closing the 9,000 vote gap.

The committee rooms — located in a vacant garage — had a festive, party atmosphere. "I know we're losing here, but we're losing by less," said one old woman who refused to give her name.

Conservative Workers Cautious Until Finale

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There were times you could have sworn a ballot drop as the first election returns trickled into Hastings Conservative headquarters Monday night.

For the next two hours that sound, feeling gloomed — and undertone beneath the bustle of a campaign centre still unsure of victory.

Until the first poll counts. They were urban — Belleville — and heavily hinted the Liberal contender was maybe unconfirmed by close.

Minutes later, another poll showed just how close — 101 votes for Conservative Jack Ellis, 99 for Liberal Bill Kurchak. There were a few audible gasps.

The next two returns confounded the chagrin: Ellis 52, Kurchak, 80; Ellis 51, Kurchak, 44.

Then came a rural poll — Ellis 22, Kurchak 7, almost immediately followed another city poll — Ellis 74, Kurchak, 36.

Within 10 minutes the campaign rooms settled to seriously weigh the situation as each poll was posted.

What organizers were awaiting was returns from the Belleville area — Hastings traditionally almost totally and reliably Tory.

"We're going to lose votes in the city alright. But we'll win the country," said one campaign director with a mixture of concession and confidence.

The big color television set in the corner didn't ease the atmosphere as it covered the national returns.

"It looks like a big landslide," a crestfallen supporter said the president.

The rural votes began piling up, some of them prompting brief cheers. But through the gloom, Conservative workers were sprinkled with more city returns — showing Kurchak gaining — they reacted restrained.

One worker also noted the Kurchak had appeared to have gained a Liberal vote in some rural polls.

It was then an hour after voting closed a total of about 15,000 votes showed the unexpected slowness of the Conservative move to final victory.

Ellis 3950, Kurchak, 5111 — for a Conservative lead of 848.

As the rural reports gathered momentum the margin gradually widened. By 9.10 p.m. the Ellis lead was 1,330, and 10 minutes later 1,718.

"It's not bad — seeing how the rest of the country is going," said the organizer.

At 9.50 with the lead still building, Mr. Ellis strode into the campaign centre, the end of a day-long round through the riding. He was greeted by cheers and applause.

Mr. Ellis spoke briefly, then mingled with friends and supporters. The results kept trickling in, but the win had been assured in Hastings. Interest in the totals from the polls waned.

There was one more spurt of activity — which brought the loudest reaction of the night.

At 10.35 Marie Kurchak herself, followed by Liberal supporters marched into the committee rooms.

Both contestants, surrounded by their workers, exchanged pleasantries, then parted.

Mr. Ellis and his supporters left for the Conservative victory party.

Allan Lawrence Retains Seat

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

More than 76 per cent of the electorate in Northumberland — Durham turned out to vote yesterday and when it was all over at 12.30 a.m. Progressive Conservative incumbent Allan Lawrence had managed to retain his seat in the House of Commons.

Mr. Lawrence, who was trying to win his second term as an MP since he made the leap from provincial to federal politics in 1972, owed 338 of the riding's 215 polls and managed to secure 16,829 votes.

His closest rival was Allan Beckett, Liberal candidate who polled 14,895 votes.

Rose Walker, the Post Office employee from Cobourg who, carried the NDP banner, polled in 7,136 votes.

The election in Northumberland — Durham was a relatively quiet one. There were no local issues of any importance, and apart from the occasional skirmish over missing campaign posters, there was little political infighting among the candidates.

Here, as elsewhere, the issue of the day was inflation.

Mr. Lawrence confirmed that he had shed the label of being a Bay Street whiz who was attached to him in 1972 when he left a lucrative law cabinet post and his Metro Toronto riding of St. George to enter federal politics here, campaigned on Conservative policy of wage and price controls and the need to cut government spending.

He no longer felt he had as lustily his presence in the riding and according to his assistant campaign manager, Jim Gordon of Cobourg, concentrated on trying to secure a "good" vote plurality he won in 1972 when he defeated Liberal incumbent Russell Honey, now Hastings County Court Judge.

Mr. Lawrence's plurality, however, was cut by 637 votes this time around, as Liberal candidate Allan Beckett, a retired consulting economist from Toronto, increased the Liberals' take by 301 votes over their 1972 total.

In this election, Mr. Beckett, who moved into the riding shortly after the election was called, found himself running as a "newsider and according to the other candidates and Jim Wilson, the Liberal riding association president, had to fight a "tough" campaign to gain the recognition of the electorate.

NDP Candidate — Rose Walker drew heavily upon her background in local politics during this his first bid for federal office. In the past he has served as a member of the Northumberland and Newcastle board of education as chairman of the Hamilton Township planning board and for two years served as the president of the Cobourg District Labor Council.

Mr. Walker conducted an extensive door - to - door campaign in 70 selected polling areas in the northern portions of the riding and in the Cobourg area and managed to increase his party's final tally by 632 votes over that of 1972.

In this election the 4,000 new voters who swelled the election rolls from their 1972 figures did little to change the character of party support in the various areas of the riding.

In Cartwright township, on the northwest fringe of the riding, the voters' list grew by 17 per cent, but the Conservatives managed to sweep all seven polls as they did last time when there were only six.

The Conservatives also swept the rural townships of Clarke, South Monaghan, Alnwick and Percy.

The rural centres at Millbrook and Hastings also voted solidly Conservative with Lawrence winning all of these five polls.

In Manvers township, the Tories won six polls, while the Liberals won one.

Further south, the gap between the Liberals and the Conservatives narrowed somewhat as they split the eight polls in Hamilton Township.

In Cobourg's 31 polls, the Conservatives edged out the Liberals by taking 16, while the Liberals won 13. The NDP vote was cast well in Cobourg and the Liberals and Conservatives tied in one poll.

North of Cobourg, in Hamilton Township, the Conservatives walked away with 25 polls while the Liberals won only one.

Champagne Sours For NDP Workers

Strong emotion was absent from Bob Sanders' NDP campaign rooms as early election results quickly indicated another Tory victory in Hastings Riding.

Party workers seemed to accept the inevitable loss.

Once the trend was established workers turned their attention to the spread between their party's vote and that garnered by Conservative Jack Ellis.

"We'd thought we'd cut into the Ellis votes," said Doug Sweet, Quinte District Labor Council president. "It shows that he's not the overwhelming choice."

Labor representatives were strongly represented around the approximately 25 workers who arrived at the Bay of Seasons Hotel committee rooms.

"We didn't expect to win," said one worker, "but we did as well as could be expected for his (Mr. Sanders) first time out."

Election night started gloomily, with the discovery that neither radio nor television were provided to get election results quickly indicated another Tory victory in Hastings Riding.

NDP Marked Time

The NDP foothold in Hastings riding grew no stronger than that of 1972's federal election as hoped-for gains in Tyendinaga Township and north Hastings failed to materialize at the polls Monday.

Candidate Bob Sanders ran third with 5,261 votes.

Party workers had hoped for 15 per cent of the popular vote but a marginal drop was registered. Not one cent of votes cast went NDP, a drop from 19.3 per cent in 1972.

Again this year, the party failed to capture a Hastings poll. Mr. Sanders lost 140 votes from the 1,779 NDP Belleville total.

Disappointed party push north of Highway 7 did not pull in greater NDP votes.

Lack of 'Mechanics' Hurt Hastings NDP

"The majority Liberal government stands best to Parliament Hill Monday old not bold disappointments for Hastings NDP campaign executive member Chuck Williams said.

"If it was a minority government, then we'd be disappointed," he said during an interview in committee rooms Monday, "but with the Liberal tide, I think our showing is good."

However, Mr. MacWhirter said the popular vote percentage below 15 would be a disappointment.

He agreed with a statement made earlier by campaign manager Dick Williams that an NDP showing below 15 percent would be "dismally disappointing".

Mr. Williams was unavailable Monday. At present the campaign manager is in Europe on holidays.

Influencing the NDP's third place showing in Hastings was the mechanics of the campaign, said Mr. MacWhirter. "We could have improved upon the mechanics."

Search for committee rooms was thwarted by lack of funds, he said.

Most party workers, including Mr. Williams and Bob Sanders' official agent Ian Reid found jobs in the civilies interrupted by jobs.

Consequently days for party workers cut into time available for campaigning they said.

"Hey"and taking into account that the NDP doesn't get the greatest amount of publicity, I think we did very well.

"There does appear to be a Liberal tide. There's the sort of thing that hurts the NDP."

In an interview last week, campaign manager Mr. Williams said the party organization had put the big gest efforts into distributing policy-explanatory pamphlets.

This, plus a greatly improved organization in the downtown parts of the riding, would mean votes for the NDP, he fel.

He said it was one of the only "viable" campaigns for the party. Mr. Williams said more votes were expected from federal labor union members and from newcomers to the riding. Young people were also expected to vote NDP.

"These are the people we can convince and they can see that we're worthwhile."

He claimed this election served as education function for the NDP.

"I think we ran a fairly intensive campaign with the limitations of finances and people."

The sealed material includes arguments presented before U.S. District Judge John Sirica by the president's motion to quash the subpoena for the tapes and documents.

Eight justices heard argu- ments and will decide the case. Justice William Rehnquist dis- qualified himself because he is a former assistant to Mitchell, one of the defendants in the Wa- tergate coverup trial.

Rehnquist's absence raises the possibility of a 4-to-4 tie. This would uphold Sirica's or- der without establishing any precedent on the legal questions involved.

It's $400,000 for Amelia If She Avoids Men, Make-up

LEYLAND, England (AP) — Amelia Whaite, a Lancashire woman who stands to inherit more than $400,000 if she avoids men and makeup for five years, says she'll happily do it.

"I understand," she said, obeying the strict rules imposed by her dead boss.

"It hasn't made any differ- ence to my way of life," she said Monday.

Miss Whaite, 47, learned in March that wealthy retired Philip Grundy had left her $436,000. Miss Whaite had worked for him as a nurse-re- ceptionist for more than 30 years.

But certain inflexible condi- tions were specified by the de- ceased, a bachelor who died last December at the age of 69.

His will insisted that Amelia must "never use any lipstick or makeup of any kind what- soever—apart from clear nail polish—and wear no jewelry such as rings, earrings or neck- laces, and never go out with any man on her own, or with a party of men, during the next five years."

She maintained that her in- heritance came as "a complete surprise" when Du will was read nearly four months ago, but she added:

"I'm sure I will have no prob- lems keeping to the conditions of the will.

"I don't wear makeup or jew- elry during working hours, as I was one of Mr. Grundy's rules that the staff had to be as ty gienic as possible. Actually, I don't wear makeup at all.

"At the moment I have no idea what I will do with the money, but having to wait five years means that it keeps your outlook sensible. It's not like winning the football pools and suddenly being rich."

Canadian Pleads Sea Be Protected

CARACAS (CP) — Maurice Strong of Canada, head of the United Nations environment program, urged countries participating in the UN law of the sea conference to put selfish prejudices aside and work to preserve the quality of the marine environment.

The native of Oak Lake, Man., spoke Monday as the conference renewed its work on drafting a global treaty for use of the oceans following a three-day weekend to observe Venezuela's anniversary celebrations.

Meanwhile, African states added their weight to Arab demands that liberation movements be seated at the meeting, an issue which threatens to split the countries attending.

Noureddine Djoudi of Algeria, the Organization of African Unity's (OAU) assistant secretary-general, announced that the OAU would demand the presence of liberation movements from Africa and elsewhere.

Israel's chief delegate, Amiel Najar, has warned that his country opposes the presence of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) and other groups and is prepared to initiate a major debate on the issue.

"What is needed is a comprehensive ocean management system," Strong told the conference. "The use of the ocean must not leave them unusable."

Strong proposed 16 areas of international agreement that should be ratified immediately to prevent depletion of marine resources before other issues are resolved. While carefully avoiding such questions as the proposed 200-mile economic zone, Strong's suggestions are generally in agreement with Canada's position.

Canada has previously proposed that coastal states should have the right to protect their coastal waters from pollution and overfishing, even in the absence of adequate international laws.

Strong supported this view and added that "rational management of fisheries cannot be achieved within artificial boundaries." This is also in agreement with Canada's suggestion that the state be allowed to manage the whole of her continental shelf, even when this extends beyond the proposed 200 miles.

Pollutants, Strong said, are much like fish in that they do not respect artificial lines marking the limits of national jurisdiction. They must be adequately controlled both by coastal states and by an international body yet to be formed.

Retiring Fire Marshal Wants System Changed

TORONTO (CP) — Although Ontario annually spends $1 billion on fire protection, the province's retiring fire marshal thinks the money could be better spent.

Martin Hurst, 59, Ontario's top fire official for the last 14 years, said in an interview Monday that a study group should thoroughly investigate fire protection services.

"In the history of the Ontario fire service, our system has never gone through any major change," he said.

Mr. Hurst said he has been unduly conveying his doubts to his bosses for several years and his suspicions about efficiency, effectiveness have increased since Britain moved to larger firefighting units.

He said British brigades were reduced three months ago to 49 from 147 while Ontario's fire departments have grown to 532 from the 400 in existence in 1945.

Mr. Hurst said the British experience should be a model for Ontario and is a clear demonstration that economy of scale has brought about a more effective and efficient fire service.

"I don't believe we should spend more public money on fire protection under present system," he said.

"We need a very objective look at our service, ideally a task force on public fire protection in Ontario.-We are either totally wrong or the British are totally wrong."

Statistics from the fire marshal's office show that fire insurance premiums paid in Ontario in 1972 totalled $180 million. The cost of operating municipal fire departments that year was $103 million and property damage from fires was about $80 million.

Election '74

At The Poll, On The Phone, Behind The Wheel, Women Were Essential

Election Day would simply grind to a halt if it weren't for women.

Women occupy the key positions that keep the democratic process functioning.

Many are politically committed, and have worked for local candidates for weeks.

Some have done the enumerating, others have canvassed, and still others have held coffee parties or helped organize rallies.

Women become most noticeable during the actual business of voting. Acting as scrutineers and deputy returning officers, they staff the polling stations during election day.

During most elections the high number of women involved is attributed to the fact that women who work as housewives are easily able to volunteer their services.

This election, because of the holiday season, more women who ordinarily work outside the home could get involved during their vacation time.

Driving voters to polling stations, giving information on the phone, keeping and checking lists . . . and making the inevitable pots of coffee, Quinte women were in the eye of the hurricane yesterday.

Here are a few of the women who worked hard election day, representative of the hundreds of others in this area who are probably spending today with their feet up!

Janette Berry, office manager for Marie Kurchak's campaign, worked in every area of the Liberal headquarters. Here she makes notes at she spends a moment by the phone tables, where several other women handled calls during the day. An ex-high school teacher, Mrs. she decided after the 1973 election to become active in politics (as she had been in university) and has since worked as a party organizer and as a member of the Quinte district executive.

Margaret Orr has "always been involved" with the Conservative campaigns, and has been busy for the last month in the committee rooms of the Jack Ellis campaign. She is one of three women who have been at the heart of zonal activity — the other two are Peggy Perry and Bessie Shore — among the dozens of volunteers who have given their time to do the dozens of election-time jobs.

At the Church Street polls, Grace Marsh, Deputy Returning Officer and Anne Haley, Poll Clerk! do some of the paper work that is essential to the election procedure. This was a busy polling place, with a steady flow of voters keeping the women working hard all day.

Doreen Pearson, Scrutineer, in the Belleville cemetery polling station in Sidney township, has been involved in at least 15 federal, provincial and municipal elections, and still enjoys the excitement of election day. At left, Poll Clerk Dorothy Purdey, who became interested in politics through her husband Thomas' prompings has been an election day worker since 1968, when she first opened her home to the polls.

The Goldale Drive polling station was conducted in the home of Ann Smith, here serving homemade cookies to the election officers. From left to right, Wyn Kelly, Deputy Returning Officer, Fran Holcblat, Poll Clerk, and Joan Bennett, Scrutineer. This is the first time Mrs. Smith has offered her home during an election; the other women are long-time election workers except for Mrs. Hotchkiss who is a novice — "and enjoying it".

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common affections is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A recent med research laboratory has found a new healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. In pain-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a new substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Eat up less electricity

Thaw frozen foods thoroughly. This will shorten cooking time considerably.

Keep your pots and pans bright and shiny. They'll cook faster.

In the oven, use glass or ceramic utensils. This will allow you to reduce the oven temperature by as much as 25°.

Remove meat from the refrigerator at least an hour before cooking.

Use your toaster, and other small appliances, whenever possible. They use less electricity than your oven or range.

Avoid opening the oven door while food is cooking. Each time you do, you lose about 20% of the heat.

Choose cooking utensils that fit the elements properly. Pots and pans with straight sides, flat bottoms, and tightly fitting lids make best use of heat.

These are a few ways you can save electricity in your kitchen. Small ways...but they add up. If we each save a little, we'll all save a lot!

Business 'Not World' For Hydro Director

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean Pigott, president of Morrison Lamothe Foods Ltd., says she became a liberated woman when she turned 11 and learned to pay for family's bills.

She became president in 1967, when her father retired, but the 49-year-old executive says her training began much earlier, when her father, Cecil Morrison, realized she would one day take over the business.

"Father's an old Scot," she said. "We still wear the kilt on special family occasions, and it's possible for a woman to become chieftain of the clan. He had no sons and I was the oldest of three girls, so . . ."

Besides being president, with about 850 employees and sales of $18 million last year, Mrs. Pigott, 1st March became the first woman director of the Ontario Hydro Corporation.

"My interests don't conflict," she said. "I hate to be called a businesswoman. I'm a woman in business, sure, but that could never be my whole world."

After her marriage in 1955 to Arthur Pigott, she left the firm for 12 years to raise John, 17, David, 14 and Mary Jane, 11.

"I loved being home," she said. "I'd not retire, though. I tried a new recipe every day, partly to keep up with the food industry, and I read diaries or four newspapers a day to keep mentally alert and up to date."

Mrs. Pigott is not actively involved in the women's liberation movement, but she does not dismiss it lightly.

"I'm damn excited about it and women hold several key positions in my firm.

"A century from now, people will look back on what women have accomplished in the last 10 or 15 years and see this as one of the most revolutionary periods in history."

Mrs. Pigott was educated at Ottawa Ladies' College and Albert College in Belleville. Since the Harvard school of business didn't accept women then, she went abroad from 1948 to 1950 to study business practices in Germany, Switzerland and England.

The original one-horse bakery which her father started in 1914, on partnership with Richard Lamothe, has expanded to two plants, four cafeterias and catering services in Ottawa and Hull.

The frozen foods division is in Metropolitan Toronto, where Mrs. Pigott maintains an apartment. When she is away, she pays a sister-in-law to manage her Ottawa household.

Until illness restricted his activities last year, her husband worked as executive vice-president.

"No hassles," she said with a grin. "I was boss until quitting time. Then I became vice-president."

She has been chairman of Ottawa's regional hospital planning council for three years and sits on the district health council.

A forthright, articulate and persuasive speaker, she has never run for political office, but does not rule out the possibility. She is concerned about priorities in health care, especially for the aged; about inflation and food wastage.

She also expresses concern about what she considers inadequate planning and determination to safeguard Canada's independence.

"I was terribly excited about my appointment to the Ontario Hydro in March, because Hydro is an absolutely vital keystone to our future."

Mrs. Pigott said she doesn't feel out of place among men on the board room.

"I'm green, but already I see the same issues come on the agenda as in my own business: the cost of money, the environment, consumerism and so on.

"I think the men will accept me as long as I do my homework—and Hydro reports seem to be the only reading I have time for these days."

Mrs. Pigott, who said she was "terribly shocked" to learn at 19 of her dad's woman's place was "tending over the hearth and the washtubs," recalls learning to write her first cheque when she was 11.

"It was for a hydro bill. I couldn't understand why I should pay good money just to turn the lights on. Now I'm sure learning why in a hurry."

Jean Pigott

She Loves Trains

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cathy Newsome is learning to become a trainman. Or should it be trainperson or trainwoman?

Whatever the label, the 19-year-old is one of two young women in a class of 21 students trained by Canadian National Railways.

Miss Newsome says her choice of career has nothing to do with women's liberation.

"In fact, I enjoy being treated like a lady," she said with a smile.

It is simply a love of trains, a feeling she picked up from her brother "who has always been involved with trains."

It was he who was instrumental in getting me a job on the Prairie Dog Special."

The special is a non-profit project sponsored by the Vintage Locomotive Society which runs during the summer from the Charleswood, a western suburb, to Headingley, a few miles further west of Winnipeg. Miss Newsome was the official hostess on the train for three summers.

"Working on the Prairie Dog was the highlight of my summer," she said.

Training for the job entails switching trains in a railway yard and the course, just completed, involved two weeks of films and lectures and a week of job assignments.

A written examination involved a 67-page rule book containing 673 railway regulations.

After examinations, she was placed on the spare board, which means she is on 24-hour call.

Getting that far wasn't easy. She applied for a position in October, 1972, and received an application form "but not much optimism."

"From January to March of 1973 I bugged them."

Finally she was told she would be in a class by the end of May.

"I was led to believe that I would actually be accepted and it was very upsetting when I was told that improper facilities for training made it impossible".

Taking a job as a checker, she helped trainmen in the yards.

"As a checker I was using the same facilities as the trainmen, so the lack of facilities was just as serious by the time" she said.

She said she is getting less criticism from her male coworkers than she had anticipated.

"However, I do have to qualify my position and explain my opinions on women's lib to them."

Successful Living

Beat The Heat

By DORIS CLARK

In warm summer days we bless our good luck — but do we watch out for that hot sun and what it can do to us? Sometimes too much of it, too soon, can bring on heat exhaustion, or, worst of all, heat stroke. If we know about these things we can take our sun with a grain of common sense.

The Kitchener YMCA has written us a booklet called "Tips About the Summer", which goes into how to take care of our skins and body chemistry, and how to enjoy our hot days without going into a hot daze!

We like to be on hand to care of this newspaper for the leaflet, etc. which are 25 cents and a stamped envelope. It will help you prevent small — or large — heat disasters, and supply you with first aid measures when heat conditions do happen to you or yours.

Dear Doris: Someone asked for a poem about The Weavers. I'm reading "Tapestry Of My Life" in case this is what she has in mind.

I have one done in beautiful script printing. I bought several in The Weaver's Shop in Williamsburg, Virginia, and have had them framed and given them as gifts. — Clara.

Dear Clara: Your original poem is beautiful. However, I don't think it is the poem Mrs. F. H. was looking for, since I have received several copies of a four-verse poem called "The Weaver".

The philosophy is the same but the wording is really quite different. If anyone else would like a copy of "The Weavers" we will be glad to supply it, if they will just send in a stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents.

Thank you, all of you, who have forwarded versions of this fascinating theme in which life is compared to the warp and woof of a beautiful pattern; with dark threads as well as threads of gold and silver in the pattern He has planned.

Dear Doris: I am sending the name of the spiritual healer. He is in England, and needs only the request for prayers, the name and address of the sick person, and brief details of the affliction.

However, it is not possible to predict the outcome of every request for healing, and it should never be a substitute for a doctor and regular medical services.

Perhaps you have read that Governor George Wallace had been treated by a spiritual healer. The physical cure is being effected, slowly to be sure, but the amazing thing is that he is being spiritually healed. This often occurs, that the person receives a whole new set of spiritual values.

George Wallace was very open in his contempt for the black man, but now he respects them and they are returning that respect in even larger numbers.

Kids Dependents Too Long

DETROIT (AP) — American children aren't being taught self-sufficiency until it's almost too late, says Dr. S. I. Hayakawa.

The former president of San Francisco State College recommends several measures to cure what ails American youth, including revision of the child labor laws.

Hayakawa, to Detroit for the opening of a new building for the Detroit Institute of Technology (DIT), was outspoken about the problems facing 14-to 20-year-olds.

"We keep them out of the labor market and out of meaningful participation in adult life," he said. "No wonder they are bored and angry.

"We are treating them as dependent children until they are in their 20s. We are denying them the right to grow up and to take on responsibility."

He prescribed a healthy dose of the work-ethic medicine that he was given as a child during the depression, which he said raised adults that were quick to fit to handle the problems of society.

Ann Landers

Families Must Learn To Live with Addicts

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column most every day and hoped one day soon to see this letter in print. I might save the lives of some kids who are making the drug scene and perhaps help their families face the problem honestly and effectively.

Have you heard of the organization called Families Anonymous? It is for families faced with a drug problem caused by children, usually sisters, spouses, or parents. F. A. is patterned after A. A. Any person who is living with an addict, a person he believes is playing around with drugs, or even a suspected user, may attend these meetings. The purpose of F. A. is not to try and change the use or drugs (only that person can change himself), but to help the family live comfortably and alter their reaction to the person with the problem.

Believe me, Ann, it works. I was one of the lucky ones. I heard about F. A. and went to a meeting that very evening. Our daughter, 16, was a runaway. The first thing I learned was to shut up and get off her back. Though she continued to stay away from home, she remained in our neighborhood and kept in touch with us. Thank God she didn't hit the road and drop out of sight as so many kids do.

I didn't preach or threaten or get the juvenile authorities after her. Many parents do this and it's a big mistake. The authorities can do very little until a child has committed a crime.

Our daughter finally decided on her own, to stay home. She quit school (with my permission) and got a job slinging hash at a neighborhood cafe. But she's there every day, which is better than going to school, signing in and sneaking out at second period. She has even started a bank account to save for a car.

Things are not perfect—far from it—but they are a lot better. I'm still concerned when she's out with some of her weird friends, but I don't go running around the neighborhood at all hours looking for her and I've quit searching her room for drugs. Best of all: I'm able to sleep nights without taking pills.

I laid down a few rules: (1) No drugs in the house. (2) Her addict friends are not welcome in our home. (I didn't tell her I couldn't see them—her choice of companions is her business, not mine.) (3) She is responsible for herself. If she gets into trouble, she has to get herself out. (And believe me, kids can get themselves out, once they know their parents won't pop for bail.)

I've heard some tragic stories about people who have spent thousands of dollars on attorneys and hospitals for their kids, only to have the kids get back on the junk. One family I know spent almost $25,000. When they didn't have any more money to spend and threw in the towel, their daughter then turned herself in to a self-help place run by former addicts. She now has a good job, is off the stuff and had decided to stay in the group and help other addicts.

Please, Ann, print this letter in your column. You reach so many people. We don't have the money to advertise, although an occasional spot does appear on television as a public service.

Families Anonymous is listed in the phone book in most major cities.

Anyone who needs further information can write to: Marcia Silverman, 4725 Radford Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. Thank you.—A Friend

Dear Friend: Here's your letter and my thanks for writing. I know it's bound to help a great many people.

This Clerk Counts TNT Underground

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — At 7 a.m. each day, Pearl Torok rides a small elevator 2,000 feet down below the earth's surface.

She walks another 300 feet downwards to her stockroom where her first task is to inventory the explosives in the underground magazine.

Mrs. Torok is an underground stock clerk for Cargill's Cayuga Rock Salt Co. near here. And she is the first woman to work below the surface in the company's 98-year history.

After four years of working on the surface, Mrs. Torok was offered the underground assignment in May. The idea appealed to her, even though, until recently, miners believed the presence of a woman in the mines brought bad luck.

"At least, I wanted to try it," said the wife of a farmer and mother of four children, adding that she may remain in the same post until retirement.

Mrs. Torok manages all the underground stock, distributing equipment and tools and ordering replacements of materials when needed.

Liberals Romp Through Ontario Grabbing 18 Opposition Seats

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberals stroke through Ontario in Monday's federal general election, picking off enough seats from opposition parties in the big province to give Pierre Trudeau a big lift toward his new parliamentary majority.

They stole constituencies right and left from the Progressive Conservatives and the New Democratic Party. Among them was the York South riding of NDP Leader David Lewis, who lost to Ursula Appelbaum in the central Toronto city district.

In all, the Liberals seized 35 of Ontario's 88 seats, compared with the 26 the pitch when the party's fortunes sagged in the 1972 general election. They won 64 in 1968.

The Progressive Conservatives fell to 25 from 46 while the NDP dropped three seats to a total of eight.

All 11 of Ontario's cabinet ministers were returned, but the building was much on those nationally-known figures in the other parties.

One major casualty was Paul Hellyer, a former Liberal cabinet minister who defected three years ago and won Toronto Trinity as a Conservative in 1972. He was beaten by Liberal Aideen Nicholson, whom he had nosed out narrowly in the last election.

Another victim of the Liberals was Duff Roblin, former premier of Manitoba, who left the provincial Tories' job to join Conservatives in Ottawa. He was defeated by Liberal Lloyd Francis, a former Peterborough, Ont., mayor.

NDP incumbents who went down with Mr. Lewis were Terry Grier in Toronto Lakeshore and John Harney in Scarborough West, another Metro bloc of seats, where the Conservatives made big gains in 1972, swung back to the Liberals this time. The only non-Liberal survivors were New Democrats Andrew Brewin in Toronto Greenwood and John Gilbert in Toronto Broadview and Conservative James Gillies in Toronto Don Valley.

In all, the Liberals snatched 19 seats, one of them Stormont-Dundas which previously had been held by Independent Liberal Max Saltsman. Speaker of the Commons who retired from politics before the election. Ontario Transport Minister Fern Guindon left his post to try for the seat but was beaten out by Liberal Ed Lumley, mayor of Cornwall.

One of the surprises of the day was the way the Liberals knocked off a group of rural ridings generally regarded as firmly Conservative, apparently thanks to the campaigning of Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan. These were Peel-Dufferin-Simcoe, Essex-Middlesex-Lambton, Wellington and Lincoln. Wellington switched for the first time in 17 years.

Mr. Whelan retained his own Essex-Windsor seat against a threat from New Democrat Charles Brooks, head of a key local of the United Auto Workers in Windsor.

A major Liberal gain was in Niagara Falls—traditionally Liberal, but held by Joseph Skoglin for the Conservatives in the last election. He was beaten by Roger Young.

The previous Liberal holders of the seat were Lincoln MP and former cabinet minister, who this time campaigned for a defeated Conservative Bill Neville against Transport Minister John Turner in Ottawa-Carleton. But Mr. Turner came home to keep a majority of 11,000, about 3,000 better than he did in 1972.

In nearby Ottawa West, former broadcaster Peter Reilly also held the seat for the Liberals. Parliament, was upset narrowly by Liberal Lloyd Francis, one-time mayor of Ottawa and former MPP. Another nationally-known broadcast figure, Lorne Gallister, the CBC's chief parliamentary reporter, put up a stiff fight against Revenue Minister Herb Gray in York-Scarborough but missed by 4,756 votes.

While southern Ontario shifted politically, the northern part of the province maintained the status quo by electing nine Liberals and three New Democrats, the same as in 1972.

The big loh to the NDP was the loss of Mr. Lewis, 66, who had steered the party through its balance-of-power situation in the last parliament and has been its leader since 1971. His defeat immediately raised the question of whether he will continue as leader.

Mr. Lewis had held York south, with one interruption, for more than 10 years. His successful opponent is a 44-year-old lawyer and city alderman, whose husband, Lucio, ran as a Liberal against Mr. Lewis in 1972.

After her win, she said the people of the riding "were very annoyed at him for bringing an election."

"I feel sorry for him," she said. "But it had to be done."

Another beneficiary of Ontario Liberal tide was Norman Cafik, who in Ontario constituency had the country's narrowest margin—four votes—over former Conservative cabinet minister Frank McGee in the 1972 voting. This time, he had a margin of 2,400 over Conservative Joyce Bowerman.

Labor Minister John Munro also improved his grip on the multi-faculty despite a campaign by Conservative Jim Gillies, Etobicoke; Immigration Minister Robert Andras, Port Arthur; Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, Hamilton East.

Other successful Liberal catches were Donald C. Maddaugh, in Toronto Rosedale; Corporate Affairs Minister Herb Gray, Windsor West; Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie, Toronto-Etobicoke; Immigration Minister Robert Andras, Port Arthur; Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, Hamilton East.

Mr. Whelan's own Essex-Windsor seat was held by Liberal

Nine Elected

Record Number of Women Will Sit in New Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — A record nine women were elected Monday to sit in the Commons when Parliament reassures, and some will bring with them well-earned reputations as giant-killers.

Among the new female faces are Ursula Appollonl, a Toronto freelance writer and housewife who upset New Democratic arty Leader David Lewis in York South, and Aideen Nicholson who knocked off 17-year-ive Conservative heavy Paul Hellyer.

They are two of eight Liberal women who will sit in the 264-seat Commons.

The only Conservative winner was Flora MacDonald of Kingston and the Islands, her party's Indian and northern affairs critic. Miss MacDonald's first won her seat in 1972.

\ The new total of female MPs exceeds by three the previous high of six elected in the 1968 campaign.

Re-elected to the Commons are Science Minister Jeanne Sauve, Miss MacDonald, Monique Begin (L—Montreal-St-Michel), and Albanie Morin (L—Louis-Hebert).

Grace MacInnis, the NDP veteran from Vancouver-Kingsway, did not run again and none of her party's 42 female candidates were elected.

But her old riding fell to Liberal Simma Holt, an author and journalist, who overcame an 11,356 majority for Mrs. MacInnis in the 1972 election.

Another new face is Iola Campagnola, a Prince Rupert alderman who dropped a 4,866 majority away from former Manager and NDP stalwart Frank Howard in the northwestern British Columbia riding of Skeena.

The other woman is Colline Campbell (L—South Western Nova) who ousted Charles Haliburton in the only seat in Nova Scotia that the Liberals took from the Conservatives.

For Mrs. Appolonl and Miss Nicholson, the victories gained a measure of revenge over previous defeats.

Mrs. Apollonl's husband, Lucio, an immigration appeal judge, had run against Mr. Lewis in 1972, only to be defeated by 4,674 votes.

Miss Nicholson had been a candidate in 1972 against Mr. Hellyer, who was once a cabinet minister and Liberal leadership prospect, but who turned Conservative. Mr. Hellyer won in that election by 194 votes.

Flora MacDonald Might Lead PCs

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Flora MacDonald, 48.. Progressive Conservative incumbent in Kingston and the Islands, who returned Monday although her majority dropped sharply.

Miss MacDonald defeated Liberal Peter Watson by 17,795 votes to 13,957 Monday but in 1972 she won by more than 8,000 votes.

George Perlin, associate professor of political studies at Queens University and campaign consultant for Miss MacDonald said she is being considered for the party leadership should Robert Stanfield step down.

While playing down the possibility of running for the leadership, Miss MacDonald said she is looking forward to taking an active part in rebuilding the party.

"As the only woman in the Conservative caucus I expect I will be called on to do a lot of work strengthening the party and changing its image," she said.

Victor Over Lewis Can't Believe It

TORONTO (CP) — "I still can't believe it yet," Ursula Appollonl said from a boisterous celebration party in York South Monday night after her Liberal victory over New Democratic Party leader David Lewis.

Mrs. Appollonl, a housewife and free-lance writer, avenged the 1972 defeat of her husband Lucio, who lost to Mr. Lewis by about 4,500 votes. She had a clear lead as returns streamed in from the riding.

She said Mr. Lewis "did not pay much attention to his riding."

"People were very annoyed with him for bringing down the government. I feel sorry for him, but it had to be done."

Mrs. Appollonl, a native of Liverpool, England, who lived 11 years in Rome, said she was interested in "the social problems of immigrants and the mental health of everyone."

She said she wants to see the eligibility age for Canada Pension Plan benefits reduced to 60 from 65, and promised she will have plenty to say when the next Parliament opens.

Somebody asked her if she plans to remain silent during her first months as an MP.

"Are you kidding?" she asked.

Mr. Appollonl, a judge on the immigration appeal board, called his wife a woman of iron.

He said she only decided to run four months ago "and she has a lot to give."

"I'm sorry I'm not going to have her for four or five days a week as a wife, but it will be a gain for the people of York South. She will make a much better politician than I could ever be."

Mrs. Appollonl speaks fluent Italian. About 50 per cent of the York South residents are of Italian origin.

Judgment Reserved By Dief

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker reserved judgment Monday night on the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party in the wake of the defeat suffered by the party at the hands of the Liberals in the general election.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who had little trouble posting his 12th consecutive victory for the Conservatives in a federal election, declined to comment on the possible effect of the election on Robert Stanfield's leadership of the party. "It's too early to talk about those things."

The election of Mr. Diefenbaker in Prince Albert never was in doubt. He piled up a commanding early lead and finished the night with more than 5,300 more votes than the combined total of his three opponents.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his win "represents the first time in Canadian history that a candidate has won 12 successive general elections."

Mr. Diefenbaker, 78, said the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier had 11 consecutive victories during his reign as prime minister.

"I'm undismayed at the national result, but after all, the people have spoken and I accept the verdict," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"I do feel that the people of the Prairie provinces took their stand, and strongly, against the Trudeau government because too often in the last few years the West has been forgotten."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was "very sorry" to hear of the personal defeat of NDP Leader David Lewis. "I always had for him that respect which I give to political opponents who I regard as sincere."

Minority Government Best : Farmer

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The president of the National Farmers' Union said Monday night a minority government would have been better for Canada's farming community than a majority government.

Roy Atkinson made his comments in Saskatoon after Tuesday's election results gave Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal party a majority government.

Mr. Atkinson said minority governments are "more sensitive to policy changes regarding farmers" than majority governments.

In Jarvie, Alta., the president of Unifarm, a major Alberta farm organization, said he would reserve judgment on the government until he sees how it performs.

Dobson Lee said he "would be pleased" if the Liberals come through with promised changes in transportation policies and industrial development.

Mr. Lea credited the Liberals' strong showing in Ontario to an ... pa n—oAa policeand no acceptance of the policies of Agriculture Minister. Eugene Whelan.

Hellyer Beaten By Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Aideen Nicholson, a Conservative candidate in Toronto's Trinity riding , waged a long, low-budget campaign that ended in a giant-killer in Monday's federal election.

She defeated veteran Paul Hellyer—gathering 19,407 votes to the Progressive Conservative incumbent's 6,236—in the largely electric riding on the city's east end.

Both candidates attributed the win to the "national trend."

Miss Nicholson, 34, a social worker and native of Ireland, said in an interview it was "a vote of confidence in Canada because the Conservative campaign was so gloomy."

"In the riding what really paid off was having an early nomination and having more time to work," she said.

She was nominated more than a year ago following the 1972 race against the former Trudeau cabinet minister which she lost by only 194 votes.

Mr. Hellyer, one time transport minister left the Liberal caucus in 1972 because he disagreed with the government's economic policies.

Miss Nicholson said confusion among voters as to whether Mr. Hellyer represented—which was believed to have played part in the last election—had largely cleared up this time.

She said the Ontario Conservatives' price-and-income-control policy was not popular among many working-class constituents in Trinity because it seemed to pick the lid on their aspirations."

Party workers said her year-long campaign ran on a $12,500 budget. Mr. Hellyer estimated his campaign expenses at about $28,000.

He told party workers:

"Don't get the idea that we're just going to sit around—that's less of what I do."

He said he plans a few weeks' rest then will "take a crack at Journalism."

Miss Nicholson, a former director of women's reformatories for the Ontario government who was awarded a commendation medal in 1967 for her contribution to penal reform, said she is most interested in labor legislation and federal-provincial relations.

Hogan's Heroes Elect First Priest in House

HALIFAX (CP) — "Hogan's Heroes" came through Monday and the House of Commons has its first Roman Catholic priest.

He is a nice guy named Andrew Hogan with a reputation as a tough crusader for Cape Breton coal miners, who won Cape Breton-East Richmond for the New Democratic Party a bit ... he becomes the first third-party candidate to take a federal seat east of Quebec since 1957.

A sociologist and economist, Father Hogan defeated a lawyer-banker running for the Liberals and a previous analyst who placed third for the Progressive Conservatives.

The seat he won had been held since 1962 by Donald MacInnis, a Conservative, who did not run again.

In a telephone interview from Glace Bay Monday night, Father Hogan said he intends to concentrate "mainly on regional things," in the Commons.

But he volunteered an opinion that Canadian voters are in a period of "considerable confusion" in view of the election results nationally.

His broad-ranging views and experience—he was a hockey star and coach during his days at St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, N.S.—coupled with a quiet, concerned manner, appear to make him particularly appealing, despite his 29 years, to young people who worked for his campaign, including former students at St. Fx.

"Hogan's Heroes" was the name he dubbed on his campaign workers after they dredged up an apocryphal Pravda subeulation , he made to the Rand royal commission on coal in 1962. They posted the document in two paragraphs with the heading Hogan's Heroes on a wall of his headquarters.

Mr. ... Councillor ... a miner's life is constantly free of danger, of courage and he has to be a hero, albeit unknowingly all of the time," he wrote.

Citing ! 456 deaths in 60 years of Nova Scotia coal mining, he told the commission that "only a romantic fool and an ignoramus at that would brawl the loss of hundreds, dangerous and sometimes poisonous drudgery and its replacement by impersonally effective machinery."

Ellis Remains Mobile Despite Loss of 1,800 Hastings Votes Since '72

By HARRY MUIRHALL
Staff Reporter

In typical style Jack Ellis was on the move as the returns started coming in.

The question on mobility that has marked-his first fledgling four years as Conservative Hastings MP wasn't parked voting day.

He pushed through the riding, retracing his tracks as the polls closed.

By last night, he hadn't stopped to deflate in detail the significant aspects of his re-election in loss of more than 1,879 votes since 1972. The Liberals gained nearly 900 votes. Combined, Liberal, New Democratic and Social Credit parties outdrew the Conservative bid by slightly more than 1,000 votes.

But in a quick scan of returns available as he arrived in Belleville from stopovers at campaign offices in Bancroft and Madoc, Mr. Ellis did volunteer some impromptu summaries.

The spinoff of national reaction against Conservative price-incomes control was a major factor.

It may even have lost some support among traditional Conservative voters who could have stayed away from the polls.

"I dislike admitting it," said Mr. Ellis, "but, yes. There were perhaps some of the normal Conservative supporters who may have stayed away because of the (controls) policy."

That policy, "I think was a miscalculation by the national (party) association. I'm not critical of it. I was frankly — and still am — convinced that his policy or ... But the necessity remained absolutely necessary."

In fact, he's certain the next government will introduce a control policy in "some shape or form" in time to come.

A "new personality" always influences voting, he said. But the Liberal vote was "down some, the Conservative vote down some." But he preferred to await viewing the total results to pass full comment.

Does he feel chastened by the loss of votes?

"I don't think I'm being egotistical," says Mr. Ellis, "I think I've done a decent job over the past 18 months and as a consequence I've retained the seat."

And for the immediate future?

He'll be mobile.

As the new parliamentary session draws near he intends to "make a full sweep of the entire riding" in the mobile office he's been using this year. The objective is to "listen to the people to see what their points of view are."

Hastings 'repeater' Jack Ellis congratulated by Marie Kurchak

Riding Total Dips

The Hastings vote was down by 909 in Monday's federal election. Of 41,770 eligible voters in Hastings riding, 30,646 went to the polls Monday, compared to 31,555 in 1972.

Only one poll, in Bancroft, had not reported.

Voters gave Marie Kurchak 13,280 votes, 2,428 fewer than the 15,708 they gave Ellis. With this year's smaller turnout at the polls, the Liberals narrowed the margin of Tory victory by about a half — from 8,148 in 1972 to 2,428 Monday.

Belleville gave the Liberals 6,672 votes this time around, compared to 6,609 last time. The Conservative total fell from 8,527 two years ago to 7,283 Monday. Number of ballots cast in regular city polls were down 1,283 from the 1972 total of 18,906.

The Conservative strength fell in the county, from 8,153 to 7,124. The Liberals picked up from 4,695 in 1972 to 5,775.

Price Controls Cost Tory Votes

Waiting for the polls to close Monday night.

"This," concedes Gerry Brennan, "has been a tough one to read."

As a Conservative worker in Tory Hastings territory he's a veteran of victories. He had no doubt about the national spinoff of opposition — locally.

In 1972 he headed the campaign that sent Jack Ellis to Ottawa, as the latest heir to the local Tory succession. This election he held the same post.

But the dimensions of the campaign Mr. Brennan headed were not the polls definitive — when the polls came in.

They did. It was another Conservative win in Hastings. But with a reduced victory vote.

The ... was mostly ... nalama) upsurge of opposition to the nation Conservative price-income policy, believes Mr. Brennan.

"It's a protest vote against the controls, that's what it is," says Mr. Brennan as the dream of returns started to decline.

Yet the Liberals, — who ran newcomer Marie Kurchak, the Hastings Conservative first woman opponent, — also did "an excellent job."

In fact, all round it was a "clean and fair" campaign in which "everyone worked their heads off".

He honestly admitted surprise at the vote, which gave the Liberals take urban polls and make shore rural inroads. But "the real punch was obtained Mr. Ellis still goes to Ottawa.

Surprised. But not disappointed.

Again: "This has been a tough one to read. Not only in Hastings, but in every riding across Canada."

In fact, say the political veteran who's worked up from simple poll tasks to campaign director through 20 years of electioneering, this was the first election where it was impossible to grasp the electorate's response.

Maybe it was partially the weather. The contest came in from a room at the Four Seasons Motel.

When the election was called, she thought a riding and was offered Hastings, where no local hopeful had come forward.

She ran a hard campaign, concentrating on main streeting and factory visits, working from seven in the morning until one or two hours after midnight every day.

By the time she finished election day visits to thank workers at polling booths and reached the Four Seasons, she confessed she was "stunned — I suppose it's a defence mechanism".

As the first returns came in, Mrs. Kurchak remarked that "I'm making marks in the north and taking polls we never took before in Belleville, but I'm a bit losing."

She expected a bigger sweep in Belleville.

The Liberal gains were not an anti-Ellis vote, she said.

"I met a lot of people who like him. He's done good things with that travelling van."

When three-quarters of the votes were in Mrs. Kurchak headed for Liberal headquarters, where the followers had filled half the seats in the old Belle Theatre.

"I feel happy about what's happened and we've done the whole thing with volunteers," she told the crowd, "We're not going to have to worry about another election for five years. I'm going to stay in Hastings. I think I can do things for you."

The Kurchaks' future plans call for a short holiday, perhaps in the Maritimes. Then Mrs. Kurchak has a contract to finish for the secretary of state, a job she deferred in order to run in the election.

With the loss of the election went the loss of a home for the Kurchaks.

They had a place in the Corbyville area in mind, and would have signed the offer this morning, had Mrs. Kurchak won. Now, it's beyond their budget and they are hunting for a small farm, probably in the Madoc area.

Candidate Kurchak strains to be heard

'Little Girl' Helps Liberals To Whittle PC Plurality

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"It took a little girl to lead us."

That statement by former Hastings MP Bob Temple summed up the feeling at Liberal headquarters as Marie Kurchak supporters watched their candidate close the gap between herself and Conservative victor Jack Ellis.

The 29-year-old Liberal from Toronto cut into Tory secretive strength in Hastings, sharing the majority by about half the 5,000 in the 1972 election.

"I'm quite happy about it, the Liberals have gained a lot," said Mrs. Kurchak. "I've enjoyed it. I wouldn't have missed it."

The candidate, who combined campaigning with housekeeping, said she would "definitely" be back to contest the seat in the next election. Her chief regret was that she had spent only about four weeks to mount her campaign.

Mrs. Kurchak said she first began to think about running for office a year ago, when she was working in Ottawa under contract to the secretary of state's department.

"I used to think the political system was ineffective in changing things," she said, as she awaited the first results

Kurchak Actually Led Polls

She didn't know it, but Monday night Marie Kurchak was leading the polls.

The enthusiastic Liberals turned out at the advance polls in large numbers — some 883. The advance poll vote totalled 2,179, compared to 828 advance votes cast in 1972. Jack Ellis had a slim lead over his Liberal opponent when the advance polls were counted. All three Belleville advance polls were Liberal this time.

The Liberals picked up 6,672 votes in Belleville, three years ago they took 14 of the city's 16 polls. Monday they took 40 of 165 city polls, and tied with the Conservatives at ... two polls.

Outside the city, the Liberals won clear majorities in three areas they failed to take last election. Kurchak took Tyendinaga by 624 votes to Ellis' 351; Trenton by 442 to Ellis' 417 and Hungerford by 469 to Ellis' 422.

In a room at the Four Seasons Motel.

Losers' Morale Runs High

A spirit of optimism pervaded Liberal campaign rooms in the Belle Theatre Monday night despite the loss of the riding to the Conservatives.

For the first time in years, the Liberals saw a campaign that was well entrenched conservatism of the Tory variety. Liberal candidate Marie Kurchak was defeated by 2,428 votes.

Hastings riding president Frank Chapman greeted candidate Marie Kurchak as she arrived in headquarters with: "Next time We'll give you Hastings next time."

His curious jubilation reflected the feeling among party supporters.

Charlie Bates, long-time Liberal worker said "We're really pleased."

"The final vote is'nt be ter in Mader," he noted. "Polls in the county showed Liberal this time that never went Liberal before."

Former Liberal MP Bob Temple predicted an eventual 2,000 difference between the votes for Ellis and Kurchak. In 1972, Ellis won with a 5,000 vote majority.

"I'm happier now than I was in '72," Mr. Temple said, referring to the year he went to Ottawa as an MP.

Hastings, the safe Conservative riding, finally was "recognition on national television as commentators repeatedly remarked on the "tough fight" Jack Ellis had to retain his seat.

It was a happy crowd that trooped off with Marie Kurchak as she went to Conservative headquarters to congratulate Mr. Ellis on his party was planned, the crowd stuck around the theatre afterward, proving their campaign slogan of "stick with Marie" true.

Floyd Hawley Back on Farm

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

It's back to the farm for Social Credit candidate Floyd Hawley.

And while he admitted long before last night's federal election results that placed him last in the field of candidates in Hastings that he didn't have a "ghost of a chance" of winning, he said he is content with the over-all national showing of Social Credit. His party maintained approximately the same number of seats as in the 1972 election.

"I had more people wish me good luck when I was campaigning this time around in votes but, it seemed that the people of Canada were voting for a majority government, even locally," said Mr. Hawley, who owns a 100-acre farm in Tyendinaga where he raises beef cattle, weaner pigs and rabbits.

The 49-year-old farmer said he was not sorry he had run, despite only 736 votes. "I would have liked to have made a better showing. People say I have been a lot of guts to run. The last time I ran (in Alberta in the 1962 election) T. C. Douglas (NDP leader) went down to defeat.

"This time around, David Lewis, NDP leader went down to defeat, I'm just a little guy, so losing doesn't bother me that much," said Mr. Hawley.

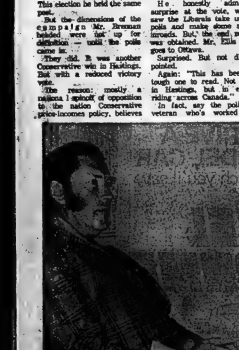
While his campaign has been a low-keyed one, entering the Hastings County race almost just before the deadline for candidates' registration, his election night vigil last night was just as lowkey.

He says he didn't expect to win but hoped to make a foothold in this area for his party.

"I know I'm not a politician. I had no colleagues running in the adjacent area. I'm only one in the whole wide Eastern Ontario riding (running on the Social Credit ticket). But I had to make a start somewhere and this is a start.

Mr. Hawley decided to run in this election after the idea was suggested to him in May. "There was a meeting in Toronto in the early part of May with Martin McGeachy of Alberta, the national secretary of the Social Credit party in Canada and other important members of the party.

"At the end of May, as a result of that meeting, it was decided in Cobourg that we should make a start somewhere — that we should try to field a Social Credit candidate in the area.



"It was suggested that I try the riding of Northumberland — Durham, but, that would be too much travelling and I don't exactly approve of parachuting candidates into another riding, so I chose to run here," he said.

Was there anything he would differently if running his campaign? "I would have entered it earlier in the thing," he admitted.

But for now it's back to the farm where Mrs. Hawley and a hayhed and a baling barn are being built and the home to be finished. And there's to be a new arrival to the family in the Hawley household — Marc.

And there are speaking engagements. Four are lined up already. And there's also another crack at the election in about four years when he'll have more time to get ready.

I intend to take a crack at it when the next election comes around. I'll be out there organizing, I or someone else. Absolutely, if not myself, then someone else. And if not in this constituency, then in one of the others," he said with an air of optimism.

Hawley does figuring

Social Credit Support Comes in Strange Place

While the Liberals were quick to power and a majority federally and the Conservatives continued to reign supreme in Eastern Ontario, last night's election results yielded strange results in the Social Credit showing.

For one thing, while candidate Floyd Hawley polled a total of 736 votes or .43 per cent of the total, most of his support came from a less urban poll close to the Hastings-Prince Edward boundary.

Mr. Hawley owns a 100-acre farm in Tyendinaga, an area which threw its support behind Liberal candidate Marie Kurchak.

In the Tyendinaga riding, the final votes of the nine polls were 17 for Mr. Hawley, 24 for Mrs Kurchak, 551 for PC Jack Ellis and 181 for Bob Sanders, the NDP candidate.

But in Belleville poll 26 at BCI, Hawley captured 30 of 189 votes cast, 24 more than NDP Bob Sanders and half of the 59 votes the Liberals accumulated. Mr. Ellis led with 93 votes.

Sanders Blames Organization

By AL ZARAS

Poor organization of the NDP campaign cost the party votes in Hastings riding, NDP candidate Bob Sanders charged Monday, after running a distant third in the federal election.

"I'm not satisfied at all with the campaign we had. I'd love to do it all over again and organize a good campaign.

Candidate Sanders said people have called him, and indicated their desire to help. He claimed he had given campaign manager Rick Williams names but "they have not called".

By a very educated guess, based on what he called a social phenomenon, Mr. Sanders felt he had lost 800 to 1,000 votes. Hastings total were just under 2,000 votes, almost exactly that polled in 1972 by NDP hopeful Elridge Brenthnow.)

He explained he multiplied the number of people who attended a party rally by the arrive at the lost-vote figure.

Problems came to him as to say that they were "highly dissatisfied" with the campaign, he claimed.

Mr. Sanders said "it was poorly organized and it's cost votes.

Campaign manager Rick Williams was unavailable for comment. He is in Europe on holidays.

Candidate farther charged that pamphlets outlining party policy were undelivered. He could not locate them and as to pamphlets that remained undelivered to polls.

Mr. Sanders had said earlier that shortly after the party's funds were spent on the pamphlets.

Poor organization beset the campaign to the end, even before election Monday, he said. Election night committees were formed to count the votes at the Four Seasons Motel only Monday, after Ian Reilly, the candidate's official agent, was not able to open his home to workers.

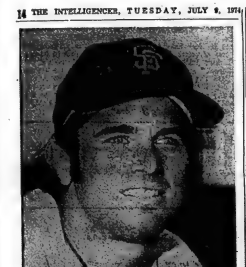
Mr. Sanders said he was forced to book a room for workers at the hotel.

The candidate, a medical social worker at Belleville General Hospital, said he did not expect to win.

Mr. Sanders stressed his candidacy was the beginning of NDP representation in the riding.

"This is a start."

He looks toward the formation of a well-oiled machine that will effectively contest the riding in a similar fashion next party-run campaigns.



Of the final results were in for Hastings, Mr. Sanders said he was pleased with reports that Conservative Jack Ellis was not running as strong as in the previous election.

He expressed satisfaction with an apparent trend towards greater Liberal leaning by voters.

"If the Liberals are up, and Ellis is down, and we are equal, then the left is consistent with results from across the country," he said.

Randy Moffitt – Expo Wrecker

Relief Pitcher Turns Hitter

MONTREAL (CP) — Relief pitcher Randy Moffitt tripled home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning, pacing the San Francisco Giants to a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Expos on Monday night.

Mike Phillips, leading off the 10th, was safe at first when Expo second baseman Larry Lintz booted his grounder. Moffitt, then unbeaten this triple to center, driving home Phillips. It was Moffitt's second hit of the season. His first came back in May and his first run batted in.

The Expos took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning when Lintz reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on a bloop single by Willie Davis.

The San Francisco game back with four runs in the top of the third. The Giants loaded the bases when former Expos catcher John Boccabella walked, Jim Fuentes beat out an infield hit and Chris Speier was hit on the left arm by a pitch.

A single to center by Gary Thomasson scored two runs and the other two scored on Gary Matthews' double to the left-field corner.

Montreal made it 4-2 in the bottom of the third when Lintz singled, moved to second on a balk and scored on Ken Singleton's single.

The Expos tie the score in the sixth when Bob Bailey led off with his 11th homer of the season and Tim Foli and Barry Foote struck consecutive doubles.

Andy Doesn't Need Any Help

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"My record doesn't indicate how well I've pitched," said Los Angeles Dodgers' Andy Messersmith, who has nine wins, two losses and a 2.12 earned-run average.

Monday night, Messersmith did not allow a base hit until the sixth inning of the National League baseball game.

"Sure I was thinking of a no-hitter," he said. "I always try to pitch a no-hitter. I've been trying for 7 years."

Elsewhere Monday, San Francisco Giants trounced Montreal Expos 5-4 in 10 innings, Atlanta Braves thanked Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0, New York Mets edged San Diego Padres 2-1 and Houston Astros defeated St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds were not scheduled.

In his last nine games, Messersmith was allowed just six earned runs for a 0.74 earned-run average.

Messersmith lost his no-hitter Monday night with one out in the 10th, when Dave Cash hit a triple to right-centre.

He came back to retire Larry Bowa on a pop-up and strike out Mike Schmidt, preserving his no-hitter until the season.

It was the first complete game for a Dodgers' pitcher since June 16, when Messersmith turned the trick. Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall has appeared in 17 of the team's 81 games.

Atlanta's Max Leon, 1-2, making his first start of the season, blanked Pittsburgh on six hits, but left with a sore shoulder. Two of errors by Pittsburgh second baseman Rennie Stennett and left fielder Willie Crawford in score four unearned runs in the fourth inning.

Harry Parker and Bob Miller combined on a six-hitter and the Mets defence came up with three double plays in stopping the pirates.

Doug Rader hit a two-run homer on an 0-2 count in the fifth inning to help Houston's Don Griffin post his 10th victory of the season.

Star Quits Team

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — West German soccer fans were stunned by reports Monday that star forward Gerd Muller was quitting the World Cup championship team.

At a Munich victory banquet Sunday after his tie-breaking goal helped West Germany beat the Netherlands 2-1 for soccer's most coveted prize, Muller said he wanted to spend more time with his family and hoped he could "shoot my farewell goal in the Sept. 4 match against Switzerland."

Connors' Magic Can't Save Team

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connor returned to World Team Tennis action Monday night, but couldn't stop the hometown Freedoms from beating his Baltimore Banners 25-23 at Philadelphia.

Connors, who flew from London to the United States just for the match, led the Bannners in their only victories—7-6 in the men's doubles and 6-4 in mixed doubles.

But the match was put away for Philadelphia as player-coach Billie Jean King beat Kerry Koplenig 6-5 and then teamed with Julie Anthony in women's doubles for a 6-3 decision over the Banners' Betty Stove and Joyce Hume.

Elsewhere, Florida routed Toronto Royals 30-19 at Buffalo, Houston trimmed Hawaii 27-21, New York edged Detroit 28-27 and Golden Gaters downed Minnesota Buckskins 28-22.

Betsy Grubb trounced Wendy Overton, 6-0, in the opening set to start Florida Wahoo's mingle to victory over Toronto.

The victory gave the Florida team a lead they never relinquished, despite losing the men's singles and doubles.

Tom Okker, the Royals' player-coach, came on after losing to send the skidding Angels to their ninth consecutive defeat and eighth under manager Dick Williams.

Four of the Five Baltimore runs in the first were unearned as a result of an error by first baseman John Doherty.

Steve Busby shut out slumping Boston on three hits and Tony Solaita hit a three-run double. Busby, who pitched a no-hitter against Milwaukee last month retired the first 11 batters.

Eric Soderholm's two-run homer highlighted Minnesota's four-run second inning against Woodie Fryman while Bert Blyleven checked the Tigers on seven hits.

Mike Hegan's two-run pinch homer in the 13th inning off relief specialist Jim Willoughby lifted the Brewers to victory over the White Sox.

Chambliss ripped a three-run double, Bobby Murcer drove in three runs with a homer and an infield out and Dick Woodson pitched 5 2-3 shutout innings of relief for New York.

The Yankees pounded 19 hits off Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., and Steve Hilvers, including four doubles by light-hitting Jim Mason which tied a major league record.

Royal Lytham—Ugh!

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — The wind whips in from off the Irish Sea. One moment, the sun shines. It is hot and flat—The next moment, it's cold.

The fairways are narrow and bumpy. Dandelions grow astride both. The bunkers, originally constructed by animals as protection against the elements, are myriad and murder.

Such are the hidden perils on the Royal Lytham golf course, scene of the British open golf championship which begins Wednesday.

"It's two different games," said Hale Irwin, the U.S. Open champion. "Anyone can golf and British golf—they're not related.

"In the United States, we play courses that are immaculately manicured. . . . When we hit a ball, we have a pretty fair idea of where it is going and what it will do when it gets there.

"Not here. The course is largely in its primitive state. The targets are hidden. When you hit those mounds on the fairways, you can hit a perfect shot and

Fourth Inning Walk Spoils Sandra's Bid

Sandra Fleming came within one batter of throwing a no-hitter game in the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League last night, allowing only one walk in five innings of work, leading her team-mates to a 20-4 victory over Simpson's Seam. She picked up seven strikeouts in the win.

It was the 14th win in 15 starts for the Maple based team, while the Simpson loss was their 14th against only one win.

Fleming was backed up with 16 hits by her team-mates, including 13 of the extra base variety.

Jane Bailey paced the onslaught with a home run, double, and four singles, while Joan Bailey had a home run, triple, double and two singles. Bev Caisse came up with two doubles and three singles, with Margie Bateman adding a triple and four base hits.

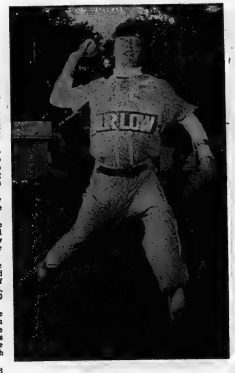
Sharon Simpson had a triple and three safeties, with Sue Wright and Fleming crunching four singles and two singles each. Roxanne Chapman had a double and two singles, while Brenda Hayes rounding out the attack with two singles.

Simpsons' only baserunner in the game was Lynn Wood, who collected the walk in the fourth inning.

Jeanne Gervin was the victim of the singular grind out five batter. She did not strike out a batter, walking only one.

Independents Record 7-4 Win Over Posties

A four-run burst in to fourth inning sparked Independent to a 7-4 win over Post Office in Industrial Softball League action.



Monday's game at Prince Charles School.

The Posties owned a 2-2 lead after Independents erupted to move in front and each team scored once in the fifth.

Rod Colton worked the first five innings plus for the winners with Jim Northey coming on late to preserve the win. Colton allowed six hits while striking out a pair and walking none. Northey fired cerebt ball in relief, fanning three and walking one.

Charged with the loss was Norm Lockhart. Touched for eight safeties, Norm put third strikes past eight batters while walking one.

George Poste had the big bit for the winners, connecting for a circuit blast. David Skelly chocked in with a double and single and Ken Bertrand supplied two singles. The Posties' attack was led by Ron Marriott who collected a double and two singles. Bob Wheddon had two singles and Randy Burke bolted a double.

Bayshore Club dumped the Kinsmen Club 14-7 in a game played at Centennial, behind the two-hit hurling of Trevor Powell and Jim Mulroney. The pair fanned 10 and walked all in taking the win.

Chris Radney and Peter Burley absorbed the loss, leaving 13 standing at the plate. They walked 14.

Todd Crawford had a triple and two singles for the winners, with Larry Genereaux connecting for three singles. Jim Mulroney had a four bagger, with Joey Britton hitting for two singles and Bob Naues one.

Alan Mallaves had a home run for the losers, with Mike Paper, Mark Stapley, and Er-

2-way Tie For First In Rally

It wasn't tailgating, but the result of the Quinte Rally Two-Lite Rally, sponsored by Quinte Motor Sport Centre, Saturday night, were about as close as one could ask for.

The 25 lap affair, with a total of 11 points, were two cars, Ben Thompson and Bernie Yardley were the driver and navigator of one car, which was tied after the final tally with a car driven by Ginger Marshall, and navigated by Norm Marshall.

Alone in third place was the car of Barry Cox and Chris Richard Woodley, with 13 points totalled against them.

Another tie was in line for the fourth and fifth spots, with Dave Sine and Glen Cox, son combined to rally to a fourth with Brian Smith and Randy Fossil for the spot, each with 21 points.

Thirteen cars entered, all of which finished the first night time rally of the club.

ic Dolet each singling once.

In the only Peewee game, Legion 99 shaded Belleville Broadloom 13-12. Steve Goulah and Tony Parks walked six and struck out seven in picking up the win. Brian Crookwright and Steve Taylor fanned four and issued eight bases on balls in being tagged with the loss.

Tim Turner had a triple and two singles for the winners, with Jay Bochenek adding a trio of base hits. Parks aided his own cause with a triple and single.

For the Broadloom team, it was Crookwright with a double and two singles, while Scott Dafoe added three base hits. Dave Coughlin had two safeties.

Faced by the solid three-hit pitching of Steve Carr and Steve McCrary, the Ellis Printing brewers routed the Kinsmen Club 5-3 in the only Bantam game. The pair left nine batters watching third strikes, while walking four.

Dave Bennett fanned five and walked only one in absorbing the loss in the top nine hits.

Mark Crawford had two singles for the winners, with Shawn Hubbard, Steve McCrory, Louis Crawford, Don Phillips, Jeff Hayward, Charles Dunn, and Steven McDonnell each striking one.

Ron Kinsmen, it was Randy Bell, Joe Guthrie, and Darren Greer each with one base hit.

U.S. Downs Canadian Team

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Tom Bonnell solved a troublesome zone defence in the second half and led the United States to a 113-86 victory over Canada in the world basketball championships Monday night.

Bonnell shooting mainly from the corner scored seven second-half field goals and helped the Americans repair a first-half lead that dwindled in the first few minutes after intermission.

The U.S. held a 55-37 lead at the half, but Canada cut it to 10 points at 61-49 in the next four minutes of play.

Bonnell finished with 20 points. John Lucas led the Americans with 24 points.

The U.S. jumped to leads of 8-1 and 16-3 in the first six minutes of play capitalizing on the quickness of Lucas to baffle the Canadians.

Forward Phil Tollestrup scored eight of Canada's first nine points. He finished with 16 points and team-mate Ken McKenzie had 19.

The victory left the United States and Yugoslavia as the only double winners in the finals of the championship so far.

Yugoslavia defeated Cuba 101-83. The only other unbeaten team remaining is the Soviet Union which has played just one game.

Ross Still An Argo

ORLANDO fla. (AP) — A federal judge ordered Monday that Lou Ross not play or practise with Florida Blazer of the New World Football League.

U.S. District Court Judge George Young ruled that Ross is bound by contract to Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Ross had joined Toronto last year after two years with the National Football League's Buffalo Bills.

Ross, a 6-foot-7 267-pound South Carolina State veteran was listed as Blazer starter for Wednesday's season opener against Hawaii. As the only Orlande native on the team, he was counted on for box-office appeal.

But Toronto asked for an injunction, arguing that even if Ross doesn't play with the Argonauts this season he cannot play for anyone else.

Young agreed, but required that the Argonauts post $40,000 bond to protect Ross and the Blazers in case the injunction is not made permanent.

Ross called the ruling a big blow to his hopes. He said late Monday he had not decided whether to rejoin Toronto.

A Blazer spokesman said the club's owners have not decided whether to appeal the ruling.

Davidson's New Look Kicks Off

WFL Prepared to Launch Challenge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spectators in Philadelphia, Orlando, Birmingham, Chicago and Memphis will test the product Wednesday night when the World Football League begins play.

And the rest of the United States gets a look at it Thursday night, when its league-play is first televised game.

Without so much as one exhibition game under its belt, the new league is challenging the established but strikebound National Football League for the attention and ticket money.

With a new gold and orange ball and both new and old players, Garry Davidson, president of the league, predicted attendance exceeding 40,000 at some games.

Davidson also created the American Basketball Association in 1967 and the World Hockey Association in 1972. Both of them still are struggling for fans and stability. Fran chises sometimes shift or die.

Now comes the WFL, a concept like 1960 revisited. That is when the American Football League was born.

The AFL began with eight teams, four fewer than the WFL, and the announced first week attendance averaged 16,- 534 fans. That wasn't important because the anatomy of the fans got in with reduced price or free tickets.

After about five years of struggling, the AFL came into its own when one of the three major television networks, looking for something to show on Sunday afternoons opposite the NFL, put $36 million into it for a five-year contract. Two years later, the AFL was strong enough to force a merger with the NFL.

The WFL has a TV contract reported to be worth about $1 million, provided by TVS, an independent network which will televise one game each Thursday night to local stations around the United States.

There are a few NFL veterans who jumped this year to the new league, and the WFL got a few others years in the collegiate draft.

Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, well publicized Las Vegas oddsmaker, has predicted the WFL'll be 18 games in one season.

Davidson replies: "Tell him to call me. I'd be glad to take his money."

In 1975, some legitimate stars like Larry Csonka, Craig Morton, Calvin Hill and Daryle Lamonica will move from the NFL to the WFL.

Right now, though, the new league will have to make do with some former NFL players tossed out of retirement, a number of NFL players, mostly reserves, who played out their contracts and jumped, some Canadian Football League imports and a crop of collegiate rookies.

Wednesday night's games are Portland Storm at Philadelphia Bell, Honolulu Hawaiians at Florida Blazers in Orlando, Southern California Sun at Birmingham Americans, Houston Texans at Chicago Fire and Detroit Wheels at Memphis Southmen.

The WFL is tossing some innovations at the fans, many of them designed to open up the game which many disgruntled NFL fans say has become an exercise in punting, place-kicking, running and fumbling.

Kickoffs will be made from the 30-yard line, missed field goals beyond the 50-yard line (the goal posts are on the end line, not the goal line) will be returned to the line of scrimmage, no fair catches will be allowed on punts, receptions with one foot inbound will be legal, running backs will be allowed to go in forward motion before the snap of the ball, the touchdown will be worth seven points instead of six and the extra point will have to be run or passed for instead of kicked. And there will be a fifth period to break ties.

Belleville Minor Softball Results

Chase's Grocery ran its season total to five wins against no losses with an 11-1 victory over Dixie Lee in Belleville Minor Softball Association Sprint action last week, one of four games in the division.

Tim McWilliams had a five hitter for the Grocers, with Steve Lowry and Terry Vance backing him up with three hits each. Gary Heywood, Ralph Anderson, Dean Stoliker, Bill McPhee, and Paul Chapelle each had a pair.

Belleville Plaza edged William Belch and Sons 8-7 in the only game decided by one run. For Belch's, it was Rick Doornbos fanning a nine hitter in defeat, whiffing three. Kirk Brower had a triple, with Don Eros stroking three hits and Doornbos two.

Sidney Ins. and Complete Rentals by a 174 margin. Rick Cook had eight strike outs and walked only two, as well as rounding a triple, double and single, to lead the Sidney In attack. Bruce Wright also had a triple, double, and single, with Joey Parker and Bob Kearsey each punching a double and two singles.

Dave Phillips fanned nine and walked seven in taking the loss, adding a double an two singles. Billy Curry ha a triple and two singles, with John Gibson adding one of each.

O'Neil Stationery got a home run and two singles from Steve Murray in their 14-8 victory over Howard and Robert Printing, with Dave Hawe and Terry Vos also slugging four baggers. Vos recorded six strikeouts in taking the win.

For The Printers, it was David Meagher with a four-bagger and single, with Tim Moss striking a homer.

In tyke action, Sun Luck Gardens squeezed by J. F. Nelles Real Estate, 14-13. Rick Randall had a home run and single to aid in his own win, with Barry Fraser hitting for a triple, double and single. Scott Miller had three hits, with Kevin Putnam adding a double and single.

For Nelles, it was Bobby Terry with a four bagger, and Dave Wright a double and two singles. Pat Cashion con tributed two base hits to the losing cause.

Richard Ellis Printing slammed ADCO by 27-12. Glenn Graham paced the 20 hit Ellis attack with two triples and a double, with John Blackwell singling twice and adding a double. John Newell, Gil DeRuelle, Tom Kelley and Brad Reid each had three hits each.

Danny Gill and Paul LaMorre each had three hits in four tries for ADCO.

Skirting sheet Metal dumped Fraser and O'Neil Realtors 20-16 in the last tyke game of the week, played at Queen Victoria. Scott Adams, the winning chucker, and Stephen Elliot each had a triple for the winners.

John Anderson had a home run, double and single for the losers, with Rick Shaw leading a double and three singles.

In Fewster action, the Belleville Kinsmen Squirts defeated Finch Terazzo by a 24-3 margin. Sean Monaghan and Allan Thompson shared the win, giving up five hits. Each had three strikeouts. Bruce Shugg had a home run and single to pace the winners at the plate, with Doug Haley with a pair of doubles and a single. Thompson and Brad Gray each bar a double and single each.

For Pino's, it was Kim Baptiste with a pair of singles, with Bill Morton and Terry Smith one each.

Westgate Carpet upended Dixie Lee in a game at King George South, 18-11. Tony Miller struck out 10 and walked only one for the winners. He also connected for a grand slam home run, a double, and a single at the plate. Kevin Perrill also added to the cause with a home run and single.

Sixteen bases on balls plagued losers Danny Rose and Mike Miller, on the mound for the losers. Greg Graham had a home run and three singles to lead the Dixie Lee attack, with Ron Globe adding a double and three base hits.

National Film Board Wins Yugoslav Awards

An animation film by Eskimo artists of Cape Dorset, North West Territories, and the film "Au bout du fil" have won two prizes for the National Film Board of Canada at the World Animation Film Festival in Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Directed by Inuit artists with the assistance of an NFB workshop, "Animation From Cape Dorset" won the Jury award for the amazing discovery of new possibilities in animation. "Au bout du fil", directed by Paul Driessen, and dealing with the meaning of life, was awarded a prize for artistic achievement.

Other NFB productions that have taken awards in film festivals recently are: "Big Hom", directed by Bill Schmalz, which won the Albert Lamorisse prize and Cris blanc Trophy at the International Film Festival of Tou'ors in Tarbes, France; "Festeron," directed by Roger Blais, which was chosen the best profile documentary at the Holeywood Festival of World TV in Hollywood, California's "Genou mecanique" directed by Claude Overing, which won a second prize Silver medal at the Red Cross and Health International Film Festival in Varna, Bulgaria; and "Hard Rider", directed by Josef Reeve, which received a red ribbon at the American Film Festival in New York.

Baton Stolen

CARCASSONNE, France (Reuter) — Conductor Michel Plasson is so upset at losing his favorite baton that he is offering the thief a free season ticket to concerts by the town orchestra if it is returned.

After receiving the audience's applause at the end of a performance of Puccini's Tosca, Plasson turned to discover that his baton had been stolen from the rostrum.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, July 10

Aries (March 21-April 19) You are not going to use very wisely something you will be getting, too easily. Later you are going to regret your folly.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Even though your outside interests are a welcome change of pace, are they really worth their present price tag?

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You are not taking proper advantage of all that's offered you. You have no one to blame but yourself.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You are going to let yourself be sidetracked on a course that is most providing. The end result isn't good.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) For some reason you feel indebted to someone to whom you really owe nothing. Others have tried to point this out, but you won't listen.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be sure to steer any who grant you favors that you are grateful. Otherwise, they are going to be wondering about your depth as a person.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 20) Even though you are fortunate at this time don't press your luck beyond sensible limits or wrecking will turn into losses.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Wishful thinking will prevail over your common sense when you make a decision you know deep down you shouldn't make.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If intentions were graded you would get the highest marks in your class, yet you won't do what you know should be done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are still in a cycle where you could do very well for yourself materially with no banker to object to how your actions today is collateral.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You will have to curb your rambling inflects or else you are going to take chances far beyond reasonable odds.

BIRTHS

OSBORNE — Mr. and Mrs. Trenton Osborne (nee Lisa Bird) are pleased to announce the birth of a baby brother for Erin, born July 3, 1974, at 1:30 p.m. in the Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bird and Mr. and Mrs. Don Osborne.

MORRISON — Warren and Carolyn (nee Clegg) are happy to announce the birth of their daughter, Jennifer Lynn, on Thursday, July 4, 1974, at Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Morrison of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clegg of Madoc. Sister to Susan on 72nd. level.

PARLIAMENT — Art and Lin, 46 Gilbert Street, are pleased to announce the birth of their daughter, Kelly Ann, on Tuesday, July 2, 1974, at Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. Bradley, Thanks to Drs. Fry, Rowe and Gilbert.

SHEKINA — Arnold and Chia (nee Chan) are pleased to announce the birth of their daughter, Shaquine Tina Marie, 6 lbs. 11 oz., on Wednesday, June 26, 1974 at the Belleville General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS — In loving memory of a brother and dear uncle, Ernest Adams, who passed away July 8, 1961.
Those we love don't go away
They walk beside us every day
Unseen, unheard but always near
Still loved, still missed and very dear.
Sadly missed by brother Jack and sister-in-law Ethel.

ADAMS — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Ernest Adams, who passed away July 8, 1961.
Time heals and builds a memory,
But not the heart that aches.
We'll be up there with you then,
Everything is the same,
We'll be up there with you,
When we meet again.
Sadly missed by daughter Ruth and family.

ADAMS — In loving memory of a dear father, Ernest Adams, who passed away July 8, 1961.
Dad, you left us very suddenly,
Without a word of goodbye,
Your memories remain with us,
Your memory never will die.
Sadly missed by daughter Elsie and son-in-law Ernest.

CLARKE — In loving memory of our dear father, Ernest Clarke, who passed away July 8, 1973.
Come home another time he said,
Come home another time,
I'll leave the door open for you,
Just knock and walk right in.
Sadly missed by husband Ben, son-in-law Bill, daughter Ethel and daughter-in-law Ruth.

JENKINSON — In fond and loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Jenkinson, who passed away July 8, 1961.
Those we love don't go away
They walk beside us every day
Unseen, unheard but always near
Still loved, still missed and very dear.
Time is a memory that heals
The loved one gone away,
But memory keeps them near us
Through the day by day hide and seek.
Sometimes I weep the sorrow I feel
Sometimes the longing of the years.
Loving memories of a dear husband and father.
Ada, son-in-law Cecil and granddaughters Linda and Lori.

KLINGENBAND — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Ernest Klingenband, who passed away July 8, 1973.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one dear to me,
Of a loved one dear to me,
Who knew who loved him best,
The lonely years are many,
But wherever and darling we may be,
We will never fade away,
Memories remembered by Hazel, Hazel and John.

4 BEDROOMS
70' LOT WEST SIDE

We are just starting a new Chateau model which is one of the most popular on the Lane bouser. Make it your house now! You may then make modifications to suit your requirements and pick all the finishes and colors. This model features a 2 x 12 family room with fireplace and patio doors. There is a separate dining room.

EAST SIDE 2 STOREY

now nearing completion. This is the ever popular Milner model offers the most house for the least money. Already it is very large with lots of cupboards. Separate dining room.

DON'T MAKE A

such as waiting for mortgages rates to drop before you purchase. Should the rate drop by as much as one per cent, you would save $350.00 per year for five years or $1,750.00. Just one in 12 months the average house in Canada went up by over $6,000. In that case you would be $5,250.00 further behind. If trends continue, and it seems they will, the same thing can happen year after year, so don't get caught in the trap — the time to buy a new home is now. Call us for an appointment without obligation to discuss housing for your family.

Price Index Climbs

OTTAWA (CP) — A 1.3-percent increase during June in the consumer price index has pushed the index to its largest 12-month increase in 23 years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The June level was 11.4 per cent higher than it was in June, 1973. Not since the Korean War, when the index went up by 11.8 per cent between August, 1950, and August, 1951, has there been a larger 12-month increase.

During the last two months the consumer price index has gone up by three per cent as prices of food and petroleum products have climbed sharply higher.

In June the largest contributors to the gain in the index were higher prices for fresh produce, restaurant meals, fuel oil for homes and gasoline for cars.

Compared with a year ago, the largest price increases were for food. The index for restaurant meals was up by 20.7 per cent and for food eaten at home 16.7 per cent.

The next largest year-over-year changes were increases of 11.6 per cent in the private transportation index and 11.3 per cent in the household operation index. Both these index changes reflect higher costs for petroleum products.

Major price changes during June included an increase of more than nine per cent for fresh produce. The average price of restaurant meals went up by 2.1 per cent.

Fuel oil prices rose by an average 3.2 per cent in June and gasoline prices by 4.5 per cent.

The food index grew by 1.3 per cent in June and there was a similar increase in the household operation index. The transportation index was up by 1.9 per cent.

The increase in produce price in June is more than offset declines in prices of beef, pork and eggs. Sugar prices rose by an average 2.5 per cent and prices of many products containing sugar also went up.

Big Blow

Bob Coveney, proprietor-owner of Cove's Marina in Tweed, surveys the damage to his business after gale-force winds tore the second storey from his building Tuesday night. Crews restored hydro power by 3 a.m. and by mid-morning all streets were passable. For story, see first page, second section.

Tweed Hit
Eleven Hurt In 3 Storms

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Violent electrical and wind storms which hit three areas of southern Ontario Tuesday sent 11 people to hospital and left a trail of fallen trees, blocked roads and damaged buildings in their wake.

A storm which ripped its way through the resort town of Tweed, 20 miles north of Belleville, Tuesday night damaged as many as 45 homes and four businesses, police said.

Power and telephone lines were knocked down and while hydro workmen restored power to the northern part of the community early before midnight, they said it will take most of today before power is restored to the southern section.

Eight London, Ont. campers staying at a trailer park near Tweed were taken to hospital after winds estimated at between 80 and 100 miles an hour knocked a 38-foot tree over on to their trailer.

Hazel Kelly, 36, is listed in fair condition in Belleville General Hospital with neck injuries, while her daughter Catharine, 15, is in satisfactory condition with head injuries.

Three other members of the Kelly family, Raymond, 39, Robin, 13, and Rodney, 11, and Heather Jones, 12, Deona Jones, 15, and Phillip Morris, 11, were treated at cuts and bruises and released from hospital.

A Tweed woman, Mary Tuzin, 32, was also injured while visiting the campground.

Strong winds also caused injuries and damage at a trailer camp near Tilbury, about 15 miles southwest of Chatham.

Jan Stillaway, 36, of Caledonia, Ont., was admitted to hospital after ambulance crews worked for 15 minutes to free her from her rolled trailer, which had been tossed about 40 feet by the storm.

Provincial police said no further injuries were reported and it is not believed a tornado was involved.

High winds and rain also assailed cottages, trailers and buildings in Alban, 35 miles northeast of Sudbury, causing damage police estimated will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The 25-minute storm struck about 3:45 p.m. after a day of hot weather, and swept through an area about 1½ miles wide and eight miles long, around the French River tourist centre.

A woman staying in one of the trailers upset or blown about by the wind in a trailer camp suffered a broken leg and was admitted to Sudbury General Hospital.

Police said about 100 private cottages were damaged or destroyed, hundreds of trees uprooted and access roads to many tourist lodges blocked by fallen trees.

Repair crews were working Tuesday to restore electricity and telephone service to about 200 private homes, cottages and businesses.

Thunderstorms and strong winds also caused damage in the Mondrael area Tuesday, causing basement flooding in about 50 homes, knocking down power lines, and forcing traffic to slow to a crawl in tunnels and underpasses as cars drove through six inches of water.

Handcuffed Man Found In Canal

Ben Wicks

"Where dog food, then?"

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The body of a St. Catharines man, hands handcuffed behind the back, was found floating in the Welland canal Tuesday.

Niagara regional police identified the victim as Jeffery Murrins, 32. They said their hunch appeared as if it had been beaten.

Mr. Murrins, a seaman, is survived by a wife and three children, living in Niagara Falls, Ont.

News Briefs

Convicts Arraigned

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of six convicts who escaped earlier in the week from the federal training centre in Laval, Que., were arraigned in court Tuesday on armed robbery charges following arrest by Ottawa police Monday. The pair were arrested after four men robbed a bank branch here of $2,500. Charged were Marcel Tremblay, 21, and Hermann Guimond, 24.

Commonwealth Man Dies

LONDON (CP) — Sir Harry Brittain, one of the great advocates of Commonwealth unity, died Tuesday at the age of 100. One of Britain's most colorful newspaper figures, Sir Harry was the founder of the Commonwealth Press Union, an organization representing some 500 newspapers around the world.

Successor Groomed

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette announced Tuesday he will appoint his son, Gilles, national organizer of the Social Credit party to give him the exposure needed to eventually succeed his father as party leader.

Earl Warren Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren, 83, a champion of the Bill of Rights in his 16 years as chief justice, died of heart failure in Georgetown University Hospital Tuesday night. Under his leadership, the U. S. Supreme Court struck down segregated schools, laid down the rule of "one man - one vote" and greatly expanded the rights of the accused in criminal cases.

Canada to Help Develop Reactor

LONDON (CP) — The government has decided that Britain should press on with its own heavy-water nuclear reactor system rather than adopt a U.S. system. Britain and Canada would co-operate in the British development.

Energy Minister Eric Varley said in the Commons today that "both the British and Canadian governments see great advantage in full co-operation on the heavy-water pressure-tube system."

He added that "United Kingdom nuclear organizations and the electricity boards will start discussing co-operation with their Canadian counterparts immediately."

The decision against recommending adoption of the U.S. light-water system will come as a relief to Canadian authorities who have been pressed hard for greater Anglo-Canadian collaboration in this field.

Spinola Tries To Patch Rift

LISBON (AP) — President Antonio de Spinola sought to patch together a new coalition government today amid reports he has asked Premier Adelino da Palma Carlos to withdraw his resignation.

Palma Carlos and four other ministers resigned Tuesday, taking the center out of the center-left government and bringing on the worst political crisis since Spinola came to power 18 months ago.

Gen. Francisco da Costa Gomes, chief of staff and a member of the Spinola-led military junta, confirmed reports of the possible return of Palma Carlos.

TV Polls Off Mark, Gallup On

TORONTO (CP) — Public opinion surveys predicted in the final days of the 1974 election campaign by the well-known Gallup organization and the country's two major television networks showed a marked difference in their assumption of the electoral mood of the country.

On the basis of returns showing a Liberal majority that sharply reversed the result of the 1972 election, only the Gallup Poll was right on the mark while the publicly-owned CBC and its privately-owned counterpart, CTV, were only partly correct.

The Gallup survey, conducted here by the Toronto-based Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, was published by its subscribers last Saturday and Sunday and predicted it would hold 43 per cent of the popular vote. With more than 97 per cent of the 64,082 polls reported Tuesday, the statistical chance for the Liberals was exactly 43 per cent.

The Gallup Poll had predicted 35 per cent for the Progressive Conservatives and 18.5 per cent for the New Democratic Party and the election day results were, respectively, 35.5 and 18 per cent.

The two television networks were correct in that they generally expected a return of the Liberal government. But they were wrong in that they predicted a minority.

Dental Association Opposes Members Testing Denturists

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Dental Association (ODA) has asked its members not to serve as examiners for tests that denturists must write to qualify as licensed denture therapists.

The ODA request is contained in a letter to members dated July 2 and signed by association president, Dr. Melvin Charendoff.

The province's denturists agreed last month to write exams, ending six months of defiance of government legislation that would have brought them under the supervision of dentists.

The denturists are scheduled to take the exams next Monday in eight cities, followed by clinical laboratory examinations in August that were to be conducted by dentists.

Dr. Peter Zakarow, president of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons (RCDS), said in an interview that the college will meet Thursday with the ministry of health to discuss the content of the upgrading course and the question of examiners.

Gordon Smith, public relations consultant for the Ontario Denturists Society, called the ODA action "blatant obstructionism." He said between 150 and 170 society members have applied to write the exams.

A spokesman for Frank Miller, Ontario health minister, said the ODA letter "is a little bit discouraging. We have no real way of measuring what the effect of the ODA letter might be."

Watergate Tapes Mention Trudeau

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some mysterious Canadian references, including the name of Prime Minister Trudeau, turned up in a version of presidential taped released Tuesday by the House of Representatives judiciary committee.

There are no clear indications from the tape, however, that the Canadian references had any direct links to Watergate.

However, during one strategy meeting with his aides on March 21, 1973, Nixon was reported to have stated in the presence of White House adviser John Ehrlichman:

"I got to handle my Canadian friend."

"Right," Ehrlichman replied.

There is no indication from the published version who this "Canadian friend" might be or why Nixon felt he had to "handle" him.

The second Canadian reference comes four pages later during an exchange between Nixon and John Mitchell, former attorney-general.

Nixon said: You know, uh, the, you, you can say when I (unintelligible) I was going to say that the, the—picks up phone) can you get me Prime Minister Trudeau in Canada, please. (Hangs up) I was going to say that (John) Dean has—really been, uh, something on this.

There is no indication whether the president reached the prime minister by telephone.

Denmark Opposed to Canada's Law of Sea Recommendations

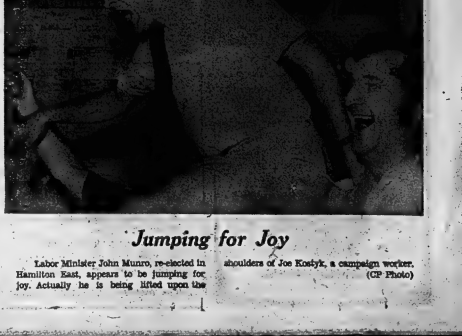
CARACAS, Venezuela (CP) — Some of Canada's main recommendations to the Law of the Sea Conference came under attack Tuesday from Denmark.

In a policy speech to the UN conference, Per Fergo of Denmark said his delegation does not accept Canada's concept of an offshore economic zone for protecting fish that swim up rivers to spawn.

Fergo said offshore economic controls cannot be made to include entire continental shelves because of inadequate depth measures. Countries such as Canada, India and Argentina support the view that marine and mineral resources be managed as an ecological whole, to be determined by combined depth and distance criteria, while accepting the growing view that a 200-mile economic zone should exist.

Denmark would deny Canada the right to control pollution and fisheries outside the 200-mile zone, Fergo indicated.

Denmark also requested guarantees on the right of free passage through international straits and, narrow passages considered part of a country's territorial seas.



"In some narrow straits there has never existed a right of free passage," Fergo said.

He indicated later that his statement applied to northwest passage, which Canada claims is within her territorial waters and subject to her regulations.

Fergo expressed his agreement with Canadian Environment Minister Jack Davis's speech here last week asking exemption of salmon from the general rules being devised to govern fishing and other marine matters. Davis proposed that fishing for such anadromous fish be prohibited outside the economic zone of the country in whose rivers the fish are spawned.

"Without going into the substance of this complicated matter," said Fergo, "I would like to indicate that my delegation cannot accept this contention."

He offered as an alternative bilateral agreements or regulations by regional fisheries organizations.

Profitable Suggestion

At Northern Electric it pays to offer your suggestions. Here's a case in point as two plant employees share $4,680 for suggesting a reusable tape that could save the company money in the gold plating process: Bob Beresford of business communications equipment, David Vice, left, presents Harry Latta, middle and Harry Latta, middle and Herbert Puett, with their cheques.

Single Body Proposed To Run Victoria Park

The administration of Victoria Park with its recreational facilities should be under the direction of a single committee rather than the different bodies that now have jurisdiction.

That is the feeling of Parks Board member Robert Phillips, who made the suggestion at Tuesday's board meeting.

He noted that the facilities at the park were now handled by four bodies — the parks board, harbor commission, the city council harbor improvement committee and the Belleville Yacht Club.

During discussion it was suggested that the city recreation committee or the harbor improvement committee might be logical bodies to take on the over-all responsibility.

But neither suggestion sat too well with the respective heads of the two committees.

Alderman Jean Smith, chairman of the recreation committee, said the function of her body was recreation programming, not looking after docks.

And Alderman Stu Meeks, chairman of the harbor improvement committee, said the function of his committee was just that — improving docking facilities at the harbor.

In furthering his committee's role of improving docking facilities, Ald. Meeks received approval from the parks board to erect signs at the visitors' docks setting out regulations and docking fees.

He also asked for board approval to have temporary hydro service installed at the visitors' docks.

Board members had no objection subject to approval of city council and provided the installations were in accordance with hydro regulations.

The harbor improvement committee is now drafting plans for permanent hydro installations at docks on Victoria Park.

Ald. Meeks said unless temporary service was approved the summer would be over before the permanent installations were ready.

Province Prefers To Buy Canadian

Price does not necessarily have to compare for the provincial government to buy Canadian goods in competition with imported products, according to a statement from the ministry

Auction to Aid Arena

WELLINGTON — The Wellington and District Lions Club will hold an auction sale at the village recreation field on August 3 with proceeds to the Wellington District Community Centre.

Items such as books, cutlery, lumber, bedding, toys, clothing utensils, furniture and appliances are being solicited in Prince Edward County.

Free pickup can be obtained by contacting David Dick, 399-3211, Douglas Snider or Roger Cook.

of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs.

Sidney Township council received a letter from the ministry Tuesday night, urging the municipal body to buy Canadian products wherever possible.

"In special cases it (provincial government) is prepared to pay up to 10 per cent more for Canadian products and services," the ministry communique stated.

The notice is not intended to shelter inefficient producers or subsidize certain profits," the ministerial release read.

Announcement Annoys

MARMORA — Reeve Graham Bell has displayed some annoyance that the Marmora-Lake townships council had to learn from The Intelligencer that the provincial government had approved Cordova Road north to Deer Lake as a development road.

As one of the two municipalities concerned, Mr. Bell said he felt the township should have been officially notified by Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

The road is scheduled for completion next year.

The township road committee was to meet to discuss conditions with neighboring Belmont-Methuen townships on the project.

"It's So Horrible, I Can't Look!"

A chain reaction of rear-end collisions on the highway can cause thousands, even millions of dollars of awards for physical damage and person injuries. The only realistic insurance to cover such catastrophies is an "excess" or "umbrella" liability policy. It costs only pennies a day — from Gerald Joyce-Insurance Agencies Limited.

City May Restart Loan for Arena

Construction of Belleville's $340,000 east end arena has been postponed indefinitely but the $166,000 provincial government forgivable loan approved for the structure could conceivably see other use.

This is the view of City Treasurer Frank Morrell, who has suggested that other arrangements should be made to take advantage of the provincial grant.

The $166,000 for the proposed east end arena was part of a $294,100 forgivable loan approved earlier this year by the Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs for winter capital projects in the city.

Of the total approved, $213,100 is for Wellington Street storm sewers and $5,000 toward a community centre structure at the East Hill playgrounds.

The two storm sewer projects are included in this year's city capital works budget and work is expected to proceed this coming winter.

Construction of the east end arena was chopped from this year's budget for economic reasons and with talk of other arenas to be built in the Belleville area the project could now be shelved for some time.

The playgrounds structure was originally estimated at $31,400 but with cost escalation the figure could now reach close to $37,000, parks board members were told Tuesday.

It came as a surprise to parks board members that the $166,00 forgivable loan for the arena could possibly be used for some other purpose.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey suggested this was a definite change of opinion.

"Now there may be some hope", she said.

But board members had no firm suggestions as to how the provincial money might be used with the arena project now deferred.

The matter was tabled for further information from the city manager.

Missionary Appointed

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints who are known world-wide as Mormons, has appointed a new missionary to Belleville. He is Elder Gerald Page. He is one of more than 18,000 young Mormon missionaries who are currently serving at their own cost and service in 108 missions throughout the world.

The missionaries in Belleville become the Family Home Evening. This is a program in which families meet together at least one night week within the walls of their own homes to play games together as a family, discuss the gospel and find solutions to solving family or individual problems and often have refreshments.

This program increases the unity of the family and the members. The program is important to members of the church because of their belief that the family unit can be eternal.

Police Still Hunt Third Man

Two Escapees Captured On Island by Cottager

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — A Percy Beach cottage owner is credited by police with capturing two of two escapees from Warkworth Correctional Institute on an island in the Trent River, approximately 15 miles north of here Tuesday.

The cottager and owner of the island held the two men, David Frederick Dancey, 19, of Pickering Beach, and Dwayne Norman Shaw, 20, of Toronto at bay until police arrived to take them into custody at about 6.30 p.m.

A police spokesman said today Barkwell failed to stop when the cottager ordered the men to halt. Pursuit by police was hindered by darkness.

Police did not release the cottager's name.

Brighton OPP officers and Warkworth prison guards continued the search for Barkwell in a marsh area south of Warkworth today.

That escapee was serving a four-year sentence for robbery with violence.

He is described by police as five feet nine inches in height, medium built, light brown hair, green eyes with scars in the centre of his forehead and the back of his right wrist.

The three men escaped from Warkworth Monday at 10 p.m. by climbing over the prison's east wall.

Beef Is Rustled

PICTON — A Black Creek farmer has reported the loss of four six-month-old beef cattle, each weighing 200 to 300 pounds, Provincial police at Picton have requested anyone with knowledge of the animals' whereabouts to contact them. Two of the young calves have white faces, one is a heifer, mostly white and one a black steer with a white face.

Pigs In House?

MARMORA — Village council has passed a motion that a new bylaw be prepared or the present one revised on keeping of farm animals within the village.

County health inspector Lloyd Ellington was asked last month to investigate a report that pigs are being kept at one home in the village.

It was decided that dogs, cats and birds would be classed as pets, all others would be regarded as farm animals.

Must Pay Levy

MARMORA — Payment of the education levy by senior citizens cannot be avoided, Marmora Lake township Reeve Graham Bell said after notice of a protest from a Mrs. Flossie Laycock.

The township would have to take the money out of its own funds to offset the amount paid by senior citizens, Reeve Bell said.

Provincial police said a third escapee, James Barkwell, 19, of Hustrville, was with the other two men ,but was not captured.

Keeping Cool in Quinte

As temperatures soared close to 90 degrees Tuesday these youngsters may have found the ideal cooling solution standing chin-deep beside the Moira River Conservation Authority Dam at East Riverside Park. A cold front later moved in easing the pressure of hot, humid weather across the Quinte district.

Town Worker's Death, Inquest to Be Held

PICTON — An inquest will be held into the death of Picton public works employee David Jarvis who died Monday when the loader he was operating toppled from an embankment, pinning him to the ground.

Date of the hearing has not been set.

Mr. Jarvis was the son of town clerk Andrew Jarvis. An employee with the public works department for the past five years, he was trapped under the wreckage that weighed an estimated nine tons. The fatal accident occurred at Delhi Park.

A crane was brought immediately from the McFarland Construction Company to lift the front end loader from the workman's body but he died before the machinery could be positioned.

Mr. Jarvis is survived by his wife, the former Patricia Scott, and two children, Darrin, 5, and Lyn, 3.

He is also survived by his father, two brothers, Mac of Trenton and Wayne of Picton, and sisters Betty (Mrs. John Walker) Ridgevale, Mrs. (Norman) Carl Teagle, Kingston, Mrs. Sven (John) Roth, RR4, Picton, Mrs. (Sheila) Keith Oatenbott, Rossmore, and Mrs. Vic (Diane) Freemans, Petawawa and Nancy of Picton.

Directory for Events

PICTON — Prince Edward County Chamber Calendar, a convenient weekly directory of local activities will be printed this summer through opportunities for Youth grant.

The calendar, containing lists of events such as auction sales, baseball games, teas and special museum displays, is distributed to the public free of charge through several county stores and parks.

Events can be listed in the calender by calling 476-6711 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Flags Filched

PICTON — Flag flickers have been having a high time in Prince Edward County in the past ten days if police reports from the provincial police here.

The detachment notes "numerous complaints" of flag thefts recently. Many owners who fly flags in the summer consider a flag tempted to have them at dusk as a protection against vandals.

Light Asked

MARMORA — Dennis Ayler, owner of Belle-Vista Motel on Highway 7, has protested removal of a street light in front of a closed service station west of his premises.

Mr. Ayler said he understood council had ordered its removal but he feels this is a dangerous intersection.

Reeve Jack Reynolds recalled that Ontario Hydro had recommended removal of the line to the pole because it was dangerously low.

Mr. Reynolds said he would discuss it with Marmora Hydro Commission but pointed out it would cost $3,000 to run a line there and wondered if the situation warranted it.

Garbage Pondered

MARMORA — Hastings County officials would have to prove it would be economically beneficial to this area for Marmora and Marmora Township to adopt a centralized garbage disposal system, Reeve Jack Reynolds said after discussing the recent $22,-000 waste management study with the other members of Council.

Deputy-reeve Grant Aichart reported that it had been suggested at county council that the open pit of Turnamian Mining Company would make a good disposal site, a suggestion that was greeted with very little enthusiasm by him and Reeve Reynolds at the meeting.

Village council is pleased with the way Marmora Township is handling the joint waste disposal site and asked Clerk-treasurer William Shannon to pass along its compliments.

Councils Co-operate

MARMORA — A decision to ask the county building inspector to keep village council informed of applications for building permits has been made by Council.

The decision followed a rumor reported by Deputy-reeve Grant Aichart that a local real estate firm had purchased south of Earl Prentice School and intended building four houses. The report was news to the other members of Council.

Council agreed it should have the right to approve all building permits before county inspector George Caves finalizes any application. Reeve Jack Reynolds will ask that copies of all applications be mailed to him and he will expedite them as quickly as possible.

Help Wanted

MARMORA — Village council intends to appeal to the Marmora Lake township council for a contribution towards a deficit in recreation next year.

Reeve Jack Reynolds said the township "have been good to help out in the past — let's hope they will see fit to share in this".

Bata Workers Seek $1.50 Increase

BATAWA — Workers in the footwear division at Bata Industries Ltd. have submitted their contract proposals to management.

Included in the proposal to increase all hourly rates, by $1.50 an hour in addition to any increase in the provincial minimum wage.

The current contract expires Oct. 2, said Doreen Richmond, recording secretary for the joint negotiating committee of Locals 715, 740 and 464 of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union at Bata Industries' footwear division.

4 Injured In Crash

NORTH BAY — Four persons were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital last night with injuries received in a one-car collision at North Bay Park Road and Highway 33, 13 miles southwest of Trenton.

Driver of the car, Marjorie McNeil, 63, of North Bay was admitted to hospital with a broken pelvis. Also admitted were passengers Mildred Baker, 32, with a broken jaw and broken arm and ribs; and Debbie Baker, 10, with a broken knee and ankle. Todd Baker, seven, was treated for back injuries and released.

A police spokesman said the collision occurred because of slippery road condition when the car slid through the intersection and into a ditch.

Councillor Says Town Should Hire Engineer

PICTON — The town of Picton needs an "engineer hired on a full time basis," says deputy - reeve Larry Richardson.

He said a recent meeting of town council he plans to introduce a motion at the August meeting of council to employ an engineer.

"The question is, can we afford not to hire one," said the deputy-reeve when other councillors questioned the cost of this step.

His statement of the town's need for an engineer followed discussion of complications with a building permit. The permit had been issued for a project and later, as work was begun, it was observed that the property site was not large enough to meet bylaw stipulations. The problem now is before the committee of adjustment.

He's Fed Up

MARMORA — The co-operation of Marmora village will be sought in carrying out regular cleanups along the road to the joint Marmora Village-Marmora Township waste disposal site.

A resident on the road, Felix Haislde, has complained about debris that falls from dump trucks enroute to the waste site and left to litter the roadsides. Mr. Haislde told council he is tired of picking up refuse near his property.

Collect Taxes

MARMORA — Clerk-treasurer William Shannon says $85,-000 or 53 per cent of property taxes have been collected.

The total amount of money to be raised in taxes is $159,-000.

Renewed Threat

With sundry members of the emerging world flexing their new-found nuclear capability, there is renewed concern about the threat of radiation.

A decade ago it was the Russians who were fouling the atmosphere with above-ground tests. Before that it was the Americans. More recently the French conducted a long series of tests in the South Pacific which brought protests from in particular Australia and New Zealand. Now India and China are showing that they too have nuclear know-how.

There is good reason for anxiety. Not only is it undesirable that the membership of the nuclear club should increase in this way — thus widening the potential for war or some unforeseen catastrophe — but the radiation factor is a very real one.

It is necessary only to consider the weather-forecasts that are put out every day to learn how swiftly various systems, originating even in distant parts of the continent, can move into our own orbit. Thus radiation from bombs exploded over a supposedly remote Pacific atoll, or in the Chinese interior, still can affect countries around the Pacific rim.

When all is said and done, this is a very small world. In terms of modern methods of communications, population growth, and the increasing strain on resources, it is becoming even more painfully constricted every day.

What about governmental and public responsibility in face of pollution at home? We get the feeling that any momentum that may have been generated toward a cleaner environment in recent years has lost some ground. People are about as interested in mending their ways in this regard, not being litter-bugs and that sort of thing, as the increasing number of young people smoking are interested in giving up the habit.

Take a look at the water off our area beaches at this time and more than the dead fish will give the viewer reason to be disturbed.

And up at the controversial James Bay hydro project, a Montreal Gazette reporter observing conditions there, quotes a helicopter pilot as saying: "It really burns me up to see work crews dumping their lunch garbage into the woods. Nobody really takes this ecology thing seriously. I mean, we try, but what good does it do if everybody isn't trying?"

On our own doorstep people still fish from the Moira River and from the Bay of Quinte, but if the wind is in a certain quarter there is an odor from the bay that makes one wonder.

The problem of pollution in its many forms remains. Does the public care enough? Are people doing their utmost to ensure a clean environment? Or are we all just drifting along in the usual way, hoping that everything will take care of itself?

Mystery Man

The Phantom Marxist of Quinte has struck again. Through the mails that is, with yet another piece of "Information Cuba" in the shape of a magazine.

It has been addressed to the same member of our staff who recently received two other Communist publications: one on Cuba and the other on North Vietnam.

And becoming bolder, the sender prefaces our staffer's name with "Comrade." To which the latter replies: Thanks for the opportunity to brush up on my Spanish, but beyond that forget about it, chum. Comradeship is not really what the totalitarian world is all about.

Last time around the material was mailed in Belleville. This time it comes from Trenton.

There is no name of any sender, except — and this is significant — in bold red lettering: United Metrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America.

Trade Rather Than Ideology Cements Communist Lands

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Communist bloc of nations in Eastern Europe has made for some strange national bedfellows since the Russians laid their heavy hand on these ancient countries after 1945.

The association of Bulgarians, Romanians, Poles, Hungarians and East Germans with the Russians was going to be close whether all these nationalities wanted it or not.

Among them, surely the Poles would be the least enthusiastic, given the long history of Polish-Russian oppression of each other extending into the Middle Ages.

Rather it has been the essential association of the various nations with each other through trade, more recently inter-bloc trade, and the joint requirements of Egypt, the Communist bloc's common market, where centuries-old suspicions have raised . . . .

Bulgarians, who once hated Romanians, have had to count on mixed commissions for economic development. Bitter recall of what the Germans did to Poland within living memory are less easily assuaged when Poles and East Germans meet on common shipbuilding projects.

The same has been true of Hungarians within Romania, as mentioned in this column the other day. Except memories of Romania and Czechs about Magyar rule are not, thought with the same zeal history as the German experience.

It hasn't come easily. As late as the early 1960s, Poles and Germans would intermingle only under orders from native and Soviet Communist bosses. Added to these were the suspicions of everyone in the Communist bloc about the appearances of Communist Chinese and North Korean technical teams, eager to absorb as much as they could from the technical skills of the Eastern Europeans.

A Communist bloc version of a cynical West German joke about the roving Japanese businessman says that "the Chinese steal with their eyes." Nevertheless Romanian engineers in their "socialist partners in trade" has been good. Haiphong harbor, the chief sea outlet for Communist North Vietnam, was first modernized and later rebuilt (after the U.S. bombings), mainly by East German port and shipping expertise.

And then there is distant Cuba in a tropical Caribbean country which few East Germans, Poles or Russians on loan there fully understand.

All in all a melange of nationalities cast together under the common economic and ideological needs and goals of the Marxist world.

All this might be reason why there inevitably could be a Bulgarian now open their country wide to the tourists from capitalistic countries, (as well as from the power-paying socialist ones), and have made their beaches on the Black Sea one of Europe's great tourist treats.

These kinds of widening associations of people, regardless of their original political or monetary motives, can only be for the good.

It is impossible to visualize the Bulgarian, Cuban or perhaps even the average and self-conscious Russian citizen as "your enemy" when you share the same cafe bar, hotel lounge or sunny beach with him in his country.

That kind of people-to-people contact might even have made the Nixon-Brezhnev talks possible at the highest levels. Who knows?

In the good, old summer time, if that favorite beach in Canada's tourist country is the Mediterranean or in the Caribbean is too costly, the Brighton's are waiting, and getting.

Government Bonds Of 1936 Worth One-Third Face Value

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service . . .

What is the worst possible investment a Canadian could ever have made?

In the field of equities, the unenviable title is shared by thousands of stocks ranging from Atlantic Acceptance Corp. to the countless penny mines that have gone to seed.

But in the field of government bonds, there's no argument. The title goes to the three-per-cent Government of Canada perpetual bonds issued in 1936.

The market price of the bonds has fallen—and fallen—to about one-third of their face value.

Unlike all other government obligations, these need never be repaid to the investor—even in dollars worth less than the 1936 dollars than the original purchasers paid for them.

If it's any comfort to holders of Canadian perpetual bonds, their counterpart on the Soviet Union is exactly the same.

That issue, in turn, was offered in exchange for a 1917 issue of 5.5 per cent stock, of which an amazing total of two billion pounds was sold to a patriotic wartime public.

Holders of the 5½ per cent of the 1917 British perpetuals accepted the 1936 exchange, even though the new 2.5-per-cent 1935 issue did not have the sinking fund that had protected the original issue against depreciation, and redemption was to be in "1952 or after."

Currently, the 1932 issue is quoted in London at 23 per cent of its face value, with a current yield of about 10.4 per cent.

Over the years, both in the United Kingdom and in Canada, governments have firmly resisted all appeals to redeem the perpetuals at face value.

Their reasons:

—It's likely that few of the original purchasers still hold the bonds, so redemption now would bring enormous windfall gains to speculators who bought them cheap.

—If perpetuals were redeemed, holders of the many other low-interest government issues, now trading at heavy discounts, would clamor for similar treatment.

—A bargain is a bargain. . . .

The Trudeau government rejected a recent Opposition proposal that it redeem the bonds at face value for original purchasers, and at the market price for the rest of Canadians in the area of other holders.

It's hard to argue against the story logic of the government's position.

But in one sense, the government is a loser too—for it has surely had the benefit of the hands of patriotic people placed in it and its obligations.

Those investors who considered their money to be as safe as the country itself. They were mistaken and, in their opinion, betrayed.

The lesson for other investors is obvious:

Before you exchange your hard-earned money for a gilt-edged piece of paper, read the fine print and consider your options. And know the real purpose of investing.

Economies, Not Controls, Key to Speech by McKeough

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — A recent speech by Energy Minister Mc K e o u g h was somewhat poorly reported—(In at least one paper I read, and I can't recall which it was).

The speech was to an international group of heating engineers and the minister was reported as saying that there could be a variable price on energy based on income.

The clear inference was that McKeough (and that means the government) was seriously considering price controls on energy.

But the context of the speech this was quite wrong: in fact almost absolutely opposite to the point the minister was making.

His point was that if controls were critically necessary then he would be willing to impose them as a last resort but Ontario government's policy was to put its faith in education and self-discipline.

On co-operation of the community to restrain its "lusts that rest upon ignition keys, electric switches, purses and wallets."

What McKeough had to say to his multi-energy audience essentially was that Canada, in comparison with most of the rest of the Western world, was in a comfortable position in that it did not have a crisis in energy. It had home supplies sufficient in quantity to cover its domestic production.

At the same time he agreed completely that there could not be waste.

And in view of this the government here was doing what it could to encourage conservation of resources.

One noteworthy point, he said, was that many farmers were saying that there could be a saving in energy everywhere within a decade.

This is important, because while we have free-flow capacity now, we in Canada are going deeply into known reserves, digging into our capital.

McKeough didn't put entire faith in the prophecies of future plenty. Like at least any of us there.

In the meantime we are not in a position of crisis.

And lacking that we are not going to have controls except in fact we will avoid control if possible.

Chilean General Is Declared Country's Chief Of State

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Chile and the tragic events in that country's shattered democracy are not in our headlines these days. They are victims of what the newspaper publishers call "overkill," excessive press coverage when they first broke out.

Yet the Chilean scene still unfolds with Gen. Augusto Pinochet, the head of the military coup which overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende last September, now declared Chilean chief of state.

The Chilean military leaders have found out like other coups before them who seized power that a triumvirate or army junta at the top monopolizing power from one member to the next, will not work.

Not only is it in defiance of the basic military dictum of supreme authority of the commanding officer but, inevitably, real differences inevitably arise among the members.

Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco is also a chief of state except in his case, the other contenders for that single function either died or were killed early in the Spanish Civil War.

In Chile's case, though Gen. Pinochet was head of the junta which destroyed Chile's long-lived democracy and has clamped a harsh dictatorship on the country, it was Air Force Gen. Gustavo Leigh who has been theologian spokesman for the coup's aims and their system.

The ways of national leaders are curious at any the least. And this is true with Gen. Pinochet and Allende who has been influential threat to the late Marxist President Allende, even after his overthrow him military governor of Santiago during one of the bloodiest days of the coup.

Allende's leading Marxist supporter in the cabinet, and but two of whom are now on the notorious Dawson Island off the far south frigid coast of Chile, warned the late president Pinochet was not to be trusted.

But the remarks, now seized upon by the chief of state in Latin republic which has never had one, persuaded Allende otherwise.

Meantime the assessment of the severity of last fall's coup and the reprisals by the military since then have convinced unabated, if not so much in the press, then in academic circles and by such organizations as Amnesty International.

Alexander Craig, a Canadian Latin American historian not known for sharp personal views on Latin American political systems, reminds us in a recent article the coup, even it said, was astonishingly savage . . . . The Chilean coup does appear to have been one of the bloodiest in Latin America in recent years.

But Craig's comments are found in the current Behind the Headlines pamphlet of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

All this of course, in the Latin American country among all the others that we in the north considered to be the most unbane, most democratic and least reactionary in its political processes.

It's not in the realm of pure speculation what might have happened in the same way, also a major coup, killings and assassinations if Allende's extreme left-wing groups armed for a takeover, had proved first.

We now know that all to well from Uruguay and Argentina in guerrilla operations, mainly Cuban, was widespread in Chile before Sept. 11 with arms caches hidden in government institutes, the president's own home and among the workers districts of Santiago.

Chile last fall had reached that deeply tragic phase which Spain had also reached by the summer of 1936. Elements in the army in Spain that year did not win so easily. In fact the Chilean generals have even confided to foreign journalists their surprise at winning so soon.

The Chilean coup and its aftermath almost define objectives analysis, impossible until we know more of what really happened.

Quebec Bill

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

While Quebec affairs may seem to Canadians in other provinces to be of purely provincial significance, impending Quebec legislation is of a national consequence.

Bill 22, the Quebec Official Language Act, rejects the Canadian federal concept of bilingualism. It promotes the French language in Quebec and restricts the use of English. It provides no guarantee for the cultural survival of the English community in Quebec, but aims at a French-only state.

Chapter V of Bill 22 destroys the traditional two language educational system that has been in Quebec since before Confederation. It makes French the language of instruction of all public schools henceforth. English may be a language of instruction subject to the approval of the Minister of Education. It deprives the parent of his choice of English or French language schools. Henceforth, pupils will be tested to see if they are genuine anglophones. If they do not pass the language test, they will have to attend French schools.

Bill 22 establishes a Language Board to ascertain the "translatibility" (Semantics by Humpty Dumpty) of English documents. Certificates of francisation will be required for business firms to receive "permits, permissions, subsidies, concessions from the public administration" (Article 33). This strikes at the very heart of the normal business ethic in Canada, and makes language a matter of law in the economic activity.

All notices, labelling, signposting, electric signs, etc must be in French; public and governmental texts must conduct their correspondence in French. Communications by an English version, only the French version, shall be considered authentic one.

"Where several certified associations must negotiate in common and one of them wishes to negotiate in French, the negotiations must be carried on in that language" (Article 37).

"Notices required by law to be published in French and in English may nevertheless be published only in French. Similarly, a notice required by law to be published in a French publication only may in English newspaper may be published only in a French newspaper" (Article 57).

These are merely a few of the 110 articles of Bill 22 — the comprehensiveness of which can only be understood when the bill is gone over in its entirety. It is a thoroughly radical bill, intent on the elimination of the English-speaking community from the province of Quebec.

Mortgages

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We hear a lot about the cost of housing and availability of mortgage money.

Here is an interesting piece in the Globe and Mail the other day which I have recently studied to the reasons—the cost of the mortgage.

What a shocking commentary on our way of life when we read "But it costs $186,000 to retire a $30,000 mortgage over the 25-year term."

This is what we call "free enterprise" the basic principle of the capitalist system. No wonder we have an increasing number of dissatisfied citizens in this country.

Everyone needs a house; to rent it seems unreasonable to expect government to control mortgage monies to the extent that they are readily available to the average person at a rate of interest that will not cripple.

When one reads of such things as this it is easy to understand why faith in the established order of things is dwindling.

But one thing is sure, under our present governments: we cannot expect to see any fast change. There is too much money to be made by too many from such sources as to want to regulate it.

Nixon's Lawyer Plays Down Differences in Tape Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyer is playing down differences between the White House account of Watergate and newly released House of Representatives judiciary committee transcripts that quote the president as telling aides to cover up the scandal from Senate investigators.

"I don't believe the relationship with the Senate select committee was necessarily relevant" to the impeachment inquiry, said presidential lawyer James St. Clair when asked Tuesday why a long passage dealing with the Senate Watergate committee was omitted from the White House transcript of a March 22, 1973, conversation.

"We furnished the tape to the (House) committee, so if they felt it was relevant they could publish it, which they did," St. Clair said.

As for other differences between the White House and committee transcripts of eight presidential Watergate conversations, St. Clair added:

"My experience has been that if you have three people listen to a tape, you get three variations."

John Doar, chief counsel for the impeachment inquiry, said his staff utilized the latest sophisticated electronic equipment in preparing the transcripts and they represented "the best job we can do."

In the March 22 passage omitted from the White House transcripts, Nixon is quoted in the committee version as telling aides: "I don't give a shit what happens. I want you all to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else," if called before the Senate Watergate committee.

The 1,200 page volume entitled Comparison of Passages, Committee Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem. N.J.) said the study, which listed the differences side-by-side, "does not carry any conclusions for, or the significance of, the difference."

Like the chairman, Doar emphasized that the final decision on the significance of differences and on which version to accept would have to be made by committee members. They are scheduled to begin debating next week whether there are grounds for the impeachment of President Nixon.

Release of the transcripts was the first step in scheduled disclosure of thousands of pages of evidence the committee has received from its impeachment staff.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler called release of the transcripts "a hypoed public relations campaign."

Ziegler said the committee should release "the full body of evidence all together, all at once, and not in piecemeal fashion."

The committee transcripts were drawn from tapes of conversations Sept. 15, 1972, Feb. 28, March 13, two on March 21, March 22 and two on April 16, all in 1973. Those were the only cases in which the committee had tapes covering conversations included in the White House transcripts released April 30.

Both the committee and White House versions of the conversations showed that the president and his staff early in 1973 regarded the Senate investigation, to be headed by Senator Sam Ervin (Dem. N.C.) as a partisan Democratic effort to embarrass the Republican administration.

During the Feb. 28 conversation, White House counsel John Dean suggested that Ervin was "merely a puppet for Senator Edward Kennedy in this whole thing."

A few moments later, Nixon is quoted as saying, "Yeah, I guess the whole Kennedy crowd is just laying in the bushes waiting to make their move."

On several occasions discussions touched on how to contain the Watergate committee investigation.

Nixon said Ervin could be told:

"This is everything we know, senator . . . This is everything we know, I know nothing more."

One skillet — any size — is all you need

Put On The Skillet!

The popularity of those skillet suppers must mean that many cooks are looking for an easy and quick supper a couple of nights a week. You can get a better deal, nutritionally and financially, in one-dish suppers if you bypass those packages and concoct four own skillet supper. It will taste better, too.

You can make up your own skillet supper with a little imagination; the basics are the same: some kind of meat suitable for sautéing or braising, vegetables, liquid, if you choose, and to make it more filling, some kind of starch.

Skillet suppers are just stove-top casseroles. Ideal for summer evenings.

Here are some recipes to get you started.

Braised Lamb with Vegetables

one lb. stewing lamb, boneless
one sliced onion
one sliced green pepper
one cup water
one stalks celery, chopped one bay leaf
salt and pepper
11 oz. pkg. frozen mixed vegetables.

Cut meat in cubes. (You can start with three pounds bone-in lamb.) Brown lamb in large skillet. Add onion and green pepper when meat is brown and cook five minutes. Drain off surplus fat. Add celery, water and seasonings. Cover and simmer 45 minutes. Add frozen vegetables and cook an additional eight minutes. Serves four.

Liver and Vegetables

one lb. liver, sliced ¼" thick.
¼ cup flour with salt and pepper
one sliced onion
four tbsp fat
two sliced carrots six diced potatoes
one cup tomato juice
one cup boiling water

Cut liver in small squares and flour. Brown liver - add onion. When the onion is browned, set remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer gently 45 minutes or more until vegetables are tender. Serves six.

Wok Cooking

The original skillet supper with the addition of rice cooked separately - has got to be wok-cooked meals. You can use an oriental version of a wok but be sure you keep it hot. Any combinations of ingredients may be used, stir-fry, stirring with the ingredients which take the longest to cook.any of the following ingredients: meat (raw sliced chicken bits, liver squares floured and seasoned, thin slices of beef, shrimp in the tins) and snow peas, bean sprouts, celery, green peppers, onions, water chestnuts, bamboo shoots, thin slices of cauliflower, broccoli and just about anything else you care to use. Use a high quality oil and heat to the point at which it barely begins to smoke. Start with the meat, cooking it for a few minutes. Remove meat and add vegetables, one at a time, stirring all the time. At the end, add back meat and cook a minute or so. You can thicken the broth by stirring together any sauce and cornstarch with a little cold water and adding to pan.

Cabbage Supper
one chopped onion three cups shredded cabbage five carrots, shredded two chopped green peppers ½ lb. ground beef
one can tomatoes
salt and pepper

Fry onion in oil until golden. Add cabbage, carrots, green pepper and meat, simmering and cook on, additional 20 minutes.

Pork Skillet
four thin fat four thick pork chops salt and pepper to taste four thick slices onion four green pepper rings four tbsp uncooked rice three cups stewed tomatoes
one cup diced celery

Melt fat in skillet and brown chops, about 15 minutes. Arrange chops in skillet and top each with slice of onion and green pepper ring. Place one tbsp rice in each ring. Pour tomatoes over meat; add celery. Cover and cook, at slow simmer, for one hour.

Fish Fillet Supper
one lb. fish fillets, thawed
one cup thin sliced celery one cup onions, in large dice two tbsp oil four medium potatoes, sliced thin
one can tomatoes

Cut fish fillets in small squares. Saute celery and onions 10 minutes. Top with pieces of fish, lay potatoes over fish. Pour tomatoes over top, cover and simmer gently about 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender.

Scampi
one lb. hamburger
one medium onion, sliced
two carrots, sliced four quartered potatoes
one small can baked beans one cup frozen peas or one small can four cups water
one cup flour
20 minutes. Stir in tomatoes

Brown meat in large skillet. Add onion and cook until tender. Add water and potatoes and carrots. Simmer about 30 minutes. Stir in baked beans and peas. Thicken if desired with flour mixed with ¼ cup water. Serves four to five.

Macaroni and Beef
one lb. ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
8 oz. uncooked elbow macaroni
½ cup chopped green pepper one celery
one cup water
two cans (7 oz.) tomato sauce
salt and pepper
one tbsp worcestershire

Brown beef, remove meat and pour off all but two tbsp fat. Add onion, macaroni and green pepper, and cook, stirring, until macaroni is golden. Return meat along with tomatoes, sauce water and seasonings. Cover and simmer 25 minutes. Stir occasionally.

Quiet Women

Diana Aitken

"I think the Quinte Arts Council helps to make this city a really interesting place to live," says Diana Aitken.

She's been an active member of the Council since her arrival in Belleville six years ago.

With her husband and two sons she moved here from Montreal, where she had done volunteer work at the Montreal Museum of Fine Art — "Hanging pictures, leading tours, that kind of thing."

Mrs. Aitken says — because of her personal interest in painting.

"I'm not an artist, I paint for relaxation," she explains. "I use bright colors and play music while I paint. I just let my own subconscious paint. But I appreciate other people's work."

Her appreciation first led her to the Quinte Arts Council, and has since expanded into other cultural areas. In her role of secretary, Mrs. Aitken was busily involved in the arrangements for bringing the Shaw Festival touring company to the city in May.

"There were a multitude of things to do," she says. "Learning to negotiate the contract, arranging publicity, getting tickets printed, all sorts of details to look after.

"But it was really satisfying work. And I feel if individuals don't work to make things happen, then nothing happens.

"People like me who join the Quinte Arts Council tend to stay involved, because there's so much to do in so many areas."

Besides being on the council executive, Mrs. Aitken plays an important part on the visual arts committee and the arts festival committee, volunteering her services for many duties.

"I like doing volunteer work because I can commit as much time as I want to, and still have time for the outdoor sports I enjoy," says Mrs. Aitken, in blissful ignorance of the fact that husband and children are also worked with handicapped children on a voluntary basis, and have until recently spent two months a week helping care for pre-schoolers.

"There is just no need for a woman in Belleville to be bored, even if she doesn't have a job outside the home. There are so many possibilities for things to do."

She adds that she likes the work that being a homemaker involves — the cooking, gardening and keeping house, "but especially the cooking.

"The trick is to have the right balance so that you enjoy all aspects of your life," she says.

Ann Landers

Racy Life Ups Pulse Rate

Dear Ann Landers: The woman who was having an affair with the married man had plenty to worry about when it got that attack in her apartment. It turned out to be a seizure, but, luckily for both of ment. She was afraid it was his were case of indigestion. I hope she pays attention to your advice, Ann.

After I had heart surgery last year, I asked the cardiologist who discharged me from the hospital if I could continue to have sex relations, and if so, how often. The doctor replied, "Fly all means—as often as you like, so long as you're with your wife." When I asked what he meant by that, he answered, "I don't want you to get too excited."

The doctor then told me about some recent experimental findings. The pulse rate, he said, runs from 95 to 100 during a husband-wife affair. During an extracurricular adventure it goes up to about 130.

I'm sure your medical consultants will confirm these findings. Will you please let me know after you've checked?—Careful In Binghampton

Dear Careful: I had a difficult time getting opinions from the three cardiologists I consulted, but the Illusion is still laughing. The physician in Boston said it depends on the quality of the relationships. The New York cardiologist said he heard that joke when he was in medical school.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was 14, I was in trouble and I wrote to you for advice. I couldn't go home and was afraid to tell anyone what happened. You told me to be truthful and that the help I'd receive would be worth the confession. I took your advice and was put in a foster home.

At first it was hard...but I managed to fit in very well and after a while I became a part of the family.

The reason I'm writing to you today (I'm 25 now) is to thank you for your advice and to plead with couples who can, to take in foster children—even if the child has been in trouble. Often teen-agers who run afool of the law need only to be loved and understand. Chances are it was a bad home situation that got the child off to a bad start. Alcoholic or indifferent mothers, absent or cruel fathers—these are just a few of the contributing factors.

If long-term foster care isn't feasible, please consider giving a child a home on a temporary basis. Sometimes children need a foster home until the court decides what is going to be done with them.

Children who are kicked from pillar to post need you desperately. If you can't help them, who will?

I am now a foster parent to two teen-agers and I love it. Sign me—Been There

Dear Been: I've received many letters from foster parents who say it was the most rewarding experience of their lives. Some couples have had as many as 50 children over a period of several years. A copy of your letter opens some hearts—and some doors. Thank you for writing.

Successful Living

Mother Studies to Become Nurse

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 39, mother of five. I have been employed as a nursing assistant. In the last two years I have attended night classes plus a private tutor and now hold a grade 12 diploma.

I have applied for admission to a school or nursing and also to a vocational school where I could get the certified nursing assistant's diploma. I have been accepted at the vocational school and expect to hear soon regarding admission to the school of nursing. This would be two years, the C.N.A. one year.

I would have to make a decision. I think the R.N. course would be a great challenge and I have a real desire to go forward.

Please, your opinion?

Excited.

Dear Excited: I'm excited for you! Congratulations on that grade 12 diploma. Just knowing a married woman with a family can do — if she is keen enough on it!

I'd go for the R.N. training. Two years is longer than one, but if you can swing it (with the help of those teen-agers of yours) it will give you lots more scope.

The months will fly by, and the struggle will be worth it. Good luck!

Dear Doris: I have three poems that I would dearly love to have complete words for.

The first one is the hardest; it's about an old lady who was dying and the minister came to call. Every time he said "Amen!" she said "Potatoes!" Apparently she was starving and wanted food, not prayers.

The second has a couple of lines that go: "Around the corner I have a friend in this big city that has no end." He picks up the paper one day to find the friend has died and he never did get to see him.

The third may be easier, as it goes, "I want to live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

Poetry Lover.

Dear P.L.: Never heard of the first two, but maybe somebody else who reads this has.

The third is in a lovely and well-known poem by Sam Walter Foss, 1858-1911, entitled "The House By The Side of the Road." I'm sending you a copy, and others may have it by asking, sending in 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

People and Events

The Melrose Women's Institute held their June meeting in the Redneresville Church Hall. Edith Calrus, president, welcomed the visiting 4-H girls and their mothers. The girls gave demonstrations of their vegetable and dairy projects, after the business of the meeting was completed.

Brighton Helped Itself

It's almost a year to the day between the times the village of Brighton and Tweed were hurled into disaster operations — cleaning up the aftermath of devastating wind storms.

Gale force winds uprooted 100-year-old trees, spewed limbs and boughs onto roofs and parked cars and blocked roadways in both communities.

In Brighton the winds came Friday, July 13.

Both storms left the trace of a cyclone, cutting wide corridors through the communities — the heaviest damage sustained in property loss through Indian Point.

For this Tweed may find itself in the same quandary of provincial red tape that bound Brighton's hands last year.

In the provincial disaster relief fund, the guidelines provide for little more than food and clothing.

Initially Brighton fund-raisers understood the government would match locally raised funds dollar for dollar to compensate property loss.

Later — when the government's spending guidelines were made public — it meant the village became so upset at the number of items that could not be helped that the village decided to go the relief trail on its own.

In Brighton — as in Tweed — the heaviest damage was falling trees, and the province said it wouldn't pick up the bill for removing them.

Instead of letting the province's handcuts — that would also have prevented the locally-raised funds — the village raised enough money not only to compensate but also to put several thousand dollars into a kitty for the construction of a park.

There has been no commitment or decision from Tweed which route the community will take in restoring property.

High Clouds Bring Wind

While the Tweed area sustained most of the damage from yesterday's high winds and storms, many Belleville residents were without hydro electric power for about an hour during the supper rush hour.

Power in every area of the city occurred for the first time at about 4:45 p.m. yesterday and came on again shortly before 6 p.m.

Reason for the power interruption, explained Bell Hydro officials today, was a small explosion in the insulator bushing on two current transformers at the hydro station on Centre Street.

An official at the Belleville Utilities Commission said that five of the seven hydro substations were not functioning.

The explosion resulted from moisture caused by yesterday's heavier weather going into the underside of the insulator bushing and setting up an electrical arc that caused the bushing to explode.

Explosion Cut Hydro

Weathermen at Canadian Forces Base Trenton say it is unlikely that the storm that heavily damaged parts of Tweed last night was either a twister or a tornado.

John Pelin, of the CFB Trenton Weather office, said today that the windstorm was most likely caused by thunder clouds that had reached a height of close to 60,000 feet — approximately 10 miles up.

When clouds reach that height cold air currents begin hit the ground and rotate the earth in narrow strips at high speeds to much the same way water throws to the ground from a pail does, Mr. Pelin said.

Last night, clouds in the area were reported to have had ceilings as high as 60,000 feet and if this were the case in the Tweed area, the narrow band of storm that ripped its way through the town could very easily have reached speeds greater than 50-miles-an-hour.

A similar situation occurred at the Centre Street station just last week, cutting off power for a short while. The fire to the transformer quickly burns itself out and Hydro officials say they then start rerouting power to customers to other feeds such as in Rossmore.

The hour-long power interruption occurred as many people were returning home from work and traffic at some intersections had to be controlled by policemen.

Trailer Trap

Unsuspecting campers were in this tent trailer when the boughs and trunk of a 30-foot high tree came tearing through the canvas roof. Nearby tenters and Tweed residents rushed with chain saws and axes to free the group which was then immediately transported to Belleville General Hospital. Only two were kept in hospital — a mother for serious neck injuries and her daughter, for a concussion. Others were treated for cuts and bruises and released.

Cleanup Crews Earn Reeve's High Praise

High praise for municipal and hydro workers who worked throughout the night clearing streets and restoring power was given this morning by Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, following Tuesday evening's storm which saw winds of near cyclone proportions rip through the village, felling trees and damaging properties.

Reeve Allen said works crews did yeoman service following the storm.

"They way everyone pitched in to offer assistance was heartwarming," she said.

She had particular praise for the works superintendent, Allen Alore, who immediately after the storm got crews together and went to work.

Hydro service was badly damaged but at 10:30 this morning Reeve Allen said everything was under control and all streets were cleared.

The Tweed reeve said the storm struck at 7:52 p.m. and 10 minutes later it was all over.

"It was a cyclone," Reeve Allen said, "Eye witnesses saw the black funnel cloud in about 50 feet off the ground. Then it dipped and cut across the periphery of the lake."

"It was nothing short of a miracle that there were no major injuries or deaths," she said.

Every street in the village was hit with big trees uprooted and branches torn away.

Over-all damage was estimated at $1.5 million but the reeve admitted this was a "ballpark" figure.

Unofficial emergency street corner council meetings were held throughout the night and early morning as crews worked to clear the streets. All streets were cleared by midnight the reeve said.

A temporary office has been set up in the municipal building to receive reports of uninsured damage.

Reeve Allen said she had been in touch with Hastings MPP Charlie Rollins, who had promised every assistance in securing provincial aid if required. She said Mr. Rollins had been "most generous."

Procedures for setting up a disaster fund would be followed through in case aid was needed, the reeve said.

More Policing Is Sought

MARMORA — Provincial police at Madoc should be asked to provide more surveillance in Marmora, especially on weekends, village council has decided.

Recent complaints about rowdyism on the main street and the arrival of warmer weather led council to request the OPP to make more frequent checks, particularly on foot, in the village.

Collision Total $2,500

Two Belleville residents sustained minor injuries when their cars collided at the intersection of Bridge and Street and Dufferin Avenue causing an estimated $2,500 damage yesterday afternoon. Police say that Douglas E. Graham, 25, of 12 Chown Crescent, was injured when the car he was driving collided with a car driven by Joanne H. Lee, 30, of 318 Bridge Street East. A hydro pole on the southeast corner of the intersection was snapped in the collision and police constables Bob Cooper, foreground, and Tom Burkitt, had to pry the door open to free Joanne Lee from her car. The accident occurred at 3:26 p.m.

$1.5 Million Damage Estimated

Violent Windstorm Rips Through Tweed Village

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

Tweed residents are busy cleaning up after a violent storm tore its way through the centre of Tweed late yesterday evening, injuring nine people, and causing an estimated $1½-million damage to buildings and cars.

All nine of the persons who were injured were camping beside Stoco Lake when storm winds, estimated at between 80 and 90 miles an hour, ripped through the park at 7:10 p.m. uprooting trees and hurling large branches on top of cars and trailers.

Eight London, Ont., campers were injured when the wind snapped a 30-foot tall evergreen and knocked it on top of their tent trailer.

Mrs. Hazel Kelly, 38, of London, was rushed by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital where she was admitted with neck injuries. She is listed in "fair" condition.

Her daughter, Catharine, 13, was admitted also with head injuries and is listed as "satisfactory" condition.

Raymond Kelly, 39, his daughter Robin, 13, and his son Ronny, 16, were treated for cuts and bruises and released, as were Heather Haven, 13, Donna Jones, 15, and Phillip Morris, 21, all of London.

The Jones girls and Morris were all camping with the Kellys and were sitting in the trailer when the tree fell on them.

A Tweed woman, Mary Tustin, 31, was also injured while visiting the camp grounds. She was treated and released from Trenton Hospital in Belleville.

In other parts of the town, buildings and cars were damaged by flying branches. Many fallen trees in the storm tore a half-mile-wide swath through the town.

No official damage estimated are available yet, but police have said they believe the storm may have caused "well over a million dollars damage."

On Victoria Street, the roof and part of the eastern storey of Cove's Marina was torn off by the wind. The debris landed harmlessly in an alley that separated the store from the house next door.

A number of boats that were on display in the park next to the building and several boats that were left docked against the north side of the store were left untouched by the storm.

Town police have estimated that as many as 45 homes and four businesses sustained wind damage.

In one case, a car owned by Barry Wallace, one of Tweed's three police officers, was damaged when a tree limb fell across it and on to the horse Street.

One house was reportedly struck by lightning and had the aluminum siding torn from its side.

Power and telephone lines were knocked down by the wind and falling branches, leaving the village and surrounding countryside in darkness for most of the night.

Hydro crews worked for nearly five hours before they were able to restore power to the northern section of the town.

Workmen said that they thought it might take them well into Wednesday before power is fully restored in the southern sections of the town where the storm hit hardest and before all the downed lines are properly restrung.

Town residents explained that they never saw a funnel shaped cloud throughout the storm. What first appeared to be just a severe thunderstorm turned into a near tornado as winds picked up speed and roared through the town for approximately 10 minutes. The storm as a whole lasted only 30 minutes.

Dennis Hughes, of RR3, Tweed, was in the country just north of the town when the storm first set in and rushed to town to start work for Ontario Hydro.

"It was one of those freak thunderstorms," he explained. "It really bounced. We had a lot of rain and all of a sudden the winds followed right behind. This wasn't a twister. No, this was just a freak electrical storm. It had a good concussion to it and then the wind just rushed in."

"I came from just outside the town. It wasn't quite as severe there as in town, but she really went in here. These trees leaned right over. They'll take a 35-mile-an-hour wind and they'll bend, but they were leaning right over the houses. I'd say there was two or three feet of rain on the road, just like that. It was almost hail.

"After the wind came, it just quickened down," Mr. Hughes concluded. "It just went right back to that heavy hazy heat, but boy was she blowing here."

Officers from the Belleville and Madoc Ontario Provincial Police detachments were rushed to the town to help Tweed's two police constables supervise the cleanup operations, while a crew of nearly 40 volunteer firefighters, citizens band radio operators and Department of Natural Resources personnel worked throughout the night trying to clear the streets of fallen trees and branches.

. . . And Then It Was Over

Paul and Dorothy Brushie and Charles James sit by candle and torch lights, moments after their Tweed home was ripped by the worst wind storm any could remember. The Brushie family lives across the street from the Memorial Park where the gale force winds played the most havoc with campers and tenters. "When the wind died a little, I opened the door and saw this mess covered with blood and I screamingly cry for help," said Paul Brushie. The Brushie home was used as the ambulance dispatch headquarters throughout the night.

Storm Memories Linger

Disasters like the violent storm that ripped its way through the town of Tweed last night each unforgettable memories on peoples' minds.

Long after the panic has faded on the headlines in the newspapers, the people of Tweed will remember what they were doing and what they did when the wind roared through their town yesterday at 7:10 p.m., tearing trees from their roots, ripping the roofs off houses and causing nine people to hospital.

Paul Brushie, of 226 River Street, will never forget last night.

He, his wife, Dorothy, and their 13-year-old son, Clint, were watching the storm from their front window on River Street, across from the Tweedsmuir Trailer Park, when a 30-foot tall evergreen fell on the trailer in the trailer park directly opposite.

"I saw the whole thing coming and with their back bends began to tear apart and the tree limbs that covered the trailer's roof."

Pulling several people from the wreckage, they rushed the injured across the street to their home and called for an ambulance.

Mr. Brushie said that he hadn't seen the storm coming and had been watching flu approach from his living room window with his son.

"I was just telling my son of when I got caught in a hurricane out west and something interrupted and I never finished telling him," Mr. Brushie explained. "When it started I said 'Clint now it's a hurricane or a tornado. It's got to be something close to it.'

"When it really got bad, we were standing in front of the window watching it and we were laughing about it. Then the lights went out."

"All at once my son hollered 'Hey look daddy, look at that' and then I could see this white streak.

"I never saw the people in the trailer before," Mr. Brushie continued. "I opened the door and tried to look through the rain across the street. We didn't stand there 30 seconds and saw somebody come out of the trees hollering 'Help'.

"I hear some guy hollering 'Help' and there was another guy running around with blood all over him and he was hysterical.

"My son and I just headed out the door. My wife believed 'No don't go' and first thing you know she's right behind us and we were right down there but there's nothing people can do. Then we took them all over to our house and called an ambulance.

"I don't know, there were so many people, we just took into the house after that. There was some little girl there crying and a couple of guys there were hurt real bad and the wife there was just bad too. Our couch was just soaked in all the blood. We used every towel in the house because I think everybody had scratches and bruises and cuts.

"It's been quite a night," he concluded. "Maybe someday I'll get in trouble and someone will do the same thing for me."

Gerry Minor, of St. Catharines, was in the park with his family when the storm swept across Tweed. He had set up a trailer tent somewhere and was just getting ready to talk, his two children fishing.

"We had just come back from the boat when the storm blew up," he said. "I was in holding my daughter and I went down with my children and my wife was sitting in the car when the trees started going down. A big tree went right down just down the road and a couple of cars and trucks were damaged by falling branches on the campsites around us. Trees went down everywhere."

Mrs. Leslie Rogers, of 93 Victoria Street, was looking out her back door when the storm hit. She then just saw the street from Cove's Marina, where the wind ripped the roof and part of the second storey off the building.

"It just came up with no real warning," she said. "I was looking out my back door watching a tree falling when when I first realized it was there. My mother-in-law's next door to Cove's and I ran to look to see where she was when the roof came off the building. Luckily, her house wasn't damaged. But it gives you an awful feeling. I'm shaking you."

Bill Lamb, who lives just down the street from Mr., Hughes, can laugh to the suddenness of the storm but just in about as far as he will go.

He was home sleeping when the storm rushed through the town and slept through the whole thing.

When he woke up, he found a tree had fallen across his truck and the store across the street was minus its roof.

RCMP Help Fight Fire

TRENTON — RCMP officers from three different detachments, assisted by firestruck northwestern Ontario Monday by a CH Squadron Hercules, a CFB Trenton spokesman said here Monday.

Capt. John Collins, acting base information officer, said 30 officers, 10 each from North Bay, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie, were airlifted in Dryden.

RCMP officers will aid in the evacuation, said Capt. Collins.

The base aircraft, piloted by Maj. Kenneth Manning, bombed down in Trenton had night.

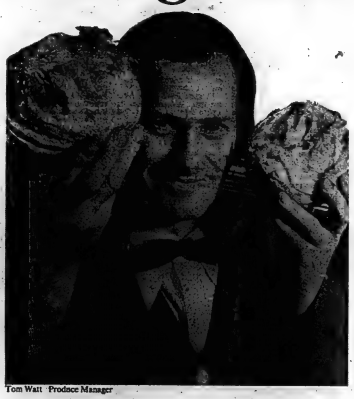
Stirling Requests Arena Commitment

A group of Stirling fund raisers started Rawdon Township council Tuesday night, they want like a commitment from the township concerning grants for the proposed Stirling Arena.

According to the group, money for the old arena is becoming prohibitive and at least $250,000 is needed for a new structure.

Township councillors were skeptical about coming to a commitment soon.

Reeve Sidney Gordon Wilman said, "It doesn't seem right to put our support into one area when it won't benefit the entire township."



Councillor Ben McCurdy said council still had got enough time to analyse the question.

The group will appear at council July 15 to discuss the situation and expect to have some form of commitment that night or July 30 at the latest.

"I don't know if we'll be ready by that time," said Councillor McCurdy.

No specific figures were included in the group's letter to council. The township has $80,000 in unallocated recreation funds.

Put our heads together. For a great, fresh salad.

Tom Watt Produce Manager

"Think green. Cool, fresh, crisp. Then toss yourself a great salad starting with our lettuce. At Dominion we've filled the counters with varieties of fresh local grown lettuce. Top quality, green lettuce. Firm heads, for salads as imaginative as you can name them.
Canadian grown lettuce. Nutritious. Delicious. Crunchy. Very good on the budget too. Put a few Dominion heads of lettuce together. Mix them with our other quality vegetables — celery, onions, tomatoes, mushrooms, green peppers, carrots. Then make yourself a cool, summer delight."

Lithium Provides Pacemaker Power

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 65-year-old Vancouver business-man is sporting technology's latest version of the cardiac pacemaker—a cigarette lighter-sized pack containing lithium batteries.

Carl Chrisman was one of the first three Canadians to receive atomic pacemaker," Dr. Ian Munro said in an interview.

The mercury pacemaker costs about $1,000. The lithium iodide model costs $1,000 and is expected to operate for more than seven years.

Dr. Munro said a patient using an atomic pacemaker will be able to carry it for 12 to 15 years before replacement. But that model costs about $5,000.

"One disadvantage of the mercury model is that it produces hydrogen gas," Dr. Munro said. "In order to rid it of this gas a small hole is made. Through the same opening body fluids may enter the pack."

He said the risk is small but it might impair maximum efficiency of he device.

"The second problem with the mercury battery is that it has an alkaline-corrosive material which can lead to early deterioration of the power pack."

It has been reported that some mercury pacemakers had to be replaced within three to six months.

"The lithium pack has neither the alkaline component nor does it give off this hydrogen gas."

And Dr. Munro said the effects of slight radiation from the nuclear pacemaker are still unknown. No adverse effects have yet been reported.

Since Dr. Munro installed Mr. Chrisman's pack, nearly 80 other such pacemakers have been installed in patients throughout Canada.

He travels across the country carrying a portable monitor through which, with the aid of telephone, he can send an electro-cardiogram recording to Vancouver General Hospital's cardiac division.

Wealth Not Result Of Devotion to Job

CALGARY (CP) — A professor at the University of Calgary's school of social welfare says the public is misled about the poor and the wealthy.

Ben Carniol said in an interview it is a myth that poverty is punishment for refusing to work and that wealthy people became that way through hard work.

The poor are unjustly stigmatized "as being lazy and shiftless," he said.

"But even government reports show the majority of them are actually in the work force."

Mr. Carniol argued:

"Riches accumulated from inheritances, stock dividends, capital gains, trust funds and tax loopholes can hardly be considered as earned.

"And seen 'from' this perspective, the elites are no more deserving of their fortunes than the poor are deserving of theirs."

Romania Tries to Make 125-mile Bathing Beach

MAMAIA, Romania (AP) — Romania is trying to develop its Black Sea coast so you could take a summer stroll along the 125 miles of beach from Russia to Bulgaria without stepping on anything but a sun-oiled back.

The potential, said Renato Illescu, spokesman of the tourism ministry, is for one million sunbathers, all lying on the beach at the same time, each with a square of sand six by 10 feet.

Since 1958, Romania has developed resorts with beds for 100,000 tourists in hotels and villas. They are mostly packed during summer.

The Romanian Riviera last year contributed an estimated $100 million to the balance of payments.

About 750,000 foreign tourists stayed on the Black Sea coast, said Illescu, and half from the West.

Mamaia is the northernmost of the resorts, next to the busy port of Constanta. In 1968, Mamaia had one 400-bed hotel, a few villas and a summer palace for Romania's royal family.

Now Mamaia, a modest beach with a strip of sand between the sea and Lake Sotghol, has 45 hotels with 33,000 beds.

Farther south is the 25,000-bed resort of Eforie built around a health centre offering various forms of physical therapy and baths in the mud of Lake Techirgol. Romanians claim this black goo, formed of ancient, decayed plants, is an effective treatment for rheumatism, skin disorders and other ailments.

Farther south from the mud of Lake Techirgol, the tourist orbits among the planet-resorts of Neptune, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn, all built since 1967 with a total of 40,000 beds.

In one modern hotel, called deluxe but not up to Western deluxe standards, a double room costs $25 with breakfast.

Handouts Essential For Sri Lanka Folks

COLOMBO (AP) — For Jinasena Perera, the government dules of Sri Lanka are a way of life without which he would be unable to feed his family on a $25-a-month postal worker's salary.

For Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike, the giveaways are an expensive political necessity without which her leftist coalition or any other government could never expect to survive.

For the bureaucrats who follow Sri Lanka's foreign exchange accounts, the decades-old policy of handouts is a drain pushing this easy-going island nation, formerly Ceylon, toward bankruptcy.

"They've sort of transformed the food crisis into a financial crisis," said a Western diplomat. "And the financial crisis is expensive because the terms under which they are trying to provide the country with food are beyond the country's resources."

Perera gets five pounds of free rice a week, one each for himself, his wife and his three daughters. Each family member also gets five pounds of flour at a government-subsidized seven cents a pound. Bread and sugar also are available cheap on subsidized ration cards.

With some tomatoes and beans growing in the backyard, the post office messenger says his children always go to bed with full stomachs.

Their schooling also is free. If illness threatens them, government health care is there for 2½ cents and hospital care costs nothing.

"When they were sick, I went straightaway to the government dispensary," Perera told a visitor.

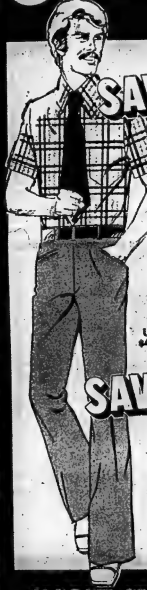
Perera, 37, expects to retire at 50 with a $10 a month government pension, sweetened by $20 a year in seniority bonuses from the post office. He voted on the bandwagon that swept Mrs. Bandaranaike's Sri Lanka Freedom party into office in 1970 as the chief group in a Socialist coalition including Communists and Trotskyites. One reason was her promise to increase the dole.

But discontent is spreading fast through the 13 million inhabitants of this lush—island because government rationing has run head-on into skyrocketing commodity prices.

Sugar selling for $264 a ton five months ago now costs more than twice as much. Sri Lanka bought 710,000 tons of rice and flour last year for $77 million. It plans to spend almost three times that much for 671,000 tons this year.

At the same time, the country's chief foreign exchange crops—tea, rubber and coconuts—were disrupted by land reform projects. By the government's own statistics they brought in less buying power in 1972 than they had a decade earlier.

For a country importing 30 per cent of its food needs, the result was a further sag in a disastrous balance of payments position that is predicted will be $200 million in the red this year.



Mrs. Bandaranaike halved the rice ration last October—after having doubled it three years earlier to fulfill her electoral promise. She increased the subsidized prices on essential commodities, sending a cup of tea in local restaurants from 1½ cents to almost five cents.

Diplomatic observers say the opposition United National party would return to power if an election were held now, chiefly because of popular dissatisfaction with the giveaway cuts and price rises. But no voting is scheduled until 1977.
